(8) A general election for the Senate shall take place not later than ninety days after a dissolution of the House of Representatives, and the first meeting of the Senate after the general election shall take place on a day to be fixed by the President on the advice of the Prime Minister

(9) Every member of the Senate shall, unless he previously dies, resigns, or becomes disqualified, continue to hold office until the day before the polling day of the general election for the Senate next held after his election or nomination

(10 1) Subject to the foregoing provisions of this Article elections of the elected members of the Senate shall be regulated by law

(10 2) Casual vacancies in the number of the nominated members of the Senate shall be filled by nomination by the Prime Minister with the prior consent of persons so nominated

(10 3) Casual vacancies in the number of the elected members of the Senate shall be filled in the manner provided by law

19. Direct Election

Provision may be made by law for the direct election by any functional or vocational group or association or council of so many members of the Senate as may be fixed by such law in substitution for an equal number of the members to be elected from the corresponding panels of candidates constituted under Article 18

Part 2—Legislation

20. Amendment by Senate

(1) Every Bill initiated in and passed by the House of Representatives shall be sent to the Senate and may, unless it be a Money Bill, be amended in the Senate and the House of Representatives shall consider any such amendment

(2 1) A Bill other than a Money Bill may be initiated in the Senate, and if passed by the Senate, shall be introduced in the House of Representatives

(2 2) A Bill initiated in the Senate if amended in the House of Representatives shall be considered as a Bill initiated in the House of Representatives

(3) A Bill passed by either House and accepted by the other House shall be deemed to have been passed by both Houses

Part 3—Money Bills

2.1 Initiative, Procedure

(1 1) Money Bills shall be initiated in the House of Representatives only.

(1 2) Every Money Bill passed by the House of Representatives shall be sent to the Senate for its recommendations

(2 1) Every Money Bill sent to the Senate for its recommendations shall, at the expiration of a period not longer than twenty-one days after it shall have been sent to the Senate, be returned to the House of Representatives, which may accept or reject all or any of the recommendations of the Senate

(2 2) If such Money Bill is not returned by the Senate to the House of Representatives within such twenty-one days or is returned within such twenty-one days with recommendations which the House of Representatives does not accept, it shall be deemed to have been passed by both Houses at the expiration of the said twenty-one days

22. Definition of Money Bills

(1 1) A Money Bill means a Bill which contains only provisions dealing with all or any of the following matters, namely, the imposition, repeal, remission, alteration or regulation of taxation, the imposition for the payment of debt or other financial purposes of charges on public moneys or the variation or repeal of any such charges, supply, the appropriation, receipt, custody, issue or audit of accounts of public money, the raising or guarantee of any loan or the repayment thereof, matters subordinate and incidental to these matters or any of them

(1 2) In this definition the expressions "taxation", "public money" and "loan" respectively do not include any taxation, money or loan raised by local authorities or bodies for local purposes

(2 1) The Chairman of the House of Representatives shall certify any Bill which in his opinion, is a Money Bill to be a Money Bill, and his certificate shall, subject to the subsequent provisions of this section, be final and conclusive

(2 2) The Senate, by a resolution passed at a sitting at which not less than thirty members are present, may request the President to refer the question whether the Bill is or is not a Money Bill to a Committee of Privileges

(2 3) If the President after consultation with the Council of State decides to accede to the request he shall appoint a Committee of Privilege consisting of an equal number of members of the House of Representatives and of the Senate and a Chairman who shall be a Judge of the Supreme Court these appointments shall be made after consultation with the Council of State in the case of an equality of votes but not otherwise the Chairman shall be entitled to vote

(2 4) The President shall refer the question to the Committee of Privileges so appointed and the Committee shall report its decision thereon to the President within twenty-one days after the day on which the Bill was sent to the Senate

(2 5) The decision of the Committee shall be final and conclusive

(2 6) If the President after consultation with the Council of State decides not to accede to the request of the Senate, or if the Committee of Privileges fails to report within the time hereinbefore specified the certificate of the Chairman of the House of Representatives shall stand confirmed

Part 4—Time for Consideration of Bills

23. Timing

(1) This Article applies to every Bill passed by the House of Representatives and sent to the Senate other than a Money Bill or a Bill the time for the consideration of which by the Senate shall have been abridged under Article 24

(1 1) Whenever a Bill to which this Article applies is within the stated period defined in the next following subsection either rejected by the Senate or passed by the Senate with amendments to which the House of Representatives does not agree or is neither passed (with or without amendment) nor rejected by the Senate within the stated period, the Bill shall, if the House of Representatives so resolves within one hundred and eighty days after the expiration of the stated period be deemed to have been passed by both Houses of Parliament on the day on which the resolution is passed

(1 2) The stated period is the period of ninety days commencing on the day on which the Bill is first sent by the House of Representatives to the Senate or any longer period agreed upon in respect of the Bill by both Houses of Parliament

(2.1) The preceding section of this Article shall apply to a Bill which is initiated in and passed by the Senate, amended by the House of Representatives, and accordingly deemed to have been initiated in the House of Representatives

(2) For the purpose of this application the stated period shall in relation to such a Bill commence on the day on which the Bill is first sent to the Senate after having been amended by the House of Representatives

24. Certification, Urgency

(1) If and whenever on the passage by the House of Representatives of any Bill, other than a Bill expressed to be a Bill containing a proposal to amend the Constitution, the Prime Minister certifies by messages in writing addressed to the President and to the Chairman of each House of Parliament that, in the opinion of the Government, the Bill is urgent and immediately necessary for the preservation of the public peace and security, or by reason of the existence of a public emergency, whether domestic or international, the time for the consideration of such Bill by the Senate shall, if the House of Representatives so resolves and if the President, after consultation with the Council of State, concurs, be abridged to such period as shall be specified in the resolution

(2) Where a Bill, the time for the consideration of which by the Senate has been abridged under this,

(a) is, in the case of a Bill which is not a Money Bill, rejected by the Senate or passed by the Senate with amendments to which the House of Representatives does not agree or neither passed nor rejected by the Senate, or

(b) is, in the case of a Money Bill, either returned by the Senate to the House of Representatives with recommendations which the House of Representatives does not accept or is not returned by the Senate to the House of Representatives, within the period specified in the resolution, the Bill shall be deemed to have been passed by both Houses of Parliament at the expiration of that period

(3) When a Bill the time for the consideration of which by the Senate has been abridged under this becomes law it shall remain in force for a period of ninety days from the date of its enactment and no longer unless, before the expiration of that period, both Houses shall have agreed that such law shall remain in force for a longer period and the longer period so agreed upon shall have been specified in resolutions passed by both Houses

Part 5—Signing and Promulgation of Laws

25. Promulgation

(1) As soon as any Bill, other than a Bill expressed to be a Bill containing a proposal for the amendment of this Constitution, shall have been passed or deemed to have been passed by both Houses of Parliament, the Prime Minister shall present it to the President for his signature and for promulgation by him as a law in accordance with the provisions of this Article

(2) Save as otherwise provided by this Constitution, every Bill so presented to the President for his signature and for promulgation by him as a law shall be signed by the President not earlier than the fifth and not later than the seventh day after the date on which the Bill shall have been presented to him

(2) At the request of the Government, with the prior concurrence of the Senate, the President may sign any Bill the subject of such request on a date which is earlier than the fifth day after such date as aforesaid

(3) Every Bill the time for the consideration of which by the Senate shall have been abridged under 24 shall be signed by the President on the day on which such Bill is presented to him for signature and promulgation as a law

(4) Every Bill shall become and be law as on and from the day on which it is signed by the President under this Constitution, and shall, unless the contrary intention appears, come into operation on that day

(4) Every Bill signed by the President under this Constitution shall be promulgated by him as a law by the publication by his direction of a notice in the Government Gazette stating that the Bill has become law

(4) Every Bill shall be signed by the President in the text in which it was passed or deemed to have been passed by both Houses of Parliament, and if a Bill is so passed or deemed to have been passed in both the official languages, the President shall sign the text of the Bill in each of those languages

(4) Where the President signs the text of a Bill in one only of the official languages, an official translation shall be issued in the other official language

(4) As soon as may be after the signature and promulgation of a Bill as a law, the text of such law which was signed by the President or, where the President has signed the text of such law in each of the official languages, both the signed texts shall be enrolled for record in the office of the Registrar of the Supreme Court, and the text, or both the texts, so enrolled shall be conclusive evidence of the provisions of such law

(4) In case of conflict between the texts of a law enrolled under this section in both the official languages, the text in the national language shall prevail

(5) It shall be lawful for the Prime Minister, from time to time as occasion appears to him to require, to cause to be prepared under his supervision a text (in both the official languages) of this Constitution as then in force embodying all amendments theretofore made therein

(5) A copy of every text so prepared, when authenticated by the signatures of the Prime Minister and the Chief Justice, shall be signed by the President and shall be enrolled for record in the office of the Registrar of the Supreme Court

(5) The copy so signed and enrolled which is for the time being the latest text so prepared shall, upon such enrolment, be conclusive evidence of this Constitution as at the date of such enrolment and shall for that purpose supersede all texts of this Constitution of which copies were previously so enrolled

(5 4) In case of conflict between the texts of any copy of this Constitution enrolled under this section, the text in the national language shall prevail

Part 6 —Reference of Bills to the Supreme Court

26. Review

(0) This Article applies to any Bill passed or deemed to have been passed by both Houses of Parliament other than a Money Bill, or a Bill expressed to be a Bill containing a proposal to amend the Constitution, or a Bill the time for the consideration of which by the Senate shall have been abridged under Article 24

(1 1) The President may, after consultation with the Council of State, refer any Bill to which this Article applies to the Supreme Court for a decision on the question as to whether such Bill or any specified provision or provisions of such Bill is or are repugnant to this Constitution or to any provision thereof

(1 2) Every such reference shall be made not later than the seventh day after the date on which such Bill have been presented by the Prime Minister to the President for his signature

(1 3) The President shall not sign any Bill the subject of a reference to the Supreme Court under this pending the pronouncement of the decision of the Court

(2 1) The Supreme Court consisting of not less than five Judges shall consider every question referred to it by the President under this Article for a decision, and, having heard arguments by or on behalf of the Attorney General and by counsel assigned by the Court, shall pronounce its decision on such question in open court as soon as may be, and in any case not later than sixty days after the date of such reference

(2 2) The decision of the majority of the Judges of the Supreme Court shall, for the purposes of this, be the decision of the Court and shall be pronounced by such one of those Judges as the Court shall direct, and no other opinion, whether assenting or dissenting, shall be pronounced nor shall the existence of any such other opinion be disclosed

(3.1) In every case in which the Supreme Court decides that any provision of a Bill the subject of a reference to the Supreme Court under this article is repugnant to this Constitution or to any provision thereof, the President shall decline to sign such Bill

(3 2) If, in the case of a Bill to which Article 27 applies, a petition has been addressed to the President under that Article, that Article shall be complied with

(3 3) In every other case the President shall sign the Bill as soon as may be after the date on which the decision of the Supreme Court shall have been pronounced

Part 7—Reference of Bills to the People

27. Request of Veto

(0) This Article applies to any Bill, other than a Bill expressed to be a Bill containing a proposal for the amendment of this Constitution, which shall have been deemed, by virtue of Article 23 hereof, to have been passed by both Houses of Parliament

(1) A majority of the members of the Senate and not less than one-third of the members of the House of Representatives may by a joint petition addressed to the President by them under this Article request the President to decline to sign and promulgate as a law any Bill to which this Article applies on the ground that the Bill contains a proposal of such national importance that the will of the people thereon ought to be ascertained

(2) Every such petition shall be in writing and shall be signed by the petitioners whose signatures shall be verified in the manner prescribed by law

(3) Every such petition shall contain a statement of the particular ground or grounds on which the request is based, and shall be presented to the President not later than four days after the date on which the Bill shall have been deemed to have been passed by both Houses of Parliament

(4 1) Upon receipt of a petition addressed to him under this Article, the President shall forthwith consider such petition and shall, after consultation with the Council of State, pronounce his decision thereon not later than ten days after the date on which the Bill to which such petition relates shall have been deemed to have been passed by both Houses of Parliament

(4 2) If the Bill or any provision thereof is or has been referred to the Supreme Court under Article 26, it shall not be obligatory on the President to consider the petition unless or until the Supreme Court has pronounced a decision on such reference to the effect that the said Bill or the said provision thereof is not repugnant to this Constitution or to any provision thereof, and, if a decision to that effect is pronounced by the Supreme Court, it shall not be obligatory on the President to pronounce his decision on the petition before the expiration of six days after the day on which the decision of the Supreme Court to the effect aforesaid is pronounced

(5 1) In every case in which the President decides that a Bill the subject of a petition under this Article contains a proposal of such national importance that the will of the people thereon ought to be ascertained, he shall inform the Prime Minister and the Chairman of each House of Parliament accordingly in writing under his hand and Seal and shall decline to sign and promulgate such Bill as a law unless and until the proposal shall have been approved either

(i) by the people at a Referendum in accordance with the provisions of Article 47 (2) within a period of eighteen months from the date of the President's decision, or

(ii) by a resolution of the House of Representatives passed within the said period after a dissolution and reassembly of the House of Representatives

(5 2) Whenever a proposal contained in a Bill the subject of a petition under this article shall have been approved either by the people or by a resolution of the House of Representatives in accordance with the foregoing provisions of this section, such Bill shall as soon as may be after such approval be presented to the President for his signature and promulgation by him as a law and the President shall thereupon sign the Bill and duly promulgate it as a law

(6) In every case in which the President decides that a Bill the subject of a petition under this article does not contain a proposal of such national importance that the will of the people thereon ought to be ascertained, he shall inform the Prime Minister and the Chairman of each House of Parliament accordingly in writing under his hand and Seal, and such Bill shall be signed by the President not later than eleven days after the date on which the Bill shall have been deemed to have been passed by both Houses of Parliament and shall be duly promulgated by him as a law

CHAPTER V THE GOVERNMENT

28. Constitution, Functions

(1) The Government shall consist of not less than seven and not more than fifteen members who shall be appointed by the President in accordance with the provisions of this Constitution

(2) The executive power of the State shall, subject to the provisions of this Constitution, be exercised by or on the authority of the Government

(3 1) War shall not be declared and the State shall not participate in any war save with the assent of the House of Representatives

(3 2) In the case of actual invasion, however, the Government may take whatever steps they may consider necessary for the protection of the State, and the House of Representatives if not sitting shall be summoned to meet at the earliest practicable date

(3 3) Nothing in this Constitution shall be invoked to invalidate any law enacted by Parliament which is expressed to be for the purpose of securing the public safety and the preservation of the State in time of war or armed rebellion, or to nullify any act done or purporting to be done in time of war or armed rebellion in pursuance of any such law. In this sub-section "time of war" includes a time when there is taking place an armed conflict in which the State is not a participant but in respect of which each of the Houses of Parliament shall have resolved that, arising out of such armed conflict, a national emergency exists affecting the vital interests of the State and "time of war or armed rebellion" includes such time after the termination of any war, or of any such armed conflict as aforesaid, or of an armed rebellion, as may elapse until each of the Houses of Parliament shall have resolved that the national emergency occasioned by such war, armed conflict, or armed rebellion has ceased to exist

(3) The Comptroller and Auditor General shall not be a member of either House of Parliament and shall not hold any other office or position of emolument

(4) The Comptroller and Auditor General shall report to the House of Representatives at stated periods as determined by law

(5 1) The Comptroller and Auditor General shall not be removed from office except for stated misbehavior or incapacity, and then only upon resolutions passed by the House of Representatives and by the Senate calling for his removal

(5 2) The Prime Minister shall duly notify the President of any such resolutions as aforesaid passed by the House of Representatives and by the Senate and shall send him a copy of each such resolution certified by the Chairman of the House of Parliament by which it shall have been passed

(5 3) Upon receipt of such notification and of copies of such resolutions, the President shall forthwith, by an order under his hand and Seal, remove the Comptroller and Auditor General from office

(6) Subject to the foregoing, the terms and conditions of the office of Comptroller and Auditor General shall be determined by law

CHAPTER X THE COURTS

34. Publicity

(1) Justice shall be administered in courts established by law by Judges appointed in the manner provided by this Constitution, and, save in such special and limited cases as may be prescribed by law, shall be administered in public

(2) The courts shall comprise courts of first instance and a court of final appeal

(3 1) The Courts of First Instance shall include a High Court invested with full original jurisdiction in and power to determine all matters and questions whether of law or fact, civil or criminal

(3 2) Save as otherwise provided by this Article, the jurisdiction of the High Court shall extend to the question of the validity of any law having regard to the provisions of this Constitution, and no such question shall be raised (whether by pleading, argument or otherwise) in any court established under this or any other Article of this Constitution other than the High Court or the Supreme Court

(3 3) No court whatever shall have jurisdiction to question the validity of a law, or any provision of a law, the Bill for which shall have been referred to the Supreme Court by the President under Article 26, or to question the validity of a provision of a law where the corresponding provision in the Bill for such law shall have been referred to the Supreme Court by the President under the said Article 26

(3 4) The courts of first instance shall also include courts of local and limited jurisdiction with a right of appeal as determined by law

(4 1) The court of final appeal shall be called the Supreme Court

(4 2) The president of the Supreme Court shall be called the Chief Justice

(4 3) The Supreme Court shall, with such exceptions and subject to such regulations as may be prescribed by law, have appellate jurisdiction from all decisions of the High Court, and shall also have appellate jurisdiction from such decisions of other courts as may be prescribed by law.

(4 4) No law shall be enacted excepting from the appellate jurisdiction of the Supreme Court cases which involve questions as to the validity of any law having regard to the provisions of this Constitution

(4 5) The decision of the Supreme Court on a question as to the validity of a law having regard to the provisions of this Constitution shall be pronounced by such one of the Judges of that Court as that Court shall direct, and no other opinion on such question, whether assenting or dissenting, shall be pronounced, nor shall the existence of any such other opinion be disclosed

(4 6) The decision of the Supreme Court shall in all cases be final and conclusive

(5 1) Every person appointed a Judge under this Constitution shall make and subscribe the following declaration

"In the presence of Almighty God I, do solemnly and sincerely promise and declare that I will duly and faithfully and to the best of my knowledge and power execute the office of Chief Justice (or as the case may be) without fear or favour, affection or ill-will towards any man, and that I will uphold the Constitution and the laws May God direct and sustain me "

(5 2) This declaration shall be made and subscribed by the Chief Justice in the presence of the President, and by each of the other Judges of the Supreme Court, the Judges of the High Court and the Judges of every other court in the presence of the Chief Justice or the senior available Judge of the Supreme Court in open court

(5 3) The declaration shall be made and subscribed by every Judge before entering upon his duties as such Judge, and in any case not later than ten days after the date of his appointment or such later date as may be determined by the President

(5 4) Any Judge who declines or neglects to make such declaration as aforesaid shall be deemed to have vacated his office

35. Judges by Appointment

(1) The Judges of the Supreme Court, the High Court and all other courts established in pursuance of 34 hereof shall be appointed by the President

(2) All Judges shall be independent in the exercise of their judicial functions and subject only to this Constitution and the law

(3) No Judge shall be eligible to be a member of either House of Parliament or to hold any other office or position of emolument

(4 1) A Judge of the Supreme Court or the High Court shall not be removed from office except for stated misbehavior or incapacity, and then only upon resolutions passed by the House of Representatives and by the Senate calling for his removal

(4 2) The Prime Minister shall duly notify the President of any such resolutions passed by the House of Representatives and by the Senate, and shall send him a copy of every such resolution certified by the Chairman of the House of Parliament by which it shall have been passed

(4 3) Upon receipt of such notification and of copies of such resolutions, the President shall forthwith, by an order under his hand and Seal, remove from office the Judge to whom they relate

(5) The remuneration of a Judge shall not be reduced during his continuance in office

36. Organization by Law

Subject to the foregoing provisions of this Constitution relating to the courts, the following matters shall be regulated in accordance with law, that is to say

- (i) the number of Judges of the Supreme Court, and of the High Court, the remuneration, age of retirement and pensions of such Judges,
- (ii) the number of the Judges of all other courts, and their terms of appointment, and
- (iii) the constitution and organization of the said courts, the distribution of jurisdiction and business among the said courts and Judges, and all matters of procedure

(1) Nothing in this Constitution shall operate to invalidate the exercise of limited functions and powers of a judicial nature, in matters other than criminal matters, by any person or body of persons duly authorized by law to exercise such functions and powers, notwithstanding that such person or such body of persons is not a Judge or a court appointed or established as such under this Constitution

(2) No adoption of a person taking effect or expressed to take effect at any time after the coming into operation of this Constitution under laws enacted by Parliament and being an adoption pursuant to an order made or an authorization given by any person or body of persons designated by those laws to exercise such functions and powers was or shall be invalid by reason only of the fact that such person or body of persons was not a Judge or a court appointed or established as such under this Constitution

CHAPTER XI

TRIAL OF OFFENSES

38. Due Process

(1) No person shall be tried on any criminal charge save in due course of law

(2) Minor offenses may be tried by courts of summary jurisdiction

(3) (1) Special courts may be established by law for the trial of offenses in cases where it may be determined in accordance with such law that the ordinary courts are inadequate to secure the effective the effective administration of justice, and the preservation of public peace and order

(3) (2) The constitution, powers, jurisdiction and procedure of such special courts shall be prescribed by law

(4) (1) Military tribunals may be established for the trial of offenses against military law alleged to have been committed by persons while subject to military law and also to deal with a state of war or armed rebellion

(4) (2) A member of the Defence Forces not on active service shall not be tried by any court martial or other military tribunal for an offence cognisable by the civil courts unless such offence is within the jurisdiction of any court martial or other military tribunal under any law for the enforcement of military discipline

(5) Save in the case of the trial of offenses under section (2), (3) or (4) no person shall be tried on any criminal charge without a jury

(6) The provisions of Articles 34 and 35 shall not apply to any court or tribunal set up under section (3) or (4) of this Article

39. Treason

Treason shall consist only in levying war against the State, or assisting any State or person or inciting or conspiring with any person to levy war against the State, or attempting by force of arms or other violent means to overthrow the organs of Government established by this Constitution, or taking part or being concerned in or inciting or conspiring with any person to make or to take part or be concerned in any such attempt

CHAPTER XII FUNDAMENTAL RIGHTS

40. Personal Rights

(1) All citizens shall, as human persons, be held equal before the law. This shall not be held to mean that the State shall not in its enactments have due regard to differences of capacity, physical and moral, and of social function

(2) (1) Titles of nobility shall not be conferred by the State

(2) (2) No title of nobility or of honor may be accepted by any citizen except with the prior approval of the Government

(3) (1) The State guarantees in its laws to respect, and, as far as practicable, by its laws to defend and vindicate the personal rights of the citizen

(3) (2) The State shall, in particular, by its laws protect as best it may from unjust attack and, in the case of injustice done, vindicate the life, person, good name, and property rights of every citizen

(3) (3) The State acknowledges the right to life of the unborn and, with due regard to the equal right to life of the mother, guarantees in its laws to respect, and, as far as practicable, by its laws to defend and vindicate that right {Amendment 1992, not yet verified. This sub-section shall not limit freedom to travel between the State and another State. This sub-section shall not limit freedom to obtain or make available, in the State, subject to such conditions as may be laid down by law, information relating to services lawfully available in another state }

(4) (1) No citizen shall be deprived of his personal liberty save in accordance with law

(4) (2) Upon complaint being made by or on behalf of any person to the High Court or any Judge thereof alleging that such person is being unlawfully detained, the High Court and any and every Judge thereof to whom such complaint is made shall forthwith enquire into the said complaint and may order the person in whose custody such person is detained to produce the body of such person before the High Court on a named day and to certify in writing the grounds of his detention, and the High Court shall, upon the body of such person being produced before that Court and after giving the person whose custody he is detained an opportunity of justifying the detention, order the release of such person from such detention unless satisfied that he is being detained in accordance with the law

(4 3) Where the body of a person alleged to be unlawfully detained is produced before the High Court in pursuance of an order in that behalf made under this section and that Court is satisfied that such person is being detained in accordance with a law but that such law is invalid having regard to the provisions of this Constitution, the High Court shall refer the question of the validity of such law to the Supreme Court by way of case stated and may, at the time of such reference or at any time thereafter, allow the said person to be at liberty on such bail and subject to such conditions as the High Court shall fix until the Supreme Court has determined the question so referred to it

(4 4) The High Court before which the body of a person alleged to be unlawfully detained is to be produced in pursuance of an order in that behalf made under this section shall, if the President of the High Court or, if he is not available, the senior Judge of that Court who is available so directs in respect of any particular case, consist of three Judges and shall, in every other case, consist of one Judge only

(4 5) Where an order is made under this section by the High Court or a Judge thereof for the production of the body of a person who is under sentence of death, the High Court or such Judge thereof shall further order that the execution of the said sentence of death shall be deferred until after the body of such person has been produced before the High Court and the lawfulness of his detention has been determined and if, after such deferment, the detention of such person is determined to be lawful, the High Court shall appoint a day for the execution of the said sentence of death and that sentence shall have effect with the substitution of the day so appointed for the day originally fixed for the execution thereof

(4 6) Nothing in this section, however, shall be invoked to prohibit, control, or interfere with any act of the Defence Forces during the existence of a state of war or armed rebellion

(5) The dwelling of every citizen is inviolable and shall not be forcibly entered save in accordance with law

(6 1) The State guarantees liberty for the exercise of the following rights, subject to public order and morality

(i) The right of the citizens to express freely their convictions and opinions. The education of public opinion being, however, a matter of such grave import to the common good, the State shall endeavor to ensure that organs of public opinion, such as the radio, the press, the cinema, while preserving their rightful liberty of expression, including criticism of Government policy, shall not be used to undermine public order or morality or the authority of the State. The publication or utterance of blasphemous, seditious, or indecent matter is an offence which shall be punishable in accordance with law.

(ii) The right of the citizens to assemble peaceably and without arms. Provision may be made by law to prevent or control meetings which are determined in accordance with law to be calculated to cause a breach of the peace or to be a danger or nuisance to the general public and to prevent or control meetings in the vicinity of either House of Parliament.

(iii) The right of the citizens to form associations and unions. Laws, however, may be enacted for the regulation and control in the public interest of the exercise of the foregoing right.

(6.2) Laws regulating the manner in which the right of forming associations and unions and the right of free assembly may be exercised shall contain no political, religious or class discrimination.

41. Family

(1.1) The State recognizes the family as the natural primary and fundamental unit group of society, and as a moral institution possessing inalienable and imprescriptible rights, antecedent and superior to all positive law.

(1.2) The State, therefore, guarantees to protect the family in its constitution and authority, as the necessary basis of social order and as indispensable to the welfare of the Nation and the State.

(2.1) In particular, the State recognizes that by her life within the home, woman gives to the State a support without which the common good cannot be achieved.

(2.2) The State shall, therefore, endeavor to ensure that mothers shall not be obliged by economic necessity to engage in labour to the neglect of their duties in the home.

(3.1) The State pledges itself to guard with special care the institution of Marriage, on which the family is founded, and to protect it against attack.

(3.2) No law shall be enacted providing for the grant of a dissolution of marriage. {Amendment 1995, new version, not yet verified. A court designated by law may grant a dissolution of marriage where, but only where, it is satisfied that—

(i) at the date of the institution of the proceedings, the spouses have lived apart from one another for a period of, or periods amounting to, at least four years during the previous five years,

(ii) there is no reasonable prospect of a reconciliation between the spouses,

(iii) such provision as the court considers proper having regard to the circumstances exists or will be made for the spouses, any children of either or both of them and any other person prescribed by law, and

(iv) any further conditions prescribed by law are complied with }

(3) No person whose marriage has been dissolved under the civil law of any other State but is a subsisting valid marriage under the law for the time being in force within the jurisdiction of the Government and Parliament established by this Constitution shall be capable of contracting a valid marriage within that jurisdiction during the lifetime of the other party to the marriage so dissolved

42. Education

(1) The State acknowledges that the primary and natural educator of the child is the family and guarantees to respect the inalienable right and duty of parents to provide, according to their means, for the religious and moral, intellectual, physical and social education of their children

(2) Parents shall be free to provide this education in their homes or in private schools or in schools recognized or established by the State

(3) (1) The State shall not oblige parents in violation of their conscience and lawful preference to send their children to schools established by the State, or to any particular type of school designated by the State

(3) (2) The State shall, however, as guardian of the common good, require in view of actual conditions that the children receive a certain minimum education, moral, intellectual and social

(4) The State shall provide for free primary education and shall endeavor to supplement and give reasonable aid to private and corporate educational initiative, and, when the public good requires it, provide other educational facilities or institutions with due regard, however, for the rights of parents, especially in the matter of religious and moral formation

(5) In exceptional cases, where the parents for physical or moral reasons fail in their duty towards their children, the State as guardian of the common good, by appropriate means shall endeavor to supply the place of the parents, but always with due regard for the natural and imprescriptible rights of the child

43. Private Property

(1) (1) The State acknowledges that man, in virtue of his rational being, has the natural right, antecedent to positive law, to the private ownership of external goods

(1) (2) The State accordingly guarantees to pass no law attempting to abolish the right of private ownership or the general right to transfer, bequeath, and inherit property

(2) (1) The State recognizes, however, that the exercise of the rights mentioned in the foregoing provisions of this article ought, in civil society, to be regulated by the principles of social justice.

(2) (2) The State, accordingly, may as occasion requires delimit by law the exercise of the said rights with a view to reconciling their exercise with the exigencies of the common good

44. Religion

(1) The State acknowledges that the homage of public worship is due to Almighty God. It shall hold His Name in reverence, and shall respect and honor religion.

(2) 1) Freedom of conscience and the free profession and practice of religion are, subject to public order and morality, guaranteed to every citizen.

(2) 2) The State guarantees not to endow any religion.

(2) 3) The State shall not impose any disabilities or make any discrimination on the ground of religious profession, belief or status.

(2) 4) Legislation providing State aid for schools shall not discriminate between schools under the management of different religious denominations, nor be such as to affect prejudicially the right of any child to attend a school receiving public money without attending religious instruction at that school.

(2) 5) Every religious denomination shall have the right to manage its own affairs, own, acquire and administer property, movable and immovable, and maintain institutions for religious or charitable purposes.

(2) 6) The property of any religious denomination or any educational institution shall not be diverted save for necessary works of public utility and on payment of compensation.

CHAPTER XIII*DIRECTIVE PRINCIPLES OF SOCIAL POLICY*45. Social Policy

(0) The principles of social policy set forth in this Article are intended for the general guidance of Parliament. The application of those principles in the making of laws shall be the care of Parliament exclusively, and shall not be cognisable by any court under any of the provisions of this Constitution.

(1) The State shall strive to promote the welfare of the whole people by securing and protecting as effectively as it may a social order in which justice and charity shall inform all the institutions of the national life.

(2) The State shall, in particular, direct its policy towards securing

(i) That the citizens (all of whom, men and women equally, have the right to an adequate means of livelihood) may through their occupations find the means of making reasonable provision for their domestic needs.

(ii) That the ownership and control of the material resources of the community may be so distributed amongst private individuals and the various classes as best to serve the common good.

(iii) That, especially, the operation of free competition shall not be allowed so to develop as to result in the concentration of the ownership or control of essential commodities in a few individuals to the common detriment.

(iv) That in what pertains to the control of credit the constant and predominant aim shall be the welfare of the people as a whole.

(v) That there may be established on the land in economic security as many families as in the circumstances shall be practicable.

(3 1) The State shall favour and, where necessary, supplement private initiative in industry and commerce

(3 2) The State shall endeavour to secure that private enterprise shall be so conducted as to ensure reasonable efficiency in the production and distribution of goods and as to protect the public against unjust exploitation

(4 1) The State pledges itself to safeguard with especial care the economic interests of the weaker sections of the community, and, where necessary, to contribute to the support of the infirm, the widow, the orphan, and the aged

(4 2) The State shall endeavor to ensure that the strength and health of workers, men and women, and the tender age of children shall not be abused and that citizens shall not be forced by economic necessity to enter avocations unsuited to their sex, age or strength

AMENDMENT OF THE CONSTITUTION

46. Amendment

(1) Any provision of this Constitution may be amended, whether by way of variation, addition, or repeal, in the manner provided by this article

(2) Every proposal for an amendment of this Constitution shall be initiated in the House of Representatives as a Bill, and shall upon having been passed or deemed to have been passed by both Houses of Parliament, be submitted by Referendum to the decision of the people in accordance with the law for the time being in force relating to the Referendum

(3) Every such Bill shall be expressed to be "An Act to amend the Constitution"

(4) A Bill containing a proposal or proposals for the amendment of this Constitution shall not contain any other proposal

(5) A Bill containing a proposal for the amendment of this Constitution shall be signed by the President forthwith upon his being satisfied that the provisions of this article have been complied with in respect thereof and that such proposal has been duly approved by the people in accordance with the provisions of Article 47 (1) and shall be duly promulgated by the President as a law

THE REFERENDUM

47. Referendum

(1) Every proposal for an amendment of this Constitution which is submitted by referendum to the decision of the people shall, for the purpose of Article 46, be held to have been approved by the people, if, upon having been so submitted, a majority of the votes cast at such referendum shall have been cast in favor of its enactment into law

(2 1) Every proposal, other than a proposal to amend the Constitution, which is submitted by referendum to the decision of the people shall be held to have been vetoed by the people if a majority of the votes cast at such referendum shall have been cast against its enactment into law and if the votes so cast against its enactment into law shall have amounted to not less than thirty-three and one-third per cent of the voters on the register

(2 2) Every proposal, other than a proposal to amend the Constitution, which is submitted by referendum to the decision of the people shall for the purposes of Article 27 hereof be held to have been approved by the people unless vetoed by them in accordance with the provisions of the foregoing subsection of this section

(3) Every citizen who has the right to vote at an election for members of the House of Representatives shall have the right to vote at a referendum

(4) Subject as aforesaid, the referendum shall be regulated by law

Title V—The Regions, Provinces, and Communities

114. Local Entities

The Republic is divided into Regions, Provinces, and Communities

115. Autonomy

The Regions are constituted as autonomous territorial units with their own powers and functions according to the principles established by the Constitution

116. Special Forms of Autonomy

Particular forms and conditions of autonomy, in accordance with special statutes adopted by constitutional law, are attributed to Sicily, Sardinia, Trentino-Alto Adige, Friuli-Venetia Giulia, and the Valle d'Aosta

117. Regional Powers

(1) Within the limits of the fundamental principles established by the laws of the State, the Region legislates in regard to the following matters, provided that such legislation is not in contrast with the interests of the Nation or of other Regions — Organization of the offices and the administrative bodies dependent on the Region;

— Town boundaries,

— Urban and rural police,

— Fairs and markets,

— Public charities and health and hospital assistance,

— Vocational training of artisans and scholastic assistance,

— Museums and libraries of local bodies,

— Town planning,

— Tourist trade and hotel industry,

— Tram and motor coach services of regional interest,

— Roads, aqueducts, and public works of regional interest,

— Lake navigation and ports;

— Mineral and spa waters,

— Quarries and peat bogs,

— Hunting,

— Fishing in lake and river waters,

— Agriculture and forestry,

— Artisanry,

— Other matters indicated by constitutional laws

(2) The laws of Republic may delegate power to the Region to issue norms for their enforcement

118. Administration

(1) The administrative functions pertaining to the subjects listed in the preceding Article reside in the Regions, except those of exclusively local interest which, by the laws of the Republic, may be delegated to the Provinces, Communities, or other local authorities

(2) The State may, by law, delegate the exercise of other functions of an administrative nature to the Region.

(3) The Region normally exercises its administrative functions by delegating them to the Provinces, Communities, or other local authorities, or by administering them through their offices

119. Financial Autonomy

(1) The Regions have financial autonomy within the forms and limits established by the laws of the Republic which coordinate this regional autonomy with the finances of the State, the Provinces and the Communities

(2) The Regions are assigned their own taxes and quotas of Exchequer taxes according to the expenditure necessary to the fulfillment of their normal functions

(3) The State assigns by law special allocations to single Regions for specific purposes and particularly for the development of southern and insular Italy

(3) The Council elects a President from its own members and a President's Office for its functions.

(4) Regional Councilors may not be called upon to answer for opinions expressed or votes cast during the exercise of their duties.

(5) The President and members of the Junta are elected by the Regional Council from among its members.

123. Regional Statutes

(1) Every Region has a statute which, in harmony with the Constitution and the laws of the Republic, establishes the norms relative to the internal organization of the Region. The regional statute controls the right of initiative and referendum on laws and provisions of an administrative nature within the Region and the publication of regional laws and regulations.

(2) The Statute is drafted and approved by the Regional Council through an absolute majority of its members and further approved by a law of the Republic.

124. Government Representative

A Government representative, residing in the capital of the Region, supervises the administrative functions exercised by Central Government and coordinates them with those of the Region.

125. Control

(1) Control of the legitimacy of administrative decisions in the Region is exercised, in decentralized form, by an organ of central government in the manner and within the limits established by the laws of the Republic. In specific cases, the law may admit re-examination of the merits of the case, but only to the extent of promoting, through a motivated request, a re-examination of a controversial decision by the Regional Council.

(2) The Regions have their own first degree courts for administrative actions in accordance with the requirements of the laws of the Republic. The courts may have branches in places other than the regional capital.

(1) The Regional Council may be dissolved when it performs acts contrary to the Constitution or commits serious violations of the laws, or fails to respond to the request of the Government to replace its Junta or the President of the Junta when these have committed similar acts or violations.

(2) It may be dissolved when, by reason of resignation or through the impossibility of forming a majority, it is no longer in a position to fulfil its duties.

(3) It may also be dissolved for reasons of national security.

(4) The dissolution of the Regional Council is effected by a decree of the President of the Republic after an opinion has been offered by a Commission composed of Senators and Deputies, formed according to the laws of the Republic on regional affairs

(5) The Decree of Dissolution is accompanied by the nomination of a Commission composed of three citizens eligible for the Regional Council, which announces the holding of new elections within a period of three months and provides for ordinary administration within the competence of the Junta and for such decisions as cannot be postponed such decisions are subject to ratification by the new Regional Council

127. Approval

(1) Every law approved by the Regional Council shall be communicated to the Government representative who, except in the case of opposition on the part of the Government, must approve it within a period of thirty days from its submission

(2) The law is promulgated within ten days from the date of approval and becomes effective not earlier than fifteen days from its publication. If a law is considered to be urgent by the Regional Council, and the Government of the Republic approves, then its promulgation and date of effect are not subject to the specified periods

(3) The Government of the Republic, when it considers that a law approved by the Regional Council exceeds the competence of the Region or conflicts with the interests of the Nation or with those of other Regions, returns it to the Regional Council within the period established for approval

(4) When the Regional Council approves it again by an absolute majority of its members, the Government of the Republic may, within fifteen days of communication of the fact, submit the question of its legitimacy to the Constitutional Court, and that of its merit, in the case of conflicting interests, to the Chamber of Deputies and the Senate. In case of doubt, the Constitutional Court shall decide on the competent body

128. Provincial Autonomy

The Provinces and the Communities are autonomous bodies within the principles laid down by the general laws of the Republic, which determine their function

129. Decentralization

(1) The Provinces and the Communities are also territorial units of State and regional decentralization

(2) The territory contained within the Province may also be subdivided into districts with exclusively administrative functions, for the sake of further decentralization

130 Provincial Institutions

(1) A regional body, constituted in accordance with procedure established by the laws of the Republic, exercises in a decentralized form, control over the legitimacy of decisions taken by the Provinces, Communes and other local bodies

(2) In cases specified by law, control of an issue of general interest may be exercised in the form of a reasoned request submitted to the competent assembly for re-examination of decisions taken previously.

131. Instituted Regions

132. Delimitation

(1) By constitutional law, the Regional Council having been heard, arrangements may be made for the merging of existing Regions or the creation of new Regions with a minimum of one million inhabitants when such a request is made by as many Councils as represent at least one third of the interested populations and when the proposal has been approved by a referendum voted by the majority of the interested populations.

(2) By means of a referendum and by the laws of the Republic, the Regional Council having been heard, consent may be given for Provinces and Communities so desiring to be detached from one Region and attached to another.

133. Provincial Boundaries

(1) Changes of provincial boundaries and the institution of new Provinces within the area of a Region, are established by laws of the Republic after request from the Communities and the approval of the Region itself.

(2) The Region, having heard the interested population, may, by its own enactment, establish new Communities and modify their boundaries and names within its own territory.

Title VI—Constitutional Guarantees

Section I—The Constitutional Court

134. Jurisdiction

The Constitutional Court decides:

— on controversies concerning the constitutional legitimacy of laws and acts having the force of law, emanating from Central and Regional Government;

— on controversies arising over constitutional assignment of powers within the State, between the State and the Regions and between Regions.

— on impeachments of the President of the Republic and Ministers according to the norms of the Constitution.

135. Composition

(1) The Constitutional Court is composed of fifteen judges, a third of whom are nominated by the President of the Republic, one-third by Parliament in joint session, and one-third by the members of the ordinary and Administrative Supreme Courts

(2) The Judges of the Constitutional Court are chosen from among the Magistrates of the High and Administrative Courts, including those in retirement, professors of law, and lawyers who have been in practice for a minimum period of twenty years

(3) The Court elects its President from among its members

(4) Judges are nominated for a period of twelve years and some may be retained in office according to the norms established by law: they are not re-eligible immediately

(5) The office of Judge of the Constitutional Court may not be held concurrently with that of a member of Parliament, a member of a Regional Council, the exercise of the legal profession or with any position or office indicated by law

(6) Following the same procedure used in the appointment of the Judges of the Constitutional Court, Parliament shall draft a list of persons who, in case of necessity, shall be chosen to take part in proceedings following impeachment of the President of the Republic, the Prime Minister and the Ministers

136. Functions

(1) When the Court declares a norm of law, or an act having the force of law, to be unconstitutional, the norm ceases to have effect from the day following the publication of the decision

(2) The decision of the Court is published and is communicated to Parliament and the interested Regional Councils in order that provisions may be made in constitutional form where considered necessary

137. Time Limits

(1) A constitutional law establishes the conditions, forms, and time limits for decisions on constitutional legitimacy and guarantees the independence of the Judges of the Court

(2) All other norms necessary for the constitution and functioning of the Court are established by ordinary legislation

(3) The decisions of the Constitutional Court may not be contested

Section II—Amendments to the Constitution*138. Proceedings

(1) Amendments to the Constitution and other constitutional laws are passed by the Chamber of Deputies and the Senate in two successive sessions at an interval of not less than three months and are approved by an absolute majority of the members of each Chamber after a second reading

(2) The laws themselves are submitted to popular referendum when, within three months of their publication, a demand shall be made by one fifth of the members of either Chamber or by 500,000 electors or by five Regional Councils. A law submitted to referendum shall not be promulgated unless approved by a majority of valid votes.

(3) A referendum shall not be held if the law has been approved in both Chambers, during a second reading, by a majority of two-thirds of the members of each Chamber.

139. Restriction

The Republican structure is not subject to constitutional amendment

PART III

TRANSITIONAL AND FINAL PROVISIONS

I. Provisional Head of State

When the Constitution becomes effective, the Provisional Head of the State shall assume the title of President of the Republic and exercise the attributes of this office.

II. Presidential Election

If at the time of the election of the President of the Republic the Regional Councils have not all been constituted, then only the members of the two Chambers shall participate in the said election.

III. First Senate

(1) By a decree of the President of the Republic, for the first term the Senate will include among its members deputies of the Constituent Assembly who have the necessary qualifications by law for election to the Senate and who

- have been President of the Council of Ministers, or Speaker or President of legislative bodies,

- have been members of the dissolved Senate,

- have been three times elected, including election to the Constituent Assembly,

- were dismissed during the session of the Chamber of Deputies of November 9, 1926,

V. International Treaties

The provisions contained in Article 80 of the Constitution, insofar as they concern international treaties which impose charges on the budget or modifications of law, shall be effective from the date of convocation of the zonal treaties which impose charges on the budget or modifications of law, shall be effective from the date of convocation of the two Chambers

VI. Judiciary Revision

(1) Within five years of the effective date of the Constitution, a revision of the special organs of jurisdiction now existing shall be undertaken, with the exception of the Council of State, the Court of Accounts, and Military Tribunals

(2) Within one year of the said date, provision shall be made by law for the reorganization of the Supreme Military Tribunal according to Article 111.

VII. Preliminary Revision

(1) Until such time as new legislation on the Judiciary shall bring it into conformity with the Constitution, the norms at present in force shall continue to be observed

(2) Until such time as the Constitutional Court shall begin to function, decisions over controversies as under Article 134 shall be rendered according to the forms and limits existing prior to the effective date of the Constitution

(3) The Judges of the Constitutional Court, nominated for the initial composition of that Court, shall not be subject to partial re-election and shall remain in office for a period of twelve years

VIII. Regional Councils

(1) The election of the Regional Councils and the elective organs of provincial administration shall take place within one year of the effective date of the Constitution

(2) The laws of the Republic regulate, for all branches of public administration, the transfer of Central Government powers attributed to the Regions. Until provisions have been made for the reorganization and distribution of administrative functions among local Government, the Provinces and Communities shall retain the functions they exercise at the present time as well as others which may be delegated to them by the Regions

(3) The laws of the Republic regulate the transfer of public officials and dependents to the Regions, including those of Central Government, whenever such transfer shall be deemed necessary because of reorganization

(4) In setting up their departments, the Regions must, except in cases of necessity, draw personnel from the Civil Service and local public bodies

IX. Local Autonomy

Within three years of the effective date of the Constitution, the Republic shall adjust laws according to the requirements of local autonomy and the legislative competence attributed to the Regions

X. Friuli-Venetia Julia

The general norms contained in Title V of Part Two shall be provisionally applied to Friuli-Venetia

Julia referred to in Article 116, the protection of linguistic minorities remains binding as per Article 6.

XI. Formation of Regions

Other Regions may be formed during the first five year period of the Constitution, by constitutional enactment and in modification of the list contained in Article 131, without recourse to the procedure required under Article 132 (1), but with the obligation to hear the opinions of the interested populations

XII. Fascist Party

(1) Reorganization of the former Fascist Party, under any form whatsoever, is prohibited.

(2) Notwithstanding Article 48, temporary limitations are established by law, for a period of not over five years from the elective date of the Constitution, on the suffrage and eligibility of the responsible heads of the Fascist regime.

XIII. House of Savoy

(1) The members and descendants of the House of Savoy are not electors and may not hold any public office or elective position.

(2) Former kings of the House of Savoy, their wives and their male descendants may not enter or remain in Italian territory.

(3) Property within Italian territory belonging to the former kings of the House of Savoy, their wives and their male descendants, revert to the State Transfers and the establishment of royal rights on such properties, which took place after June 2, 1946, are null and void.

XIV. Nobility

(1) Titles of nobility are not recognized.

(3) The predicates of those existing before October 28, 1922, serve as part of the proper name.

(4) The Order of Ss Maurizio e Lazzaro is preserved as a hospital corporation and functions according to the methods established by law.

(5) The law regulates the suppression of the Heraldic Council

XV. Old Organizational Law

When the Constitution goes into effect, the legislative decree of the Lieutenant of the Realm of June 25, 1944, No 151 on the provisional organization of the State is held to be converted to law.

XVI. Old Constitutional Law

Within one year from the effective date of the Constitution, the preceding constitutional laws, which have not been explicitly or implicitly abrogated, shall be revised and coordinated to conform with the Constitution itself

XVII. New Statutes

(1) The Constituent Assembly shall be convened by its President before January 31, 1948, to decide on the laws for the election of the Senate of the Republic, on the special regional statutes and on the law governing the press

(2) Prior to the date of the elections, the Constituent Assembly may be convened whenever there is need to decide on matters within its competence, under Article 2 (1) and (2), and Article 3 (1) and (2), of the legislative decree of March 16, 1946 No 98

CONSTITUTION OF JAPAN

[November 3, 1946]

PREFACE

We, the Japanese people, acting through our duly elected representatives in the National Diet, determined that we shall secure for ourselves and our posterity the fruits of peaceful cooperation with all nations and the blessings of liberty throughout this land, and resolved that never again shall we be visited with the horrors of war through the action of government, do proclaim that sovereign power resides with the people and do firmly establish this Constitution. Government is a sacred trust of the people, the authority for which is derived from the people, the powers of which are exercised by the representatives of the people, and the benefits of which are enjoyed by the people. This is a universal principle of mankind upon which this Constitution is founded. We reject and revoke all constitutions, laws, ordinances, and rescripts in conflict herewith. We, the Japanese people, desire peace for all time and are deeply conscious of the high ideals controlling human relationship and we have determined to preserve our security and existence, trusting in the justice and faith of the peace-loving peoples of the world. We desire to occupy an honored place in an international society striving for the preservation of peace, and the banishment of tyranny and slavery, oppression and intolerance for all time from the earth. We recognize that all peoples of the world have the right to live in peace, free from fear and want. We believe that no nation is responsible to itself alone, but that laws of political morality are universal, and that obedience to such laws is incumbent upon all nations who would sustain their own sovereignty and justify their sovereign relationship with other nations. We, the Japanese people, pledge our national honour to accomplish these high ideals and purposes with all our resources.

CHAPTER IV

THE DIET

41. The Diet shall be the highest organ of the State power, and shall be the sole law-making organ of the State

42. The Diet shall consist of two Houses, namely the House of Representatives and the House of Councillors

43. Both Houses shall consist of elected members, representative of all the people

2) The number of the members of each House shall be fixed by law

44. The qualifications of members of both Houses and their electors shall be fixed by law. However, there shall be no discrimination because of race, creed, sex, social status, family origin, education, property or income

45. The term of office of members of the House of Representatives shall be four years. However, the term shall be terminated before the full term is up in case the House of Representatives is dissolved

46. The term of office of members of the House of Councillors shall be six years, and election for half the members shall take place every three years

47. Electoral districts, method of voting and other matters pertaining to the method of election of members of both Houses shall be fixed by law

48. No person shall be permitted to be a member of both Houses simultaneously

49. Members of both Houses shall receive appropriate annual payment from the national treasury in accordance with law

50. Except in cases as provided for by law, members of both Houses shall be exempt from apprehension while the Diet is in session, and any members apprehended before the opening of the session shall be freed during the term of the session upon demand of the House

51. Members of both Houses shall not be held liable outside the House for speeches, debates or votes cast inside the House.

52. An ordinary session of the Diet shall be convoked once per year

53. The Cabinet may determine to convoke extraordinary sessions of the Diet. When a quarter or more of the total members of either House makes the demand, the Cabinet must determine on such convocation

54. When the House of Representatives is dissolved, there must be a general election of members of the House of Representatives within forty (40) days from the date of dissolution, and the Diet must be convoked within thirty (30) days from the date of the election

2) When the House of Representatives is dissolved, the House of Councillors is closed at the same time. However, the Cabinet may, in time of national emergency, convoke the House of Councillors in emergency session.

3) Measures taken at such session as mentioned in the proviso of the preceding paragraph shall be provisional and shall become null and void unless agreed to by the House of Representatives within a period of ten (10) days after the opening of the next session of the Diet.

55. Each House shall judge disputes related to qualifications of its members. However, in order to deny a seat to any member, it is necessary to pass a resolution by a majority of two-thirds or more of the members present.

56. Business cannot be transacted in either House unless one-third or more of total membership is present.

2) All matters shall be decided, in each House, by a majority of those present, except as elsewhere provided for in the Constitution, and in case of a tie, the presiding officer shall decide the issue.

57. Deliberation in each House shall be public. However, a secret meeting may be held where a majority of two-thirds or more of those members present passes a resolution therefor.

2) Each House shall keep a record of proceedings. This record shall be published and given general circulation, excepting such parts of proceedings of secret session as may be deemed to require secrecy.

3) Upon demand of one-fifth or more of the members present, votes of the members on any matter shall be recorded in the minutes.

58. Each House shall select its own President and other officials.

2) Each House shall establish its rules pertaining to meetings, proceedings and internal discipline, and may punish members for disorderly conduct. However, in order to expel a member, a majority of two-thirds or more of those members present must pass a resolution thereon.

59. A Bill becomes a law on passage by both Houses, except as otherwise provided for by the Constitution.

2) A Bill, which is passed by the House of Representatives, and upon which the House of Councillors makes a decision different from that of the House of Representatives, becomes a law when passed a second time by the House of Representatives by a majority of two-thirds or more of the members present.

3) The provision of the preceding paragraph does not preclude the House of Representatives from calling for the meeting of a joint committee of both Houses, provided for by law.

4) Failure by the House of Councillors to take final action within sixty (60) days after receipt of a Bill passed by the House of Representatives, time in recess excepted, may be determined by the House of Representatives to constitute a rejection of the said Bill by the House of Councillors.

60. The budget must first be submitted to the House of Representatives.

2) Upon consideration of the budget, when the House of Councillors makes a decision different from that of the House of Representatives, and when no agreement can be reached even through a joint committee of both Houses, provided for by law, or in the case of failure by the House of Councillors to take final action within thirty (30) days, the period of recess excluded, after the receipt of the budget passed by the House of Representatives, the decision of the House of Representatives shall be the decision of the Diet

61. The second paragraph of the preceding Article applies also the Diet approval required for the conclusion of treaties

62. Each House may conduct investigations in relation to Government, and may demand the presence and testimony of witnesses, and the production of records

63. The Prime Minister and other Ministers of State may, at any time, appear in either House for the purpose of speaking on Bills, regardless of whether they are members of the House or not. They must appear when their presence is required in order to give answers or explanations

64. The Diet shall set up an impeachment court from among the members of both Houses for the purposes of trying those Judges against whom removal proceedings have been instituted

2) Matters relating to impeachment shall be provided for by law

CHAPTER V THE CABINET

65. Executive power shall be vested in the Cabinet

66. The Cabinet shall consist of the Prime Minister, who shall be its head, and other Ministers of State, as provided for by law

2) The Prime Minister and other Ministers of State must be civilians

3) The Cabinet shall, in the exercise of executive power, be collectively responsible to the Diet

67. The Prime Minister shall be designated from among the members of the Diet by a resolution of the Diet. This designation shall precede all other business

2) If the House of Representatives and the House of Councillors disagree and if no agreement can be reached even through a joint committee of both Houses, provided for by law, or the House of Councillors fails to make designation within ten (10) days, exclusive of the period of recess, after the House of Representatives has made designation, the decision of the House of Representatives shall be the decision of the Diet

68. The Prime Minister shall appoint the Ministers of State. However, a majority of their number must be chosen from among the members of the Diet

2) The Prime Minister may remove the Ministers of State as he chooses

69. If the House of Representatives passes a non-confidence resolution, or rejects a confidence resolution, the Cabinet shall resign en masse, unless the House of Representatives is dissolved within ten (10) days

70. When there is a vacancy in the post of Prime Minister, or upon the first convocation of the Diet after a general election of members of the House of Representatives, the Cabinet shall resign en masse

71. In the cases mentioned in the two preceding Articles, the Cabinet shall continue its functions until the time when a new Prime Minister is appointed

72. The Prime Minister, representing the Cabinet, submits bills, reports on general national affairs and foreign relations to the Diet and exercises control and supervision over various administrative branches

73. The Cabinet shall, in addition to other general administrative functions, perform the following functions

(1) Administer the law faithfully, conduct affairs of State

(2) Manage foreign affairs

(3) Conclude treaties However, it shall obtain prior or, depending on circumstances subsequent approval of the Diet

(4) Administer the civil service, in accordance with standards established by law

(5) Prepare the budget, and present it to the cabinet orders in order to execute the provisions of this Constitution and of the law However, it cannot include penal provisions in such cabinet orders unless authorized by such law

60. Oath of the Amir's Office

Before assuming his powers, the Amir takes the following oath at a special sitting of the National Assembly

"I swear by Almighty God to respect the Constitution and the laws of the State, to defend the liberties, interests, and properties of the people, and to safeguard the independence and territorial integrity of the Country "

61. Deputy Amir

In the event of his absence outside the Country and the inability of the Heir Apparent to act as Deputy for him, the Amir shall appoint, by an Amiri Order, a Deputy who shall exercise his powers during his absence. The said Amiri Order may include a specified arrangement for the exercise of the said powers on behalf of the Amir, or a limitation of their scope

62. Qualification of Deputy Amir

The Deputy Amir has to satisfy the qualifications laid down in Article 82. If he is a Minister or a member of the National Assembly, he may not take part in the ministerial functions or in the work of the Assembly during the period he is acting as Deputy for the Amir

63. Oath of the Deputy Amir's Office

(1) Before assuming his powers the Deputy Amir, at a special sitting of the National Assembly, takes the oath mentioned in Article 60 with the following phrase added thereto

"and be loyal to the Amir "

(2) In case the National Assembly is not in session, the oath shall be taken before the Amir

64. Incompatibilities of the Deputy Amir

The provisions of Article 131 apply to the Deputy Amir

65. Promulgation of Laws, Initiative of the Amir

(1) The Amir has the right to initiate, sanction, and promulgate laws. Promulgation of laws takes place within thirty days from the date of their submission by the National Assembly to the Amir. This period is reduced to seven days in case of urgency. Such urgency is decided upon by a majority vote of the members constituting the National Assembly.

(2) Official holidays are not counted in computing the promulgation.

(3) If the period of promulgation expires without the Head of State demanding reconsideration, the Bill is considered as having been sanctioned and is promulgated.

66. Bills

Reference of a Bill for reconsideration is by a decree stating the grounds therefore. If the National Assembly confirms the Bill by a two-thirds majority vote of its members, the Amir sanctions and promulgates the Bill within thirty days from its submission to him. If the Bill does not receive the said majority, it may not be reconsidered during the same session. If the National Assembly, in another session, considers the same Bill by a majority vote of its members, the Amir sanctions and promulgates the Bill as law within thirty days from its submission to him.

67. Chief-of-Command

The Amir is the Supreme Commander of the Armed Forces. He appoints and dismisses officers in accordance with the law.

68. War

The Amir declares defensive war by decree. Offensive war is prohibited.

69. Martial Law

(1) The Amir proclaims Martial Law in the cases of necessity determined by law and in accordance with the procedure specified therein. The proclamation of Martial Law shall be by decree. Such decree is referred to the National Assembly within the fifteen days following its issue, for a decision on the future of Martial Law. If the proclamation takes place during the period the National Assembly is dissolved, it is referred to the new Assembly at its first sitting.

(2) Martial Law may not continue unless a decision to that effect is made by a majority vote of the members constituting the Assembly.

(3) In all cases, the matter is referred to the National Assembly in accordance with the foregoing procedure, every three months.

70. Treaties

(1) The Amir concludes treaties by decree and transmits them immediately to the National Assembly with the appropriate statement. A treaty has the force of law after it is signed, ratified, and published in the Official Gazette.

(2) However, treaties of peace and alliance, treaties concerning the territory of the State, its natural resources or sovereign rights, or public or private rights of citizens, treaties of commerce, navigation, and residence, and treaties entailing additional expenditure not provided for in the budget, or involving amendment of the laws of Kuwait, shall come into force only when made by a law

(3) In no case may treaties include secret provisions contradicting those declared

71. Emergency Decrees

(1) Should necessity arise for urgent measures to be taken while the National Assembly is not in session or is dissolved, the Amir may issue decrees in respect thereof which have the force of law, provided that they are not contrary to the Constitution or to the appropriations included in the budget law

(2) Such decrees are referred to the National Assembly within the fifteen days following their issue if the Assembly is in session. If it is dissolved or its legislative term has expired, such decrees are referred to the next Assembly at its first sitting. If they are not thus referred, they retrospectively cease to have the force of law, without the necessity of any decision to that effect. If they are referred and the Assembly does not confirm them, they retrospectively cease to have the force of law, unless the Assembly approves their validity for the preceding period or settles in some other way the effects arising therefrom

72. Execution of Laws

The Amir issues, by decree, the regulations necessary for the execution of laws without amending or suspending such laws or making any exemption from their execution. A law may prescribe a less formal instrument than a decree for the issue of the regulations necessary for its execution

(1) The Amir may, by decree, grant a pardon or commute a sentence

(2) However, general amnesty shall not be granted except by a law and then only in respect of offences committed prior to the proposal of the amnesty

76. Orders of Honor

The Amir confers Orders of Honor in accordance with the law

77. Minting Coins

Coins are minted in the name of the Amir in accordance with the law

78. Remuneration of the Amir

Upon the accession of the Head of State, his annual emoluments are fixed by a law for the duration of his reign

CHAPTER III

THE NATIONAL ASSEMBLY

79. Exclusive Legislation

No law may be promulgated unless it has been passed by the National Assembly and sanctioned by the Amir

80. Election, Ministerial Members

(1) The National Assembly is composed of fifty members elected directly by universal suffrage and secret ballot in accordance with the provisions prescribed by the electoral law

(2) Ministers who are not elected members of the National Assembly are considered ex-officio members thereof

Electoral constituencies are determined by law

82. Qualifications

A member of the National Assembly shall

- (a) be a Kuwaiti by origin in accordance with law,
- (b) be qualified as an elector in accordance with the electoral law,
- (c) be not less than thirty calendar years of age on the day of election,
- (d) be able to read and write Arabic well

83. Term, Re-election

(1) The term of the National Assembly is four calendar years commencing with the day of its first sitting. Elections for the new Assembly take place within the sixty days preceding the expiry of the said term, due regard being given to the provisions of Article 107

(2) Members whose term of office expires may be re-elected

(3) The term of the Assembly may not be extended except for necessity in time of war and by a law

84. Vacancy

(1) If, for any reason, a seat in the National Assembly becomes vacant before the end of the term, the vacancy is filled by election within two months from the date on which the Assembly declares the vacancy. The mandate of the new member lasts until the end of that of his predecessor

(2) If the vacancy occurs within six months prior to the expiry of the legislative term of the Assembly, no successor is elected

85. Annual Ordinary Session

The National Assembly has an annual session of not less than eight months. The said session may not be prorogued before the budget is approved.

86. Start of Ordinary Session

The Assembly starts its ordinary session during the month of October of every year upon a convocation by the Amir. If the decree of convocation is not issued before the first of the said month, the time for the meeting is deemed to be 9 a.m. on the third Saturday of that month. If such day happens to be an official holiday, the Assembly meets on the morning of the first day thereafter.

87. First Session

(1) Notwithstanding the provisions of the preceding two Articles, the Amir summons the National Assembly to hold its first meeting within two weeks of the end of the general election. If the decree of convocation is not issued within the said period, the Assembly is deemed to have been convoked for the morning of the day following these two weeks, due regard being given to the relevant provision of the preceding Article.

(2) If the date of the meeting of the Assembly falls after the annual date mentioned in Article 86, the term of the session specified in Article 85 is reduced by the difference between the said two dates.

88. Extraordinary Sessions

(1) The National Assembly is called by decree to an extraordinary session if the Amir deems it necessary, or upon the demand of the majority of the members of the Assembly.

(2) In an extraordinary session, the Assembly may not consider matters other than those for which it has been convened except with the consent of the Cabinet.

89. Prorogation of Sessions

The Amir announces the prorogation of ordinary and extraordinary sessions.

90. Place of Meeting

Every meeting held by the Assembly at a time or place other than that assigned for its meeting is invalid, and resolutions passed thereat are void by virtue of law.

91. Oath of Members

Before assuming his duties in the Assembly or in its committees, a member of the National Assembly must take the following oath before the Assembly in a public sitting:

"I swear by Almighty God to be faithful to the Country and to the Amir, to respect the Constitution and the laws of the State, to defend the liberties, interests, and properties of the people, and to discharge my duties honestly and truthfully."

(1) The National Assembly elects at its first sitting and for the duration of its term a President and a Deputy President from amongst its members. If either office becomes vacant, the Assembly elects a successor for the remainder of its term.

(2) In all cases, election is by an absolute majority vote of the members present. If this majority vote is not attained in the first ballot, another election is held between the two candidates receiving the highest number of votes. If more than one candidate receives an equal number of votes in the second place, all such candidates shall participate in the second ballot. In this case, the candidate who receives the greatest number of votes is elected. If there is a tie in this last ballot, the choice is by lot.

(3) The oldest member presides over the first sitting until the President is elected.

93. Committees

The Assembly forms, within the first week of its annual session, the committees necessary for its functions. These committees may discharge their duties during the recess of the Assembly with a view to submitting their recommendations to it when it meets.

94. Publicity

Sittings of the National Assembly are public, though they may be held in secret upon the request of the Government, the President of the Assembly, or of ten of its members. The debate on such request is held in secret.

95. Validation of Election

The National Assembly decides upon the validity of the election of its members. No election may be declared invalid except by a majority vote of the members constituting the Assembly. This jurisdiction may, by law, be entrusted to a judicial body.

96. Resignation of Members

The National Assembly is the competent authority to accept resignation of its members.

97. Quorum, Majority

For a meeting of the National Assembly to be valid, more than half of its members must be present. Resolutions are passed by an absolute majority vote of the members present, except in cases where a special majority is required. When votes are equally divided, the motion is rejected.

98. Government Program

Immediately upon its formation, every Cabinet presents its program to the National Assembly. The Assembly may make comments with regard to such a program.

99. Questioning Government

Every member of the National Assembly may put to the Prime Minister and to Ministers questions with a view to clarifying matters falling within their competence. The questioner alone has the right to comment once upon the answer.

100. Interpellations

(1) Every member of the National Assembly may address to the Prime Minister and to Ministers interpellations with regard to matters falling within their competence.

(2) The debate on such an interpellation shall not take place until at least eight days have elapsed after its presentation, except in case of urgency and with the consent of the Minister concerned.

(3) Subject to the provisions of Articles 101 and 102, an interpellation may lead to the question of no-confidence being put to the Assembly.

101. Vote of No-confidence

(1) Every Minister is responsible to the National Assembly for the affairs of his Ministry. If the Assembly passes a vote of no-confidence against a Minister, he is considered to have resigned his office as from the date of the vote of no-confidence and shall immediately submit his formal resignation. The question of confidence in a Minister may not be raised except upon his request or upon a demand signed by ten members, following a debate on an interpellation addressed to him. The Assembly may not make its decision upon such a request before the lapse of seven days from the presentation thereof.

(2) Withdrawal of confidence from a Minister is by a majority vote of the members constituting the Assembly excluding Ministers. Ministers do not participate in the vote of confidence.

102. No-confidence in Prime Minister

(1) The Prime Minister does not hold any portfolio, nor shall the question of confidence in him be raised before the National Assembly.

(2) Nevertheless, if the National Assembly decides, in the manner specified in the preceding Article, that it cannot co-operate with the Prime Minister, the matter is submitted to the Head of State. In such a case, the Amir may either relieve the Prime Minister of office and appoint a new Cabinet or dissolve the National Assembly.

(3) In the event of dissolution, if the new Assembly decides by the abovementioned majority vote that it cannot co-operate with the said Prime Minister, he shall be considered to have resigned as from the date of the decision of the Assembly in this respect, and a new Cabinet shall be formed.

103. Continuation of Government

If, for any reason, the Prime Minister or a Minister vacates his office, he shall continue to discharge the urgent business thereof until his successor is appointed.

104. Amiri Speech

(1) The Amir opens the annual session of the National Assembly whereupon he delivers an Amiri Speech reviewing the situation of the country and the important public matters which happened during the preceding year, and outlining the projects and reforms the Government plans to undertake during the coming year

(2) The Amir may depute the Prime Minister to open the Assembly or to deliver the Amiri Speech

105. Response to Amiri Speech

The National Assembly chooses, from amongst its members, a committee to draft the reply to the Amiri Speech which will embody the comments and wishes of the Assembly. After the said reply has been approved by the Assembly, it is submitted to the Amir

106. Adjournment

The Amir may, by a decree, adjourn the meeting of the National Assembly for a period not exceeding one month. Adjournment may be repeated during the same session with the consent of the Assembly and then only once. A period of adjournment is not counted in computing the duration of the session

107. Dissolution

(1) The Amir may dissolve the National Assembly by a decree in which the reasons for dissolution is indicated. However, dissolution of the Assembly may not be repeated for the same reasons

(2) In the event of dissolution, elections for the new Assembly are held within a period not exceeding two months from the date of dissolution

(3) If the elections are not held within the said period, the dissolved Assembly is restored to its full constitutional authority and meets immediately as if the dissolution had not taken place. The Assembly then continues to function until the new Assembly is elected

(4) A member of the Assembly represents the whole nation. He safeguards the public interest and is not subject to any authority in the discharge of his duties in the Assembly or in its committees

108. { . }*109. Member Bills

(1) A member of the Assembly has the right to initiate Bills

111. Immunity

Except in cases of flagrante delicto, no measures of inquiry, search, arrest, detention, or any other penal measure may be taken against a member while the Assembly is in session, except with the authorisation of the Assembly. The Assembly must be notified of any penal measure that may be taken during its session in accordance with the foregoing provision. The Assembly, at its first meeting, is always notified of any such measure taken against any of its members while it was not sitting. In all cases, if the Assembly does not give a decision regarding a request for authorization within one month from the date of its receipt, permission is deemed to have been given.

112. Assembly Discussions

Upon a request signed by five members, any subject of general interest may be put to the National Assembly for discussion with a view to securing clarification of the Government's policy and to exchanging views thereof. All other members also have the right to participate in the discussion.

113. Assembly Requests

The National Assembly may express to the Government wishes regarding public matters. If the Government cannot comply with these wishes, it shall state to the Assembly the reasons therefore. The Assembly may comment once on the Government's statement.

114. Committees of Inquiry

The National Assembly at all times has the right to set up committees of inquiry or to delegate one or more of its members to investigate any matter within its competence. Ministers and all Government officials must produce testimonials, documents, and statements requested from them.

115. Petition Committee

(1) The Assembly sets up, among its annual Standing Committees, a Special Committee to deal with petitions and complaints submitted to the Assembly by citizens. The Committee seeks explanation thereon from the competent authorities and informs the person concerned of the result.

(2) A member of the National Assembly may not interfere with the work of either the Judicial or the Executive Power.

The Prime Minister and Ministers are given the floor whenever they ask for it. They may call for assistance upon any senior officials or depute them to speak on their behalf. - (4) Nothing contained in paragraph (3) shall apply to illegal immigrants held in custody under any law dealing with illegal immigration, provided that such persons shall not be deported from Namibia unless deportation is authorised by a Tribunal empowered by law to give such authority
- (5) No persons who have been arrested and held in custody as illegal immigrants shall be denied the right to consult confidentially legal practitioners of their choice, and there shall be no interference with this right except such as is in accordance with the law and is necessary in a democratic society in the interest of national security or for public safety

12. Fair Trial

- (1)(a) In the determination of their civil rights and obligations or any criminal charges against them, all persons shall be entitled to a fair and public hearing by an independent, impartial and competent court or Tribunal established by law provided that such court or Tribunal may exclude the press and/or the public from all or any part of the trial for reasons of morals, the public order or national security, as is necessary in a democratic society
- (b) A trial referred to in paragraph (a) shall take place within a reasonable time, failing which the accused shall be released
- (c) Judgments in criminal cases shall be given in public, except where the interests of juvenile persons or morals otherwise require
- (d) All persons charged with an offence shall be presumed innocent until proven guilty according to law, after having had the opportunity of calling witnesses and cross-examining those called against them
- (e) All persons shall be afforded adequate time and facilities for the preparation and presentation of their defence, before the commencement of and during their trial, and shall be entitled to be defended by a legal practitioner of their choice
- (f) No persons shall be compelled to give testimony against themselves or their spouses, who shall include partners in a marriage by customary law, and no court shall admit in evidence against such persons testimony which has been obtained from such persons in violation of Article 8 (2)(b)

(2) No persons shall be liable to be tried, convicted or punished again for any criminal offence for which they have already been convicted or acquitted according to law: provided that nothing in this paragraph shall be construed as changing the provisions of the common law defence of "previous acquittal" and "previous conviction".

(3) No persons shall be tried or convicted for any criminal offence or on account of any act or omission which did not constitute a criminal offence at the time when it was committed, nor shall a penalty be imposed exceeding that which was applicable at the time when the offence was committed.

13. Privacy

(1) No persons shall be subject to interference with the privacy of their homes, correspondence or communications save as in accordance with law and as is necessary in a democratic society in the interests of national security, public safety of the economic well-being of the country, for the protection of health or morals, for the prevention of disorder or crime or for the protection of the rights or freedoms of others

(2) Searches of the person or the homes of individuals shall only be justified:

a) where these are authorised by a competent judicial officer;

b) in cases where delay in obtaining such judicial authority carries with it the danger or prejudicing the objects of the search or the public interest, and such procedures as are prescribed by Act of Parliament to preclude abuse are properly satisfied.

14. Family

(1) Men and women of full age, without any limitation due to race, colour, ethnic origin, nationality, religion, creed or social or economic status shall have the right to marry and to found a family. They shall be entitled to equal rights as to marriage, during marriage and at its dissolution

(2) Marriage shall be entered into only with the free and full consent of the intending spouses.

(3) The family is the natural and fundamental group unit of society and is entitled to protection by society and the State.

15. Children's Rights

(1) Children shall have the right from birth to a name, the right to acquire a nationality and, subject to legislation enacted in the best interests of children, as far as possible the right to know and be cared for by their parents.

(2) Children are entitled to be protected from economic exploitation and shall not be employed in or required to perform work that is likely to be hazardous or to interfere with their education, or to be harmful to their health or physical, mental, spiritual, moral, or social development. For the purposes of this paragraph children shall be under the age of sixteen years

(3) No children under the age of fourteen years shall be employed to work in any factory or mine, save under conditions and circumstances

regulated by Act of Parliament Nothing in this paragraph shall be construed as derogating in any way from paragraph (2)

(4) Any arrangement or scheme employed on any farm or other undertaking, the object or effect of which is to compel the minor children of an employee to work for or in the interest of the employer of such employee, shall for the purposes of Article 9 be deemed to constitute an arrangement or scheme to compel the performance of forced labour

(5) No law authorising preventive detention shall permit children under the age of sixteen years to be detained

16. Property

(1) All persons shall have the right in any part of Namibia to acquire, own and dispose of all forms of immovable and movable property individually or in association with others and to bequeath their property to their heirs or legatees provided that Parliament may by legislation prohibit or regulate as it deems expedient the right to acquire property by persons who are not Namibian citizens

(2) The State or a competent body or organ authorised by law may expropriate property in the public interest subject to the payment of just compensation, in accordance with requirements and procedures to be determined by Act of Parliament

17. { . }

18 Administrative Justice

Administrative bodies and administrative officials shall act fairly and reasonably and comply with the requirements imposed upon such bodies and officials by common law and any relevant legislation, and persons aggrieved by the exercise of such acts and decisions shall have the right to seek redress before a competent court or Tribunal

19 Culture

Every person shall be entitled to enjoy, practice, profess, maintain and promote any culture, language, tradition or religion subject to the terms of this Constitution and further subject to the condition that the rights protected by this article do not impinge upon the rights of others or the national interest

20. Education

(1) All persons shall have the right to education

(2) Primary education shall be compulsory and the State shall provide reasonable facilities to render effective this right for every resident within Namibia, by establishing and maintaining State schools at which primary education will be provided free of charge

(3) Children shall not be allowed to leave school until they have completed their primary education or have attained the age of sixteen years, whichever is the sooner, save in so far as this may be authorised by Act of Parliament on grounds of health or other considerations pertaining to the public interest

(4) All persons shall have the right, at their own expense, to establish and to maintain private schools, or colleges or other institutions of tertiary education provided that.

a) such schools, colleges or institutions of tertiary education are registered with a Government department in accordance with any law authorising and regulating such registration,

b) the standards maintained by such schools, colleges or institutions of tertiary education are not inferior to the standards maintained in comparable schools, colleges or institutions of tertiary education funded by the State,

c) no restrictions of whatever nature are imposed with respect to the admission of pupils based on race, colour or creed,

d) no restrictions of whatever nature are imposed with respect to the recruitment of staff based on race or colour

21. Fundamental Freedoms

(1) All persons shall have the right to

a) freedom of speech and expression, which shall include freedom of the press and other media,

b) freedom of thought, conscience and belief, which shall include academic freedom in institutions of higher learning,

c) freedom to practice any religion and to manifest such practice,

d) assemble peaceably and without arms,

e) freedom of association, which shall include freedom to form and join associations or unions, including trade unions and political parties,

f) withhold their labour without being exposed to criminal penalties,

g) move freely throughout Namibia,

h) reside and settle in any part of Namibia,

i) leave and return to Namibia,

j) practice any profession, or carry on any occupation, trade or business

(2) The fundamental freedoms referred to in paragraph (1) shall be exercised subject to the law of Namibia, in so far as such law imposes reasonable restrictions on the exercise of the rights and freedoms conferred by the said paragraph, which are necessary in a democratic society and are required in the interests of the sovereignty and integrity of Namibia, national security, public order, decency or morality, or in relation to contempt of court, defamation or incitement to an offence

22. Limitation upon Fundamental Rights and Freedoms

Whenever or wherever in terms of this Constitution the limitation of any fundamental rights or freedoms contemplated by this Chapter is authorised, any law providing for such limitation shall

a) be of general application, shall not negate the essential content, and shall not be aimed at a particular individual,

b) specify the ascertainable extent of such limitation and identify the article or articles on which authority to enact such limitation is claimed to rest.

23. Apartheid and Affirmative Action

(1) The practice of racial discrimination and the practice and ideology of apartheid from which the majority of the people of Namibia have suffered for so long shall be prohibited and by Act of Parliament such practices, and the propagation of such practices, may be rendered criminally punishable by the ordinary Courts by means of such punishment as Parliament deems necessary for the purposes of expressing the revulsion of the Namibian people at such practices

(2) Nothing contained in Article 10 shall prevent Parliament from enacting legislation providing directly or indirectly for the advancement of persons within Namibia who have been socially, economically or educationally disadvantaged by past discriminatory laws or practices, or for the implementation of policies and programmes aimed at redressing social, economic or educational imbalances in the Namibian society arising out of past discriminatory laws or practices, or for achieving a balanced structuring of the public service, the police force, the defence force, and the prison service

(3) In the enactment of legislation and the application of any policies and practices contemplated by paragraph (2), it shall be permissible to have regard to the fact that women in Namibia have traditionally suffered special discrimination and that they need to be encouraged and enabled to play a full, equal and effective role in the political, social, economic and cultural life of the nation

24 Derogation

(1) Nothing contained in or done under the authority of Article 26 shall be held to be inconsistent with or in contravention of this Constitution to the extent that it authorises the taking of measures during any period when Namibia is in a state of national defence or any period when a declaration of emergency under this Constitution is in force

(2) Where any persons are detained by virtue of such authorization as is referred to in paragraph (1), the following provisions shall apply:

a) they shall, as soon as reasonably practicable and in any case not more than five days after the commencement of their detention, be furnished with a statement in writing in a language that they understand specifying in detail the grounds upon which they are detained and, at their request, this statement shall be read to them;

b) not more than fourteen days after the commencement of their detention, be furnished with a statement in writing in a language that they understand specifying in detail the grounds upon which they are detained and, at their request, this statement shall be read to them,

c) not more than one month after the commencement of their detention and thereafter during their detention at intervals of not more than three months, their cases shall be reviewed by the Advisory Board referred to in Article 26 (5)(c), which shall order their release from detention if it is satisfied that it is not reasonably necessary for the purposes of the emergency to continue the detention of such persons,

d) they shall be afforded such opportunity for the making of representations as may be desirable or expedient in the circumstances, having regard to the public interest and the interests of the detained persons

(3) Nothing contained in this Article shall permit a derogation from or suspension of the fundamental rights or freedoms referred to in Articles 5, 6, 8, 9, 10, 12, 14, 15, 18, 19 and 21 (1)(a), (b), (c), and (e), or the denial of access by any persons to legal practitioners or a court of law

25. Enforcement of Fundamental Rights and Freedoms

(1) Save in so far as it may be authorised to do so by this Constitution, Parliament or any subordinate legislative authority shall not make any law, and the Executive and the agencies of Government shall not take any action which abolishes or abridges the fundamental rights and freedoms conferred by this Chapter, and any law or action in contravention thereof shall to the extent of the contravention be invalid, provided that

a) a competent court, instead of declaring such law or action to be invalid, shall have the power and the discretion in an appropriate case to allow Parliament, any subordinate legislative authority, or the Executive and the agencies of Government, as the case may be, to correct any defect in the impugned law or action within a specified period, subject to such conditions as may be specified by it. In such event and until such correction, or until the expiry of the time limit set by the court, whichever be the shorter, such impugned law or action shall be deemed to be valid,

b) any law which was in force immediately before the date of Independence shall remain in force until amended, repealed or declared unconstitutional, it may either set aside the law, or allow Parliament to correct any defect in such law, in which event the provisions of paragraph (a) shall apply

(2) Aggrieved persons who claim that a fundamental right or freedom guaranteed by this Constitution has been infringed or threatened shall be entitled to approach a competent court to enforce or protect such a right or freedom, and may approach the Ombudsman to provide them with such legal assistance or advice as they require, and the Ombudsman shall have the discretion in response thereto to provide such legal or other assistance as he or she may consider expedient

(3) Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, the court referred to in paragraph (2) shall have the power to make all such orders as shall be necessary and appropriate to secure such applicants the enjoyment of the rights of freedoms conferred on them under the provisions of this Constitution, should the court come to the conclusion that such rights or freedoms have been unlawfully denied or violated, or that grounds exist for the protection of such rights or freedoms by interdict

(4) The power of the court shall include the power to award monetary compensation in respect of any damage suffered by the aggrieved persons in consequence of such unlawful denial or violation of their fundamental rights and freedoms, where it considers such an award to be appropriate in the circumstances of particular cases

PUBLIC EMERGENCY, STATE OF NATIONAL DEFENCE AND MARTIAL LAW

26 State of Emergency, State of National Defence and Martial Law

(1) At a time of national disaster or during a state of national defence or public emergency threatening the life of the nation or the constitutional order, the President may by Proclamation in the Gazette declare that a state of emergency exists in Namibia or any part thereof

(2) A declaration under paragraph (1), if not sooner revoked, shall cease to have effect

a) in the case of a declaration made when the National Assembly is sitting or has been summoned to meet, at the expiration of a period of seven (7) days after publication of the declaration, or

b) in any other case, at the expiration of a period of thirty days after publication of the declaration, unless before the expiration of that period, it is approved by a resolution passed by the National Assembly by a two-thirds majority of all its members

(3) Subject to the provisions of paragraph (4), a declaration approved by a resolution of the National Assembly under paragraph (2) shall continue to be in force until the expiration of a period of six months after being so approved or until such earlier date as may be specified in the resolution provided that the National Assembly may, by resolution by a two-thirds majority of all its members, extend its approval of the declaration for periods of not more than six months at a time

(4) The National Assembly may by resolution at any time revoke a declaration approved by it in terms of this Article

(5)(a) During a state of emergency in terms of this Article or when a state of national defence prevails, the President shall have the power by Proclamation to make such regulations as in his or her opinion are necessary for the protection of national security, public safety and the maintenance of law and order

(b) The powers of the President to make such regulations shall include the power to suspend the operation of any rule of the common law or statute or any fundamental right or freedom protected by this Constitution, for such period and subject to such conditions as are reasonably justifiable for the purpose of dealing with the situation which has given rise to the emergency provided that nothing in this paragraph shall enable the President to act contrary to the provisions of Article 24

(c) Where any regulation made under paragraph (b) provides for detention without trial, provision shall also be made for an Advisory Board, to be appointed by the President on the recommendation of the Judicial Service Commission and consisting of no more than five persons, of whom no fewer than three persons shall be Judges of the Supreme Court or the High Court or qualified to be such. The Advisory Board shall perform the function set out in Article 24 (2)(c)

(6) Any regulations made by the President pursuant to the provisions of paragraph (5) shall cease to have legal force if they have not been approved by a resolution of the National Assembly within fourteen days from the date when the National Assembly first sits in session after the date of the commencement of any such regulations

(7) The President shall have the power to proclaim or terminate martial law. Martial law may be proclaimed only when a state of national defence involving another country exists or when civil war prevails in Namibia provided that any proclamation of martial law shall cease to be valid if it is not approved within a reasonable time by a resolution passed by a two-third majority of all the members of the National Assembly

CHAPTER V THE PRESIDENT

(3) Every citizen of Namibia by birth or descent, over the age of thirty-five years, and who is eligible to be elected to office as a member of the National Assembly shall be eligible for election as President

(4) The procedures to be followed for the nomination of candidates for election as President, and for all matters necessary and incidental to ensure the free, fair and effective election of a President, shall be determined by Act of Parliament provided that any registered political party shall be entitled to nominate a candidate, and any person supported by a minimum number of registered voters to be determined by Act of Parliament shall also be entitled to be nominated as a candidate

29. Term of Office

(1)(a) The President's term of office shall be five years unless he or she dies or resigns before the expiry of the said term or is removed from office

(b) In the event of the dissolution of the National Assembly in the circumstances provided for under Article 57 (1), the President's term of office shall also expire

(2) A President shall be removed from office if a two-thirds majority of all the members of the National Assembly, confirmed by a two-thirds majority of all the members of the National Council, adopts a resolution impeaching the President on the ground that he or she has been guilty of a violation of the Constitution or guilty of a serious violation of the laws of the land or otherwise guilty of such gross misconduct or ineptitude as to render him or her unfit to hold with dignity and honour the office of President

(3) A person shall hold office as President for not more than two terms

(4) If a President dies, resigns or is removed from office in terms of this Constitution, the vacant office of President shall be filled for the unexpired period thereof as follows

a) if the vacancy occurs not more than one year before the date on which Presidential elections are required to be held, the vacancy shall be filled in accordance with the provisions of Article 34,

b) if the vacancy occurs not more than one year before the date on which Presidential elections are required to be held, an election for the President shall be held in accordance with the provisions of 28 within a period of ninety (90) days from the date on which the vacancy occurred, and pending such election the vacant office shall be filled in accordance with the provisions of Article 34

(5) If the President dissolves the National Assembly under Articles 32 (3)(a) and 57 (1), a new election for President shall be held in accordance with the provisions of Article 28 within ninety days, and pending such election the President shall remain in office, and the provisions of Article 58 shall be applicable

(6) If a person becomes President under paragraph (4), the period of time during which he or she holds office consequent upon such election or succession shall not be regarded as a term for the purposes of paragraph (3)

30. Oath or Affirmation

Before formally assuming office, a President-elect shall make the following oath or affirmation which shall be administered by the Chief Justice or a Judge designated by the Chief Justice for this purpose

"I, , do hereby swear/solemnly affirm,

That I will strive to the best of my ability to uphold, protect and defend as the Supreme Law the Constitution of the Republic of Namibia, and faithfully to obey, execute and administer the laws of the Republic of Namibia,

That I will protect the independence, sovereignty, territorial integrity and the material and spiritual resources of the Republic of Namibia, and

That I will endeavour to the best of my ability to ensure justice for all the inhabitants of the Republic of Namibia

(In the case of an oath ) So help me God "

31. Immunity from Civil and Criminal Proceedings

(1) No person holding the office of President or performing the functions of President may be sued in any civil proceedings save where such proceedings concern an act done in his or her official capacity as President

(2) No person holding the office of President shall be charged with any criminal offence or be amenable to the criminal jurisdiction of any court in respect of any act allegedly performed, or any omission to perform any act, during his or her tenure of office as President

(3) After a President has vacated that office

a) no court may entertain any action against him or her in any civil proceedings in respect of any act done in his or her official capacity as President,

b) a civil or criminal court shall only have jurisdiction to entertain proceedings against him or her, in respect of acts of commission or omission alleged to have been perpetrated in his or her personal capacity whilst holding office as President, if Parliament by resolution has removed the President on the grounds specified in this Constitution and if a resolution is adopted by Parliament resolving that any such proceedings are justified in the public interest notwithstanding any damage such proceedings might cause to the dignity of the office of President

32. Functions, Powers and Duties

(1) As the Head of State, the President shall uphold, protect and defend the Constitution as the Supreme Law, and shall perform with dignity and leadership all acts necessary, expedient, reasonably and incidental to the discharge of the executive functions of the Government, subject to the overriding terms of this Constitution and the laws of Namibia, which he or she is constitutionally obliged to protect, to administer and to execute

(2) In accordance with the responsibility of the executive branch of Government to the legislative branch, the President and the Cabinet shall each year during the consideration of the official budget attend Parliament. During such session the President shall address Parliament on the state of the nation and on the future policies of the Government, shall report on the policies of the previous year and shall be available to respond to questions.

a) seventy-two members to be elected by the registered voters by general, direct and secret ballot Every Namibian citizen who has the qualifications described in Article 17 shall be entitled to vote in the elections for members of the National Assembly and, subject to Article 47, shall be eligible for candidature as a member of the National Assembly,

b) not more than six persons appointed by the President under Article 32 (3)(c), by virtue of their special expertise, status, skill or experience provided that such members shall have no vote in the National Assembly, and shall not be taken into account for the purpose of determining any specific majorities that are required under this Constitution or any other law

(2) Subject to the principles referred to in Article 49, the members of the National Assembly referred to in paragraph (1)(a) shall be elected in accordance with procedures to be determined by Act of Parliament

47. Disqualification of Members

(1) No persons may become members of the National Assembly if they

a) have at any time after Independence been convicted of any offence in Namibia, or outside Namibia if such conduct would have constituted an offence within Namibia, and for which they have been sentenced to death or to imprisonment of more than twelve months without the option of a fine, unless they have received a free pardon or unless such imprisonment has expired at least ten years before the date of their election, or

b) have at any time prior to Independence been convicted of an offence, if such conduct would have constituted an offence within Namibia after Independence, and for which they have been sentenced to death or to imprisonment of more than twelve months without the option of a fine, unless they have received a free pardon or unless such imprisonment has expired at least ten years before the date of their election provided that no person sentenced to death or imprisonment for acts committed in connection with the struggle for the independence of Namibia shall be disqualified under this paragraph from being elected as a member of the National Assembly, or

- c) are unrehabilitated insolvents, or
- d) are of unsound mind and have been so declared by a competent Court, or
- e) are remunerated members of the public service of Namibia, or
- f) are members of the National Council, Regional Councils or Local Authorities

(2) For the purpose of paragraph (1)

a) no person shall be considered as having been convicted by any court until any appeal which might have been noted against the conviction or sentence has been determined, or the time for noting an appeal against such conviction has expired,

b) the public service shall be deemed to include the defence force, the police force, the prison service, para-statal enterprises, Regional Councils and local authorities

48 Vacation of Seats

(1) Members of the National Assembly shall vacate their seats

a) if they cease to have the qualifications which rendered them eligible to be members of the National Assembly,

b) if the political party which nominated them to sit in the National Assembly informs the Speaker that such members are no longer members of such political party,

c) if they resign their seats in writing addressed to the Speaker,

d) if they are removed by the National Assembly pursuant to its rules and standing orders permitting or requiring such removal for good and sufficient reasons,

e) if they are absent during sittings of the National Assembly for ten consecutive sitting days, without having obtained the special leave of the National Assembly on grounds specified in its rules and standing orders

(2) If the seat of a member of the National Assembly is vacated in terms of paragraph (1), the political party which nominated such member to sit in the National Assembly shall be entitled to fill the vacancy by nominating any person on the party's election list compiled for the previous general election, or if there be no such person, by nominating any member of the party

49 Elections

The election of members in terms of Article 46 (1)(a) shall be on party lists and in accordance with the principles of proportional representation as set out in Schedule 4

50. Duration

Every National Assembly shall continue for a maximum period of five years, but it may before the expiry of its term be dissolved by the President by Proclamation as provided for in Articles 32 (3)(a) and 57 (1)

51. Speaker

(1) At the first sitting of a newly elected National Assembly, the National Assembly, with the Secretary acting as Chairperson, shall elect a member as Speaker. The National Assembly shall then elect another member as Deputy Speaker. The Deputy Speaker shall act as Speaker whenever the Speaker is not available.

(2) The Speaker or Deputy Speaker shall cease to hold office if he or she ceases to be a member of the National Assembly. The Speaker or Deputy Speaker may be removed from office by resolution of the National Assembly, and may resign from office or from the National Assembly in writing addressed to the Secretary of the National Assembly.

(3) When the office of Speaker or Deputy Speaker becomes vacant the National Assembly shall elect a member to fill the vacancy.

(4) When neither the Speaker nor the Deputy Speaker is available for duty, the National Assembly, with the Secretary acting as Chairperson, shall elect a member to act as Speaker.

52. Secretary and other Officers

(1) Subject to the provisions of the laws pertaining to the public service and the directives of the National Assembly, the Speaker shall appoint a person (or designate a person in the public service made available for that purpose), as the Secretary of the National Assembly, who shall perform the functions and duties assigned to such Secretary by this Constitution or by the Speaker.

(2) Subject to the laws governing the control of public monies, the Secretary shall perform his or her functions and duties under the control of the Speaker.

(3) The Secretary shall be assisted by officers of the National Assembly who shall be persons in the public service made available for that purpose.

53. Quorum

The presence of at least thirty-seven members of the National Assembly entitled to vote, other than the Speaker or the presiding member, shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the National Assembly for the exercise of its powers and the performance of its functions.

54. Casting Vote

In the case of an equality of votes in the National Assembly, the Speaker or the Deputy Speaker or the presiding member shall have and may exercise a casting vote.

55. Oath or Affirmation

Every member of the National Assembly shall make and subscribe to an oath or solemn affirmation before the Chief Justice or a Judge designated by the Chief Justice for this purpose, in the terms set out in Schedule 3

56. Assent to Bills

(1) Every Bill passed by Parliament in terms of this Constitution in order to acquire the status of an Act of Parliament shall require the assent of the President to be signified by the signing of the Bill and the publication of the Act in the Gazette

(2) Where a Bill is passed by a majority of two-thirds of all the members of the National Assembly and has been confirmed by the National Council the President shall be obliged to give his or her assent thereto

(3) Where a Bill is passed by a majority of the members of the National Assembly but such majority consists of less than two-thirds of all the members of the National Assembly and has been confirmed by the National Council, but the President declines to assent to such bill, the President shall communicate such dissent to the Speaker

(4) If the President has declined to assent to a Bill under paragraph (3), the National Assembly may reconsider the Bill and, if it so decides, pass the Bill in the form in which it was referred back to it, or in an amended form or it may decline to pass the Bill. Should the Bill then be passed by a majority of the National Assembly it will not require further confirmation by the National Council but, if the majority consists of less than two-thirds of all the members of the National Assembly, the President shall retain his or her power to withhold assent to the Bill. If the President elects not to assent to the Bill, it shall then lapse

(1) The National Assembly may be dissolved by the President on the advice of the Cabinet if the Government is unable to govern effectively

(2) Should the National Assembly be dissolved a national election for a new National Assembly and a new President shall take place within a period of ninety days from the date of such dissolution

58. Conduct of Business after Dissolution

Notwithstanding the provisions of Article 57

a) every person who at the date of its dissolution was a member of the National Assembly shall remain a member of the National Assembly and remain competent to perform the functions of a member until the day immediately preceding the first polling day for the election held in pursuance of such dissolution,

b) the President shall have power to summon Parliament for the conduct of business during the period following such dissolution, up to and including the day immediately preceding the first polling day for the election held in pursuance of such dissolution, in the same manner and in all respects as if the dissolution had not occurred

59. Rules of Procedure, Committees and Standing Orders

(1) The National Assembly may make such rules of procedure for the conduct of its business and proceedings and may also make such rules for the establishing, functioning and procedures of committees, and formulate such standing orders, as may appear to it to be expedient or necessary

(2) The National Assembly shall in its rules of procedure make provision for such disclosure as may be considered to be appropriate in regard to the financial or business affairs of its members

(3) For the purpose of exercising its powers and performing its functions any committee of the National Assembly established in terms of paragraph (1) shall have the power to subpoena persons to appear before it to give evidence on oath and to produce any documents required by it

60. Duties, Privileges and Immunities of Members

(1) The duties of the members of the National Assembly shall include the following

a) all members of the National Assembly shall maintain the dignity and image of the National Assembly both during the sittings of the National Assembly as well as in their acts and activities outside the National Assembly,

b) all members of the National Assembly shall regard themselves as servants of the people of Namibia and desist from any conduct by which they seek improperly to enrich themselves or alienate themselves from the people

(2) A Private Members' Bill may be introduced in the National Assembly if supported by one-third of all the members of the National Assembly

(3) Rules providing for the privileges and immunities of members of the National Assembly shall be made by Act of Parliament and all members shall be entitled to the protection of such privileges and immunities

61. Public Access to Sittings

(1) Save as provided in paragraph (2), all meetings of the National Assembly shall be held in public and members of the public shall have access to such meetings

(2) Access by members of the public in terms of paragraph (1) may be denied if the National Assembly adopts a motion supported by two-thirds of all its members excluding such access to members of the public for specified periods or in respect of specified matters. Such a motion shall only be considered if it is supported by at least one-tenth of all the members of the National Assembly and the debate on such motion shall not be open to members of the public

62. Sessions

(1) The National Assembly shall sit

a) at its usual place of sitting determined by the National Assembly, unless the Speaker directs otherwise on the grounds of public interest, security or convenience,

b) for at least two sessions during each year, to commence and terminate on such dates as the National Assembly from time to time determines,

c) for such special sessions as directed by Proclamation by the President from time to time

(2) During such sessions the National Assembly shall sit on such days and during such times of the day or night as the National Assembly by its rules and standing orders may provide

(3) The day of commencement of any session of the National Assembly may be altered by Proclamation by the President, if the President is requested to do so by the Speaker on grounds of public interest or convenience.

63. Functions and Powers

(1) The National Assembly, as the principal legislative authority in and over Namibia, shall have the power, subject to this Constitution, to make and repeal laws for the peace, order and good government of the country in the best interest of the people of Namibia

(2) The National Assembly shall further have the power and function, subject to this Constitution

a) to approve budgets for the effective government and administration of the country,

b) to provide for revenue and taxation,

c) to take such steps as it considers expedient to uphold and defend this Constitution and the laws of Namibia and to advance the objectives of Namibian independence,

d) to consider and decide whether or not to succeed to such international agreements as may have been entered into prior to Independence by administrations within Namibia in which the majority of the Namibian people have historically not enjoyed democratic representation and participation;

e) to agree to the ratification of or accession to international agreements which have been negotiated and signed in terms of Article 32 (3)(e).

f) to receive reports on the activities of the Executive, including parastatal enterprises and from time to time to require any senior official to appear before any of the committees of the National Assembly to account for and explain his or her acts and programmes

g) to initiate, approve or decide to hold a referendum on matters of national concern,

h) to debate and to advise the President in regard to any matters which by this Constitution the President is authorised to deal with,

i) to remain vigilant and vigorous for the purpose of ensuring that the scourges of apartheid, tribalism and colonialism do not again manifest themselves in any form in a free and independent Namibia and to protect and assist disadvantaged citizens of Namibia who have historically been the victims of these pathologies,

j) generally to exercise any other functions and powers assigned to it by this Constitution or any other law and any other functions incidental thereto

64. Withholding of Presidential Assent

(1) Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, the President shall be entitled to withhold his or her assent to a Bill approved by the National Assembly if in the President's opinion such Bill would upon adoption conflict with the provisions of this Constitution

(2) Should the President withhold assent on the grounds of such opinion, he or she shall so inform the Speaker who shall inform the National Assembly thereof, and the Attorney-General, who may then take appropriate steps to have the matter decided by a competent court

(3) Should such court thereafter conclude that such Bill is not in conflict with the provisions of this Constitution, the President shall assent to the said Bill if it was passed by the National Assembly by a two-thirds majority of all its members. If the Bill was not passed with such majority, the President may withhold his or her assent to the Bill, in which event the provisions of Article 56 (3) and (4) shall apply

(4) Should such court conclude that the disputed Bill would be in conflict with any provisions of this Constitution, the said Bill shall be deemed to have lapsed and the President shall not be entitled to assent thereto

65. Signature and Enrolment of Acts

(1) When any Bill has become an Act of Parliament as a result of its having been passed by Parliament, signed by the President and published in the Gazette, the Secretary of the National Assembly shall promptly cause two fair copies of such Act in the English language to be enrolled in the office of the Registrar of the Supreme Court and such copies shall be conclusive evidence of the provisions of the Act

(2) The public shall have the right of access to such copies subject to such regulations as may be prescribed by Parliament to protect the durability of the said copies and the convenience of the Registrar's staff

66. Customary and Common Law

(1) Both the customary law and the common law of Namibia in force on the date of Independence shall remain valid to the extent to which such customary or common law does not conflict with this Constitution or any other statutory law

(2) Subject to the terms of this Constitution, any part of such common law or customary law may be repealed or modified by Act of Parliament, and the application thereof may be confined to particular parts of Namibia or to particular periods

67. Requisite Majorities

Save as provided in this Constitution, a simple majority of votes cast in the National Assembly shall be sufficient for the passage of any Bill or resolution of the National Assembly

CHAPTER VIII

THE NATIONAL COUNCIL

68 Establishment

There shall be a National Council which shall have the powers and functions set out in this Constitution

(1) The National Council shall consist of two members from each region referred to in Article 102, to be elected from amongst their members by the Regional Council for such region

(2) The elections of members of the National Council shall be conducted according to procedures to be prescribed by Act of Parliament

70 Term of Office of Members

(1) Members of the National Council shall hold their seats for six years from the date of their election and shall be eligible for re-election

(2) When a seat of a member of the National Council becomes vacant through death, resignation or disqualification, an election for a successor to occupy the vacant seat until the expiry of the predecessor's term of office shall be held, except in the instance where such vacancy arises less than six months before the expiry of the term of the National Council, in which instance such vacancy need not be filled. Such election shall be held in accordance with the procedures prescribed by the Act of Parliament referred to in Article 69(2)

71. Oath or Affirmation

Every member of the National Council shall make and subscribe to an oath or solemn affirmation before the Chief Justice, or a Judge designated by the Chief Justice for this purpose, in the terms set out in Schedule 3

72. Qualifications of Members

No person shall be qualified to be a member of the National Council if he or she is an elected member of a local authority, and unless he or she is qualified under Article 47 (1)(a) to (e) to be a member of the National Assembly

73. Chairperson and Vice-Chairperson

The National Council shall, before proceeding to the dispatch of any other business, elect from its members a Chairperson and a Vice-Chairperson. The Chairperson, or in his or her absence the Vice-Chairperson, shall preside over sessions of the National Council. Should neither the Chairperson nor the Vice-Chairperson be present at any session, the National Council shall elect from amongst its members a person to act as Chairperson in their absence during that session

74. Powers and Functions

(1) The National Council shall have the power to

a) consider in terms of Article 75 all bills passed by the National Assembly,

b) investigate and report to the National Assembly on any subordinate legislation, reports and documents which under law must be tabled in the National Assembly and which are referred to it by the National Assembly for advice,

c) recommend legislation on matters of regional concern for submission to and consideration by the National Assembly,

d) perform any other functions assigned to it by the National Assembly or by an Act of Parliament

(2) The National Council shall have the power to establish committees and to adopt its own rules and procedures for the exercise of its powers and the performance of its functions. A committee of the National Council shall be entitled to conduct all such hearings and collect such evidence as it considers necessary for the exercise of the National Council's powers of review and investigations, and for such purposes shall have the powers referred to in Article 59 (3)

(3) The National Council shall in its rules of procedure make provision for such disclosure as may be considered to be appropriate in regard to the financial or business affairs of its members

(4) The duties of the members of the National Council shall include the following

a) all members of the National Council shall maintain the dignity and image of the National Council both during the sittings of the National Council as well as in their acts and activities outside the National Council,

b) all members of the National Council shall regard themselves as servants of the people of Namibia and desist from any conduct by which they seek improperly to enrich themselves or alienate themselves from the people

(5) Rules providing for the privileges and immunities of members of the National Council shall be made by Act of Parliament and all members shall be entitled to the protection of such privileges and immunities

75. Review of Legislation

(1) All Bills passed by the National Assembly shall be referred by the Speaker to the National Council

(2) The National Council shall consider Bills referred to it under paragraph (1) and shall submit reports thereon with its recommendations to the Speaker

(3) If in its report to the Speaker the National Council confirms a Bill, the Speaker shall refer it to the President to enable the President to deal with it under Articles 56 and 64

(4) (a) If the National Council in its report to the Speaker recommends that the Bill be passed subject to amendments proposed by it, such Bill shall be referred by the Speaker back to the National Assembly

(b) If a Bill is referred back to the National Assembly under paragraph (a), the National Assembly may reconsider the Bill and may make any amendments thereto, whether proposed by the National Council or not. If the Bill is again passed by the National Assembly, whether in the form in which it was originally passed, or in an amended form, the Bill shall not again be referred to the National Council, but shall be referred by the Speaker to the President to enable it to be dealt with under Articles 56 and 64

(5) (a) If a majority of two-thirds of all the members of the National Council objects to the principle of a Bill, this shall be mentioned in its report to the Speaker. In that event, the report shall also indicate whether or not the National Council proposes that amendments be made to the Bill, if the principle of the Bill is confirmed by the National Assembly under paragraph (b), and if amendments are proposed, details thereof shall be set out in the report

(b) If the National Council in its report to the principle of the Bill, the National Assembly shall be required to reconsider the principle. If upon such reconsideration the National Assembly reaffirms the principle of the Bill by a majority of two-thirds of all its members, the principle of the Bill shall no longer be an issue. If such two-thirds majority is not obtained in the National Assembly, the Bill shall lapse

(6) (a) If the National Assembly reaffirms the principle of the Bill under paragraph 5(b) by a majority of two-thirds of all its members, and the report of the National Council proposed that in such event amendments be made to the Bill, the National Assembly shall then deal with the amendments proposed by the National Council, and in that event the provisions of paragraph 4(b) shall apply mutatis mutandis

(b) If the National Assembly reaffirms the principle of the Bill under paragraph 5(b) by a majority of two-thirds of all its members, and the report of the National Council did not propose that in such event amendments be made to the Bill, the National Council shall be deemed to have confirmed the Bill, and the Speaker shall refer the Bill to the President to be dealt with under Articles 56 and 64

(7) Paragraphs (5) and (6) shall not apply to Bills dealing with the levying of taxes or the appropriation of public monies

(8) The National Council shall report to the Speaker on all Bills dealing with the levying of taxes or appropriations of public monies within thirty days of the date on which such bills were referred to it by the Speaker, and on all other bills within three months of the date of referral by the Speaker, failing which the National Council will be deemed to have confirmed such bills and the Speaker shall then refer them promptly to the President to enable the President to deal with the bills under Articles 56 and 64

(9) If the President withholds his or her assent to any Bill under Article 59 and the Bill is then dealt with in terms of that Article, and is again passed by the National Assembly in the form in which it was originally passed or in an amended form, such Bill shall not again be referred to the National Council but shall be referred by the Speaker directly to the President to enable the Bill to be dealt with in terms of Articles 56 and 64

76. Quorum

The presence of a majority of the members of the National Council shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the National Council for the exercise of its powers and the performance of its functions

77. Voting

Save as is otherwise provided in this Constitution, all questions in the National Council shall be determined by a majority of the votes cast by members present other than the Chairperson, or in his or her absence the Vice-Chairperson or the member presiding at that session, who shall, however have and may exercise a casting vote in the case of an equality of votes

CHAPTER IX THE ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE

78. The Judiciary

(1) The judicial power shall be vested in the courts of Namibia, which shall consist of

- a) a Supreme Court of Namibia,
- b) a High Court of Namibia;
- c) Lower Courts of Namibia

(2) The courts shall be independent and subject only to this Constitution and the law

(3) No member of the Cabinet or the Legislature or any other person shall interfere with Judges or judicial officers in the exercise of their judicial functions, and all organs of the State shall accord such assistance as the courts may require to protect their independence, dignity and effectiveness, subject to the terms of this Constitution or any other law

(4) The Supreme Court and the High Court shall have the inherent jurisdiction which vested in the Supreme Court of South-West Africa immediately prior to the date of Independence, including the power to regulate their own procedures and to make court rules for that purpose

79. The Supreme Court

(1) The Supreme Court shall consist of a Chief Justice and such additional Judges as the President, acting on the recommendation of the Judicial Service Commission, may determine

(2) The Supreme Court shall be presided over by the Chief Justice and shall hear and adjudicate upon appeals emanating from the High Court, including appeals which involve the interpretation, implementation and upholding of this Constitution and the fundamental rights and freedoms guaranteed thereunder. The Supreme Court shall also deal with matters referred to it for decision by the Attorney-General under this Constitution, and with such other matters as may be authorised by Act of Parliament.

(3) Three Judges shall constitute a quorum of the Supreme Court when it hears appeals or deals with matters referred to it by the Attorney-General under this Constitution provided that provision may be made by Act of Parliament for a lesser quorum in circumstances in which a Judge seized of an appeal dies or becomes unable to act at any time prior to judgment.

(4) The jurisdiction of the Supreme Court with regard to appeals shall be determined by Act of Parliament.

80. The High Court

(1) The High Court shall consist of a Judge-President and such additional Judges as the President, acting on the recommendation of the Judicial Service Commission, may determine.

(2) The High Court shall have original jurisdiction to hear and adjudicate upon all civil disputes and criminal prosecutions, including cases which involve the interpretation, implementation and upholding of this Constitution and the fundamental rights and freedoms guaranteed thereunder. The High Court shall also have jurisdiction to hear and adjudicate upon appeals from lower courts.

(3) The jurisdiction of the High Court with regard to appeals shall be determined by Act of Parliament.

81 Binding Nature of Decisions of the Supreme Court

A decision of the Supreme Court shall be binding on all other courts of Namibia and all persons in Namibia unless it is reversed by the Supreme Court itself, or is contradicted by an Act of Parliament lawfully enacted.

82. Appointment of Judges

(1) All appointments of Judges to the Supreme Court and the High Court shall be made by the President on the recommendation of the Judicial Service Commission and upon appointment Judges shall make an oath or affirmation of office in the terms set out in Schedule 1.

(2) At the request of the Chief Justice the President may appoint Acting Judges of the Supreme Court to fill casual vacancies in the Court from time to time, or as ad hoc appointments to sit in cases involving constitutional issues or the guarantee of fundamental rights and freedoms, if in the opinion of the Chief Justice it is desirable that such persons should be appointed to hear such cases by reason of their special knowledge of or expertise in such matters.

(3) At the request of the Judge-President, the President may appoint Acting Judges of the High Court from time to time to fill casual vacancies in the Court, or to enable the Court to deal expeditiously with its work

(4) All Judges, except Acting Judges, appointed under this Constitution shall hold office until the age of sixty-five but the President shall be entitled to extend the retiring age of any Judge to seventy. It shall also be possible by Act of Parliament to make provision for retirement at ages higher than those specified in this article

83. Lower Courts

(1) Lower courts shall be established by Act of Parliament and shall have the jurisdiction and adopt the procedures prescribed by such Act and regulations made thereunder

(2) Lower courts shall be presided over by Magistrates or other judicial officers appointed in accordance with procedures prescribed by Act of Parliament

84. Removal of Judges from Office

(1) A Judge may be removed from office before the expiry of his or her tenure only by the President acting on the recommendation of the Judicial Service Commission

(2) Judges may only be removed from office on the ground of mental incapacity or for gross misconduct, and in accordance with the provisions of paragraph (3)

(3) The Judicial Service Commission shall investigate whether or not a Judge should be removed from office on such grounds, and if it decides that the Judge should be removed, it shall inform the President of its recommendation

(4) If the deliberations of the Judicial Service Commission pursuant to this Article involve the conduct of a member of the Judicial Service Commission, such Judicial Service Commission and, pending the outcome of such investigations and recommendation, suspend the Judge from office

85. The Judicial Service Commission

(1) There shall be a Judicial Service Commission consisting of the Chief Justice, a Judge appointed by the President, the Attorney-General and two members of the legal profession nominated in accordance with the provisions of an Act of Parliament by the professional organisation or organisations representing the interests of the legal profession in Namibia

(2) The Judicial Service Commission shall perform such functions as are prescribed for it by this Constitution or any other law

(3) The Judicial Service Commission shall be entitled to make such rules and regulations for the purposes of regulating its procedures and functions as are not inconsistent with this Constitution or any other law

(4) Any casual vacancy in the Judicial Service Commission may be filled by the Chief Justice or in his or her absence by the Judge appointed by the President

86. The Attorney-General

There shall be an Attorney-General appointed by the President in accordance with the provisions of Article 32(3)(i)(cc)

87. Powers and Functions of the Attorney-General

The powers and functions of the Attorney-General shall be

- a) to exercise the final responsibility for the office of the Prosecutor-General,
- b) to be in principal legal adviser to the President and Government
- c) to take all action necessary for the protection and upholding of the Constitution,
- d) to perform all such functions and duties as may be assigned to the Attorney-General by Act of Parliament

88. The Prosecutor-General

(1) There shall be a Prosecutor-General appointed by the President on the recommendation of the Judicial Service Commission. No person shall be eligible for appointment as Prosecutor-General unless such person

- a) possesses legal qualifications that would entitle him or her to practice in all the courts of Namibia,
- b) is, by virtue of his or her experience, conscientiousness and integrity a fit and proper person to be entrusted with the responsibilities of the office of Prosecutor-General

(2) The powers and functions of the Prosecutor-General shall be.

- c) to perform all functions relating to the exercise of such powers,
- d) to delegate to other officials, subject to his or her control and direction, authority to conduct criminal proceedings in any court,
- e) to perform all such other functions as may be assigned to him or her in terms of any other law

CHAPTER X*THE OMBUDSMAN*89 Establishment and Independence

(1) There shall be an Ombudsman, who shall have the powers and functions set out in this Constitution

(2) The Ombudsman shall be independent and subject only to this Constitution and the law

(3) No member of the Cabinet or the Legislature or any other person shall interfere with the Ombudsman in the exercise of his or her functions and all organs of the State shall accord such assistance as may be needed for the protection of the independence, dignity and effectiveness of the Ombudsman

(4) The Ombudsman shall either be a Judge of Namibia, or a person possessing the legal qualifications which would entitle him or her to practice in all the courts of Namibia

90. Appointment and Term of Office

(1) The Ombudsman shall be appointed by Proclamation by the President on the recommendation of the Judicial Service Commission

(2) The Ombudsman shall hold office until the age of sixty-five but the President may extend the retiring age of any Ombudsman to seventy

91. Functions

The functions of the Ombudsman shall be defined and prescribed by an Act of Parliament and shall include the following

a) the duty to investigate complaints concerning alleged or apparent instances of violations of fundamental rights and freedoms, abuse of power, unfair, harsh, insensitive or discourteous treatment of an inhabitant of Namibia by an official in the employ of any organ of Government (whether central or local), manifest injustice, or corruption or conduct by such official which would properly be regarded as unlawful, oppressive or unfair in a democratic society,

b) the duty to investigate complaints concerning the functioning of the Public Service Commission, administrative organs of the State, the defence force, the police force and the prison service in so far as such complaints relate to the failure to achieve a balanced structuring of such services or equal access by all to the recruitment of such services or fair administration in relation to such services,

c) the duty to investigate complaints concerning the over- utilization of living natural resources, the irrational exploitation of non-renewable resources, the degradation and destruction of ecosystems and failure to protect the beauty and character of Namibia,

d) the duty to investigate complaints concerning practices and actions by persons, enterprises and other private institutions where such complaints allege that violations of fundamental rights and freedoms under this Constitution have taken place,

e) the duty and power to take appropriate action to call for the remedying, correction and reversal of instances specified in the preceding Paragraphs through such means as are fair, proper and effective, including

(aa) negotiation and compromise between the parties concerned,

(bb) causing the complaint and his or her finding thereon to be reported to the superior of an offending person,

(cc) referring the matter to the Prosecutor-General,

(dd) bringing proceedings in a competent court for an interdict or some other suitable remedy to secure the termination of the offending action or conduct, or the abandonment or alteration of the offending procedures,

(ee) bringing proceedings to interdict the enforcement of such legislation or regulation by challenging its validity if the offending action or conduct is sought to be justified by subordinate legislation or regulation which is grossly unreasonable or otherwise ultra vires,

(ff) reviewing such laws as were in operation before the date of Independence in order to ascertain whether they violate the letter or the spirit of this Constitution and to make consequential recommendations to the President, the Cabinet or the Attorney-General for appropriate action following thereupon,

f) the duty to investigate vigorously all instances or alleged or suspected corruption and the misappropriation of public monies by officials and to take appropriate steps, including reports to the Prosecutor-General and the Auditor-General pursuant thereto,

g) the duty to report annually to the National Assembly on the exercise of his or her powers and functions

92. Powers of Investigation

The powers of the Ombudsman shall be defined by Act of Parliament and shall include the power

a) to issue subpoenas requiring the attendance of any person before the Ombudsman and the production of any document or record relevant to any investigation by the Ombudsman,

b) to cause any person contemptuous of any such subpoena to be prosecuted before a competent court,

c) to question any person,

d) to require any person to co-operate with the Ombudsman and to disclose truthfully and frankly any information within his or her knowledge relevant to any investigation of the Ombudsman

93 Meaning of "Official"

For the purposes of this chapter the word "official" shall, unless the context otherwise indicate, include any elected or appointed official or employee of any organ of the central or local Government, any official of a para-statal enterprise owned or managed or controlled by the State, or in which the State or the Government has substantial interest, or any officer of the defence force, the police force or the prison service, but shall not include a Judge of the Supreme Court or the High Court or, in so far as a complaint concerns the performance of a judicial function, any other judicial officer

94 Removal from Office

(1) The Ombudsman may be removed from office before the expiry of his or her term of office by the President acting on the recommendation of the Judicial Service Commission

(2) The Ombudsman may only be removed from office on the ground of mental incapacity or for gross misconduct, and in accordance with the provisions of paragraph (3)

(3) The Judicial Service Commission shall investigate whether or not the Ombudsman shall be removed from office on the grounds referred to in paragraph (2) and, if it decides that the Ombudsman shall be removed, it shall inform the President of its recommendation

(4) While investigations are being carried out into the necessity of the removal of the Ombudsman in terms of this Article, the President may, on the recommendation of the Judicial Service Commission and, pending the outcome of such investigations and recommendation, suspend the Ombudsman from office

PRINCIPLES OF STATE POLICY

95. Promotion of the Welfare of the People

The State shall actively promote and maintain the welfare of the people by adopting, inter alia, policies aimed at the following

a) enactment of legislation to ensure equality of opportunity for women, to enable them to participate fully in all spheres of Namibian society, in particular, the Government shall ensure the implementation of the principle of non-discrimination in remuneration of men and women, further, the Government shall seek, through appropriate legislation, to provide maternity and related benefits for women,

b) enactment of legislation to ensure that the health and strength of the workers, men and women, and the tender age of children are not abused and that citizens are not forced by economic necessity to enter vocations unsuited to their age and strength,

c) active encouragement of the formation of independent trade unions to protect workers' rights and interests, and to promote sound labour relations and fair employment practices,

d) membership of the International Labour Organisation (ILO) and, where possible, adherence to and action in accordance with the international Conventions and Recommendations of the ILO,

e) insurance that every citizen has a right to fair and reasonable access to public facilities and services in accordance with the law,

f) insurance that senior citizens are entitled to and do receive a regular pension adequate for the maintenance of a decent standard of living and the enjoyment of social and cultural opportunities,

g) enactment of legislation to ensure that the unemployed, the incapacitated, the indigent and the disadvantaged are accorded such social benefits and amenities as are determined by Parliament to be just and affordable with due regard to the resources of the State,

h) a legal system seeking to promote justice on the basis of equal opportunity by providing free legal aid in defined cases with due regard to the resources of the State,

i) insurance that workers are paid a living wage adequate for the maintenance of a decent standard of living and the enjoyment of social and cultural opportunities,

j) consistent planning to raise and maintain an acceptable level of nutrition and standard of living of the Namibian people and to improve public health,

k) encouragement of the mass of the population through education and other activities and through their organisations to influence Government policy by debating its decisions,

l) maintenance of ecosystems, essential ecological processes and biological diversity of Namibia and utilization of living natural resources on a sustainable basis for the benefit of all Namibians, both present and future, in particular, the Government shall provide measures against the dumping or recycling of foreign nuclear and toxic waste on Namibian territory

96 Foreign Relations

The State shall endeavour to ensure that in its international relations it

100. Sovereign Ownership of Natural Resources

Land, water and natural resources below and above the surface of the land and in the continental shelf and within the territorial waters and the exclusive economic zone of Namibia shall belong to the State if they are not otherwise lawfully owned

101. Application of the Principles contained in this Chapter

The principles of state policy contained in this Chapter shall not of and by themselves be legally enforceable by any court, but shall nevertheless guide the Government in making and applying laws to give effect to the fundamental objectives of the said principles. The courts are entitled to have regard to the said principles in interpreting any laws based on them

REGIONAL AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

102. Structures of Regional and Local Government

(1) For purpose of regional and local government, Namibia shall be divided into regional and local units, which shall consist of such region and local authorities as may be determined and defined by Act of Parliament

(2) The delineation of the boundaries of the regions and local authorities referred to in paragraph (1) shall be geographical only, without any reference to the race, colour or ethnic origin of the inhabitants of such areas

(3) Every organ of regional and local government shall have a Council as the principal governing body, freely elected in accordance with this Constitution and the Act of Parliament referred to in paragraph (1), with an executive and administration which shall carry out all lawful resolutions and policies of such Council, subject to this Constitution and any other relevant laws

(4) For the purposes of this Chapter, a local authority shall include all municipalities, communities, village councils and other organs of local government defined and constituted by Act of Parliament

(5) There shall be a Council of Traditional Leaders to be established in terms of an Act of Parliament in order to advise the President on the control and utilization of communal land and on all such other matters as may be referred to it by the President for advice

103. Establishment of Regional Councils

(1) the boundaries of regions shall be determined by a Delimitation Commission in accordance with the principles set out in Article 102 (2)

(2) The boundaries of regions may be changed from time to time and new regions may be created from time to time, but only in accordance with the recommendation of the Delimitation Commission

(3) A Regional Council shall be established for every region the boundaries of which have been determined in accordance with paragraphs (1) and (2).

104. The Delimitation Commission

(1) The Delimitation Commission shall consist of a Chairperson who shall be a Judge of the Supreme Court or the High Court, and two other persons to be appointed by the President with the approval of Parliament

(2) The Delimitation Commission shall discharge its duties in accordance with the provisions of an Act of Parliament and this Constitution, and shall report thereon to the President

105 Composition of Regional Councils

Every Regional Council shall consist of a number of persons determined by the Delimitation Commission for the particular region for which that Regional Council has been established, and who are qualified to be elected to the National Council

106 Regional Council Elections

(1) Each region shall be divided into constituencies the boundaries of which shall be fixed by the Delimitation Commission in accordance with the provisions of an Act of Parliament and this Constitution, provided that there shall be no fewer than six and no more than twelve constituencies in each region

(2) Each constituency shall elect one member to the Regional Council for the region in which it is situated

(3) The elections shall be by secret ballot to be conducted in accordance with the provisions of an Act of Parliament, and the candidate receiving the most votes in any constituency shall be the elected member of the Regional Council for that constituency

(4) All Regional Council elections for the various regions of Namibia shall be held on the same day

(5) The date for Regional Council elections shall be determined by the President by Proclamation in the Gazette

107. Remuneration of Members of Regional Councils

The remuneration and allowances to be paid to members of Regional Councils shall be determined by Act of Parliament.

108 Powers of Regional Councils

Regional Councils shall have the following powers.

CHAPTER XVIII*COMING INTO FORCE OF THE CONSTITUTION*130. Coming into Force of the Constitution

This Constitution as adopted by the Constituent Assembly shall come into force on the date of Independence

CHAPTER XIX*AMENDMENT OF THE CONSTITUTION*131. Entrenchment of Fundamental Rights and Freedoms

No repeal or amendment of any of the provisions of Chapter 3, in so far as such repeal or amendment diminishes or detracts from the fundamental rights and freedoms contained and defined in that Chapter, shall be permissible under this Constitution, and no such purported repeal or amendment shall be valid or have any force or effect

132 Repeal and Amendment of the Constitution

(1) Any Bill seeking to repeal or amend any provision of this Constitution shall indicate the proposed repeals and/or amendments with reference to the specific articles sought to be repealed and/or amended and shall not deal with any matter other than the proposed repeals or amendments

(2) The majorities required in Parliament for the repeal and/or amendment of any of the provisions of this Constitution shall be

a) two-thirds of all the members of the National Assembly, and

b) two-thirds of all the members of the National Council

(3)(a) Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraph (2), if a Bill proposing a repeal and/or amendment of any of the provisions of this Constitution secures a majority of two-thirds of all the members of the National Assembly, but fails to secure a majority of two-thirds of all the members of the National Council, the President may by Proclamation make the Bill containing the proposed repeals and/or amendments the subject of a national referendum

(b) The national referendum referred to in paragraph (a) shall be conducted in accordance with procedures prescribed for the holding of referenda by Act of Parliament.

(c) If upon the holding of such a referendum the Bill containing the proposed repeals and/or amendments is approved by a two-thirds majority of all the votes cast in the referendum, the Bill shall be deemed to have been passed in accordance with the provisions of this Constitution, and the President shall deal it in terms of Article 56

(4) No repeal or amendment of this paragraph or paragraphs (2) or (3) in so far as it seeks to diminish or detract from the majorities required in Parliament or in a referendum shall be permissible under this Constitution, and no such purported repeal or amendment shall be valid or have any force or effect.

(5) Nothing contained in this Article.

a) shall detract in any way from the entrenchment provided for in Article 131 of the fundamental rights and freedoms contained and defined in Chapter 3,

b) shall prevent Parliament from changing its own composition or structures by amending or repealing any of the provisions of this Constitution provided always that such repeals or amendments are effected in accordance with the provisions of this Constitution

CHAPTER XX

THE LAW IN FORCE AND TRANSITIONAL PROVISIONS

133. The First National Assembly

Notwithstanding the provisions of Article 46, the Constituent Assembly shall be deemed to have been elected under Articles 46 and 49, and shall constitute the first National Assembly of Namibia and its term of office and that of the President shall be deemed to have begun from the date of Independence

134. Election of the First President

(1) Notwithstanding the provisions of Article 28, the first President of Namibia shall be the person elected to that office by the Constituent Assembly by a simple majority of all its members

(2) The first President of Namibia shall be deemed to have been elected under Article 28 and upon assuming office shall have all the powers, functions, duties and immunities of a President elected under that Article

135. Implementation of this Constitution

This Constitution shall be implemented in accordance with the provisions of Schedule 7

136. Powers of the National Assembly prior to the Election of a National Council

(1) Until elections for a National Council have been held

a) all legislation shall be enacted by the National Assembly as if this Constitution had not made provision for a National Council, and Parliament had consisted exclusively of the National Assembly acting on its own without being subject to the review of the National Council,

b) this Constitution shall be construed as if no functions had been vested by this Constitution in the National Council,

c) any reference in Article 29, 56, 75 and 132 to the National Council shall be ignored provided that nothing contained in this paragraph shall be construed as limiting in any way the generality of paragraphs (a) and (b)

(2) Nothing contained in paragraph (1) shall detract in any way from the provisions of Chapter 8 or any other provision of this Constitution in so far as they make provision for the establishment of a National Council, elections to the National Council and its functioning after such elections have been held.

137. Elections of the First Regional Councils and the First National Council

(1) The President shall by Proclamation establish the first Delimitation Commission which shall be constituted in accordance with the provisions of Article 104 (1), within six months of the date of Independence

(2) Such Proclamation shall provide for those matters which are referred to in Articles 102 to 106, shall not be inconsistent with this Constitution and shall require the Delimitation Commission to determine boundaries of regions and local authorities for the purpose of holding local authority and Regional Council elections

(3) The Delimitation Commission appointed under such Proclamation shall forthwith commence its work, and shall report to the President within nine months of its appointment provided that the National Assembly may by resolution and for good cause extend the period within which such report shall be made

(4) Upon receipt of the report of the Delimitation Commission the President shall as soon as reasonably possible thereafter establish by Proclamation the boundaries of regions and Local Authorities in accordance with the terms of the report

(5) Elections for Local Authorities in terms of Article 111 shall be held on a date to be fixed by the President by Proclamation, which shall be a date within six months of the Proclamation referred to in paragraph (4), or within six months of the date on which the legislation referred to in Article 111 has been enacted, whichever is the later provided that the National Assembly may by resolution and for good cause extend the period within which such elections shall be held

(6) Elections for Regional Councils shall be held on a date to be fixed by the President by Proclamation, which shall be a date within one month of the date of the elections referred to in paragraph (5), or within one month of the date on which the legislation referred to in Article 106 (3) has been enacted, whichever is the later, provided that the National Assembly may by resolution and for good cause extend the period within which such elections shall be held

(7) Elections for the first National Council shall be held on a date to be fixed by the President by Proclamation, which shall be a date within one month of the date of the elections referred to in paragraph (6), or within one month of the date on which the legislation referred to in Article 69 (2) has been enacted, whichever is the later, provided that the National Assembly may by resolution and for good cause extend the period within which such elections shall be held

138. Courts and Pending Actions

(1) The Judge-President and other Judges of the Supreme Court of South-West Africa holding office at the date on which this Constitution is adopted by the Constituent Assembly shall be deemed to have been appointed as the Judge-President and Judges of the High Court of Namibia under Article 82 on the date of Independence, and upon making the oath or affirmation of office in the terms set out in Schedule 1, shall become the first Judge-President and Judges of the High Court of Namibia provided that if the Judge-President or any such Judges are sixty-five years of age or older on such date, it shall be deemed that their appointments have been extended until the age of seventy in terms of Article 82 (4)

(2)(a) The laws in force immediately prior to the date of Independence governing the jurisdiction of courts within Namibia, the right of audience before such courts, the manner in which procedure in such courts shall be conducted and the power and authority of the Judges, Magistrates and other judicial officers, shall remain in force until repealed or amended by Act of Parliament, and all proceedings pending in such courts at the date of Independence shall be continued as if such courts had been duly constituted as courts of the Republic of Namibia when the proceedings were instituted

(b) Any appeal noted to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of South Africa against any judgment or order of the Supreme Court of South-West Africa shall be deemed to have been noted to the Supreme Court of Namibia and shall be prosecuted before such Court as if that judgment or order appealed against had been made by the High Court of Namibia and the appeal had been noted to the Supreme Court of Namibia

(c) All criminal prosecutions initiated in courts within Namibia prior to the date of Independence shall be continued as if such prosecutions had been initiated after the date of Independence in courts of the Republic of Namibia

(d) All crimes committed in Namibia prior to the date of Independence which would be crimes according to the law of the Republic of Namibia if it had then existed, shall be deemed to constitute crimes according to the law of the Republic of Namibia, and to be punishable as such in and by the Courts of the Republic of Namibia

(3) Pending the enactment of the legislation contemplated by Article 79

a) the Supreme Court shall have the same jurisdiction to hear and determine appeals from courts in Namibia as was previously vested in the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of South Africa,

b) the Supreme Court shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine matters referred to it for a decision by the Attorney-General under this Constitution,

c) all persons having the right of audience before the High Court shall have the right of audience the Supreme Court,

d) three Judges shall constitute a quorum of the Supreme Court when it hears appeals or deals with matters under paragraphs (a) and (b) provided that if any such Judge dies or becomes unable to act after the hearing of the appeal or such matter has commenced, but prior to judgement, the law applicable in such circumstances to the death or inability of a Judge of the High Court shall apply mutatis mutandis,

e) until rules of the Supreme Court are made by the Chief Justice for the noting and prosecution of appeals and all matters incidental thereto, the rules which regulated appeals from the Supreme Court of South-West Africa to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of South Africa, and were in force immediately prior to the date of Independence, shall apply mutatis mutandis

139. The Judicial Service Commission

(1) Pending the enactment of legislation as contemplated by Article 85 and the appointment of a Judicial Service Commission thereunder, the Judicial Service Commission shall be appointed by the President by Proclamation and shall consist of the Chief Justice, a Judge appointed by the President, the Attorney-General, an advocate nominated by the Bar Council of Namibia and an attorney nominated by the Council of the Law Society of South-West Africa provided that until the first Chief Justice has been appointed, the President shall appoint a second Judge to be a member of the Judicial Service Commission who shall hold office thereon until the Chief Justice has been appointed. The Judicial Service Commission shall elect from amongst its members as its first meeting the person to preside at its meetings until the Chief Justice has been appointed. The first task of the Judicial Service Commission shall be to make a recommendation to the President with regard to the appointment of the first Chief Justice

(2) Save as aforesaid the provisions of Article 85 shall apply to the functioning of the Judicial Service Commission appointed under paragraph (1), which shall have all the powers vested in the Judicial Service Commission by this Constitution

140. The Law in Force at the Date of Independence

(1) Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, all laws which were in force immediately before the date of Independence shall remain in force until repealed or amended by Act of Parliament or until they are declared unconstitutional by a competent court

(2) Any powers vested by such laws in the Government, or in a Minister or other official of the Republic of South Africa shall be deemed to vest in the Government of the Republic of Namibia or in a corresponding Minister or official of the Government of the Republic of Namibia, and all powers, duties and functions which so vested in the Government Service Commission shall vest in the Public Service Commission referred to in Article 112

(3) Anything done under such laws prior to the date of Independence by the Government, or by a Minister or other official of the Republic of South Africa shall be deemed to have been done by the Government of the Republic of Namibia or by a corresponding Minister or official of the Government of the Republic of Namibia, unless such action is subsequently repudiated by an Act of Parliament, and anything so done by the Government Service Commission shall be deemed to have been done by the Public Service Commission referred to in Article 112, unless it is determined otherwise by an Act of Parliament

(4) Any reference in such laws to the President, the Government a Minister or other official or institution in the Republic of South Africa shall be deemed to be a reference to the President of Namibia or to a corresponding Minister, official or institution in the Republic of Namibia and any reference to the Government Service Commission or the Government Service, shall be construed as a reference to the Public Service Commission referred to in Article 112 or the Public Service of Namibia

(5) For the purpose of this article the Government of the Republic of South Africa shall be deemed to include the Administration of the Administrator-General appointed by the Government of South Africa to administer Namibia, and any reference to the Administrator-General in legislation enacted by such Administration shall be deemed to be a reference to the President of Namibia, and any reference to a Minister or official of such administration shall be deemed to be a reference to a corresponding Minister or official of the Government of the Republic of Namibia

141. Existing Appointments

(1) Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, any person holding office under any law in force on the date of Independence shall continue to hold such office unless and until he or she resigns or is retired, transferred or removed from office in accordance with law

(2) Any reference to the Attorney-General in legislation in force immediately prior to the date of Independence shall be deemed to be a reference to the Prosecutor-General, who shall exercise his or her functions in accordance with this Constitution

142. Appointment of the First Officers of Defence Force, Police, and Prisons

The President shall, in consultation with the leaders of all political parties represented in the National Assembly, appoint by Proclamation the first Chief of the Defence Force, the first Inspector-General of Police and the first Commissioner of Prisons

143. Existing International Agreements

All existing international agreements binding upon Namibia shall remain in force, unless and until the National Assembly acting under Article 63 (2)(d) otherwise decides

CONSTITUTION OF KINGDOM OF NEPAL

{Adopted by Act No. 2047, issued 1990}

PREAMBLE

Whereas, We are convinced that the source of sovereign authority of the independent and sovereign Nepal is inherent in the people, and, therefore, We have, from time to time, made known our desire to conduct the Government of the country in consonance with the popular will, and

Whereas, in keeping with the desire of the Nepalese people expressed through the recent people's movement to bring about constitutional changes, we are further inspired by the objective of securing to the Nepalese people social, political and economic justice long into the future, and

Whereas, it is expedient to promulgate and enforce this Constitution, made with the widest possible participation of the Nepalese people, to guarantee basic human rights to every citizen of Nepal, and also to consolidate Adult Franchise, the Parliamentary System of Government, Constitutional Monarchy and the System of Multi Party Democracy by promoting amongst the people of Nepal the spirit of fraternity and the bond of unity on the basis of liberty and equality, and also to establish an independent and competent system of justice with a view to transforming the concept of the Rule of Law into a living reality

Now, Therefore, keeping in view the desire of the people that the State authority and sovereign powers shall, after the commencement of this Constitution, be exercised in accordance with the provisions of this

Constitution, I, King Birendra Bir Bikram Shah Deva, by virtue of the Stat authority as exercised by Us, do hereby promulgate and enforce this Constitution of the Kingdom of Nepal on the recommendation and advice and with the consent of the Council of Ministers

87. Appointment, Qualifications and Conditions of Service of Judges of the Supreme Court

(1) His Majesty shall appoint the Chief Justice of Nepal on the recommendation of the Constitutional Council, and other Judges of the Supreme Court on the recommendation of the Judicial Council. The tenure of office of the Chief Justice shall be seven years from the date of appointment.

(2) Any person who has worked as a Judge of the Supreme Court for at least five years is eligible for appointment as Chief Justice.

(3) Any person who has worked as a Judge of an Appellate Court or in any equivalent post of the Judicial Service for at least ten years, or has practised law for at least fifteen years as a law graduate advocate or senior advocate, or who is a distinguished jurist who has worked for at least fifteen years in the judicial or legal field is eligible for appointment as a Judge of the Supreme Court.

Explanation—For the purpose of this clause, services rendered prior to the commencement of this Constitution as a Judge of a Regional Court or Zonal Court shall be deemed as service rendered in an Appellate Court.

(4) If the office of the Chief Justice becomes vacant, or the Chief Justice is unable to carry out the duties of his office due to illness or any other reason, or he cannot be present in office due to a leave of absence or his being outside of Nepal, His Majesty may designate the seniormost Judge to act as the Acting Chief Justice

(5) The Chief Justice or any other Judge of the Supreme Court shall hold office until he attains the age of sixty five years

(6) The Chief Justice or any other Judge of the Supreme Court may, by submitting to His Majesty his resignation in writing, resign his office at any time

(7) The Chief Justice or any other Judge of the Supreme Court shall be removed from his office if, for reasons of incompetence, misbehaviour or failure to discharge the duties of his office in good faith, the House of Representatives, by a two-thirds majority of the total number of its members, passes a resolution for his removal and the resolution is approved by His Majesty

(8) The Chief Justice or any other Judge of the Supreme Court charged pursuant to clause (7) shall be given a reasonable opportunity to defend himself, and for this purpose, the House of Representatives may constitute a Committee of Inquiry consisting of its members and legal experts for the purposes of recording the statement of the Judge, collecting evidence and submitting its findings. The working procedure of the Committee shall be determined by law

(9) The Chief Justice or the Judge of the Supreme Court against whom impeachment proceedings are being initiated pursuant to clause (7) shall not perform his duties until the proceedings are final

(10) Except as otherwise provided for in this Constitution, the remuneration, allowances, leave, pension, gratuities and other conditions of service of the Chief Justice and other Judges of the Supreme Court shall be regulated by law

(11) The remuneration, privileges and other conditions of service of Chief Justice and other Judges of the Supreme Court shall not be altered to their disadvantage

(12) Any person once who has once held the office of Chief Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court shall not be eligible for appointment in any Government Service, nor shall he be entitled to practice law before any office or court

Provided that nothing in this clause shall be deemed to be a bar to his appointment to a political position, to a position concerning judiciary inquiry or to a position in which his responsibility extends to giving his advice, opinions and recommendations on the basis of study, research and investigation in the field of justice or law

(13) The Chief Justice may, on the recommendation of the Judicial Council, appoint a retired Judge of the Supreme Court or any person who is qualified to be appointed Judge of the Supreme Court pursuant to this Article, as an ad hoc Judge for a fixed term. The ad hoc Judge thus appointed shall, in carrying out his duties in the capacity of Judge, be entitled to remuneration, allowances, leave and transportation facilities similar to that of a Judge of the Supreme Court:

Provided that the Chief Justice shall obtain prior approval from His Majesty before making an appointment under this clause

88. Jurisdiction of the Supreme Court

(1) Any Nepali citizen may file a petition in the Supreme Court to have any law or any part thereof declared void on the ground of inconsistency with this Constitution because it imposes an unreasonable restriction on the enjoyment of the fundamental rights conferred by this Constitution or on any other ground, and extraordinary power shall rest with the Supreme Court to declare that law as void either ab initio or from the date of its decision if it appears that the law in question is inconsistent with the Constitution

(2) The Supreme Court shall, for the enforcement of the fundamental rights conferred by this Constitution, for the enforcement of any other legal right for which no other remedy has been provided or for which the remedy even though provided appears to be inadequate or ineffective, or for the settlement of any constitutional or legal question involved in any dispute of public interest or concern, have the extraordinary power to issue necessary and appropriate orders to enforce such rights or to settle the dispute. For these purposes the Supreme Court may with a view to imparting full justice and providing the appropriate remedy, issue appropriate orders and writs including habeas corpus, mandamus, certiorari, Prohibition and quo warranto.

Provided that—

(a) the Supreme Court shall not be deemed to have power under this clause to interfere with the proceedings and decisions of the Military Court except on the ground of absence of jurisdiction or on the ground that a proceeding has been initiated against, or punishment given to a non-military person for an act other than an offence relating to the Army

CHAPTER 2 GOVERNMENT

Section 1—The King

24. The title to the Throne shall be hereditary and shall vest in the legitimate descendants of King William I, Prince of Orange-Nassau.

25. On the death of the King, the title to the Throne shall pass by hereditary succession to the King's legitimate descendants in order of seniority, the same rule governing succession by the issue of descendants who predecease the King. If the King has no descendants, the title to the Throne shall pass in the same way to the legitimate descendants of the King's parent and then of his grandparent who are in the line of succession but are not further removed from the deceased King than the third degree of consanguinity.

26. For the purposes of hereditary succession, the child of a woman pregnant at the moment of the death of the King shall be deemed already born. If it is stillborn it shall be deemed to have never existed.

27. Hereditary succession to the Throne in the event of abdication shall take place according to the rules set out in the above. Children born after an abdication and their descendants shall be excluded from the hereditary succession.

28. (1) The King shall be deemed to have abdicated if he contracts a marriage without having obtained approval by Act of Parliament

(2) Anyone in line of succession to the Throne who contracts such a marriage shall be excluded from the hereditary succession, together with any children born of the marriage and their issue

(3) The two Chambers of the Parliament shall meet to consider and decide upon a Bill for granting such approval in joint session

29 (1) One or more persons may be excluded from the hereditary succession by Act of Parliament if exceptional circumstances necessitate

(2) The Bill for this purpose shall be presented by or on behalf of the King The two Chambers of the Parliament shall consider and decide upon the matter in joint session Such a Bill shall be passed only if at least two-thirds of the votes cast are in favour

30. (1) A successor to the Throne may be appointed by Act of Parliament if it appears that there will otherwise be no successor The Bill shall be presented by or on behalf of the King, upon which the Chambers shall be dissolved The newly convened Chambers shall discuss and decide upon the matter in joint session Such a Bill shall be passed only if at least two-thirds of the votes cast are in favour

(2) The Chambers shall be dissolved if there is no successor on the death or abdication of the King The newly convened Chambers shall meet in joint session within four months of the decease or abdication in order to decide on the appointment of a King They may appoint a successor only if at least two-thirds of the votes cast are in favour

31. (1) An appointed King may be succeeded only by his legitimate descendants by virtue of hereditary succession

(2) The provisions on hereditary succession and the first paragraph of this shall apply by analogy to an appointed successor who has not yet become King

32 Upon assuming the royal prerogative the King shall be sworn in and inaugurated as soon as possible in the capital city, Amsterdam, at a public and joint session of the two Chambers of the Parliament The King shall swear or promise allegiance to the Constitution and that he will faithfully discharge his duties Specific rules shall be laid down by Act of Parliament

33. The King shall not exercise the royal prerogative before attaining the age of eighteen

34 The guardianship of a King who is a minor shall be regulated by Act of Parliament The two Chambers of the Parliament shall meet in joint session to consider and decide upon the matter

35. (1) If the Council of Ministers is of the opinion that the King is unable to exercise the royal prerogative it shall inform the two Chambers of the Parliament accordingly and shall also present to them the recommendation it has received from the Council of State The two Chambers of the Parliament shall then meet in joint session

(2) If the two Chambers of the Parliament share this opinion, they shall then resolve that the King is unable to exercise the royal prerogative. This resolution shall be made public on the instructions of the President of the joint session and shall enter into force immediately.

(3) As soon as the King regains the ability to exercise the royal prerogative, notice of the fact shall be given in an Act of Parliament. The two Chambers of the Parliament shall consider and decide upon the matter in joint session. The King shall resume the exercise of the royal prerogative as soon as the Act has been made public.

(4) If it has been resolved that the King is unable to exercise the royal prerogative, guardianship over his person shall, if necessary, be regulated by Act of Parliament. The two Chambers of the Parliament shall consider and decide upon the matter in joint session.

36. The King may temporarily relinquish the exercise of the royal prerogative and resume the exercise thereof pursuant to Act of Parliament. The relevant Bill shall be presented by or on behalf of the King. The two Chambers of the Parliament shall consider and decide upon the matter in joint session.

37. (1) The royal prerogative shall be exercised by a Regent

(a) until the King has attained the age of eighteen,

(b) if the title to the Throne may vest in an unborn child,

(c) if it has been resolved that the King is unable to exercise the royal prerogative,

(d) if the King has temporarily relinquished the exercise of the royal prerogative,

(e) in the absence of a successor following the death or abdication of the King.

(2) The Regent shall be appointed by Act of Parliament. The two Chambers of the Parliament shall consider and decide upon the matter in joint session.

(3) In the cases specified in paragraph (1) (c) and (d) above, the descendant of the King who is the heir presumptive shall become Regent by right if he has attained the age of eighteen.

(4) The Regent shall swear or promise allegiance to the Constitution and that he will faithfully discharge his duties before the two Chambers of Parliament meeting in joint session. Rules regarding the office of Regent shall be made by Act of Parliament, which may contain provisions for succession and replacement. The two Chambers of the Parliament shall consider and decide upon the matter in joint session.

(5) s 35 and 36 shall apply by analogy to the Regent.

38. The royal prerogative shall be exercised by the Council of State until such time as alternative provision is made for the exercise of such power.

39. Membership of the Royal House shall be regulated by Act of Parliament.

40. (1) The King shall receive annual payments from the State according to rules to be laid down by Act of Parliament. The Act shall also specify which other members of the Royal House shall receive payments from the State and shall regulate the payments themselves.

(2) The payments received by them from the State, together with such assets as are of assistance to them in the exercise of their duties, shall be exempt from personal taxation. In addition, anything received by the King or his heir presumptive from a member of the Royal House by inheritance or as a gift shall be exempt from inheritance tax, transfer tax, or gifts tax. Additional exemption from taxation may be granted by Act of Parliament.

(3) Bills containing legislation as referred to in the previous paragraphs may be passed by the Parliament only if at least two-thirds of the votes cast are in favour.

41. The King shall organize his Household, taking due account of the public interest.

Section 2—The King and the Ministers

42. (1) The Government shall comprise the King and the Ministers.

(2) The Ministers, and not the King, shall be responsible for acts of Government.

43. The Prime Minister and the other Ministers shall be appointed and dismissed by Royal Decree.

44. (1) Ministries shall be established by Royal Decree. They shall be headed by a Minister.

(2) Non-departmental Ministers may also be appointed.

45. (1) The Ministers shall together constitute the Council of Ministers.

(2) The Prime Minister shall be the Chairman of the Council of Ministers.

(3) The Council of Ministers shall consider and decide upon overall Government policy and shall promote the coherence thereof.

46. (1) State Secretaries may be appointed and dismissed by Royal Decree.

(2) A State Secretary shall act with ministerial authority in place of the Minister in cases in which the Minister considers it necessary; the State Secretary shall observe the Minister's instructions in such cases. Responsibility shall rest with the State Secretary without prejudice to the responsibility of the Minister.

47. All Acts of Parliament and Royal Decrees shall be signed by the King and by one or more Ministers or State Secretaries.

48. The Royal Decree appointing the Prime Minister shall be countersigned by the latter. Royal Decrees appointing or dismissing Ministers and State Secretaries shall be countersigned by the Prime Minister.

49. Upon accepting office Ministers and State Secretaries shall swear an oath or make an affirmation and promise in the presence of the King, in the manner prescribed by Act of Parliament, that they have not done anything which may legally debar them from holding office, and shall also swear or promise allegiance to the Constitution and that they will faithfully discharge their duties

CHAPTER 3 PARLIAMENT

(3) The Chamber, or the two Chambers meeting in joint session, shall then decide whether the deliberations are to continue and the decisions to be taken in camera

67. (1) The two Chambers may deliberate or take decisions, either separately or in joint session, only if more than half of the members are present

(2) Decisions shall be taken by majority

(3) The members shall not be bound by a mandate or instructions when casting their votes

(4) Voting on items of business not relating to individuals shall be oral and by roll call if requested by one member

68. Ministers and State Secretaries shall provide orally or in writing the Chambers either separately or in joint session, with any information requested by one or more members, provided that the provision of such information does not conflict with the interests of the State

69. (1) Ministers and State Secretaries shall have the right to attend sittings of the Parliament and may take part in the deliberations

(2) They may be invited to be present at sittings of the Chambers of the Parliament meeting either separately or in joint session

(3) They may be assisted at the sittings by persons nominated by them

70. The two Chambers shall jointly and separately have the right of inquiry to be regulated by Act of Parliament

71. Members of the Parliament, Ministers, State Secretaries, and other persons taking part in deliberations may not be prosecuted or otherwise held liable in law for anything they say during the sittings of the Parliament or of its committees or for anything they submit to them in writing

72. Each Chamber of the Parliament and the two Chambers in joint session shall draw up rules of procedure

CHAPTER 4*COUNCIL OF STATE, CHAMBER OF AUDIT, ADVISORY BODIES

73. (1) The Council of State or a section of the Council shall be consulted on Bills and draft general administrative orders as well as proposals for the approval of treaties by the Parliament. Such consultation may be dispensed with in cases to be laid down by Act of Parliament.

(2) The Council or a section of the Council shall be responsible for investigating administrative disputes where the decision has to be given by Royal Decree, and for advising on the ruling to be given in the said dispute.

(3) The Council or a section of the Council may be required by Act of Parliament to give decisions in administrative disputes.

74. (1) The King shall be President of the Council of State. The heir presumptive shall be legally entitled to have a seat on the Council on attaining the age of eighteen. Other members of the Royal House may be granted a seat on the Council by or in accordance with an Act of Parliament.

(2) The members of the Council shall be appointed for life by Royal Decree.

(3) They shall cease to be members of the Council on resignation or on attaining an age to be determined by Act of Parliament.

(4) They may be suspended or dismissed from membership by the Council in instances specified by Act of Parliament.

(5) Their legal status shall in other respects be regulated by Act of Parliament.

75. (1) The organization, composition and powers of the Council of State shall be regulated by Act of Parliament.

(2) Additional duties may be assigned to the Council or a section of the Council by Act of Parliament.

76. The General Chamber of Audit shall be responsible for examining the State's revenues and expenditures.

77. (1) The members of the General Chamber of Audit shall be appointed for life by Royal Decree from a list of three persons per vacancy drawn up by the Second Chamber of the Parliament.

(2) They shall cease to be members on resignation or on attaining an age to be determined by Act of Parliament.

(3) They may be suspended or dismissed from membership by the Supreme Court in cases to be laid down by Act of Parliament.

(4) Their legal status shall in other respects be regulated by Act of Parliament.

78. (1) The organization, composition and powers of the General Chamber of Audit shall be regulated by Act of Parliament.

(2) Additional duties may be assigned to the General Chamber of Audit by Act of Parliament.

79. (1) Permanent bodies to advise on matters relating to legislation and administration of the State shall be established by or pursuant to Act of Parliament.

(2) The organization, composition and powers of such bodies shall be regulated by Act of Parliament.

(3) Duties in addition to advisory ones may be assigned to such bodies by or pursuant to Act of Parliament

80. (1) The recommendations made by the bodies referred to in the present Chapter shall be made public according to rules to be laid down by Act of Parliament

(2) Other than in cases to be laid down by Act of Parliament, recommendations made in respect of Bills presented by or on behalf of the King shall be submitted to the Parliament.

Note—It incorporates all amendments up to and including the one of 23 July 1995 For easier comparative searches, the term 'Storting' has been replaced by 'Parliament', 'Lagting' by 'Permanent Chamber', 'Odelsting' by 'General Chamber', and 'Ting' by 'Chamber'

all the rights and obligations which pursuant to this Constitution and the Law of the Land are possessed by the King

4 Religion of the King

The King shall at all times profess the Evangelical-Lutheran religion, and uphold and protect the same

5. Immunity of the King

The King's person is sacred, he cannot be censured or accused. The responsibility rests with his Council

6. Succession

(1) The order of succession is lineal, so that only a child born in lawful wedlock of the Queen or King, or of one who is herself or himself entitled to the succession may succeed, and so that the nearest line shall take precedence over the more remote and the elder in the line over the younger

(2) An unborn child shall also be included among those entitled to the succession and shall immediately take her or his proper place in the line of succession as soon as she or he is born into the world

(3) The right of succession shall not, however, belong to any person who is not born in the direct line of descent from the last reigning Queen or King or a sister or brother thereof, or is herself or himself a sister or brother thereof

(4) When a Princess or Prince entitled to succeed to the Crown of Norway is born, her or his name and time of birth shall be notified to the first Parliament in session and be entered in the record of its proceedings

(5) For those born before the year 1971, 6 of the Constitution as it was passed on 18 November 1905 shall, however, apply. For those born before the year 1990 it shall nevertheless be the case that a male shall take precedence over a female

7. Successor

If there is no Princess or Prince entitled to the succession, the King may propose his successor to the Parliament (Storting), which has the right to make the choice if the King's proposal is not accepted

8. Majority Age of the King

(1) The age of majority of the King shall be laid down by law

(2) As soon as the King has attained the age prescribed by law, he shall make a public declaration that he is of age

9. Oath of the King

(1) As soon as the King, being of age, accedes to the Government, he shall take the following oath before the Parliament (Storting)

"I promise and swear that I will govern the Kingdom of Norway in accordance with its Constitution and Laws, so help me God the Almighty and Omnipotent"

(2) If the Parliament (Storting) is not in session at the time, the oath shall be made in writing in the Council of State and be repeated solemnly by the King at the first subsequent Parliament (Storting)

10. { .. }

11. Residence of the King

(1) The King shall reside in the Realm and may not, without the consent of the Parliament (Storting), remain outside the Realm for more than six months at a time, otherwise he shall have forfeited, for his person, the right to the Crown

(2) The King may not accept any other Crown or Government without the consent of the Parliament (Storting), for which two-thirds of the votes are required

12. Council of State

(1) The King himself chooses a Council from among Norwegian citizens who are entitled to vote. This Council shall consist of a Prime Minister and at least seven other members

(2) More than half the number of the members of the Council of State shall profess the official religion of the State

(3) The King apportions the business among the members of the Council of State, as he deems appropriate. Under extraordinary circumstances, besides the ordinary members of the Council of State, the King may summon other Norwegian citizens, although no members of the Parliament (Storting), to take a seat in the Council of State

(4) Husband and wife, parent and child or two siblings may never sit at the same time in the Council of State

13. Administration by the Council of State

(1) During his travels within the Realm, the King may delegate the administration of the Realm to the Council of State. The Council of State shall conduct the Government in the King's name and on his behalf. It shall scrupulously observe the provisions of this Constitution, as well as such particular directives in conformity therewith as the King may instruct

(2) The matters of business shall be decided by voting, where in the event of the votes being equal, the Prime Minister, or in his absence the highest-ranking member of the Council of State who is present, shall have two votes

(3) The Council of State shall make a report to the King on matters of business which it thus decides

14. State Secretaries

The King may appoint State Secretaries to assist members of the Council of State with their duties outside the Council of State. Each State Secretary shall act on behalf of the member of the Council of State to whom he is attached to the extent determined by that member

15 { .. }

16 Public Worship

The King ordains all public church services and public worship, all meetings and assemblies dealing with religious matters, and ensures that public teachers of religion follow the norms prescribed for them

17. Ordinances of the King

The King may issue and repeal Ordinances relating to commerce, customs tariffs, all economic sectors and the police, although these must not conflict with the Constitution or with the laws passed by the Parliament (Storting) (as hereinafter prescribed in s 77, 78 and 79) They shall remain in force provisionally until the next Parliament (Storting)

18 Collection of Taxes and Duties

As a general rule the King shall provide for the collection of the taxes and duties imposed by the Parliament (Storting)

19. Administration of State Property

The King shall ensure that the properties and prerogatives of the State are utilized and administered in the manner determined by the Parliament (Storting) and in the best interests of the general public

20. Right to Pardon

(1) The King shall have the right in the Council of State to pardon criminals after sentence has been passed. The criminal shall have the choice of accepting the King's pardon or submitting to the penalty imposed

(2) In proceedings which the General Chamber (Odelsting) causes to be brought before the Court of Impeachment, no pardon other than deliverance from the death penalty may be granted

21. Appointment of Officials

The King shall choose and appoint, after consultation with his Council of State, all senior civil, ecclesiastical and military officials. Before the appointment is made, such officials shall swear or, if by law exempted from taking the oath, solemnly declare obedience and allegiance to the Constitution and the King, although senior officials who are not Norwegian nationals may by law be exempted from this duty. The Royal Princes must not hold senior civil offices

22 Dismissing Members of the Council of State

(1) The Prime Minister and the other members of the Council of State, together with the State Secretaries, may be dismissed by the King without any prior court judgment, after he has heard the opinion of the Council of State on the subject. The same applies to senior officials employed in Government offices or in the diplomatic or consular service, to the highest-ranking civil and ecclesiastical officials, commanders of regiments and other military formations, commandants of forts and officers commanding warships. Whether pensions should be granted to senior officials thus dismissed shall be determined by the next Parliament (Storting) In the interval they shall receive two-thirds of their previous pay

(2) Other senior officials may only be suspended by the King, and must then without delay be charged before the courts, but they may not, except by court judgment, be dismissed nor, against their will, transferred

(3) All senior officials may, without a prior court judgment, be discharged from office upon attaining the statutory age limit

23. Rewards

(1) The King may bestow orders upon whomever he pleases, as a reward for distinguished services, and such orders must be publicly announced, but no rank or title other than that attached to any office The order exempts no one from the common duties and burdens of citizens, nor does it carry with it any preferential admission to senior official posts in the State Senior officials honourably discharged from office retain the title and rank of their office This does not apply, however, to members of the Council of State or the State Secretaries

(2) No personal, or mixed, hereditary privileges may henceforth be granted to anyone

24. Royal Household

The King chooses and dismisses, at his own discretion, his Royal Household and Court Officials

25. Commander-in-Chief

(1) The King is Commander-in-Chief of the land and naval forces of the Realm These forces may not be increased or reduced without the consent of the Parliament (Storting) They may not be transferred to the service of foreign powers, nor may the military forces of any foreign power, except auxiliary forces assisting against hostile attack, be brought into the Realm without the consent of the Parliament (Storting)

(2) The territorial army and the other troops which cannot be classed as troops of the line must never, without the consent of the Parliament (Storting), be employed outside the borders of the Realm

26. Declarations and Treaties

(1) The King has the right to call up troops, to engage in hostilities in defence of the Realm and to make peace, to conclude and denounce conventions, to send and to receive diplomatic envoys

(2) Treaties on matters of special importance, and, in all cases, treaties whose implementation, according to the Constitution, necessitates a new law or a decision by the Parliament (Storting), are not binding until the Parliament (Storting) has given its consent thereto

27. Quorum and Attendance of the Council of State

(1) All members of the Council of State shall, unless lawfully absent, attend the Council of State and no decision may be adopted there unless more than half the number of members are present

rules 28-31]

(2) A member of the Council of State who does not profess the official religion of the State shall not take part in proceedings on matters which concern the State Church

28 Proposals for Official Posts

Proposals regarding appointments to senior official posts and other matters of importance shall be presented in the Council of State by the member under whose department they come, and such matters shall be dealt with by him in accordance with the decision adopted in the Council of State. However, matters strictly relating to military command may, to the extent determined by the King, be excepted from proceedings in the Council of State

29. Delegation of Ministerial Duties

(1) If a member of the Council of State is lawfully prevented from attending the meeting and from presenting the matters coming under his department, these may be presented by another member temporarily appointed by the King for the purpose

(2) If so many members are lawfully prevented from attending that not more than half of the stipulated number are present, the requisite number of other men or women shall be temporarily appointed to take a seat in the Council of State

30. Minutes, "Duty" to Speak Up and Remonstrate

(1) All the proceedings of the Council of State shall be entered in its records. Diplomatic matters which the Council of State decides to keep secret shall be entered in a special record. The same applies to military command matters which the Council of State decides to keep secret

(2) Everyone who has a seat in the Council of State has the duty frankly to express his opinion, to which the King is bound to listen. But it rests with the King to make a decision according to his own judgment

(3) If any Member of the Council of State is of the opinion that the King's decision conflicts with the form of government or the laws of the Realm, or is clearly prejudicial to the Realm, it is his duty to make strong remonstrances against it, as well as to have his opinion entered in the records. A member who has not thus protested is deemed to have been in agreement with the King and shall be answerable in such manner as may be subsequently decided, and may be impeached by the General Chamber (Odelsting) before the Court of Impeachment

31 Countersignature

All decisions drawn up by the King shall, in order to become valid, be countersigned. The decisions relating to military command are countersigned by the person who has presented the matter, while other decisions are countersigned by the Prime Minister or, if he has not been present, by the highest-ranking member of the Council of State present

32. Absentee Signature

The decisions adopted by the Government during the King's absence shall be drawn up in the King's name and be signed by the Council of State

33. { }*34. Titles

The King shall make provisions concerning titles for those who are entitled to succeed to the Crown

35. Advisory Seat of the Successor

As soon as the heir to the Throne has completed her or his eighteenth year, she or he is entitled to take a seat in the Council of State, although without a vote or responsibility

36. Consent to Marriage of the Successor

(1) A Princess or Prince entitled to succeed to the Crown of Norway may not marry without the consent of the King. Nor may she or he accept any other Crown or Government without the consent of the King and the Parliament (Storting); for the consent of the Parliament (Storting) two-thirds of the votes are required

(2) If she or he acts contrary to this rule, they and their descendants forfeit their right to the Throne of Norway

37. Immunity of the Successor

The Royal Princesses and Princes shall not personally be answerable to anyone other than the King, or whomever he decrees to sit in judgment on them

38. { }*39. Death of the King

If the King dies and the heir to the Throne is still under age, the Council of State shall immediately summon the Parliament (Storting)

40. Administration Without King

Until the Parliament (Storting) has assembled and made provisions for the Government during the minority of the King, the Council of State shall be responsible for the administration of the Realm in accordance with the Constitution

41. Temporary Execution of the Royal Powers

If the King is absent from the Realm unless commanding in the field, or if he is so ill that he cannot attend to the Government, the person next entitled to succeed to the Throne shall, provided that he has attained the age stipulated for the King's majority, conduct the Government as the temporary executor of the Royal Powers. If this is not the case, the Council of State will conduct the administration of the Realm

42 { . }

43. Trustees of the King During Minority

The choice of trustees to conduct the Government on behalf of the King during his minority shall be undertaken by the Parliament (Storting)

44. Oath of Temporary Executor

(1) The Princess or Prince who, in the cases mentioned in 41, conducts the Government shall make the following oath in writing before the Parliament (Storting) "I promise and swear that I will conduct the Government in accordance with the Constitution and the laws, so help me God, the Almighty and Omniscient"

(2) If the Parliament (Storting) is not in session at the time, the oath shall be made in the Council of State and later be presented to the next Parliament (Storting)

(3) The Princess or Prince who has once made the oath shall not repeat it later

45. Account of Temporary Government

As soon as their conduct of the Government ceases, the trustees shall submit to the King and the Parliament (Storting) an account of the same

46. Emergency Summons by Supreme Court

If the persons concerned fail to summon the Parliament (Storting) immediately in accordance with 39, it becomes the unconditional duty of the Supreme Court, as soon as four weeks have elapsed, to arrange for the Parliament (Storting) to be summoned

47. Education of the King during Minority

The supervision of the education of the King during his minority should, if both his parents are dead and neither of them has left any written directions thereon, be determined by the Parliament (Storting)

48. Choice of New Dynasty

If the Royal Line has died out, and no successor to the Throne has been designated, then a new Queen or King shall be chosen by the Parliament (Storting) Meanwhile, the executive power shall be exercised in accordance with 40

Section C.—Rights of Citizens and the Legislative Power*49. Legislative Power

The people exercises the legislative power through the Parliament (Storting), which consists of two departments, the Permanent Chamber (Lagting) and the General Chamber (Odelsting)

50. Electoral Rights

(1) Those entitled to vote are Norwegian citizens, men and women, who, at the latest in the year when the election is held, have completed their 18th year

(2) The extent, however, to which Norwegian citizens who on election day are resident outside the Realm but who satisfy the aforementioned conditions are entitled to vote shall be determined by law.

(3) Rules may be laid down by law concerning the right to vote of persons, otherwise entitled to vote, who on election day are mentally suffering from a seriously weakened mental state or a reduced level of consciousness.

51. Voter Registration

The rules on the keeping of the poll list and on the registration in the poll list of persons entitled to vote shall be determined by law.

52. {Repealed}

53. Loss of Electoral Rights

The right to vote is lost by persons:

a) sentenced for criminal offences, in accordance with the relevant provisions laid down by law.

b) entering the service of a foreign power without the consent of the Government.

c) {repealed}

d) demonstrably guilty of having bought votes, of having sold his own vote, or of having voted at more than one polling station.

e) {repealed}

54. Term, Re-Election

The polls shall be held every fourth year. They shall be concluded by the end of September.

55. Conduct of Polls

The polls shall be conducted in the manner prescribed in law. Questions regarding the right to vote shall be settled by the poll officials, and decisions may be appealed to the Parliament (Storting).

56. {Repealed}

57. Number of Representatives in the Parliament

The number of representatives to be elected to the Parliament (Storting) shall be one hundred and sixty-five.

58. Constituencies

(1) Each county constitutes a constituency.

(2) One hundred and fifty-seven of the Representatives of the Parliament (Storting) are elected as representatives of constituencies as an equal number of representatives are elected so as to achieve a greater degree of proportionality.

(3) Representatives of constituencies are distributed among the constituencies of the Realm as follows:

8 are elected from the county of Oslo.

- 15 from Oslo,
- 12 from the county of Akershus,
- 8 from the county of Hedmark,
- 7 from the county of Oppland,
- 7 from the county of Buskerud,
- 7 from the county of Vestfold,
- 6 from the county of Telemark,
- 4 from the county of Aust-Agder,
- 5 from the county of Vest-Agder,
- 10 from the county of Rogaland,
- 15 from the county of Hordaland,
- 5 from the county of Sogn og Fjordane,
- 10 from the county of More og Romsdal,
- 10 from the county of Sor-Trondelag,
- 6 from the county of Nord-Trondelag,
- 12 from the county of Nordland,
- 6 from the county of Troms, and
- 4 from the county of Finnmark

59 Polls in Municipalities, Proportional Representation, Quorum

- (1) Each municipality constitutes a separate polling district
- (2) The polls shall be held separately for each polling district. At the polls votes shall be cast directly for representatives to the Parliament (Storting), together with their proxies, to represent the entire constituency
- (3) The election of representatives of constituencies is based on proportional representation and the seats are distributed among the political parties in accordance with the following rules
- (4) The total number of votes cast for each party within each separate constituency is divided by 1, 4, 3, 5, 7 and so on until the number of votes cast is divided as many times as the number of seats that the party in question may expect to obtain. The party which in accordance with the foregoing obtains the largest quotient is allotted the first seat, while the second seat is allotted to the party with the second largest quotient, and so on until all the seats are distributed. If several parties have the same quotient, lots are drawn to decide to which party the seat shall be allotted. List alliances are not permitted
- (5) The seats at large are distributed among the parties taking part in such distribution on the basis of the relation between the total number of votes cast for the individual parties in the entire Realm in order to achieve the highest possible degree of proportionality among the parties. The total number of seats in the Parliament (Storting) to be held by each party is determined by applying the rules concerning the distribution of constituency seats correspondingly to the entire Realm and to the parties taking part in the distribution of the seats at large. The parties are then allotted so many seats at large that these, together with the constituency seats already allotted, correspond to the number of seats in the Parliament (Storting) to which the party in question is entitled in accordance with the foregoing. If according to these rules two or more parties are equally entitled to a seat, preference shall be given to the party receiving the greatest number of votes or, in the event of a tie, the one which is chosen by drawing lots. If a party has already through the distribution of constituency seats obtained a greater number of seats than that to which it is entitled in accordance with the foregoing, a new distribution of the seats at large shall be carried out exclusively among the other parties, in such a way that no account is taken of the number of votes cast for and constituency seats obtained by the said party.

(6) No party may be allotted a seat at large unless it has received at least 4 per cent of the total number of votes cast in the entire Realm.

(7) The seats at large obtained by a party are distributed among that party's lists of candidates for constituency elections so that the first seat is allotted to the list left with the largest quotient after the constituency's seats are distributed, the second seat to the list with the second largest quotient, and so on until all the party's seats at large have been distributed.

60. Absentee Ballot

Whether and in what manner those entitled to vote may deliver their ballot papers, without personal attendance at the polls, shall be determined by law.

61. Residence Requirement

No one is eligible as a representative to the Parliament (Storting) unless he has resided for 10 years in the Realm, as well as being entitled to vote.

62. Incompatibilities

(1) Officials who are employed in Government departments, except however the State Secretaries, or officials and pensioners of the court, may not be elected as representatives to the Parliament (Storting). The same applies to officials employed in the diplomatic or consular services.

(2) Members of the Council of State may not attend meetings of the Parliament (Storting) as representatives while holding a seat in the Council of State. Nor may the State Secretaries attend as representatives while holding their appointments.

63. Duty to Accept Election

(1) It is the duty of anyone who is elected as a representative to accept such election, unless

a) he is elected outside the constituency in which he is entitled to vote,

b) he has as a representative attended all the sessions of the Parliament (Storting) following the previous election,

c) he has completed his sixtieth year at the latest in the year when the General Election is held,

d) he is a member of a political party and he is elected on a list of candidates which has not been issued by that party.

(2) If anyone is elected as a representative without being bound to accept such election, he must, within the time and in the manner prescribed by law, make a declaration stating whether or not he accepts election.

(3) It shall similarly be prescribed by law by what date and in which manner anyone who is elected as representative for two or more constituencies shall state which election he will accept.

64. Credentials of Representatives

The representatives elected shall be furnished with credentials, the validity of which shall be adjudged by the Parliament (Storting).

65. Reimbursement and Remuneration of Representatives

(1) Every representative and proxy called to the Parliament (Storting) shall be entitled to receive from the Treasury such reimbursement as is prescribed by law for travelling expenses to and from the Parliament (Storting), and from the Parliament (Storting) to his home and back again during vacations lasting at least fourteen days.

(2) He shall further be entitled to remuneration, likewise prescribed by law, for attending the Parliament (Storting).

66. Immunity

Representatives on their way to and from the Parliament (Storting), as well as during their attendance there, shall be exempt from personal arrest, unless they are apprehended in public crimes, nor may they be called to account outside the meetings of the Parliament (Storting) for opinions expressed there. Every representative shall be bound to conform to the rules of procedure therein adopted.

67. Membership in Parliament

The representatives elected in the aforesaid manner shall constitute the Parliament (Storting) of the Kingdom of Norway.

68. Assembly of Parliament

The Parliament (Storting) shall as a rule assemble on the first weekday in October every year in the capital of the Realm, unless the King, by reason of extraordinary circumstances, such as hostile invasion or infectious disease, designates another town in the Realm for the purpose. Such a decision must be publicly announced in good time.

69. Summoning by the King

When the Parliament (Storting) is not assembled, it may be summoned by the King if he feels it necessary.

70. (Repealed)

71. Term of Parliament

The members of the Parliament (Storting) function as such for four successive years

72. {Repealed}*73. Chambers of Parliament

(1) The Parliament (Storting) nominates from among its members one fourth to constitute the Permanent Chamber (Lagting), the remaining three-fourths to constitute the General Chamber (Odelsting). This nomination shall take place at the first session of the Parliament (Storting) that assembles after a new General Election, whereafter the Permanent Chamber (Lagting) shall remain unchanged at all sessions of the Parliament (Storting) assembled after the same election, except insofar as any vacancy which may occur among its members has to be filled by special nomination

(2) Each Chamber (Ting) holds its meetings separately and nominates its own President and Secretary. Neither Chamber (Ting) may hold a meeting unless at least half of its members are present. However, Bills concerning amendments to the Constitution may not be dealt with unless at least two thirds of the members of the Parliament (Storting) are present

74. Opening Speech of the King

(1) As soon as the Parliament (Storting) is constituted, the King, or whoever he appoints for the purpose, shall open its proceedings with a speech, in which he shall inform it of the state of the Realm and of the issues to which he particularly desires to call the attention of the Parliament (Storting). No deliberations may take place in the presence of the King

(2) When the proceedings of the Parliament (Storting) have been opened, the Prime Minister and the members of the Council of State have the right to attend the Parliament (Storting), as well as both departments of the Parliament (Storting), and, like its members, although without voting, to take part in any proceedings conducted in open session, while in matters discussed in closed session only insofar as permitted by the Chamber (Ting) concerned

75. Powers of Parliament

It devolves upon the Parliament (Storting)

a) to enact and repeal laws, to impose taxes, dues, customs and other public charges, which shall not, however, remain operative beyond 31 December of the succeeding year, unless they are expressly renewed by a new Parliament (Storting),

b) to raise loans in the name of the Realm,

c) to supervise the monetary affairs of the Realm,

d) to appropriate the moneys necessary to meet Government expenditure,

e) to decide how much shall be paid annually to the King for the Royal Household, and to determine the Royal Family's appanage which may consist of real property,

f) to have submitted to it the records of the Council of State, and all public reports and documents;

g) to have communicated to it the conventions and treaties which the King, on behalf of the State, has concluded with foreign powers,

h) to have the right to require anyone, the King and the Royal Family excepted, to appear before it on matters of State, the exception does not, however, apply to the Royal Princes if they hold any public office,

i) to review the provisional lists of salaries and pensions and to make therein such alterations as it deems necessary,

j) {repealed}

k) to appoint five auditors, who shall annually examine the State Accounts and publish extracts of the same in print, for which purpose the Accounts shall be submitted to the auditors within six months of the end of the year for which the appropriations of the Parliament (Storting) have been made, and to adopt provisions concerning the procedure for authorizing the accounts of Government accounting officials,

l) to appoint a person, not a member of the Parliament (Storting), in a manner prescribed by law, to supervise the public administration and all who work in its service, to assure that no injustice is done against the individual citizen,

m) to naturalize aliens

76 Legislation

(1) Every Bill shall first be proposed in the General Chamber (Odelstung), either by one of its own members, or by the Government through a member of the Council of State

(2) If the Bill is passed, it is sent to the Permanent Chamber (Lagting), which either approves or rejects it, and in the latter case returns it with appended comments. These are taken into consideration by the General Chamber (Odelstung), which either shelves the bill or again sends it to the Permanent Chamber (Lagting), with or without alteration

(3) When a Bill from the General Chamber (Odelstung) has twice been presented to the Permanent Chamber (Lagting) and has been returned a second time as rejected, the Parliament (Storting) shall meet in plenary session, and the Bill is then decided by a majority of two-thirds of its votes

(4) Between each such deliberation there shall be an interval of at least three days

77 Royal Assent

When a Bill passed by the General Chamber (Odelstung) has been approved by the Permanent Chamber (Lagting) or by the Parliament (Storting) in plenary session, it is sent to the King, with a request that it may receive the Royal Assent

78. Royal Signature

(1) If the King assents to the Bill, he appends his signature, whereby it becomes law

(2) If he does not assent to it, he returns it to the General Chamber (Odelsting) with a statement that he does not for the time being find it expedient to sanction it. In that case the Bill must not again be submitted to the King by the Parliament (Storting) then assembled

79. Enactment of Bills

If a Bill has been passed unaltered by two sessions of the Parliament (Storting), constituted after two separate successive elections and separated from each other by at least two intervening sessions of the Parliament (Storting), without a divergent Bill having been passed by any Parliament (Storting) in the period between the first and last adoption, and it is then submitted to the King with a petition that His Majesty shall not refuse his assent to a Bill which, after the most mature deliberation, the Parliament (Storting) considers to be beneficial, it shall become law even if the Royal Assent is not accorded before the Parliament (Storting) goes into recess

80. Sessions and Recesses

(1) The Parliament (Storting) shall remain in session as long as it deems it necessary and shall terminate its proceedings when it has concluded its business

(2) In accordance with the rules of procedure adopted by the Parliament (Storting), the proceedings may be resumed, but they shall terminate not later than the last Sunday in the month of September.

(3) Within this time the King shall communicate his decision with regard to the Bills that have not already been decided (cf. ss 77 to 79), by either confirming or rejecting them. All those which he does not expressly accept are deemed to have been rejected by him

81. Assent and Confirmation

All Acts (with the exception of those mentioned in 79) are drawn up in the name of the King under the seal of the Realm of Norway, and in the following terms:

"We, X, make it publicly known that the decision of the Parliament (Storting) of the date stated has been laid before Us (here follows the decision). In consequence whereof We have assented to and confirmed as We hereby do assent to and confirm the same as Law under Our Hand and the Seal of the Realm"

82. {Repealed}*83. Expertise of the Supreme Court

The Parliament (Storting) may obtain the opinion of the Supreme Court on points of law

84. Publicity of the Parliament

The Parliament (Storting) shall meet in open session, and its proceedings shall be published in print, except in those cases where a majority decides to the contrary

85. Treason Against the Country

Any person who obeys an order, the purpose of which is to disturb the liberty and security of the Parliament (Storting), is thereby guilty of treason against the Country

Section D—The Judicial Power*86. Court of Impeachment

(1) The Court of Impeachment pronounces judgment in the first and last instance in such proceedings as are brought by the General Chamber (Odelsting) against members of the Council of State, or of the Supreme Court or of the Parliament (Storting), for criminal offences which they may have committed in their official capacity

(2) The specific rules concerning indictment by the General Chamber (Odelsting) in accordance with this shall be determined by law. However, the limitation period for the institution of indictment proceedings before the Court of Impeachment may not be set at less than 15 years

(3) The permanent members of the Permanent Chamber (Lagting) and the permanently appointed members of the Supreme Court are judges of the Court of Impeachment. The provisions contained in 87 shall apply to the composition of the Court of Impeachment in the particular case. In the Court of Impeachment the President of the Permanent Chamber (Lagting) shall preside

(4) Any person sitting in the Court of Impeachment as a Member of the Permanent Chamber (Lagting) shall not resign from the Court if the period for which he is elected as a representative to the Parliament (Storting) expires before the Court of Impeachment has concluded the trial of the case. If he ceases, for any other reason, to be a member of the Parliament (Storting), he shall resign as a Judge of the Court of Impeachment. The same applies if a Justice of the Supreme Court, who is a member of the Court of Impeachment, retires as a member of the Supreme Court

87. Members of the Court of Impeachment

(1) The accused and the person acting on behalf of the General Chamber (Odelsting) in the proceedings have the right to challenge as many members of the Permanent Chamber (Lagting) and of the Supreme Court as will leave remaining fourteen members of the Permanent Chamber (Lagting) and seven members of the Supreme Court as judges in the Court of Impeachment. Each party in the proceedings may challenge an equal number of the members of the Permanent Chamber (Lagting), although the accused has the preferential right to challenge one more, if the number to be challenged is not divisible by two. The same shall apply to the challenging of the members of the Supreme Court If there are several accused in such proceedings, they exercise the right of challenge collectively in accordance with rules prescribed by law If the right of challenge is not exercised to the extent permitted, as many members of the Permanent Chamber (Lagting) and of the Supreme Court as are in excess of fourteen and seven respectively retire following the drawing of lots

[12th April, 1973]

PREAMBLE

Whereas sovereignty over the entire Universe belongs to Almighty Allah alone, and the authority to be exercised by the people of Pakistan within the limits prescribed by Him is a sacred trust,

And whereas it is the will of the people of Pakistan to establish an order

Wherein the State shall exercise its powers and authority through the chosen representatives of the people,

Wherein the principles of democracy, freedom, equality, tolerance and social justice, as enunciated by Islam, shall be fully observed,

Wherein the Muslims shall be enabled to order their lives in the individual and collective spheres in accordance with the teachings and requirements of Islam as set out in the Holy Quran and Sunnah,

Wherein adequate provision shall be made for the minorities freely to profess and practise their religions and develop their cultures,

Wherein the territories now included in or in accession with Pakistan and such other territories as may hereafter be included in or accede to Pakistan shall form a Federation wherein the units will be autonomous with such boundaries and limitations on their powers and authority as may be prescribed,

Therein shall be guaranteed fundamental rights, including equality of status, of opportunity and before law, social, economic and political justice, and freedom of thought, expression, belief, faith, worship and association, subject to law and public morality,

Wherein adequate provision shall be made to safeguard the legitimate interests of minorities and backward and depressed classes,

Wherein the independence of the judiciary shall be fully secured,

Wherein the integrity of the territories of the Federation, its independence and all its rights, including its sovereign rights on land, sea and air, shall be safeguarded,

So that the people of Pakistan may prosper and attain their rightful and honoured place amongst the nations of the World and make their full contribution towards international peace and progress and happiness of humanity

Now, therefore, we, the people of Pakistan,

Cognisant of our responsibility before Almighty Allah and men,

Cognisant of the sacrifices made by the people in the cause of Pakistan,

Faithful to the declaration made by the Founder of Pakistan, Quaid-i-Azam Mohammad Ali Jinnah, that Pakistan would be a democratic State based on Islamic principles of social justice,

Dedicated to the preservation of democracy achieved by the unremitting struggle of the people against oppression and tyranny,

Inspired by the resolve to protect our national and political unity and solidarity by creating an egalitarian society through a new order,

Do hereby, through our representatives in the National Assembly, adopt, enact and give to ourselves, this Constitution

PART II

FUNDAMENTAL RIGHTS AND PRINCIPLES OF POLICY

7. In this Part, unless the context otherwise requires, "the State" means the Federal Government, Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament), a Provincial Government, a Provincial Assembly, and such local or other authorities in Pakistan as are by law empowered to impose any tax or cess

FUNDAMENTAL RIGHTS

8 (1) Any law or any custom or usage having the force of law, in so far as it is inconsistent with the rights conferred by this Chapter, shall, to the extent of such inconsistency, be void

(2) The State shall not make any law which takes away or abridges the rights so conferred and any law made in contravention of this clause shall, to the extent of such contravention, be void

(3) The provisions of this Article shall not apply to—

(a) any law relating to members of the Armed Forces, or of the police or of such other forces as are charged with the maintenance of public order, for the purpose of ensuring the proper discharge of their duties or the maintenance of discipline among them; or

(b) any of the—

(i) laws specified in the First Schedule as in force immediately before the commencing day or as amended by any of the laws specified in that Schedule,

(ii) other laws specified in Part I of the First Schedule, and no such law nor any provision thereof shall be void on the ground that such law or provision is inconsistent with, or repugnant to, any provision of this Chapter

(4) Notwithstanding anything contained in paragraph (b) of clause (3), within a period of two years from the commencing day, the appropriate Legislature shall bring the laws specified in Part II of the First Schedule into conformity with the rights conferred by this Chapter

Provided that the appropriate Legislature may by resolution extend the said period of two years by a period not exceeding six months

Explanation —If in respect of any law Maylis-e-Shoora (Parliament) is the appropriate Legislature, such resolution shall be a resolution of the National Assembly

(5) The rights conferred by this Chapter shall not be suspended except as expressly provided by the Constitution

9. No person shall be deprived of life or liberty save in accordance with law

10. (1) No person who is arrested shall be detained in custody without being informed, as soon as may be, of the grounds for such arrest, nor shall he be denied the right to consult and be defended by a legal practitioner of his choice

(2) Every person who is arrested and detained in custody shall be produced before a Magistrate within a period of twenty-four hours of such arrest, excluding the time necessary for the journey from the place of arrest to the court of the nearest Magistrate, and no such person shall be detained in custody beyond the said period without the authority of a Magistrate

(3) Nothing in clauses (1) and (2) shall apply to any person who is arrested or detained under any law providing for preventive detention

(4) No law providing for preventive detention shall be made except to deal with persons acting in a manner prejudicial to the integrity, security or defence of Pakistan or any part thereof, or external affairs of Pakistan, or public order, or the maintenance of supplies or services, and no such law shall authorise the detention of a person for a period exceeding three months unless the appropriate Review Board has, after affording him an opportunity of being heard in person, reviewed his case and reported, before the expiration of the said period, that there is, in its opinion, sufficient cause for such detention, and, if the detention is continued after the said period of three months, unless the appropriate Review Board has reviewed his case and reported, before the expiration of each period of three months, that there is, in its opinion, sufficient cause for such detention

Article 10]

Explanation I—In this Article, "the appropriate Review Board" means,

(i) in the case of a person detained under a Federal law, a Board appointed by the Chief Justice of Pakistan and consisting of a Chairman and two other persons, each of whom is or has been a Judge of the Supreme Court or a High Court, and

THE FEDERATION OF PAKISTAN

THE PRESIDENT

41. (1) There shall be a President of Pakistan who shall be the Head of State and shall represent the unity of the Republic

(2) A person shall not be qualified for election as President unless he is a Muslim of not less than forty-five years of age and is qualified to be elected as member of the National Assembly

(3) The President to be elected after the expiration of the term specified in clause (7) shall be elected in accordance with the provisions of the Second Schedule by the members of an electoral college consisting of—

(a) the members of both Houses, and

(b) the members of the Provincial Assemblies

(4) Election to the office of President shall be held not earlier than sixty days and not later than thirty days before the expiration of the term of the President in office, Provided that, if the election cannot be held within the period aforesaid because the National Assembly is dissolved, it shall be held within thirty days of the general election to the Assembly

(5) An election to fill a vacancy in the office of President shall be held not later than thirty days from the occurrence of the vacancy

Provided that, if the election cannot be held within the period aforesaid because the National Assembly is dissolved, it shall be held within thirty days of the general election to the Assembly

(6) The validity of the election of the President shall not be called in question by or before any court or other authority

(7) Notwithstanding anything contained in this Article or Article 43, or any other Article of the Constitution or any other law, General Mohammad Zia-ul-Haq, in consequence of the result of the referendum held on the nineteenth day of December 1984, shall become the President of Pakistan on the day of the first meeting of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) in joint sitting summoned after the elections to the Houses of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) and shall hold office for a term of five years from that day, and Article 44 and other provisions of the Constitution shall apply accordingly

42 Before entering upon office, the President shall make before the Chief Justice of Pakistan oath in the form set out in the Third Schedule

43 (1) The President shall not hold any office of profit in the service of Pakistan or occupy any other position carrying the right to remuneration for the rendering of services

(2) The President shall not be a candidate for election as a member of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) or a Provincial Assembly, and, if a member of

Maylis-e-Shoora (Parliament) or a Provincial Assembly is elected as President, his seat in Maylis-e-Shoora (Parliament) or, as the case may be, the Provincial Assembly shall become vacant on the day he enters upon his office

44. (1) Subject to the Constitution, the President shall hold office for a term of five years from the day he enters upon his office

Provided that the President shall, notwithstanding the expiration of his term, continue to hold office until his successor enters upon his office

(2) Subject to the Constitution, a person holding office as President shall be eligible for re-election to that office, but no person shall hold that office for more than two consecutive terms

(3) The President may, by writing under his hand addressed to the Speaker of the National Assembly, resign his office

45 The President shall have power to grant pardon, reprieve and respite, and to remit, suspend or commute any sentence passed by any court, tribunal or other authority

46. It shall be the duty of the Prime Minister—

(a) to communicate to the President all decisions of the Cabinet relating to the administration of the affairs of the Federation and proposals for legislation,

(b) to furnish such information relating to the administration of the affairs of the Federation and proposals for legislation as the President may call for, and

(c) if the President so requires, to submit for the consideration of the Cabinet any matter on which a decision has been taken by the Prime Minister or a Minister but which has not been considered by the Cabinet

47 (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Constitution, the President may, in accordance with the provisions of this Article, be removed from office on the ground of physical or mental incapacity or impeached on a charge of violating the Constitution or gross misconduct

(2) Not less than one-half of the total membership of either House may give to the Speaker of the National Assembly or, as the case may be, the Chairman written notice of its intention to move a resolution for the removal of, or, as the case may be, to impeach, the President, and such notice shall set out the particulars of his incapacity or of the charge against him

(3) If a notice under clause (2) is received by the Chairman, he shall transmit it forthwith to the Speaker

(4) The Speaker shall, within three days of the receipt of a notice under clause (2) or clause (3), cause a copy of the notice to be transmitted to the President

(5) The Speaker shall summon the two Houses to meet in a joint sitting not earlier than seven days and not later than fourteen days after the receipt of the notice by him

(6) The joint sitting may investigate or cause to be investigated the grounds of the charge upon which the notice is founded

(7) The President shall have the right to appear and be represented during the investigation, if any, and before the joint sitting

(8) If, after consideration of the result of the investigation, if any, a resolution is passed at the joint sitting by the votes of not less than two-thirds of the total membership of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) declaring that the President is unfit to hold the office due to incapacity or is guilty of violating the Constitution or of gross misconduct, the President shall cease to hold office immediately on the passing of the resolution

48. (1) In the exercise of his functions, the President shall act in accordance with the advice of the Cabinet or the Prime Minister

Provided that the President may require the Cabinet or as the case may be, the Prime Minister to reconsider such advice, either generally or otherwise, and the President shall act in accordance with the advice tendered after such reconsideration

(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in clause (1), the President shall act in his discretion in respect of any matter in respect of which he is empowered by the Constitution to do so and the validity of anything done by the President in his discretion shall not be called in question on any ground whatsoever

(3) {Omitted}

(4) The question whether any, and if so what, advice was tendered to the President by the Cabinet, the Prime Minister, a Minister or Minister of State shall not be inquired into in, or by, any court, tribunal or other authority

(5) Where the President dissolves the National Assembly, he shall, in his discretion—

(a) appoint a date, not later than ninety days from the date of the dissolution, for the holding of a general election to the Assembly, and

(b) appoint a care-taker Cabinet

(6) If, at any time, the President, in his discretion, or on the advice of the Prime Minister, considers that it is desirable that any matter of national importance should be referred to a referendum, the President may cause the matter to be referred to a referendum in the form of a question that is capable of being answered either by "Yes" or "No"

(7) An act of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) may lay down the procedure for the holding of a referendum and the compiling and consolidation of the result of a referendum.

49. (1) If the office of President becomes vacant by reason of death, resignation or removal of the President the Chairman or, if he is unable to perform the functions of the office of President, the Speaker of the National Assembly shall act as President until a President is elected in accordance with clause (3) of Article 41

(2) When the President, by reason of absence from Pakistan or any other cause, is unable to perform his functions, the Chairman or, if he too is absent or unable to perform the functions of the office of President, the Speaker of

c. National Assembly shall perform the functions of President until the President returns to Pakistan or, as the case may be, resumes his functions

THE MAJLIS-E-SHOORA (PARLIAMENT)

Composition, Duration and Meetings of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament)

50. There shall be a Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) of Pakistan consisting of the President and two Houses to be known respectively as the National Assembly and the Senate

51. (1) The National Assembly shall consist of two hundred and seven Muslim members to be elected by direct and free vote in accordance with law

(2) A person shall be entitled to vote if—

(a) he is a citizen of Pakistan,

(b) he is not less than twenty-one years of age,

(c) his name appears on the electoral roll, and

(d) he is not declared by a competent court to be of unsound mind

(2A) In addition to the number of seats referred to in clause (1), there shall be in the National Assembly ten additional seats reserved as follows for the person referred to in clause (3) of Article 106

Christians

Hindus and persons belonging to the Scheduled castes

Sikh, Buddhist and Parsi communities and other non-Muslims

Persons belonging to the Qadiani group or the Lahori group (who call themselves Ahmadis)

(3) The seats in the National Assembly shall be allocated to each Province, the Federally Administered Tribal Areas and the Federal Capital on the basis of population in accordance with the last preceding census officially published

(4) Until the expiration of a period of ten years from the commencing day or the holding of the third general election to the National Assembly, whichever occurs later, twenty seats in addition to the number of seats referred to in clause (1) shall be reserved for women and allocated to the Provinces in accordance with the Constitution and law

(14) The members to fill the seats referred to in clause (2A) shall be elected, simultaneously with the members to fill the seats referred to in clause (1) on the basis of separate electorates by direct and free vote in accordance with law

(5) As soon as practicable after the general election to the National Assembly the members to fill seats reserved for women which are allocated to a Province under clause (4) shall be elected in accordance with law on the basis of the system of proportional representation by means of a single transferable vote by the electoral college consisting of the persons elected to the Assembly from that Province.

(6) Notwithstanding anything contained in this Article, the President may, by order, make such provision as to the manner of filling the seats in the National Assembly allocated to the Federally Administered Tribal Areas as he may think fit

52. The National Assembly shall, unless sooner dissolved, continue for a term of five years from the day of its first meeting and shall stand dissolved at the expiration of its term

53. (1) After a general election, the National Assembly shall, at its first meeting and to the exclusion of any other business, elect from amongst its members a Speaker and a Deputy Speaker and, so often as the office of Speaker or Deputy Speaker becomes vacant, the Assembly shall elect another member as Speaker or, as the case may be, Deputy Speaker

(2) Before entering upon office, a member elected as Speaker or Deputy Speaker shall make before the National Assembly oath in the form set out in the Third Schedule

(3) When the office of Speaker is vacant, or the Speaker is absent or is unable to perform his functions due to any cause, the Deputy Speaker shall act as Speaker, and if, at that time, the Deputy Speaker is also absent or is unable to act as Speaker due to any cause, such member as may be determined by the rules of procedure of the Assembly shall preside at the meeting of the Assembly

(4) The Speaker or the Deputy Speaker shall not preside at a meeting of the Assembly when a resolution for his removal from office is being considered

(5) The Speaker may, by writing under his hand addressed to the President, resign his office

(6) The Deputy Speaker may, by writing under his hand addressed to the Speaker, resign his office

(7) The office of Speaker or Deputy Speaker shall become vacant if—

(a) he resigns his office,

(b) he ceases to be a member of the Assembly,

(c) he is removed from office by a resolution of the Assembly, of which not less than seven days' notice has been given and which is passed by the votes of the majority of the total membership of the Assembly

(8) When the National Assembly is dissolved the Speaker shall continue in his office till the person elected to fill the office by the next Assembly enters upon his office

54. (1) The President may, from time to time, summon either House or both Houses of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) in joint sitting to meet at such time and place as he thinks fit and may also prorogue the same

(2) There shall be at least three sessions of the National Assembly every year, and not more than one hundred and twenty days shall intervene between the last sitting of the Assembly in one session and the date appointed for its first sitting in the next session

Provided that the National Assembly shall meet for not less than one hundred and thirty working days in each year

Explanation—In this clause, "working days" includes any day on which there is a joint sitting and any period, not exceeding two days for which the National Assembly is adjourned

(3) On a requisition signed by not less than one-fourth of the total membership of the National Assembly, the Speaker shall summon the National Assembly to meet, at such time and place as he thinks fit, within fourteen days of the receipt of the requisition, and when the Speaker has summoned the Assembly only he may prorogue it

55. (1) Subject to the Constitution, all decisions of the National Assembly shall be taken by majority of the members present and voting, but the person presiding shall not vote except in the case of equality of votes

(2) If at any time during a sitting of the National Assembly the attention of the person presiding is drawn to the fact that less than one-fourth of the total membership of the Assembly is present, he shall either adjourn the Assembly or suspend the meeting until at least one-fourth of such membership is present

56. (1) The President may address either House or both Houses assembled together and may for that purpose require the attendance of the members

(2) The President may send messages to either House, whether with respect to a Bill then pending in the Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) or otherwise, and a House to which any message is so sent shall with all convenient dispatch consider any matter required by the message to be taken into consideration

(3) At the commencement of the first session after each general election to the National Assembly and at the commencement of the first session of each year the President shall address both Houses assembled together and inform the Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) of the causes of its summons

(4) Provision shall be made in the rules for regulating the procedure of a House and the conduct of its business for the allotment of time for discussion of the matters referred to in the address of the President

57. The Prime Minister, a Federal Minister, a Minister of State and the Attorney General shall have the right to speak and otherwise take part in the proceedings of either House, or a joint sitting or any committee thereof, of which he may be named a member, but shall not by virtue of this Article be entitled to vote

58. (1) The President shall dissolve the National Assembly if so advised by the Prime Minister, and the National Assembly shall, unless sooner dissolved stand dissolved at the expiration of forty-eight hours after the Prime Minister has so advised

Explanation—Reference in this Article to "Prime Minister" shall not be construed to include reference to a Prime Minister against whom a notice of a resolution for a vote of no-confidence has been given in the National Assembly but has not been voted upon or against whom such a resolution has been passed or who is continuing in office after his resignation or after the dissolution of the National Assembly

59. (1) The Senate shall consist of eighty-seven members, of whom—

(a) fourteen shall be elected by the members of each Provincial Assembly,

(b) eight shall be elected by the members from the Federally Administered Tribal Areas in the National Assembly,

(c) three shall be elected from the Federal Capital in such manner as the President may, by Order, prescribe, and

(d) five shall be elected by the members of each Provincial Assembly to represent ulema, technocrats and other professionals

(2) Election to fill seats in the Senate allocated to each Province shall be held in accordance with the system of proportional representation by means of the single transferable vote

(3) The Senate shall not be subject to dissolution but the term of its members, who shall retire as follows, shall be six years

(a) of the members referred to in paragraph (a) of clause (1), seven shall retire after the expiration of the first three years and seven shall retire after the expiration of the next three years

(b) of the members referred to in paragraph (b) of the aforesaid clause, four shall retire after the expiration of the first three years and four shall retire after the expiration of the next three years,

(c) of the members referred to in paragraph (c) of the aforesaid clause, one shall retire after the expiration of the first three years and two shall retire after the expiration of the next three years; and

(d) of the members referred to in paragraph (d) of the aforesaid clause, two shall retire after the expiration of the first three years and three shall retire after the expiration of the next three years

Provided that the term of office of a person elected to fill a casual vacancy shall be the unexpired term of the member whose vacancy he has filled

60. (1) After the Senate has been duly constituted, it shall, at its first meeting and to the exclusion of any other business, elect from amongst its members a Chairman and a Deputy Chairman and, so often as the office of Chairman or Deputy Chairman becomes vacant, the Senate shall elect another member as Chairman or, as the case may be, Deputy Chairman

(2) The term of office of the Chairman or Deputy Chairman shall be three years from the day on which he enters upon his office.

61. The provisions of clauses (2) to (7) of Article 53, clauses (2) and (3) of Article 54 and Article 55 shall apply to the Senate as they apply to the National Assembly and, in their application to the Senate, shall have effect as if references therein to the National Assembly, Speaker and Deputy Speaker were references, respectively, to the Senate, Chairman and Deputy Chairman and as if, in the proviso to the said clause (2) of Article 54, for the words "one hundred and thirty" the word "ninety" were substituted.

Provisions as to Members of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament)

(f) the audit of the accounts of the Federal Government or a Provincial Government, and

(g) any matter incidental to any of the matters specified in the preceding paragraphs

(3) A Bill shall not be deemed to be a Money Bill by reason only that it provides —

(a) for the imposition or alteration of any fine or other pecuniary penalty, or for the demand or payment of a licence fee or a fee or charge for any service rendered, or

(b) for the imposition, abolition, remission, alteration or regulation of any tax by any local authority or body for local purposes

(4) If any question arises whether a Bill is a Money Bill or not, the decision of the Speaker of the National Assembly thereon shall be final

(5) Every Money Bill presented to the President for assent shall bear a certificate under the hand of the Speaker of the National Assembly that it is a Money Bill, and such certificate shall be conclusive for all purposes and shall not be called in question

74. A Money Bill or a Bill or amendment which if enacted and brought into operation would involve expenditure from the Federal Consolidated Fund or withdrawal from the Public Account of the Federation or affect the coinage or currency of Pakistan or the constitution or functions of the State Bank of Pakistan shall not be introduced or moved in Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) except by or with the consent of the Federal Government

75. (1) When a Bill is presented to the President for assent, the President shall, within thirty days,—

(a) assent to the Bill; or

(b) in the case of a Bill other than a Money Bill, return the Bill to the Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) with a message requesting that the Bill, or any specified provision thereof, be reconsidered and that any amendment specified in the message be considered.

(2) When the President has returned a Bill to the Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament), it shall be reconsidered by the Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) in joint sitting and, if it is again passed, with or without amendment, by the Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament), by the votes of the majority of the members of both Houses present and voting it shall be deemed for the purposes of the Constitution to have been passed by both Houses and shall be presented to the President and the President shall not withhold assent therefrom

(3) When the President has assented to a Bill it shall become law and be called an Act of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament)

(4) No act of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament), and no provision in any such Act, shall be invalid by reason only that some recommendation, previous sanction or consent required by the Constitution was not given if that Act was assented to in accordance with the Constitution

76. (1) A Bill pending in either House shall not lapse by reason of the prorogation of the House

(2) A Bill pending in the Senate which has not been passed by the National Assembly shall not lapse on the dissolution of the National Assembly

(3) A Bill pending in the National Assembly, or a Bill which having been passed by the National Assembly is pending in the Senate, shall lapse on the dissolution of the National Assembly

77. No tax shall be levied for the purposes of the Federation except by or under the authority of Act of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament)

Financial Procedures

78. (1) All revenues received by the Federal Government, all loans raised by that Government and all moneys received by it in repayment of any loan, shall form part of a consolidated fund, to be known as the Federal Consolidated Fund

(2) All other moneys—

(a) received by or on behalf of the Federal Government, or

(b) received by or deposited with the Supreme Court or any other court established under the authority of the Federation, shall be credited to the Public Account of the Federation

79. The custody of the Federal Consolidated Fund, the payment of moneys into that Fund, the withdrawal of moneys therefrom, the custody of other moneys received by or on behalf of the Federal Government, their payment into, and withdrawal from, the Public Account of the Federation, and all matters connected with or ancillary to the matters aforesaid shall be regulated by Act of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) or, until provision in that behalf is so made, by rules made by the President

80. (1) The Federal Government shall, in respect of every financial year, cause to be laid before the National Assembly a statement of the estimated receipts and expenditure of the Federal Government for that year, in this Part referred to as the Annual Budget Statement

(2) The Annual Budget Statement shall show separately—

(a) the sums required to meet expenditure described by the Constitution as expenditure charged upon the Federal Consolidated Fund, and

(b) the sums required to meet other expenditure proposed to be made from the Federal Consolidated Fund, and shall distinguish expenditure on revenue account from other expenditure

81. The following expenditure shall be expenditure charged upon the Federal Consolidated Fund —

(a) the remuneration payable to the President and other expenditure relating to his office, and the remuneration payable to—

- (i) the Judges of the Supreme Court,
- (ii) the Chief Election Commissioner,
- (iii) the Chairman and the Deputy Chairman,
- (iv) the Speaker and the Deputy Speaker of the National Assembly,
- (v) the Auditor-General,

(b) the administrative expenses, including the remuneration payable to officers and servants of the Supreme Court, the department of the Auditor-General and the Office of the Chief Election Commissioner and of the Election Commission and the Secretariats of the Senate and the National Assembly,

(c) all debt charges for which the Federal Government is liable, including interest, sinking fund charges, the repayment or amortisation of capital, and other expenditure in connection with the raising of loans, and the service and redemption of debt on the security of the Federal Consolidated Fund,

(d) any sums required to satisfy any judgment, decree or award against Pakistan by any court or tribunal, and

(e) any other sums declared by the Constitution or by Act of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) to be so charged

82. (1) So much of the Annual Budget Statement as relates to expenditure charged upon the Federal Consolidated Fund may be discussed in, but shall not be submitted to the vote of, the National Assembly

(2) So much of the Annual Budget Statement as relates to other expenditure shall be submitted to the National Assembly in the form of demands for grants, and the Assembly shall have power to assent to, or to refuse to assent to, any demand, or to assent to any demand subject to a reduction of the amount specified therein

Provided that, for a period of ten years from the commencing day or the holding of the second general election to the National Assembly, whichever occurs later, a demand shall be deemed to have been assented to without any reduction of the amount specified therein, unless, by the votes of a majority of the total membership of the Assembly, it is refused or assented to subject to a reduction of the amount specified therein

(3) No demand for a grant shall be made except on the recommendation of the Federal Government

83. (1) The Prime Minister shall authenticate by his signature a schedule specifying—

(a) the grants made or deemed to have been made by the National Assembly under Article 82, and

(b) the several sums required to meet the expenditure charged upon the Federal Consolidated Fund but not exceeding, in the case of any sum, the sum shown in the statement previously laid before the National Assembly

(2) The schedule so authenticated shall be laid before the National Assembly, but shall not be open to discussion or vote thereon

(3) Subject to the Constitution, no expenditure from the Federal Consolidated Fund shall be deemed to be duly authorised unless it is specified in the schedule so authenticated and such schedule is laid before the National Assembly as required by clause (2).

84. If in respect of any financial year it is found—

(a) that the amount authorized to be expended for a particular service for the current financial year is insufficient, or that a need has arisen for expenditure upon some new service not included in the Annual Budget Statement for that year, or

(b) that any money has been spent on any service during a financial year in excess of the amount granted for that service for that year, the Federal Government shall have power to authorize expenditure from the Federal Consolidated Fund, whether the expenditure is charged by the Constitution upon that Fund or not, and shall cause to be laid before the National Assembly a Supplementary Budget Statement or, as the case may be, an Excess Budget Statement, setting out the amount of that expenditure, and the provisions of Articles 80 to 83 shall apply to those statements as they apply to the Annual Budget Statement

85. Notwithstanding anything contained in the foregoing provisions relating to financial matters, the National Assembly shall have power to make any grant in advance in respect of the estimated expenditure for a part of any financial year, not exceeding four months pending completion of the procedure prescribed in Article 82 for the voting of such grant and the authentication of the schedule of authorized expenditure in accordance with the provisions of Article 83 in relation to the expenditure

86. Notwithstanding anything contained in the foregoing provisions relating to financial matters, at any time when the National Assembly stands dissolved, the Federal Government may authorize expenditure from the Federal Consolidated Fund in respect of the estimated expenditure for a period not exceeding four months in any financial year, pending completion of the procedure prescribed in Article 82 for the voting of grants and the authentication of the schedule of authorized expenditure in accordance with the provisions of Article 83 in relation to the expenditure

87. (1) Each House shall have a separate Secretariat

Provided that nothing in this clause shall be construed as preventing the creation of posts common to both Houses

(2) Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) may by law regulate the recruitment and the conditions of service of persons appointed to the Secretarial staff of either House

(3) Until provision is made by Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) under clause (2), the Speaker or, as the case may be, the Chairman may, with the approval of the President, make rules regulating the recruitment and the conditions of service, of persons appointed to the secretarial staff of the National Assembly or the Senate

88. (1) The expenditure of the National Assembly and the Senate within authorised appropriations shall be controlled by the National Assembly or, as the case may be, the Senate acting on the advice of its Finance Committee

(2) The Finance Committee shall consist of the Speaker or, as the case may be, the Chairman, the Minister of Finance and such other members as may be elected thereto by the National Assembly or, as the case may be, the Senate

(3) The Finance Committee may make rules for regulating its procedure.

Ordinances

89. (1) The President may, except when the National Assembly is in session, if satisfied that circumstances exist which render it necessary to take immediate action, make and promulgate an Ordinance as the circumstances may require

(2) An Ordinance promulgated under this Article shall have the same force and effect as an Act of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) and shall be subject to like restrictions as the power of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) to make law, but every such Ordinance—

(a) shall be laid—

(i) before the National Assembly if it contains provisions dealing with all or any of the matters specified in clause (2) of Article 73, and shall stand repealed at the expiration of four months from its promulgation or, if before the expiration of that period a resolution disapproving it is passed by the Assembly, upon the passing of that resolution,

(ii) before both Houses if it does not contain provisions dealing with any of the matters referred to in sub-paragraph (i), and shall stand repealed at the expiration of four months from its promulgation or, if before the expiration of that period a resolution disapproving it is passed by either House, upon the passing of that resolution, and

(b) may be withdrawn at any time by the President

(3) Without prejudice to the provisions of clause (2), an Ordinance laid before the National Assembly shall be deemed to be a Bill introduced in the National Assembly

CHAPTER 3*THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

90. (1) The executive authority of the Federation shall vest in the President and shall be exercised by him, either directly or through officers subordinate to him, in accordance with the Constitution

(2) Nothing contained in clause (1) shall—

(a) be deemed to transfer to the President any functions conferred by any existing law on the Government of any Province or other authority, or

(b) prevent the Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) from conferring by law functions on authorities other than the President

91. (1) There shall be a Cabinet of Ministers, with the Prime Minister at its head, to aid and advise the President in the exercise of his functions

(2) The President shall in his discretion appoint from amongst the members of the National Assembly a Prime Minister who, in his opinion, is most likely to command the confidence of the majority of the members of the National Assembly

(2A) Notwithstanding anything contained in clause (2), after the twentieth day of March, one thousand nine hundred and ninety, the President shall invite the member of the National Assembly to be the Prime Minister who commands the confidence of the majority of the members of the National Assembly, as ascertained in a session of the Assembly summoned for the purpose in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution

(3) The person appointed under clause (2) or as the case may be, invited under clause (2A) shall, before entering upon the office, make before the President oath in the form set out in the Third Schedule and shall within a period of sixty days thereof obtain a vote of confidence from the National Assembly

(4) The Cabinet, together with the Ministers of State, shall be collectively responsible to the National Assembly

(5) The Prime Minister shall hold office during the pleasure of the President, but the President shall not exercise his powers under this clause unless he is satisfied that the Prime Minister does not command the confidence of the majority of the members of the National Assembly, in which case he shall summon the National Assembly and require the Prime Minister to obtain a vote of confidence from the Assembly

(6) The Prime Minister may, by writing under his hand addressed to the President, resign his office

(7) A Minister who for any period of six consecutive months is not a member of the National Assembly shall, at the expiration of that period, cease to be a Minister and shall not before the dissolution of that Assembly be again appointed a Minister unless he is elected a member of that Assembly

Provided that nothing contained in this clause shall apply to a Minister who is a member of the Senate

(8) Nothing contained in this Article shall be construed as disqualifying the Prime Minister or any other Minister or a Minister of State for continuing in office during any period during which the National Assembly stands dissolved, or as preventing the appointment of any person as Prime Minister or other Minister or as Minister of State during any such period

92. (1) Subject to clauses (7) and (8) of Article 91, the President shall appoint Federal Ministers and Ministers of State from amongst the members of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) on the advice of the Prime Minister

Provided that the number of Federal Ministers and Ministers of State who are members of the Senate shall not at any time exceed one-fourth of the number of Federal Ministers

(2) Before entering upon office, a Federal Minister or Minister of State shall make before the President oath in the form set out in the Third Schedule

(3) A Federal Minister or Minister of State may, by writing under his hand addressed to the President, resign his office or may be removed from office by the President on the advice of the Prime Minister

93. (1) The President may, on the advice of the Prime Minister, appoint not more than five Advisers, on such terms and conditions as he may determine

(2) The provisions of Article 57 shall also apply to an Adviser

94. The President may ask the Prime Minister to continue to hold office until his successor enters upon the office of Prime Minister

95. (1) A resolution for a vote of no-confidence moved by not less than twenty per centum of the total membership of the National Assembly may be passed against the Prime Minister by the National Assembly

(2) A resolution referred to in clause (1) shall not be voted upon before the expiration of three days, or later than seven days, from the day on which such resolution is moved in the National Assembly

(3) A resolution referred to in clause (1) shall not be moved in the National Assembly while the National Assembly is considering demands for grants submitted to it in the Annual Budget Statement

(4) If the resolution referred to in clause (1) is passed by a majority of the total membership of the National Assembly, the Prime Minister shall cease to hold office

96A. {Ceased to be force}

97. Subject to the Constitution, the executive authority of the Federation shall extend to the matters with respect to which Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) has power to make laws, including exercise of rights, authority and jurisdiction in and in relation to areas outside Pakistan-

Provided that the said authority shall not, save as expressly provided in the Constitution or in any law made by Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament), extend in any Province to a matter with respect to which the Provincial Assembly has also power to make laws

98. On the recommendation of the Federal Government, Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) may by law confer functions upon officers or authorities subordinate to the Federal Government.

99. (1) All executive actions of the Federal Government shall be expressed to be taken in the name of the President

(2) The President shall by rules specify the manner in which orders and other instruments made and executed in his name shall be authenticated and the validity of any order or instrument so authenticated shall not be questioned in any court on the ground that it was not made or executed by the President.

(3) The President shall also make rules for the allocation and transaction of the business of the Federal Government.

100. (1) The President shall appoint a person being a person qualified to be appointed a Judge of the Supreme Court, to be the Attorney-General for Pakistan.

(2) The Attorney-General shall hold office during the pleasure of the President.

(3) It shall be the duty of the Attorney-General to give advice to the Federal Government upon such legal matters, and to perform such other duties of a legal character as may be referred or assigned to him by the Federal Government, and in the performance of his duties he shall have the right of audience in all courts and tribunals in Pakistan.

(4) The Attorney-General may, by writing under his hand addressed to the President, resign his office.

PART IV PROVINCES

CHAPTER 1 THE GOVERNORS

101. (1) There shall be a Governor for each Province who shall be appointed by the President in his discretion on the advice of the Prime Minister.

(2) A person shall not be appointed a Governor unless he is qualified to be elected as member of the National Assembly and is not less than thirty-five years of age.

(3) The Governor shall hold office during the pleasure of the President and shall be entitled to such salary, allowances and privileges as the President may determine

(4) The Governor may, by writing under his hand addressed to the President, resign his office

(5) The President may make such provision as he thinks fit for the discharge of the functions of a Governor in any contingency not provided for in this Part

102. Before entering upon office, the Governor shall make before the Chief Justice of the High Court oath in the form set out in the Third Schedule

103 (1) The Governor shall not hold any office of profit in the service of Pakistan or occupy any other position carrying the right to remuneration for the rendering of services

(2) The Governor shall not be a candidate for election as a member of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) or a Provincial Assembly and, if a member of is appointed as Governor, his seat in or, as the case may be, the Provincial Assembly shall become vacant on the day he enters upon his office

104. When the Governor is absent from Pakistan or is unable to perform the functions of his office due to any cause, such other person as the President may direct shall act as Governor

105. (1) Subject to the Constitution, in the performance of his functions, the Governor shall act in accordance with the advice of the Cabinet, or the Chief Minister

Provided that the Governor may require the Cabinet or, as the case may be, the Chief Minister to reconsider such advice, whether generally or otherwise, and the Governor shall act in accordance with the advice tendered after such reconsideration

(2) The question whether any, and if so what, advice was tendered to the Governor by the Chief Minister or the Cabinet shall not be inquired into in, or by, any court, tribunal or other authority

(3) Where the Governor dissolves the Provincial Assembly, he shall appoint, in his discretion, but with the previous approval of the President, a care-taker Cabinet

(4) The powers conferred by the Article on the President shall be exercised by him in his discretion

(5) The provisions of clause (2) of Article 48 shall have effect in relation to a Governor as if reference therein to "President" were reference to "Governor"

PROVINCIAL ASSEMBLIES

106. (1) There shall be a Provincial Assembly for each Province consisting of the number of members hereinafter specified to be elected by direct and free vote in accordance with law

Baluchistan	40
The North-West Frontier Province	80
The Punjab	240
Sind	100

(2) A person shall be entitled to vote if—

(a) he is a citizen of Pakistan;

(b) he is not less than twenty-one years of age,

(c) his name appears on the electoral roll for any area in the Province, and

(d) he is not declared by a competent court to be of unsound mind

(3) In addition to the seats in the Provincial Assemblies for the Provinces of Baluchistan, the Punjab, the North-West Frontier and Sind specified in clause (1), there shall be in those assemblies the number of seats hereinafter specified for non-Muslims

Province	Christians, Hindus and persons belonging to the Scheduled Castes	Sikh Buddhist and Parsi communities and other non-Muslims	Persons belonging to the Qadiani group or the Lahori group (who call them- selves Ahmadis)
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)
Baluchistan	1	1	—
The North-West Frontier Province	1	1	1

Explanation—Where no independent seat is allocated to a minority in a Province for being very small in number, the seat allocated jointly to all other non-Muslims in that Province shall be deemed to include that minority

(4) Until the expiration of a period of ten years from the commencing day or the holding of the third general election to the Assembly of a Province, whichever occurs later, there shall be in the Assembly a number of additional seats reserved for women equal to five per centum of the number of members of that Assembly specified in clause (1)

(5) The members to fill the seats referred to in clause (3) shall be elected, simultaneously with the members to fill the seats referred to in clause (1), on the basis of separate electorates by direct and free vote in accordance with law

(6) As soon as practicable after the general election to a Provincial Assembly, the members to fill seats in that Assembly reserved for women shall be elected in accordance with law on the basis of a system of proportional representation by means of a single transferable vote by the electoral college consisting of the persons elected to that Assembly

107. A Provincial Assembly shall, unless sooner dissolved, continue for a term of five years from the day of its first meeting and shall stand dissolved at the expiration of its term

108 After a general election, a Provincial Assembly shall, at its first meeting and to the exclusion of any other business, elect from amongst its members a Speaker and a Deputy Speaker and, so often as the office of Speaker or Deputy Speaker becomes vacant, the Assembly shall elect another member as Speaker or, as the case may be, Deputy Speaker

109. The Governor may from time to time—

(a) summon the Provincial Assembly to meet at such time and place as he thinks fit, and

(b) prorogue the Provincial Assembly

110. The Governor may address the Provincial Assembly and may for that purpose require the attendance of the members

111. The Advocate-General shall have the right to speak and otherwise take part in the proceedings of the Provincial Assembly or any committee thereof of which he may be named a member, but shall not by virtue of this Article be entitled to vote.

112. (1) The Governor shall dissolve the Provincial Assembly if so advised by the Chief Minister, and the Provincial Assembly shall, unless sooner dissolved, stand dissolved at the expiration of forty-eight hours after the Chief Minister has so advised

Explanation —Reference in this Article to "Chief Minister" shall not be construed to include reference to a Chief Minister against whom notice or a resolution for a vote of no-confidence has been given in the Provincial Assembly but has not been voted upon or against whom a resolution for a vote of no-confidence has been passed or who is continuing in office by virtue of clause (2) of Article 134 or a Provincial Minister performing the functions of the Chief Minister under clause (1) or clause (3) of Article 135

(2) The Governor may also dissolve the Provincial Assembly in his discretion, but subject to the previous approval of the President, where, in his opinion —

(a) a vote of no-confidence having been passed against the Chief Minister no other member of the Provincial Assembly is likely to command the confidence of the majority of the members of the Provincial Assembly in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution, as ascertained in a session of the Provincial Assembly summoned for the purpose, or

(b) (omitted)

113. The qualifications and disqualifications for membership of the National Assembly set out in Articles 62 and 63 shall also apply for membership of a Provincial Assembly as if reference therein to "National Assembly" were a reference to "Provincial Assembly".

114. No discussion shall take place in a Provincial Assembly with respect to the conduct of any Judge of the Supreme Court or of a High Court in the discharge of his duties

115. (1) A Money Bill, or a Bill or amendment which if enacted and brought into operation would involve expenditure from the Provincial Consolidated Fund or withdrawal from the Public Account of the Province shall not be introduced or moved in the Provincial Assembly except by or with the consent of the Provincial Government

(2) For the purpose of this Article, a Bill or amendment shall be deemed to be a Money Bill if it contains provisions dealing with all or any of the following matters, namely —

(a) the imposition, abolition, remission, alteration or regulation of any tax,

(b) the borrowing of money, or the giving of any guarantee, by the Provincial Government or the amendment of the law relating to the financial obligations of that Government,

(c) the custody of the Provincial Consolidated Fund, the payment of moneys into, or issue of moneys from, that Fund,

(d) the imposition of a charge upon the Provincial Consolidated Fund, or the abolition or alteration of any such charge,

(e) the receipt of moneys on account of the Public Account of the Province, the custody or issue of such moneys, and

(f) any matter incidental to any of the matters specified in the preceding paragraphs

(3) A Bill shall not be deemed to be a Money Bill by reason only that it provides—

(a) for the imposition or alteration of any fine or other pecuniary penalty or for the demand or payment of a licence fee or a fee or charge for any service rendered, or

(b) for the imposition, abolition, remission, alteration or regulation of any tax by any local authority or body for local purposes

(4) If any question arises whether a Bill is a Money Bill or not, the decision of the Speaker of the Provincial Assembly thereon shall be final

(5) Every Money Bill presented to the Governor for assent shall bear a certificate under the hand of the Speaker of the Provincial Assembly that it is a Money Bill and such certificate shall be conclusive for all purposes and shall not be called in question.

116. (1) When a Bill has been passed by the Provincial Assembly, it shall be presented to the Governor for assent

(2) When a Bill is presented to the Governor for assent, the Governor shall, within thirty days,—

(a) assent to the Bill, or

(b) in the case of a Bill other than a Money Bill, return the Bill to the Provincial Assembly with a message requesting that the Bill, or any specified provision thereof, be reconsidered and that any amendment specified in the message be considered

(3) When the Governor has returned a Bill to the Provincial Assembly it shall be reconsidered by the Provincial Assembly and, if it is again passed, with or without amendment, by the Provincial Assembly, by the votes of the majority of the members of the Provincial Assembly present and voting, it shall be again presented to the Governor and the Governor shall not withhold assent therefrom

(4) When the Governor has assented to a Bill, it shall become law and be called an Act of Provincial Assembly

(5) No Act of a Provincial Assembly, and no provision in any such Act, shall be invalid by reason only that some recommendation, previous sanction or consent required by the Constitution was not given if that Act was assented to accordance with the Constitution

117 (1) A Bill pending in a Provincial Assembly shall not lapse by reason of the prorogation of the Assembly

(2) A Bill pending in a Provincial Assembly shall lapse on the dissolution of the Assembly

118. (1) All revenues received by the Provincial Government, all loans raised by that Government, and all moneys received by it in repayment of any loan, shall form part of a consolidated fund, to be known as the Provincial Consolidated Fund

(2) All other moneys—

(a) received by or on behalf of the Provincial Government, or

(b) received by or deposited with the High Court or any other court established under the authority of the Province, shall be credited to the Public Account of the Province

119. The custody of the Provincial Consolidated Fund, the payment of moneys into that Fund, the withdrawal of moneys therefrom, the custody of other moneys received by or on behalf of the Provincial Government, their payment into, and withdrawal from, the Public Account of the Province, and all matters connected with or ancillary to the matters aforesaid, shall be regulated by Act of the Provincial Assembly or, until provision in that behalf is made, by rules made by the Governor

120. (1) The Provincial Government shall, in respect of every financial year, cause to be laid before the Provincial Assembly a statement of the estimated receipts and expenditure of the Provincial Government for that year, in this Chapter referred to as the Annual Budget Statement

(2) The Annual Budget Statement shall show separately—

(a) the sums required to meet expenditure described by the Constitution as expenditure charged upon the Provincial Consolidated Fund, and

(b) the sums required to meet other expenditure proposed to be made from the Provincial Consolidated Fund, and shall distinguish expenditure on revenue account from other expenditure

121. The following expenditure shall be expenditure charged upon the Provincial Consolidated Fund.—

(a) the remuneration payable to the Governor and other expenditure relating to his office, and the remuneration payable to—

(i) the Judges of the High Court, and

(ii) the Speaker and Deputy Speaker of the Provincial Assembly,

(b) the administrative expenses, including the remuneration payable to officers and servants, of the High Court and the Secretariat of the Provincial Assembly,

(c) all debt charges for which the Provincial Government is liable, including interest, sinking fund charges, the repayment or amortisation of capital, and other expenditure in connection with the raising of loans, and the service and redemption of debt on the security of the Provincial Consolidation Fund,

(d) any sums required to satisfy any judgment, decree or award against the Province by any court or tribunal, and

(e) any other sums declared by the Constitution or by Act of the Provincial Assembly to be so charged

122. (1) So much of the Annual Budget Statement as relates to expenditure charged upon the Provincial Consolidated Fund may be discussed in, but shall not be submitted to the vote of, the Provincial Assembly

(2) So much of the Annual Budget Statement as relates to other expenditure shall be submitted to the Provincial Assembly in the form of demands for grants, and that Assembly shall have power to assent to, or to refuse to assent to, any demand, or to assent to any demand subject to a reduction of the amount specified therein

Provided that, for a period of ten years from the commencing day or the holding of the second general election to the Provincial Assembly, whichever occurs later, a demand shall be deemed to have been assented to unless, by the votes of a majority of the total membership of the Assembly, it is refused or assented to subject to a reduction of the amount specified therein

(3) No demand for a grant shall be made except on the recommendation of the Provincial Government

123. (1) The Chief Minister shall authenticate by his signature a schedule specifying—

(a) the grants made or deemed to have been made by the Provincial Assembly under Article 122, and

(b) the several sums required to meet the expenditure charged upon the Provincial Consolidated Fund but not exceeding, in the case of any sum, the sum shown in the statement previously laid before the Assembly

(2) The schedule so authenticated shall be laid before the Provincial Assembly, but shall not be open to discussion or vote thereon

(3) Subject to the Constitution, no expenditure from the Provincial Consolidated Fund shall be deemed to be duly authorized unless it is specified in the schedule so authenticated and such schedule is laid before the Provincial Assembly as required by clause (2)

124. If in respect of any financial year it is found—

(a) that the amount authorized to be expended for a particular service for the current financial year is insufficient, or that a need has arisen for expenditure upon some new service not included in the Annual Budget Statement for that year, or

(b) that any money has been spent on any service during a financial year in excess of the amount granted for that service for that year,

the Provincial Government shall have power to authorize expenditure from the Provincial Consolidated Fund, whether the expenditure is charged by the Constitution upon that Fund or not, and shall cause to be laid before the Provincial Assembly a Supplementary Budget Statement or, as the case may be, an Excess Budget Statement, setting out the amount of that expenditure, and the provisions of Article 120 to 123 shall apply to those statements as they apply to the Annual Budget Statement

125. Notwithstanding anything contained in the foregoing provisions relating to financial matters, the Provincial Assembly shall have power to make any grant in advance in respect of the estimated expenditure for a part of any financial year, not exceeding three months, pending completion of the procedure prescribed in Article 122 for the voting of such grant and the authentication of the schedule of expenditure in accordance with the provisions of Article 123 in relation to the expenditure

126. Notwithstanding anything contained in the foregoing provisions relating to financial matters, at any time when the Provincial Assembly stands dissolved, the Provincial Government may authorize expenditure from the Provincial Consolidated Fund in respect of the estimated expenditure for a period not exceeding four months in any financial year, pending completion of the procedure prescribed in Article 122 for the voting of grants and the authentication of the schedule of authorized expenditure in accordance with the provisions of Article 123 in relation to the expenditure.

127. Subject to the Constitution, the provisions of clauses (2) to (8) of Article 53, clauses (2) and (3) of Article 54, Article 55, Articles 63 to 67, Article 69, Article 77, Article 87 and Article 88 shall apply to and in relation to a Provincial Assembly or a committee or members thereof or the Provincial Government, but so that—

(a) any reference in those provisions to Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament), a House or the National Assembly shall be read as a reference to the Provincial Assembly,

(b) any reference in those provisions to the President shall be read as a reference to the Governor of the Province.

(c) any reference in those provisions to the Federal Government shall be, read as a reference to the Provincial Government,

(d) any reference in those provisions to the Prime Minister shall be read as a reference to the Chief Minister,

(e) any reference in those provisions to a Federal Minister shall be read as a reference to a Provincial Minister,

(f) any reference in those provisions to the National Assembly of Pakistan shall be read as a reference to the Provincial Assembly in existence immediately before the commencing day, and

(g) the said clause (2) of Article 54 shall have effect as if, in the proviso thereto, for the words "one hundred and thirty" the word "seventy" were substituted.

128. (1) The Governor may, except when the Provincial Assembly is in session, if satisfied that circumstances exist which render it necessary to take immediate action, make and promulgate an Ordinance as the circumstances may require

(2) An Ordinance promulgated under this Article shall have the same force and effect as an Act of the Provincial Assembly and shall be subject to like restrictions as the power of the Provincial Assembly to make laws, but every such Ordinance—

(a) shall be laid before the Provincial Assembly and shall stand repealed at the expiration of three months from its promulgation or, if before the expiration of that period a resolution disapproving it is passed by the Assembly, upon the passing of that resolution, and

(b) may be withdrawn at any time by the Governor

(3) Without prejudice to the provisions of clause (2), an Ordinance laid before the Provincial Assembly shall be deemed to be a Bill introduced in the Provincial Assembly

THE PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENTS

129. The executive authority of the Province shall vest in the Governor and shall be exercised by him, either directly or through officers subordinate to him, in accordance with the Constitution

130. (1) There shall be a Cabinet of Ministers, with the Chief Minister at its head, to aid and advise the Governor in the exercise of his functions

(2) The Governor shall appoint from amongst the members of the Provincial Assembly a Chief Minister who, in his opinion, is likely to command the confidence of the majority of the members of the provincial Assembly

(2A) Notwithstanding anything contained in clause (2) after the twentieth day of March, one thousand nine-hundred and eighty-eight, the Governor shall invite the member of the Provincial Assembly to be the Chief Minister who commands the confidence of the members of the Provincial

Assembly, as ascertained in session of the Assembly summoned for the purpose in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution

Provided that nothing contained in this clause shall apply to a Chief Minister holding office on the twentieth day of March, one thousand nine hundred and eighty eight, in accordance with provisions of the Constitution

(3) The person appointed under clause (2) or as the case may be, invited under clause (2A) shall, before entering upon the office, make before the Governor oath in the form set out in the Third Schedule and shall within a period of sixty days thereof obtain a vote of confidence from the Provincial Assembly

(4) The Cabinet shall be collectively responsible to the Provincial Assembly

(5) The Chief Minister shall hold office during the pleasure of the Governor, but the Governor shall not exercise his powers under this clause unless he is satisfied that the Chief Minister does not command the confidence of the majority of the members of the Provincial Assembly and require the Chief Minister to obtain a vote of confidence from the Assembly

(6) The Chief Minister may, by writing under his hand addressed to the Governor, resign his office

(7) A Minister who for any period of six consecutive months is not a member of the Provincial Assembly shall, at the expiration of that period, cease to be Minister, and shall not before the dissolution of that Assembly be again appointed a Minister unless he is elected a member of that Assembly

(8) Nothing contained in this Article shall be construed as disqualifying the Chief Minister or any other Minister for continuing in office during any period during which the Provincial Assembly stands dissolved, or as preventing the appointment of any person as Chief Minister or other Minister during any such period

131. It shall be the duty of the Chief Minister—

(a) to communicate to the Governor all decisions of the Cabinet relating to the administration of the affairs of the Province and proposals for legislation,

(b) to furnish such information relating to the administration of the affairs of the Province and proposals for legislation as the Governor may call for, and

(c) if the Governor so requires, to submit for consideration of the Cabinet any matter on which a decision has been taken by the Chief Minister or a Minister but which has not been considered by the Cabinet

132 (1) Subject to clauses (7) and (8) of Article 130, the Governor shall appoint Provincial Ministers from amongst members of the Provincial Assembly on the advice of the Chief Minister

(2) Before entering upon office, a Provincial Minister shall make before the Governor oath in the form set out in the Third Schedule

(3) A Provincial Minister may, by writing under his hand addressed to the Governor, resign his office or may be removed from office by the Governor on the advice of the Chief Minister.

133. The Governor may ask the Chief Minister to continue to hold office until his successor enters upon the office of Chief Minister

134. {Omitted}

136. (1) A resolution for a vote of no-confidence moved by not less than twenty per centum of the total membership of the Provincial Assembly may be passed against the Chief Minister by the Provincial Assembly

(2) A resolution referred to in clause (1) shall not be voted upon before the expiration of three days, or later than seven days, from the day on which such resolution is moved in the Provincial Assembly

(3) If the resolution referred to in clause (1) is passed by a majority of the total membership of the Provincial Assembly, the Chief Minister shall cease to hold office

137. Subject to the Constitution, the executive authority of the Province shall extend to the matters with respect to which the Provincial Assembly has power to make laws:

Provided that, in any matter with respect to which both Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) and the Provincial Assembly of a Province have power to make laws, the executive authority of the Province shall be subject to, and limited by, the executive authority expressly conferred by the Constitution or by law made by Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) upon the Federal Government or authorities thereof

138. On the recommendation of the Provincial Government, the Provincial Assembly may by law confer functions upon officers or authorities subordinate to the Provincial Government

139. (1) All executive actions of the Provincial Government shall be expressed to be taken in the name of the Governor.

(2) The Governor shall by rules specify the manner in which orders and other instruments made and executed in his name shall be authenticated, and the validity of any order or instrument so authenticated shall not be questioned in any court on the ground that it was not made or executed by the Governor.

(3) The Governor shall also make rules for the allocation and transaction of the business of the Provincial Government

140. (1) The Governor of each Province shall appoint a person, being a person qualified to be appointed a Judge of the High Court, to be the Advocate-General for the Province

(2) It shall be the duty of the Advocate-General to give advice to the Provincial Government upon such legal matters, and to perform such other duties of a legal character, as may be referred or assigned to him by the Provincial government

(3) The Advocate-General shall hold office during the pleasure of the Governor

(4) The Advocate-General may, by writing under his hand addressed to the Governor, resign his office

RELATIONS BETWEEN FEDERATION AND PROVINCES

DISTRIBUTION OF LEGISLATIVE POWERS

141. Subject to the Constitution, Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) may make laws (including laws having extra-territorial operation) for the whole or any part of Pakistan, and a Provincial Assembly may make laws for the Province or any part thereof

142. Subject to the Constitution—

(a) Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) shall have exclusive power to make laws with respect to any matter in the Federal Legislative List,

(b) Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament), and a Provincial Assembly also, shall have power to make laws with respect to any matter in the Concurrent Legislative List,

(c) A Provincial Assembly shall, and Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) shall not, have power to make laws with respect to any matter not enumerated in either the Federal Legislative List or the Concurrent Legislative List, and

(d) Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) shall have exclusive power to make laws with respect to matters not enumerated in either of the Lists for such areas in the Federation as are not included in any Province

143. { . }

144. { . }

ADMINISTRATIVE RELATIONS BETWEEN FEDERATION AND PROVINCES

145. (1) The President may direct the Governor of any Province to discharge as his Agent, either generally or in any particular matter, such functions relating to such areas in the Federation which are not included in any Province as may be specified in the direction

(2) The provisions of Article 105 shall not apply to the discharge by the Governor of his functions under clause (1)

146. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Constitution, the Federal Government may, with the consent of the Government of a Province, entrust either conditionally or unconditionally to that Government, or to its officers, functions in relation to any matter to which the executive authority of the Federation extends.

(2) An Act of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) may, notwithstanding that it relates to a matter with respect to which a Provincial Assembly has no power to make laws, confer powers and impose duties upon a Province or officers and authorities thereof.

(3) Where by virtue of this Article powers and duties have been conferred or imposed upon a Province or officers or authorities thereof, there shall be paid by the Federation to the Province such sum as may be agreed or in default of agreement, as may be determined by an arbitrator appointed by the Chief Justice of Pakistan, in respect of any extra costs of administration incurred by the Province in connection with the exercise of those powers or the discharge of those duties.

147. Notwithstanding anything contained in the Constitution, the Government of a Province may, with the consent of the Federal Government, entrust, either conditionally or unconditionally, to the Federal Government, or to its officers, functions in relation to any matter to which the executive authority of the Province extends.

148. (1) The executive authority of every Province shall be so exercised as to secure compliance with Federal laws which apply in that Province.

(2) Without prejudice to any other provision of this Chapter, in the exercise of the executive authority of the Federation in any Province regard shall be had to the interests of that Province.

(3) It shall be the duty of the Federation to protect every Province against external aggression and internal disturbances and to ensure that the Government of every Province is carried on in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution.

149. (1) The executive authority of every Province shall be so exercised as not to impede or prejudice the exercise of the executive authority of the Federation, and the executive authority of the Federation shall extend to the giving of such directions to a Province as may appear to the Federal Government to be necessary for that purpose.

(2) The executive authority of the Federation shall also extend to the giving of directions to a Province as to the carrying into execution thereof of any Federal law which relates to a matter specified in the Concurrent Legislative List and authorises the giving of such directions.

(3) The executive authority of the Federation shall also extend to the giving of directions to a Province as to the construction and maintenance of means of communication declared in the direction to be of national or strategic importance.

(4) The executive authority of the Federation shall also extend to the giving of directions to a Province as to the manner in which the executive authority thereof is to be exercised for the purpose of preventing any grave menace to the peace or tranquility or economic life of Pakistan or any part thereof

150. Full faith and credit shall be given throughout Pakistan to public acts and records, and judicial proceedings of every Province

151. (1) Subject to clause (2), trade, commerce and intercourse throughout Pakistan shall be free

(2) Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) may by law impose such restrictions on the freedom of trade, commerce or intercourse between one Province and another or within any part of Pakistan as may be required in the public interest

(3) A Provincial Assembly or a Provincial Government shall not have power to—

(a) make any law, or take any executive action, prohibiting or restricting the entry into, or the export from, the Province of goods of any class or description, or

(b) impose a tax which, as between goods manufactured or produced in the Province and similar goods not so manufactured or produced, discriminates in favour of the former goods or which, in the case of goods manufactured or produced outside the Province discriminates between goods manufactured or produced in any area in Pakistan and similar goods manufactured or produced in any other area in Pakistan

(4) An Act of a Provincial Assembly which imposes any reasonable restriction in the interest of public health, public order or morality, or for the purpose of protecting animals or plants from disease or preventing or alleviating any serious shortage in the Province of an essential commodity shall not, if it was made with the consent of the President, be invalid

152. The Federation may, if it deems necessary to acquire any land situate in a Province for any purpose connected with a matter with respect to which Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) has power to make laws, require the Province to acquire the land on behalf, and at the expense, of the Federation or, if the land belongs to the Province, to transfer it to the Federation on such terms as may be agreed or, in default of agreement, as may be determined by an arbitrator appointed by the Chief Justice of Pakistan

SPECIAL PROVISIONS

152A (Omitted)

153 (1) There shall be a Council of Common Interests, in this Chapter referred to as the Council to be appointed by the President

(2) The members of the Council shall be—

(a) the Chief Ministers of the Provinces, and

(b) an equal number of members from the Federal Government to be nominated by the Prime Minister from time to time

(3) The Prime Minister, if he is a member of the Council, shall be the Chairman of the Council but, if at any time he is not a member, the President may nominate a Federal Minister who is a member of the Council to be its Chairman

(4) The Council shall be responsible to Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament)

154. (1) The Council shall formulate and regulate policies in relation to matters in Part II of the Federal Legislative List and, in so far as it is in relation to the affairs of the Federation, the matter in entry 34 (electricity) in the Concurrent Legislative List, and shall exercise supervision and control over related institutions

(2) The decisions of the Council shall be expressed in terms of the opinion of the majority

(3) Until Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) makes provision by law in this behalf, the Council may make its rules of procedure

(4) Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) in joint sitting may from time to time by resolution issue directions through the Federal Government to the Council generally or in a particular matter to take action as Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) may deem just and proper and such directions shall be binding on the Council.

(5) If the Federal Government or a Provincial Government is dissatisfied with a decision of the council, it may refer the matter to Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) in a joint sitting whose decision in this behalf shall be final

155. (1) If the interests of a Province, the Federal Capital or the Federally Administered Tribal Areas, or any of the inhabitants thereof, in water from any natural source of supply have been or are likely to be affected prejudicially by—

(a) any executive act or legislation taken or passed or proposed to be taken or passed, or

(b) the failure of any authority to exercise any of its powers with respect to the use and distribution or control of water from that source the Federal Government or the Provincial Government concerned may make a complaint in writing to the Council

(2) Upon receiving such complaint, the Council shall, after having considered the matter, either give its decision or request the President to appoint a commission consisting of such persons having special knowledge and experience in irrigation, engineering, administration, finance or law as he may think fit, hereinafter referred to as the Commission

(3) Until Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) makes provision by law in this behalf, the provisions of the Pakistan Commissions of Inquiry Act, 1956, as in force immediately before the commencing day shall apply to the Council or the Commission as if the Council or the Commission were a Commission appointed under that Act to which all the provisions of section 5 thereof applied and upon which the power contemplated by section 10A thereof had been conferred

(4) After considering the report and supplementary report, if any, of the Commission, the Council shall record its decision on all matters referred to the Commission

(5) Notwithstanding any law to the contrary, but subject to the provisions of clause (5) of Article 154, it shall be the duty of the Federal Government and the Provincial Government concerned in the matter in issue to give effect to the decision of the Council faithfully according to its terms and tenor

(6) No proceeding shall lie before any court at the instance of any party to a matter which is or has been in issue before the Council, or of any person whatsoever, in respect of a matter which is actually or has been or might or ought to have been a proper subject of complaint to the Council under this Article

156. (1) The President shall constitute a National Economic Council consisting of the Prime Minister, who shall be its Chairman, and such other members as the President may determine

Provided that the President shall nominate one member from each Province on the recommendation of the Government of that Province

(2) The National Economic Council shall review the overall economic condition of the country and shall, for advising the Federal Government and the Provincial Governments, formulate plans in respect of financial, commercial, social and economic policies, and in formulating such plans, it shall be guided by the Principles of Policy set out in Chapter 2 of Part II

157. (1) The Federal Government may in any Province construct or cause to be constructed hydro-electric or thermal power installations or grid stations for the generation of electricity and lay or cause to be laid inter-Provincial transmission lines

(2) The Government of a Province may—

(a) to the extent electricity is supplied to that Province from the national grid, require supply to be made in bulk for transmission and distribution within the Province,

(b) levy tax on consumption of electricity within the Province,

(c) construct power houses and grid stations and lay transmission lines for use within the Province, and

(d) determine the tariff for distribution of electricity within the Province

158 The Province in which a well-head of natural gas is situated shall have precedence over other parts of Pakistan in meeting the requirements from the well head, subject to the commitments and obligations as on the commencing day

159. (1) The Federal Government shall not unreasonably refuse to entrust to a Provincial Government such functions with respect to broadcasting and telecasting as may be necessary to enable that Government—

(a) to construct and use transmitters in the Province, and

(b) to regulate and impose fees in respect of, the construction and use of transmitters and the use of receiving apparatus in the Province

Provided that nothing in this clause shall be construed as requiring the Federal Government to entrust to any Provincial Government any control over the use of transmitters constructed or maintained by the Federal Government or by persons authorised by the Federal Government, or over the use of receiving apparatus by person so authorised

(2) Any functions so entrusted to a Provincial Government shall be exercised subject to such conditions as may be imposed by the Federal Government, including, notwithstanding anything contained in the Constitution, any conditions with respect to finance, but it shall not be lawful for the Federal Government so to impose any conditions regulating the matter broadcast or telecast by, or by authority of, the Provincial Government

(3) Any Federal law with respect to broadcasting and telecasting shall be such as to secure that effect can be given to the foregoing provisions of this Article

(4) If any question arises whether any conditions imposed on any Provincial Government are lawfully imposed, or whether any refusal by the Federal Government to entrust functions is unreasonable, the question shall be determined by an arbitrator appointed by the Chief Justice of Pakistan

(5) Nothing in this article shall be construed as restricting the powers of the Federal Government under the Constitution for the prevention of any grave menace to the peace or tranquility of Pakistan or any part thereof

PART VI

FINANCE, PROPERTY, CONTRACTS AND SUITS

CHAPTER 1

FINANCE

Distribution of Revenues between the Federation and the Provinces

160. (1) Within six months of the commencing day and thereafter at intervals not exceeding five years, the President shall constitute a National Finance Commission consisting of the Minister of Finance of the Federal Government, the Ministers of Finance of the Provincial Governments, and such other persons as may be appointed by the President after consultation with the Governors of the Provinces

(2) It shall be the duty of the National Finance Commission to make recommendations to the President as to—

(a) the distribution between the Federation and the Provinces of the net proceeds of the taxes mentioned in clause (3),

(b) the making of grants-in-aid by the Federal Government to the Provincial Governments,

(c) the exercise by the Federal Government and the Provincial Governments of the borrowing powers conferred by the Constitution, and

(d) any other matter relating to finance referred to the Commission by the President

(3) The taxes referred to in paragraph (a) of clause (2) are the following taxes raised under the authority of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament), namely—

(i) taxes on income, including corporation tax, but not including taxes on income consisting of remuneration paid out of the Federal Consolidated Fund,

(ii) taxes on the sales and purchases of goods imported, exported, produced, manufactured or consumed,

(iii) export duties on cotton, and such other export duties as may be specified by the President;

(iv) such duties of excise as may be specified by the President, and

(v) such other taxes as may be specified by the President

(4) As soon as may be after receiving the recommendation, of the National Finance Commission, the President shall, by order, specify, in accordance with the recommendations of the Commission under paragraph (a) of clause (2), the share of the net proceeds of the taxes mentioned in clause (3) which is to be allocated to each Province, and that share shall be paid to the Government of the Province concerned, and, notwithstanding the provision of Article 78 shall not form part of the Federal Consolidated Fund

(5) The recommendations of the National Finance Commission, together with an explanatory memorandum as to the action taken thereon, shall be laid before both Houses and the Provincial Assemblies

(6) At any time before an Order under clause (4) is made, the President may, by Order, make such amendments or modifications in the law relating to the distribution of revenues between the Federal Government and the Provincial Governments as he may deem necessary or expedient.

(7) The President may, by Order, make grants-in-aid of the revenues of the Provinces in need of assistance and such grants shall be charged upon the Federal Consolidated Fund

161. (1) Notwithstanding the provisions of Article 78 the net proceeds of the Federal duty of excise on natural gas levied at well-head and collected by the Federal Government and of the royalty collected by the Federal Government shall not form part of the Federal Consolidated Fund and shall be paid to the Province in which the well-head of natural gas is situated

(2) The net profits earned by the Federal Government, or any undertaking established or administered by the Federal Government from the bulk generation of power at a hydro-electric station shall be paid to the Province in which the hydro-electric station is situated

Explanation—For the purposes of this clause "net profits" shall be computed by deducting from the revenues accruing from the bulk supply of power from the bus-bars of a hydro-electric station at a rate to be determined by the Council of Common Interests, the operating expenses of the station, which shall include any sums payable as taxes, duties, interest or return on investment, and depreciations and element of obsolescence, and over-heads, and provision for reserves

162. No Bill or amendment which imposes or varies a tax or duty the whole or part of the net proceeds whereof is assigned to any Province, or which varies the meaning of the expression "agricultural income" as defined for the purpose of the enactments relating to income-tax, or which affects the principles on which under any of the foregoing provisions of this Chapter moneys are or may be distributable to Provinces, shall be introduced or moved in the National Assembly except with the previous sanction of the President

163. A Provincial Assembly may by Act impose taxes, not exceeding such limits as may from time to time be fixed by Act of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament), on persons engaged in professions, trades, callings or employments, and no such Act of the Assembly shall be regarded as imposing a tax on income

Miscellaneous Financial Provisions

164. The Federation or a Province may make grants for any purpose, notwithstanding that the purpose is not one with respect to which Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) or, as the case may be, a Provincial Assembly may make laws

165 (1) The Federal Government shall not, in respect of its property or income, be liable to taxation under any Act of Provincial Assembly and, subject to clause (2), a Provincial Government shall not, in respect of its property or income, be liable to taxation under Act of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) or under Act of the Provincial Assembly of any other Province

(2) If a trade or business of any kind is carried on by or on behalf of the Government of a Province outside that Province, that Government may, in respect of any property used in connection with that trade or business or any income arising from that trade or business, be taxed under Act of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) or under Act of the Provincial Assembly of the Province in which that trade or business is carried on

(3) Nothing in this Article shall prevent the imposition of fees for services rendered

165A. (1) For the removal of doubt, it is hereby declared that Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) has, and shall be deemed always to have had, the power to make a law to provide for the levy and recovery of a tax on the income of a corporation, company or other body or institution established by or under a Federal law or a Provincial law or an existing law or a corporation, company or other body or institution owned or controlled, either directly or indirectly, by the Federal Government or a Provincial Government, regardless of the ultimate destination of such income

Articles 166-167]

(2) All orders made, proceedings taken and acts done by any authority or person, which were made, taken or done, or purported to have been made, taken or done, before the commencement of the Constitution (Amendment) Order 1985, in exercise of the powers derived from any law referred to in clause (1), or in execution of any orders made by any authority in the exercise or purported exercise of powers as aforesaid, shall, notwithstanding any judgment of any court or tribunal, including the Supreme Court and a High Court, be deemed to be and always to have been validly made, taken or done and shall not be called in question in any court, including the Supreme Court and a High Court, on any ground whatsoever

(3) Every judgment or order of any court or tribunal, including the Supreme Court and a High Court, which is repugnant to the provisions of clause (1) or clause (2) shall be, and shall be deemed always to have been, void and of no effect whatsoever

BORROWING AND AUDIT

166. The executive authority of the Federation extends to borrowing upon the security of the Federal Consolidated Fund within such limits, if any, as may from time to time be fixed by Act of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament), and to the giving of guarantees within such limits, if any, as may be so fixed

167 (1) Subject to the provisions of this Article, the executive authority of a Province extends to borrowing upon the security of the Provincial Consolidated Fund within such limits, if any, as may from time to time be fixed by Act of the Provincial Assembly, and to the giving of guarantees within such limits, if any, as may be so fixed

(2) The Federal Government may, subject to such conditions, if any, as it may think fit to impose, make loans to, or so long as any limits fixed under Article 166 are not exceeded give guarantees in respect of loans raised by, any Province and any sums required for the purpose of making loans to a Province shall be charged upon the Federal Consolidated Fund

(4) A Province may not, without the consent of the Federal Government, raise any loan if there is still outstanding any part of a loan made to the Province by the Federal Government, or in respect of which guarantee has been given by the Federal Government, and consent under this clause may be granted subject to such conditions, if any, as the Federal Government may think fit to impose

Audit and Accounts

168. (1) There shall be an Auditor-General of Pakistan, who shall be appointed by the President

(2) Before entering upon office, the Auditor-General shall make before the Chief Justice of Pakistan oath in the form set out in the Third Schedule

(3) The terms and conditions of service, including the term of office, of the Auditor-General shall be determined by Act of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) and, until so determined, by order of the President

(4) A person who has held office as Auditor-General shall not be eligible for further appointment in the service of Pakistan before the expiration of two years after he has ceased to hold that office

(5) The Auditor-General shall not be removed from office except in the like manner and on the like grounds as a Judge of the Supreme Court

(6) At any time when the office of the Auditor-General is vacant or the Auditor-General is absent or is unable to perform the functions of his office due to any cause, such other person as the President may direct shall act as Auditor-General and perform the functions of that office

169. The Auditor-General shall, in relation to-

(a) the accounts of the Federation and of the Provinces, and

(b) the accounts of any authority or body established by the Federation or a Province, perform such functions and exercise such powers as may be determined by or under Act of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) and, until so determined, by order of the President

170. The accounts of the Federation and of the Provinces shall be kept in such form and in accordance with such principles and methods as the Auditor-General may, with the approval of the President, prescribe

171. The reports of the Auditor-General relating to the accounts of the Federation shall be submitted to the President, who shall cause them to be laid before the National Assembly and the reports of the Auditor-General relating to the accounts of a Province shall be submitted to the Governor of the Province, who shall cause them to be laid before the Provincial Assembly

CHAPTER 3*PROPERTY, CONTRACTS, LIABILITIES AND SUITS

172. (1) Any property which has no rightful owner shall, if located in a Province, vest in the Government of that Province, and in every other case, in the Federal Government

(2) All lands, minerals and other things of value within the continental shelf or underlying the ocean within the territorial waters of Pakistan shall vest in the Federal Government

173. (1) The executive authority of the Federation and of a Province shall extend, subject to any Act of the appropriate Legislature, to the grant, sale, disposition or mortgage of any property vested in, and to the purchase or acquisition of property on behalf of, the Federal Government or, as the case may be, the Provincial Government, and to the making of contracts

(2) All property acquired for the purposes of the Federation or of a Province shall vest in the Federal Government or, as the case may be, in the Provincial Government

(3) All contracts made in the exercise of the executive authority of the Federation or of a Province shall be expressed to be made in the name of the President or, as the case may be, the Governor of the Province, and all such contracts and all assurances of property made in the exercise of that authority shall be executed on behalf of the President or Governor by such persons and in such manner as he may direct or authorize

(4) Neither the President, nor the Governor of a Province, shall be personally liable in respect of any contract or assurance made or executed in the exercise of the executive authority of the Federation or, as the case may be, the Province, nor shall any person making or executing any such contract or assurance on behalf of any of them be personally liable in respect thereof

(5) Transfer of land by the Federal Government or a Provincial Government shall be regulated by law

174. The Federation may sue or be sued by the name of Pakistan and a Province may sue or be sued by the name of the Province

PART VII THE JUDICATURE

CHAPTER 1 THE COURTS

175. (1) There shall be a Supreme Court of Pakistan, a High Court for each Province and such other courts as may be established by law

(2) No court shall have any jurisdiction save as is or may be conferred on it by the Constitution or by or under any law

(3) The Judiciary shall be separated progressively from the Executive within fourteen years from the commencing day.

CHAPTER 2 THE SUPREME COURT OF PAKISTAN

176 The Supreme Court shall consist of a Chief Justice to be known as the Chief Justice of Pakistan and so many other Judges as may be determined by the National Assembly (Majlis-e-Shura (Parliament)) or, until so determined as may be fixed by the President

177. (1) The Chief Justice of Pakistan shall be appointed by the President, and each of the other Judges shall be appointed by the President after consultation with the Chief Justice.

(2) A person shall not be appointed a Judge of the Supreme Court unless he is a citizen of Pakistan and—

(a) has for a period of or for periods aggregating, not less than five years been a judge of a High Court (including a High Court which existed in Pakistan at any time before the commencing day); or

(b) has for a period of, or for periods aggregating not less than fifteen years been an advocate of a High Court (including a High Court which existed in Pakistan at any time before the commencing day)

178. Before entering upon office, the Chief Justice of Pakistan shall make before the President, and any other Judge of the Supreme Court shall make before the Chief Justice, oath in the form set out in the Third Schedule

179. (1) A Judge of the Supreme Court shall hold office until he attains the age of sixty-five years, unless he sooner resigns or is removed from office in accordance with the Constitution

180. At any time when—

(a) the office of Chief Justice of Pakistan is vacant, or

(b) the Chief Justice of Pakistan is absent or is unable to perform the functions of his office due to any other cause, the President shall appoint the most senior of the other Judges of the Supreme Court to act as Chief Justice of Pakistan

181. (1) At any time when—

(a) the office of a Judge of the Supreme Court is vacant, or

(b) a Judge of the Supreme Court is absent or is unable to perform the functions of his office due to any other cause, the President may, in the manner provided in clause (1) of Article 177, appoint a Judge of a High Court who is qualified for appointment as a Judge of the Supreme Court to act temporarily as a Judge of the Supreme Court.

Explanation—In this clause, 'Judge of a High Court' includes a person who has retired as a Judge of a High Court.

(2) An appointment under this Article shall continue in force until it is revoked by the President.

182. If at any time it is not possible for want of quorum of Judges of the Supreme Court to hold or continue any sitting of the Court, or for any other reason it is necessary to increase temporarily the number of Judges of the Supreme Court, the Chief Justice of Pakistan may, in writing,—

(a) with the approval of the President, request any person who has held the office of a Judge of that Court and since whose ceasing to hold that office three years have not elapsed; or to attend sittings of the Supreme Court as an ad hoc Judge for such period as may be necessary and while so attending an ad hoc Judge shall have the same power and jurisdiction as a Judge of the Supreme Court

(b) with the approval of the President and with the consent of the Chief Justice of a High Court, require a Judge of that Court qualified for appointment as a Judge of the Supreme Court.

183. (1) The permanent seat of the Supreme Court shall, subject to clause (3), be at Islamabad

(2) The Supreme Court may from time to time sit in such other places as the Chief Justice of Pakistan, with the approval of the President, may appoint

(3) Until provision is made for establishing the Supreme Court at Islamabad, the seat of the Court shall be at such place as the President may appoint

184 (1) The Supreme Court shall, to the exclusion of every other court, have original jurisdiction in any dispute between any two or more Governments

Explanation—In this clause, "Governments" means the Federal Government and the Provincial Governments

(2) In the exercise of the jurisdiction conferred on it by clause (1), the Supreme Court shall pronounce declaratory judgments only

(3) Without prejudice to the provisions of Article 199, the Supreme Court shall, if it considers that a question of public importance with reference to the enforcement of any of the Fundamental Rights conferred by Chapter I of Part II is involved have the power to make an order of the nature mentioned in the said Article

185. (1) Subject to this Article, the Supreme Court shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine appeals from judgments, decrees, final orders or sentences

(2) An appeal shall lie to the Supreme Court from any judgment, decree, final order or sentence of a High Court—

(a) if the High Court has on appeal reversed an order of acquittal of an accused person and sentenced him to death or to transportation for life or imprisonment for life, or, on revision, has enhanced a sentence to a sentence as aforesaid, or

(b) if the High Court has withdrawn for trial before itself any case from any court subordinate to it and has in such trial convicted the accused person and sentenced him as aforesaid; or

(c) if the High Court has imposed any punishment on any person for contempt of the High Court, or

(d) if the amount or value of the subject matter of the dispute in the court of first instance was, and also in dispute in appeal is, not less than fifty thousand rupees or such other sum as may be specified in that behalf by Act of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) and the judgment, decree or final order appealed from has varied or set aside the judgment, decree or final order of the court immediately below, or

(e) if the judgment decree or final order involves directly or indirectly some claim or question respecting property of the like amount or value and the judgment, decree or final order appealed from has varied or set aside the judgment, decree or final order of the court immediately below, or

(f) if the High Court certifies that the case involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Constitution

(3) An appeal to the Supreme Court from a judgment, decree, order or sentence of a High Court in a case to which clause (2) does not apply shall lie only if the Supreme Court grants leave to appeal

186. (1) If, at any time, the President considers that it is desirable to obtain the opinion of the Supreme Court on any question of law which he considers of public importance, he may refer the question to the Supreme Court for consideration

(2) The Supreme Court shall consider a question so referred and report its opinion on the question to the President

186A The Supreme Court may, if it considers it expedient to do so in the interest of justice, transfer any case, appeal or other proceedings pending before any High Court to any other High Court

187. (1) Subject to clause (2) of Article 175, the Supreme Court shall have power to issue such directions, orders or decrees as may be necessary for doing complete justice in any case or matter pending before it, including an order for the purpose of securing the attendance of any person or the discovery or production of any document

(2) Any such direction, order or decree shall be enforceable throughout Pakistan and shall, where it is to be executed in a Province, or a territory or an area not forming part of a Province but within the jurisdiction of the High Court of the Province, be executed as if it had been issued by the High Court of that Province

(3) If a question arises as to which High Court shall give effect to a direction, order or decree of the Supreme Court, the decision of the Supreme Court on the question shall be final

188. The Supreme Court shall have power, subject to the provisions of any Act of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) and of any rules made by the Supreme Court, to review any judgment pronounced or any order made by it

189. Any decision of the Supreme Court shall, to the extent that it decides a question of law or is based upon or enunciates a principle of law, be binding on all other courts in Pakistan

190. All executive and judicial authorities throughout Pakistan shall act in aid of the Supreme Court

191. Subject to the Constitution and law, the Supreme Court may make rules regulating the practice and procedure of the Court

CHAPTER 3

THE HIGH COURTS

192 (1) A High Court shall consist of a Chief Justice and so many other Judges as may be determined by law or, until so determined, as may be fixed by the President

(2) The Sind and Baluchistan High Court shall cease to function as a common High Court for the Provinces of Baluchistan and Sind

(3) The President shall, by order, establish a High Court for each of the Provinces of Baluchistan and Sind and may make such provision in the order for the principal seats of the two High Courts, transfer of the Judges of the common High Court, transfer of cases pending in the common High Court immediately before the establishment of two High Courts and, generally, for matters consequential or ancillary to the common High Court ceasing to function and the establishment of the two High Courts as he may deem fit

(4) The jurisdiction of a High Court may, by Act of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament), be extended to any area in Pakistan not forming part of a Province

193 (1) A Judge of a High Court shall be appointed by the President after consultation—

(a) with the Chief Justice of Pakistan,

(b) with the Governor concerned, and except where the appointment is that of Chief Justice, with the Chief Justice of the High Court

(2) A person shall not be appointed a Judge of a High Court unless he is a citizen of Pakistan, is not less than forty years of age, and—

(a) he has for a period of, or for periods aggregating, not less than ten years been an advocate of a High Court (including a High Court which existed in Pakistan at any time before the commencing day), or

(b) he is and has for a period of not less than ten years been, a member of a civil service prescribed by law for the purposes of this paragraph and has, for a period of not less than three years served as or exercised the functions of a District Judge in Pakistan, or

(c) he has for a period of not less than ten years, held a judicial office in Pakistan

Explanation—In computing the period during which a person has been an advocate of a High Court or held judicial office, there shall be included any period during which he has held judicial office after he became an advocate or as the case may be the period during which he has been an advocate after having held judicial office

(3) In this Article, "District Judge" means Judge of a principal civil court of original jurisdiction

194 Before entering upon office the Chief Justice of a High Court shall take before the Governor, and any other Judge of the Court shall make before the Chief Justice oath in the form set out in the Third Schedule.

195. (1) A Judge of a High Court shall hold office until he attains the age of sixty-two years, unless he sooner resigns or is removed from office in accordance with the Constitution

196. At any time when—

(a) the office of Chief Justice of a High Court is vacant, or

(b) the Chief Justice of a High Court is absent or is unable to perform the functions of his office due to any other cause, the President shall appoint one of the other Judges of the High Court, or may request one of the Judges of the Supreme Court, to act as Chief Justice

197. At any time when—

(a) the office of a Judge of a High Court is vacant, or

(b) a Judge of a High Court is absent or is unable to perform the functions of his office due to any other cause or

(c) for any reason it is necessary to increase the number of Judges of a High Court, the President may, in the manner provided in clause (1) of Article 193 appoint a person qualified for appointment as a Judge of the High Court to be Additional Judge of the Court for such period as the President may determine, being a period not exceeding such period, if any, as may be prescribed by law

198. (1) Each High Court in existence immediately before the commencing day shall continue to have its principal seat at the place where it had such seat before that day.

(2) Each High Court and the Judges and divisional courts thereof shall sit at its principal seat and the seats of its Benches and may hold at any place within its territorial jurisdiction, circuit courts consisting of such of the Judges as may be nominated by the Chief Justice

(3) The Lahore High Court shall have a Bench each at Bahawalpur Multan and Rawalpindi, the High Court of Sind shall have a Bench at Sukkur; the Peshawar High Court shall have a Bench each at Abbottabad and Dera Ismail Khan and the High Court of Baluchistan shall have a Bench at Sibi

(4) Each of the High Courts may have Benches at such other places as the Governor may determine on the advice of the Cabinet and in consultation with the Chief Justice of the High Court

(5) A Bench referred in clause (3), or established under clause (4) shall consist of such of the Judges of the High Court as may be nominated by the Chief Justice from time to time for a period of not less than one year

(6) The Governor in consultation with the Chief Justice of the High Court shall make rules to provide the following matters, that is to say,—

(a) assigning the area in relation to which each Bench shall exercise jurisdiction vested in the High Court, and

(b) for all incidental, supplemental or consequential matters

199. (1) Subject to the Constitution, a High Court may if it is satisfied that no other adequate remedy is provided by law —

(a) on the application of any aggrieved party, make an order—

(i) directing a person performing within the territorial jurisdiction of the Court, functions in connection with the affairs of the Federation, a Province or a local authority, to refrain from doing anything he is not permitted by law to do, or to do anything he is required by law to do, or

(ii) declaring that any act done or proceeding taken within the territorial jurisdiction of the Court by a person performing functions in connection with the affairs of the Federation, a Province or a local authority has been done or taken without lawful authority and is of no legal effect, or

(b) on the application of any person, make an order—

(i) directing that a person in custody within the territorial jurisdiction of the Court be brought before it so that the Court may satisfy itself that he is not being held in custody without lawful authority or in an unlawful manner, or

(ii) requiring a person within the territorial jurisdiction of the Court holding or purporting to hold a public office to show under what authority of law he claims to hold that office, or

(c) on the application of any aggrieved person, make an order giving such directions to any person or authority, including any Government exercising any power or performing any function in, or in relation to, any territory within the jurisdiction of that Court as may be appropriate for the enforcement of any of the Fundamental Rights conferred by Chapter 1 of Part II

(2) Subject to the Constitution, the right to move a High Court for the enforcement of any of the Fundamental Rights conferred by Chapter 1 of Part II shall not be abridged

(3) An order shall not be made under clause (1) on application made by or in relation to a person who is a member of the Armed Forces of Pakistan, or who is for the time being subject to any law relating to any of those Forces, in respect of his terms and conditions of service, in respect of any matter arising out of his service, or in respect of any action taken in relation to him as a member of the Armed Forces of Pakistan or as a person subject to such law.

(4) Where—

(a) an application is made to a High Court for an order under paragraph (a) or paragraph (c) of clause (1), and

(b) the making of an interim order would have the effect of prejudicing or interfering with the carrying out of a public work or of otherwise being harmful to public interest or State property or of impeding the assessment or collection of public revenues, the Court shall not make an interim order unless the prescribed law officer has been given notice of the application and he or any person authorised by him in that behalf has had an opportunity of being heard and the Court, for reasons to be recorded in writing is satisfied that the interim order—

(i) would not have such effect as aforesaid, or

(ii) would have the effect of suspending an order or proceeding which on the face of the record is without jurisdiction

(4A) An interim order made by a High Court on an application made to it to question the validity or legal effect of any order made, proceeding taken or act done by any authority or person, which has been made, taken or done or purports to have been made, taken or done under any law which is specified in part I of the First Schedule or relates to, or is connected with, State property or assessment or collection of public revenues shall cease to have effect on the expiration of a period of six months following the day on which it is made, unless the case is finally decided, or the interim order is withdrawn, by the Court earlier

(4B) Every case in which, on an application under clause (1), the High Court has made an interim order shall be disposed of by the High Court on merits within six months from the day on which it is made, unless the High Court is prevented from doing so for sufficient cause to be recorded

(5) In this Article, unless the context otherwise requires,—

“person” includes any body politic or corporate, any authority of or under the control of the Federal Government or of a Provincial Government, and any Court or tribunal, other than the Supreme Court, a High Court or a court or tribunal established under a law relating to the Armed Forces of Pakistan, and “prescribed law officer” means—

(a) in relation to an application affecting the Federal Government or an authority of or under the control of the Federal Government, the Attorney-General, and

(b) in any other case, the Advocate-General for the Province in which the application is made

200. (1) The President may transfer a Judge of a High Court from one High Court to another High Court, but no Judge shall be so transferred except with his consent and after consultation by the President with the Chief Justice of Pakistan and the Chief Justices of both High Courts

Provided that such consent, or consultation with the Chief Justices of the High Courts, shall not be necessary if such transfer is for a period not exceeding two years at a time

Explanation—In this Article, “Judge” does not include a Chief Justice but includes a Judge for the time being acting as Chief Justice of a High Court other than a Judge of the Supreme Court acting as such in pursuance of a request made under paragraph (b) of Article 196

(2) Where a Judge is so transferred or is appointed to an office other than the principal seat of the High Court, he shall, during the period for which he serves as a Judge of the High Court to which he is transferred, or holds such other office, be entitled to such allowances and privileges, in addition to his salary, as the President may, by order, determine

(3) If at any time it is necessary for any reason to increase temporarily the number of Judges of a High Court, the Chief Justice of that Court may require a Judge of any other High Court to attend sittings of the former High Court for such period as may be necessary and, while so attending the sittings of the High Court, the Judge shall have the same power and jurisdiction as a Judge of that High Court

Provided that a Judge shall not be so required except with his consent and the approval of the President and after consultation with the Chief Justice of Pakistan and the Chief Justice of the High Court of which he is a Judge

Explanation—In this Article, "High Court" includes a Bench of a High Court

(4) A Judge of a High Court who does not accept transfer to another High Court under clause (1) shall be deemed to have retired from his office and, on such retirement, shall be entitled to receive a pension calculated on the basis of the length of his service as Judge and total service, if any, in the service of Pakistan

201 Subject to Article 189, any decision of a High Court shall, to the extent that it decides a question of law or is based upon or enunciates a principle of law, be binding on all courts subordinate to it

202 Subject to the Constitution and law, a High Court may make rules regulating the practice and procedure of the Court or of any court subordinate to it

203. Each High Court shall supervise and control all courts subordinate to it

CHAPTER 3A

FEDERAL SHARIAT COURT

203A. The provisions of this Chapter shall have effect notwithstanding anything contained in the Constitution

203B In this Chapter, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context—

(a) "Chief Justice" means, Chief Justice of the Court,

(b) "Court" means the Federal Shariat Court constituted in pursuance of Article 203C,

(bb) "Judge" means Judge of the Court,

(c) "Law" includes any custom or usage having the force of law but does not include the Constitution

203C (1) There shall be constituted for the purposes of this Chapter a Court to be called the Federal Shariat Court

(2) The Court shall consist of not more than eight Muslim Judges, including the Chief Justice, to be appointed by the President

(3) The Chief Justice shall be a person who is, or has been, or is about to be a Judge of the Supreme Court or who is or has been a Judge of a High Court

(3A) Of the Judges not more than four shall be persons each one of whom is, or has been, or is qualified to be, a Judge of a High Court and not more than three shall be ulema who are well-versed in Islamic law

(4) The Chief Justice and a Judge shall hold office for a period not exceeding three years, but may be appointed for such further term or terms as the President may determine

Provided that a Judge of a High Court shall not be appointed to be a Judge for a period exceeding two years except with his consent and, except where the Judge is, himself the Chief Justice, after consultation by the President with the Chief Justice of the High Court

(4A) The Chief Justice, if he is not a Judge of the Supreme Court, and a Judge who is not a Judge of a High Court, may, by writing under his hand addressed to the President, resign his office

(4B) The President may, at any time, by order in writing,—

(a) modify the term of appointment of a Judge,

(b) assign to a Judge any other office, and

(c) require a Judge to perform such other functions as the President may deem fit, and pass such other order as he may consider appropriate

Explanation—In this clause and clause (4C), "Judge" includes Chief Justice.

(4C) While he is performing the functions which he is required under clause (4B) to perform or holding any other office assigned to him under that clause, a Judge shall be entitled to the same salary, allowances and privileges as are admissible to the Chief Justice or, as the case may be, Judge of the Court

(5) A Judge of a High Court who does not accept appointment as a Judge shall be deemed to have retired from his office and, on such retirement, shall be entitled to receive a pension calculated on the basis of the length of his service as Judge and total service, if any, in the service of Pakistan

(6) The Principal seat of the Court shall be at Islamabad, but Court may from time to time sit in such other places in Pakistan as the Chief Justice may, with the approval of the President, appoint

(7) Before entering upon office, the Chief Justice and a Judge shall make before the President or a person nominated by him oath in the form set out in the Third Schedule

(8) At any time when the Chief Justice or a Judge is absent or is unable to perform the functions of his office the President shall appoint another person qualified for the purpose to act as Chief Justice or, as the case may be, Judge

(9) A Chief Justice who is not a Judge of the Supreme Court shall be entitled to the same salary, allowances and privileges as are admissible to a Judge of the Supreme Court and a Judge who is not a Judge of a High Court shall be entitled to the same salary, allowances and privileges as are admissible to a Judge of a High Court

203D. (1) The Court may, either of its own motion or on the petition of a citizen of Pakistan or the Federal Government or a Provincial Government, examine and decide the question whether or not any law or provision of law is repugnant to the injunctions of Islam, as laid down in the Holy Quran and Sunnah of the Holy Prophet, hereinafter referred to as the Injunctions of Islam

(1A) Where the Court takes up the examination of any law or provision of law under clause (1) and such law or provision of law appears to it to be repugnant to the Injunctions of Islam, the Court shall cause to be given to the Federal Government in the case of a law with respect to a matter in the Federal Legislative List or the Concurrent Legislative List, or to the Provincial Government in the case of a law with respect to a matter not enumerated in either of those Lists, a notice specifying the particular provisions that appear to it to be so repugnant, and afford to such Government adequate opportunity to have its point of view placed before the Court

(2) If the Court decides that any law or provision of law is repugnant to the Injunctions of Islam, it shall set out in its decision—

(a) the reasons for its holding that opinion, and

(b) the extent to which such law or provision is so repugnant, and specify the day on which the decision shall take effect

Provided that no such decision shall be deemed to take effect before the expiration of the period within which an appeal therefrom may be preferred to the Supreme Court or, where an appeal has been so preferred, before the disposal of such appeal

(3) If any law or provision of law is held by the Court to be repugnant to the Injunctions of Islam,—

(a) the President in the case of a law with respect to a matter in the Federal Legislative List or the Concurrent Legislative List, or the Governor in the case of a law with respect to a matter not enumerated in either of those Lists, shall take steps to amend the law so as to bring such law or provision into conformity with the Injunctions of Islam, and

(b) such law or provision shall, to the extent to which it is held to be so repugnant, cease to have effect on the day on which the decision of the Court takes effect

(3A) Notwithstanding anything contained in this Chapter, in respect of any fiscal law or any law relating to the levy and collection of taxes and fees or banking or insurance practice and procedure, the Court shall, in case of law held by it to be repugnant to the injunctions of Islam, in consultation with persons having special knowledge of the subject, recommend to the Government specific measures and a reasonable time within which to take adequate steps and amend such law so as to bring it in conformity with the injunctions of Islam

Provided that the decisions of the Court shall not have retrospective effect and no right or claim shall be based thereon accordingly directly or indirectly

(3B) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Constitution including this Chapter or clause (3A) or anything done pursuant thereto or any law or any judgment of any court to the contrary, all existing laws relating to the levy and collection of taxes and fees or banking or insurance practice and procedure which are the subject matter of decision of the Court referred to in clause (3A), shall continue to remain in force until such time as appropriate laws are enacted by the legislature in substitution of such existing laws as a consequence of the final decision of the Court as stated in clause (3A) and until the said laws have been enforced

Provided that nothing contained in clauses (3A) and (3B) shall apply to assessments made orders passed, proceedings pending and amounts payable or recovered before the enforcement of the laws enacted in pursuance of clause (3A)

203DD. (1) The Court may call for and examine the record of any case decided by any criminal court under any law relating to the enforcement of Hudood for the purpose of satisfying itself as to the correctness, legality or propriety of any finding, sentence or order recorded or passed by, and as to the regularity of any proceedings of, such court and may when calling for such record direct that the execution of any sentence be suspended and if the accused is in confinement, that he be released on bail or on his own bond pending the examination of the record

(2) In any case the record of which has been called for by the Court the Court may pass such order as it may deem fit and may enhance the sentence

Provided that nothing in this Article shall be deemed to authorize the Court to convert a finding of acquittal into one of conviction and no order under this Article shall be made to the prejudice of the accused unless he has had an opportunity of being heard in his own defence

(3) The Court shall have such other jurisdiction as may be conferred on it by or under any law

203E. (1) For the purposes of the performance of its functions the Court shall have the powers of a civil court trying a suit under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (Act V of 1908), in respect of the following matters namely —

(a) summoning and enforcing the attendance of any person and examining him on oath,

(b) requiring the discovery and production of any document,

(c) receiving evidence on affidavits and

(d) issuing commissions for the examination of witnesses or documents

(2) The Court shall have power to conduct its proceedings and regulate its procedure in all respects as it deems fit

(3) The Court shall have the power of a High Court to punish its own contempt

(4) A party to any proceedings before the Court under clause (1) of Article 203D may be represented by a legal practitioner who is a Muslim and has been enrolled as an advocate of a High Court for a period of not less than five years or as an advocate of the Supreme Court or by a jurisconsult selected by the party from out of a panel of jurisconsults maintained by the Court for the purpose

(5) For being eligible to have his name borne on the panel of jurisconsults referred to in clause (4), a person shall be an Aalim who in the opinion of the Court, is well-versed in Shariat

(6) A legal practitioner or jurisconsult representing a party before the Court shall not plead for the party but shall state, expound and interpret the Injunctions of Islam relevant to the proceedings so far as may be known to him and submit to the Court a written statement of his interpretation of such Injunctions of Islam

(7) The Court may invite any person in Pakistan or abroad whom the Court considers to be well-versed in Islamic law to appear before it and render such assistance as may be required of him

(8) No court-fee shall be payable in respect of any petition or application made to the Court under Article 203D

(9) The Court shall have power to review any decision given or order made by it

203F (1) Any party to any proceedings before the Court under Article 203D aggrieved by the final decision of the Court in such proceedings may, within sixty days of such decision, prefer an appeal to the Supreme Court

Provided that an appeal on behalf of the Federation or of a Province may be preferred within six months of such decision

(2) The provisions of clauses (2) and (3) of Article 203D and clauses (4) to (8) of Article 203E shall apply to and in relation to the Supreme Court as if reference in those provisions to Court were a reference to the Supreme Court

(2A) An appeal shall lie to the Supreme Court from any judgment, final order or sentence of the Federal Shariat Court,—

(a) if the Federal Shariat Court has on appeal reversed an order of acquittal of an accused person and sentenced him to death or imprisonment for life or imprisonment for a term exceeding fourteen years, or, on revision, has enhanced a sentence as aforesaid, or

(b) if the Federal Shariat Court has imposed any punishment on any person for contempt of the Court

(2B) An appeal to the Supreme Court from a judgment, decision, order or sentence of the Federal Shariat Court in a case to which the preceding clauses do not apply shall lie only if the Supreme Court grants leave to appeal

(3) For the purpose of the exercise of the jurisdiction conferred by this article there shall be constituted in the Supreme Court a Bench to be called the Appeal Bench and consisting of,—

(a) three Justices of the Supreme Court, and

(b) not more than two Ulema to be appointed by the President to attend sittings of the Bench as ad hoc members thereof from amongst the Judges of the Federal Shariat Court or from out of a panel of Ulema to be drawn up by the President in consultation with the Chief Justice

(4) A person appointed under paragraph (b) of clause (3) shall hold office for such period as the President may determine

(5) Reference in clauses (1) and (2) to Supreme Court shall be construed as a reference to the Shariat Appellate Bench

(6) While attending sittings of the Shariat Appellate Bench, a person appointed under paragraph (b) of clause (3) shall have the same power and jurisdiction, and be entitled to the same privileges, as a Judge of the Supreme Court and be paid such allowances as the President may determine

203G. Save as provided in Article 203F, no court or tribunal, including the Supreme Court and a High Court, shall entertain any proceeding or exercise any power or jurisdiction in respect of any matter within the power or jurisdiction of the Court

203GG. Subject to Article 203D and 203F, any decision of the Court in the exercise of its jurisdiction under this Chapter shall be binding on a High Court and on all courts subordinate to a High Court

203H. (1) Subject to clause (2) nothing in this Chapter shall be deemed to require any proceedings pending in any court or tribunal immediately before the commencement of this Chapter or initiated after such commencement, to be adjourned or stayed by reason only of a petition having been made to the Court for a decision as to whether or not a law or provision of law relevant to the decision of the point in issue in such proceedings is repugnant to the Injunctions of Islam, and all such proceedings shall continue, and the point in issue therein shall be decided, in accordance with the law for the time being in force

(2) All proceedings under clause (1) of Article 203B of the Constitution that may be pending before any High Court immediately before the commencement of this Chapter shall stand transferred to the Court and shall be dealt with by the Court from the stage from which they are so transferred

(3) Neither the Court nor the Supreme Court shall in the exercise of its jurisdiction under this Chapter have power to grant an injunction or make any interim order in relation to any proceedings pending in any other court or tribunal

203I. {Omitted}

203J. (1) The Court may, by notification in the official Gazette make rules for carrying out the purposes of this Chapter

(2) In particular, and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such rules may make provision in respect of all or any of the following matters, namely —

(a) the scale of payment of honorarium to be made to juriconsults, experts and witnesses summoned by the Court to defray the expenses, if any, incurred by them in attending for the purposes of the proceedings before the Courts,

(b) the form of oath to be made by a jurisconsult, expert or witness appearing before the Court,

(c) the powers and functions of the Court being exercised or performed by Benches consisting of one or more members constituted by the Chief Justices,

(d) the decision of the Court being expressed in terms of the opinion of the majority of its members or, as the case may be, of the members constituting a Bench, and

(e) the decision of cases in which the members constituting a Bench are equally divided in their opinion

(3) Until rules are made under clause (1), the Shariat Benches of Superior Courts Rules, 1979, shall, with the necessary modifications and so far as they are not inconsistent with the provisions of this Chapter, continue in force

GENERAL PROVISIONS RELATING TO THE JUDICATURE

204. (1) In this Article, "Court" means the Supreme Court or a High Court

(2) A Court shall have power to punish any person who,—

(a) abuses, interferes with or obstructs the process of the Court in any way or disobeys any order of the Court,

(b) scandalizes the Court or otherwise does anything which tends to bring the Court or a Judge of the Court into hatred, ridicule or contempt;

(c) does anything which tends to prejudice the determination of a matter pending before the Court, or

(d) does any other thing which, by law, constitutes contempt of the Court

(3) The exercise of the power conferred on a Court by this Article may be regulated by law and, subject to law, by rules made by the Court

205. The remuneration and other terms and conditions of service of a Judge of the Supreme Court or of a High Court shall be as provided in the Fifth Schedule

206. (1) A Judge of the Supreme Court or a High Court may resign his office by writing under his hand addressed to the President

(2) A Judge of a High Court who does not accept appointment as a Judge of the Supreme Court shall be deemed to have retired from his office and, on such retirement, shall be entitled to receive a pension calculated on the basis of the length of his service as Judge and total service if any, in the service of Pakistan

207. (1) A Judge of the Supreme Court or of a High Court shall not,—

(a) hold any other office of profit in the service of Pakistan if his remuneration is thereby increased, or

(b) occupy any other position carrying the right to remuneration for the rendering of services

(2) A person who has held office as a Judge of the Supreme Court or of a High Court shall not hold any office of profit in the service of Pakistan not being a judicial or quasi-judicial office or the office of Chief Election Commissioner or of Chairman or member of a law commission or of Chairman or member of the Council of Islamic Ideology, before the expiration of two years after he has ceased to hold that office

(3) A person who has held office as a permanent Judge —

(a) of the Supreme Court, shall not plead or act in any court or before any authority in Pakistan,

(b) of a High Court, shall not plead or act in any court or before any authority within its jurisdiction and

(c) of the High Court of West Pakistan as it existed immediately before the coming into force of the Province of West Pakistan (Dissolution) Order, 1970, shall not plead or act in any court or before any authority within the jurisdiction of the principal seat of that High Court or, as the case may be, the permanent Bench of that High Court to which he was assigned

208. The Supreme Court and the Federal Shariat Court with the approval of the President and a High Court, with the approval of the Governor concerned may make rules providing for the appointment by the Court of officers and servants of the Court and for their terms and conditions of employment

209. (1) There shall be a Supreme Judicial Council of Pakistan in this Chapter referred to as the Council

(2) The Council shall consist of,—

(a) the Chief Justice of Pakistan,

(b) the two next most senior Judges of the Supreme Court and

(c) the two most senior Chief Justices of High Courts

Explanation—For the purpose of this clause the inter se seniority of the Chief Justices of the High Courts shall be determined with reference to their dates of appointment as Chief Justice otherwise than as acting Chief Justice, and in case the dates of such appointment are the same with reference to their dates of appointment as Judges of any of the High Courts

(3) If at any time the Council is inquiring into the capacity or conduct of a Judge who is a member of the Council, or a member of the Council is absent or is unable to act due to illness or any other cause, then—

(a) if such member is a Judge of the Supreme Court the Judge of the Supreme Court who is next in seniority below the Judges referred to in paragraph (b) of clause (2) and

Article 210-212]

(b) if such member is the Chief Justice of a High Court the Chief Justice of another High Court who is next in seniority amongst the Chief Justices of the remaining High Courts, shall act as a member of the Council in his place

(4) If, upon any matter inquired into by the Council, there is a difference of opinion amongst its members, the opinion of the majority shall prevail, and the report of the Council to the President shall be expressed in terms of the view of the majority

(5) If, on information received from the Council or from any other source, the President is of the opinion that a Judge of the Supreme Court or of a High Court,—

(a) may be incapable of properly performing the duties of his office by reason of physical or mental incapacity, or

(b) may have been guilty of misconduct, the President shall direct the Council to inquire into the matter

(6) If, after inquiring into the matter, the Council reports to the President that it is of the opinion,—

(a) that the Judge is incapable of performing the duties of his office or has been guilty of misconduct, and

(b) that he should be removed from office, the President may remove the Judge from office

(7) A Judge of the Supreme Court or of a High Court shall not be removed from office except as provided by this Article

(8) The Council shall issue a code of conduct to be observed by Judges of the Supreme Court and of the High Courts

210 (1) For the purpose of inquiring into any matter, the Council shall have the same power as the Supreme Court has to issue directions or orders for securing the attendance of any person or the discovery or production of any document, and any such direction or order shall be enforceable as if it had been issued by the Supreme Court

(2) The provisions of Article 204 shall apply to the Council as they apply to the Supreme Court and a High Court

211 The proceedings before the Council, its report to the President and the removal of a Judge under clause (6) of Article 209 shall not be called in question in any court

212 (1) Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, the appropriate Legislature may by Act provide for the establishment of one or more Administrative Courts or Tribunals to exercise exclusive jurisdiction in respect of—

(a) matters relating to the terms and conditions of persons who are or have been in the service of Pakistan, including disciplinary matters,

(b) matters relating to claims arising from tortious acts of Government, or any person in the service of Pakistan, or of any local or other authority empowered by law to levy any tax or cess and any servant of such authority acting in the discharge of his duties as such servant or

(c) matters relating to the acquisition administration and disposal of any property which is deemed to be enemy property under any law

(2) Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, where any Administrative Court or Tribunal is established under clause (1) no other court shall grant an injunction, make any order or entertain any proceedings in respect of any matter to which the jurisdiction of such Administrative Court or Tribunal extends and all proceedings in respect of any such matter which may be pending before such other court immediately before the establishment of the Administrative Court or Tribunal other than an appeal pending before the Supreme Court, shall abate on such establishment

Provided that the provisions of this clause shall not apply to an Administrative Court or Tribunal established under an Act of a Provincial Assembly unless, at the request of that Assembly made in the form of a resolution Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) by law extends the provisions to such a Court or Tribunal

(3) An appeal to the Supreme Court from a judgment, decree order or sentence of an Administrative Court or Tribunal shall lie only if the Supreme Court, being satisfied that the case involves a substantial question of law of public importance, grants leave to appeal

212A. {Omitted}

212B. (1) In order to ensure speedy trial of cases of persons accused of the heinous offences specified by law as are referred to them by the Federal Government, or an authority or person authorized by it, in view of their being gruesome, brutal and sensational in character or shocking to public morality the Federal Government may by law constitute as many Special Courts as it may consider necessary

(2) Where the Federal Government constitutes more than one Special Court, it shall determine the territorial limits within which each one of them shall exercise jurisdiction

(3) A Special Court shall consist of a Judge being a person who is, or has been or is qualified for appointment as, a Judge of a High Court and is appointed by the Federal Government after consultation with the Chief Justice of the High Court

(4) A person other than a Judge of a High Court who is appointed as a Judge of a Special Court shall hold office for the period this Article remains in force and shall not be removed from office except in the manner prescribed in Article 209 for the removal from office of a Judge and in the application of the said Article for the purposes of this clause, any reference in that Article to a Judge shall be construed as a reference to a Judge of a Special Court

(5) The law referred to in clause (1) shall make provision for the constitution of as many Supreme Appellate Court as the Federal Government may consider necessary and an appeal against the sentence or final order of a Special Court being preferred to a Supreme Appellate Court which shall consist of—

(a) a Chairman, being a Judge of the Supreme Court to be nominated by the Federal Government after consultation with the Chief Justice of Pakistan, and

(b) two Judges of the High Courts to be nominated by the Federal Government after consultation with the Chief Justice of the High Court concerned

(6) Where the Federal Government constitutes more than one Supreme Appellate Court, it shall determine the territorial limits within which each one of them shall exercise Jurisdiction

(7) A Special Court and a Supreme Appellate Court shall decide a case or, as the case may be, an appeal with thirty days

(8) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Constitution, no court shall exercise any jurisdiction whatsoever in relation to any proceedings before, or order or sentence passed by a Special Court or a Supreme Appellate Court constituted under a law referred to in clause (1), except as provided in such law

PART VIII ELECTIONS

CHAPTER 1

CHIEF ELECTION COMMISSIONER AND ELECTION COMMISSIONS

213. (1) There shall be a Chief Election Commissioner (in this Part referred to as the Commissioner), who shall be appointed by the President in his discretion

(2) No person shall be appointed to be Commissioner unless he is, or has been, a Judge of the Supreme Court or is, or has been, a Judge of a High Court and is qualified under paragraph (a) of clause (2) of Article 177 to be appointed a Judge of the Supreme Court

(3) The Commissioner shall have such powers and functions as are conferred on him by the Constitution and law

214. Before entering upon office, the Commissioner shall make before the Chief Justice of Pakistan oath in the form set out in the Third Schedule

215 (1) The Commissioner shall, subject to this Article, hold office for a term of three years from the day he enters upon his office

Provided that the National Assembly may by resolution extend the term of the Commissioner by a period not exceeding one year

(2) The Commissioner shall not be removed from office except in the manner prescribed in Article 209 for the removal from office of a Judge and, in the application of the Article for the purposes of this clause, any reference in that Article to a Judge shall be construed as a reference to the Commissioner

(3) The Commissioner may by writing under his hand addressed to the President, resign his office

216. (1) The Commissioner shall not —

(a) hold any other office of profit in the service of Pakistan or

(b) occupy any other position carrying the right to remuneration for the rendering of services

(2) A person who has held office as Commissioner shall not hold any office of profit in the service of Pakistan before the expiration of two years after he has ceased to hold that office

Provided that—

(a) this clause shall not be construed as preventing a person who was a Judge of the Supreme Court or of a High Court immediately before his appointment as Commissioner from resuming his duties as such Judge on the expiration of his term as Commissioner, and

(b) a person who has held office as Commissioner may, with the concurrence of both Houses, be reappointed to that office before the expiration of two years after he has ceased to hold that office

217. At any time when,—

(a) the office of Commissioner is vacant, or

(b) the Commissioner is absent or unable to perform the functions of his office due to any other cause, a Judge of the Supreme Court nominated by the Chief Justice of Pakistan shall Act as Commissioner

218. (1) For the purpose of each general election to the National Assembly and to a Provincial Assembly, an Election Commission shall be constituted in accordance with this Article

(2) The Election Commission shall consist of,—

(a) the Commissioner who shall be Chairman of the Commission and

(b) two members each of whom shall be a Judge of a High Court appointed by the President after consultation with the Chief Justice of the High Court concerned and with the Commissioner

(3) It shall be the duty of the Election Commission constituted in relation to an election to organize and conduct the election and to make such arrangements as are necessary to ensure that the election is conducted honestly, justly, fairly and in accordance with law, and that corrupt practices are guarded against

219. The Commissioner shall be charged with the duty of —

(a) Preparing electoral rolls for election to the National Assembly and the Provincial Assemblies, and revising such rolls annually,

(b) organizing and conducting election to the Senate or to fill casual vacancies in a House or a Provincial Assembly, and

(c) appointing Election Tribunals

220. It shall be the duty of all executive authorities in the Federation and in the Provinces to assist the Commissioner and the Election Commission in the discharge of his or their functions

221. Until Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) by law otherwise provides, the Commissioner may, with the approval of the President, make rules providing for the appointment by the Commissioner of officers and servants to be employed in connection with the functions of the Commissioner or an Election Commission and for their terms and conditions of employment

ELECTORAL LAWS AND CONDUCT OF ELECTIONS

222. Subject to the Constitution, Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) may by law provide for—

(a) the allocation of seats in the National Assembly as required by clauses (3) and (4) of Article 51,

(b) the delimitation of constituencies by the Election Commission,

(c) the preparation of electoral rolls, the requirements as to residence in a constituency, the determination of objections pertaining to and the commencement of electoral rolls,

(d) the conduct of elections and election petitions, the decision of doubts and disputes arising in connection with elections,

(e) matters relating to corrupt practices and other offences in connection with elections, and

(f) all other matters necessary for the due constitution of the two Houses and the Provincial Assemblies, but no such law shall have the effect of taking away or abridging any of the powers of the Commissioner or an Election Commission under this Part

223. (1) No person shall, at the same time, be a member of,—

(a) both Houses, or

(b) a House and a Provincial Assembly, or

(c) the Assemblies of two or more Provinces, or

(d) a House or a Provincial Assembly in respect of more than one seat

(2) Nothing in clause (1) shall prevent a person from being a candidate for two or more seats at the same time, whether in the same body or in different bodies, but if he is elected to more than one seat he shall, within a period of thirty days after the declaration of the result for the last such seat, resign all but one of his seats, and if he does not so resign, all the seats to which he has been elected shall become vacant at the expiration of the said period of thirty days except the seat to which he has been elected last or, if he has been elected to more than one seat on the same day, the seat for election to which his nomination was filed last

Explanation —In this clause, "body" means either House or a Provincial Assembly

(3) A person to whom clause (2) applies shall not take a seat in either House or the Provincial Assembly to which he has been elected until he has resigned all but one of his seats

(4) Subject to clause (2), if a member of either House or of a Provincial Assembly becomes a candidate for a second seat which, in accordance with clause (1), he may not hold concurrently with his first seat, then his first seat shall become vacant as soon as he is elected to the second seat

224. (1) A general election to the National Assembly or a Provincial Assembly shall be held within a period of sixty days immediately preceding the day on which the term of the Assembly is due to expire, unless the Assembly has been sooner dissolved, and the results of the election shall be declared not later than fourteen days before that day

(2) When the National Assembly or a Provincial Assembly is dissolved, a general election to the Assembly shall be held within a period of ninety days after the dissolution, and the results of the election shall be declared not later than fourteen days after the conclusion of the polls

(3) An election to fill the seats in the Senate which are to become vacant on the expiration of the term of the members of the Senate shall be held not earlier than thirty days immediately preceding the day on which the vacancies are due to occur

(4) When, except by dissolution of the National Assembly or a Provincial Assembly, a seat in any such Assembly has become vacant not later than one hundred and twenty days before the term of that Assembly is due to expire, an election to fill the seat shall be held within sixty days from the occurrence of the vacancy

(5) When a seat in the Senate has become vacant, an election to fill the seat shall be held within thirty days from the occurrence of the vacancy

225. No election to a House or a Provincial Assembly shall be called in question except by an election petition presented to such tribunal and in such manner as may be determined by Act of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament)

226. All elections under the Constitution shall be by secret ballot

PART IX

ISLAMIC PROVISIONS

227 (1) All existing laws shall be brought in conformity with the Injunctions of Islam as laid down in the Holy Quran and Sunnah, in this Part referred to as the Injunctions of Islam, and no law shall be enacted which is repugnant to such Injunctions

Explanation —In the application of this clause to the personal law of any Muslim sect, the expression "Quran and Sunnah" shall mean the Quran and Sunnah as interpreted by that sect

(2) Effect shall be given to the provisions of clause (1) only in the manner provided in this Part

(3) Nothing in this Part shall affect the personal laws of non-Muslim citizens or their status as citizens

228 (1) There shall be constituted within a period of ninety days from the commencing day a Council of Islamic Ideology, in this part referred to as the Islamic Council

(2) The Islamic Council shall consist of such members, being not less than eight and not more than twenty, as the President may appoint from amongst persons having knowledge of the principles and philosophy of Islam as enunciated in the Holy Quran and Sunnah, or understanding of the economic, political, legal or administrative problems of Pakistan

(3) While appointing members of the Islamic Council the President shall ensure that—

(a) so far as practicable various schools of thought are represented in the Council,

(b) not less than two of the members are persons each of whom is, or has been, a Judge of the Supreme Court or of a High Court,

(c) not less than four of the members are persons each of whom has been engaged, for a period of not less than fifteen years, in Islamic research or instruction, and

(d) at least one member is a woman

(4) The President shall appoint one of the members of the Islamic Council to be the Chairman thereof

(5) Subject to clause (6) a member of the Islamic Council shall hold office for a period of three years

(6) A member may, by writing under his hand addressed to the President, resign his office or may be removed by the President upon the passing of a resolution for his removal by a majority of the total membership of the Islamic Council

229. The President or the Governor of a Province may, or if two-fifths of its total membership so requires, a House or a Provincial Assembly shall, refer to the Islamic Council for advice any question as to whether a proposed law is or is not repugnant to the Injunctions of Islam

230. (1) The functions of the Islamic Council shall be,—

(a) to make recommendations to Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) and the Provincial Assemblies as to the ways and means of enabling and encouraging the Muslims of Pakistan to order their lives individually and collectively in all respects in accordance with the principles and concepts of Islam as enunciated in the Holy Quran and Sunnah,

(b) to advise a House, a Provincial Assembly, the President or a Governor on any question referred to the Council as to whether a proposed law is or is not repugnant to the Injunctions of Islam.

(c) to make recommendations as to the measures for bringing existing laws into conformity with the Injunctions of Islam and the stages by which such measures should be brought into effect, and

(d) to compile in a suitable form, for the guidance of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) and the Provincial Assemblies, such Injunctions of Islam as can be given legislative effect

(2) When, under Article 229, a question is referred by a House, a Provincial Assembly, the President or a Governor to the Islamic Council the Council shall, within fifteen days thereof, inform the House, the Assembly, the President or the Governor, as the case may be, of the period within which the Council expects to be able to furnish that advice

(3) Where a House, a Provincial Assembly, the President or the Governor, as the case may be, considers that, in the public interest, the making of the proposed law in relation to which the question arose should not be postponed until the advice of the Islamic Council is furnished, the law may be made before the advice is furnished

Provided that, where a law is referred for advice to the Islamic Council and the Council advises that the law is repugnant to the Injunctions of Islam the House or, as the case may be, the Provincial Assembly, the President or the Governor shall reconsider the law so made

(4) The Islamic Council shall submit its final report within seven years of its appointment, and shall submit an annual interim report. The report, whether interim or final, shall be laid for discussion before both Houses and each Provincial Assembly within six months of its receipt, and Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) and the Assembly, after considering the report, shall enact laws in respect thereof within a period of two years of the final report

231. The proceedings of the Islamic Council shall be regulated by rules of procedure to be made by the Council with approval of the President

PART X

EMERGENCY PROVISIONS

232. (1) If the President is satisfied that a grave emergency exists in which the security of Pakistan, or any part thereof, is threatened by war or external aggression, or by internal disturbance beyond the power of a Provincial Government to control, he may issue a Proclamation of Emergency

(2) Notwithstanding anything in the Constitution, while a Proclamation of Emergency is in force,—

(a) Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) shall have power to make laws for a Province, or any part thereof, with respect to any matter not enumerated in the Federal Legislative List or the Concurrent Legislative List,

(b) the executive authority of the Federation shall extend to the giving of directions to a Province as to the manner in which the executive authority of the Province is to be exercised, and

(c) the Federal Government may by Order assume to itself, or direct the Governor of a Province to assume on behalf of the Federal Government, all or any of the functions of the Government of the Province, and all or any of the powers vested in, or exercisable by, any body or authority in the Province other than the Provincial Assembly, and make such incidental and consequential provisions as appear to the Federal Government to be necessary or desirable for giving effect to the objects of the Proclamation, including provisions for suspending, in whole or in part, the operation of any provisions of the Constitution relating to any body or authority in the province

Provided that nothing in paragraph (c) shall authorize the Federal Government to assume to itself, or direct the Governor of the Province to assume on its behalf, any of the powers vested in or exercisable by a High Court, or to suspend either in whole or in part the operation of any provisions of the Constitution relating to High Courts

(3) The power of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) to make laws for a Province with respect to any matter shall include power to make laws conferring powers and imposing duties, or authorizing the conferring of powers and the imposition of duties upon the Federation, or officers and authorities of the Federation, as respects that matter

(4) Nothing in this Article shall restrict the power of a Provincial Assembly to make any law which under the Constitution it has power to make but if any provision of a Provincial law is repugnant to any provision of an Act of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) which Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) has under this Article power to make, the Act of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament), whether passed before or after the Provincial law, shall prevail and the Provincial law shall to the extent of the repugnancy, but so long only as the Act of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) continues to have effect, be void

(5) A law made by Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament), which Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) would not but for the issue of a Proclamation of Emergency have been competent to make, shall, to the extent of the incompetency, cease to have effect on the expiration of a period of six months after the Proclamation of Emergency has ceased to be in force, except as respects things done or omitted to be done before the expiration of the said period

(6) While a Proclamation of Emergency is in force, Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) may by law extend the term of the National Assembly for a period not exceeding one year and not extending in any case beyond a period of six months after the Proclamation has ceased to be in force

(7) A Proclamation of Emergency shall be laid before a joint sitting which shall be summoned by the President to meet within thirty days of the Proclamation being issued and,—

(a) shall cease to be in force at the expiration of two months unless before the expiration of that period it has been approved by a resolution of the joint sitting and

(b) shall, subject to the provisions of paragraph (e) cease to be in force upon a resolution disapproving the Proclamation being passed by the votes of the majority of the total memberships of the two Houses in joint sitting.

(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in clause (1) if the National Assembly stands dissolved at the time when a Proclamation of Emergency is issued the Proclamation shall continue in force for a period of four months but if a general election to the Assembly is not held before the expiration of that period, it shall cease to be in force at the expiration of that period unless it has earlier been approved by a resolution of the Senate.

233. (1) Nothing contained in Articles 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, and 24 shall while a Proclamation of Emergency is in force, restrict the power of the State as defined in Article 1 to make any law or to take any executive action which it would, but for the provisions in the said Articles be competent to make or to take, but any law so made shall to the extent of the incompetency, cease to have effect, and shall be deemed to have been repealed, at the time when the Proclamation is revoked or has ceased to be in force.

(2) While a Proclamation of Emergency is in force the President may, by order, declare that the right to move any court for the enforcement of such of the Fundamental Rights conferred by Chapter 1 of Part II as may be specified in the order and any proceeding in any court which is for the enforcement or involves the determination of any question as to the infringement, of any of the Rights so specified, shall remain suspended for the period during which the Proclamation is in force, and any such order may be made in respect of the whole or any part of Pakistan.

(3) Every order made under this Article shall, as soon as may be, be laid before a joint sitting for approval and the provisions of clauses (1) and (2) of Article 232 shall apply to such an order as they apply to a Proclamation of Emergency.

234. (1) If the President, on receipt of a report from the Governor of a Province or otherwise, is satisfied that a situation has arisen in which the Government of the Province cannot be carried on in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution the President may, or if a resolution in this behalf is passed at a joint sitting shall, by Proclamation —

(a) assume to himself, or direct the Governor of the Province to assume on behalf of the President, all or any of the functions of the Government of the Province, and all or any of the powers vested in, or exercisable by, any body or authority in the Province, other than the Provincial Assembly,

(b) declare that the powers of the Provincial Assembly shall be exercisable by, or under the authority of, Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) and

(c) make such incidental and consequential provisions as appear to the President to be necessary or desirable for giving effect to the objects of the Proclamation, including provisions for suspending in whole or in part the operation of any provisions of the Constitution relating to any body or authority in the Province

Provided that nothing in this Article shall authorize the President to assume to himself, or direct the Governor of the Province to assume on his behalf, any of the powers vested in, or exercisable by, a High Court, or to suspend either in whole or in part the operation of any provisions of the Constitution relating to High Courts

(2) The provisions of Article 105 shall not apply to the discharge by the Governor of his functions under clause (1)

(3) A Proclamation issued under this Article shall be laid before a joint sitting and shall cease to be in force at the expiration of two months, unless before the expiration of that period it has been approved by resolution of the joint sitting and may by like resolution be extended for a further period not exceeding two months at a time, but no such Proclamation shall in any case remain in force for more than six months

(4) Notwithstanding anything contained in clause (3), if the National Assembly stands dissolved at the time when a Proclamation is issued under this Article, the Proclamation shall continue in force for a period of three months but, if a general election to the Assembly is not held before the expiration of that period, it shall cease to be in force at the expiration of that period unless it has earlier been approved by a resolution of the Senate

(5) Where by a Proclamation issued under this Article it has been declared that the powers of the Provincial Assembly shall be exercisable by or under the authority of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament), it shall be competent—

(a) to Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) in joint sitting to confer on the President the power to make laws with respect to any matter within the legislative competence of the Provincial Assembly,

(b) to Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) in joint sitting, or the President, when he is empowered under paragraph (a), to make laws conferring powers and imposing duties, or authorizing the conferring of powers and the imposition of duties, upon the Federation, or officers and authorities thereof,

(c) to the President, when Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) is not in session to authorize expenditure from the Provincial Consolidated Fund, whether the expenditure is charged by the Constitution upon that fund or not, pending the sanction of such expenditure by Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) in joint sitting, and

(d) to Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) in joint sitting by resolution to sanction expenditure authorized by the President under paragraph (c)

(6) Any law made by Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) or the President which Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) or the President would not, but for the issue of a Proclamation under this Article, have been competent to make, shall, to the extent of the incompetency, cease to have effect on the expiration of a period of six months after the Proclamation under this Article has ceased to be in force except as to things done or omitted to be done before the expiration of that period

235. (1) If the President is satisfied that a situation has arisen whereby the economic life, financial stability or credit of Pakistan, or any part thereof, is threatened, he may, after consultation with the Governors of the Provinces or, as the case may be, the Governor of the Province concerned, by Proclamation make a declaration to that effect, and while such a Proclamation is in force, the executive authority of the Federation shall extend to the giving of directions to any Province to observe such principles of financial propriety as may be specified in the directions, and to the giving of such other directions as the President may deem necessary in the interest of the economic life, financial stability or credit of Pakistan or any part thereof

(2) Notwithstanding anything in the Constitution, any such directions may include a provision requiring a reduction of the salary and allowances of all or any class of persons serving in connection with the affairs of the Province

(3) While a Proclamation issued under this Article is in force the President may issue directions for the reduction of the salaries and allowances of all or any class of persons serving in connection with the affairs of the Federation.

(4) The provisions of clauses (3) and (4) of Article 234 shall apply to a Proclamation issued under this Article as they apply to a Proclamation issued under that Article

236. (1) A Proclamation issued under this part may be varied or revoked by a subsequent Proclamation

(2) The validity of any Proclamation issued or order made under this Part shall not be called in question in any court

237. Nothing in the Constitution shall prevent Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) from making any law indemnifying any person in the service of the Federal Government or a Provincial Government, or any other person, in respect of any act done in connection with the maintenance or restoration of order in any area in Pakistan

PART XI

AMENDMENT OF CONSTITUTION

238. Subject to this Part, the Constitution may be amended by Act of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament).

239. (1) A Bill to amend the Constitution may originate in either House and, when the Bill has been passed by the votes of not less than two-thirds of the total membership of the House, it shall be transmitted to the other House

(2) If the Bill is passed without amendment by the votes of not less than two-thirds of the total membership of the House to which it is transmitted under clause (1), it shall, subject to the provisions of clause (4), be presented to the President for assent

(3) If the Bill is passed with amendment by the votes of not less than two-thirds of the total membership of the House to which it is transmitted

under clause (1), it shall be reconsidered by the House in which it had originated, and if the Bill as amended by the former House is passed by the latter by the votes of not less than two-thirds of its total membership it shall, subject to the provisions of clause (4), be presented to the President for assent

(4) A Bill to amend the Constitution which would have the effect of altering the limits of a Province shall not be presented to the President for assent unless it has been passed by the Provincial Assembly of that Province by the votes of not less than two-thirds of its total membership

(5) No amendment of the Constitution shall be called in question in any court on any ground whatsoever

(6) For the removal of doubt, it is hereby declared that there is no limitation whatever on the power of the Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) to amend any of the provisions of the Constitution

PART XII MISCELLANEOUS

CHAPTER I SERVICES

240 Subject to the Constitution, the appointments to and the conditions of service of persons in the service of Pakistan shall be determined—

(a) in the case of the services of the Federation, posts in connection with the affairs of the Federation and All-Pakistan Services, by or under Act of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament), and

(b) in the case of the services of a Province and posts in connection with the affairs of a Province, by or under Act of the Provincial Assembly

Explanation—In this Article, "All-Pakistan Service" means a service common to the Federation and the Provinces, which was in existence immediately before the commencing day or which may be created by Act of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament)

241 Until the appropriate Legislature makes a law under Article 240, all rules and orders in force immediately before the commencing day shall, so far as consistent with the provisions of the Constitution, continue in force and may be amended from time to time by the Federal Government or, as the case may be, the Provincial Government

242 (1) Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) in relation to the affairs of the Federation and the Provincial Assembly of a Province in relation to affairs of a Province may by law, provide for the establishment and constitution of a Public Service Commission

(1A) The Chairman of the Public Service Commission constituted in relation to the affairs of the Federation shall be appointed by the President in his discretion

(2) A Public Service Commission shall perform such functions as may be prescribed by law.

(4) Where by the Constitution a power is conferred to make rules or to issue orders with respect to the enforcement of any provision thereof, or with respect to the establishment of any Court or office, or the appointment of any Judge or office thereunder, or with respect to the person by whom, or the time when, or the place where, or the manner in which, anything is to be done under any such provisions, then that power may be exercised at any time between the enactment of the Constitution and its commencement

266. The Interim Constitution of the Islamic Republic of Pakistan, together with the Acts and President's Orders making omissions from, additions to, modifications of, or amendments in, that Constitution is hereby repealed.

TRANSITIONAL

267. (1) At any time before the commencing day, or before the expiration of three months from the commencing day, the President may, for the purpose of removing any difficulties, or for bringing the provisions of the Constitution into effective operation, by order, direct that the provisions of the Constitution shall, during such period as may be specified in the order, have effect, subject to such adaptations, whether by way of modification, addition or omission, as he may deem to be necessary or expedient

(2) An order made under clause (1) shall be laid before both Houses without undue delay, and shall remain in force until a resolution disapproving it is passed by each House or, in case of disagreement between the two Houses, until such resolution is passed at a joint sitting

268. (1) Except as provided by this Article, all existing laws shall, subject to the Constitution, continue in force, so far as applicable and with the necessary adaptations, until altered, repealed or amended by the appropriate Legislature.

(2) The laws specified in the Sixth Schedule shall not be altered, repealed or amended without the previous sanction of the President.

(3) For the purpose of bringing the provisions of any existing law into accord with the provisions of the Constitution (other than Part II of the Constitution), the President may by order, within a period of two years from the commencing day, make such adaptation, whether by way of modification, addition or omission, as he may deem to be necessary or expedient, and any such order may be made so as to have effect from such day, not being a day earlier than the commencing day, as may be specified in the order.

(4) The President may authorize the Governor of a Province to exercise, in relation to the Province, the powers conferred on the President by clause (3) in respect of laws relating to matters with respect to which the Provincial Assembly has power to make laws.

(5) The powers exercisable under clauses (3) and (4) shall be subject to the provisions of an Act of the appropriate Legislature.

(6) Any court, tribunal or authority required or empowered to enforce an existing law shall, notwithstanding that no adaptations have been made in such law by an order made under clause (3) or clause (4), construe the law with all such adaptations as are necessary to bring it into accord with the provisions of the Constitution.

(7) In this Article, "existing laws" means all laws (including Ordinances, Orders-in-Council, Orders, rules, by-laws, regulations and Letters Patent constituting a High Court, and any notifications and other legal instruments having the force of law) in force in Pakistan or any part thereof, or having extraterritorial validity, immediately before the commencing day.

Explanation.—In this Article, "in force", in relation to any law, means having effect as law whether or not the law has been brought into operation.

269. (1) All Proclamations, President's Orders, Martial Law Regulations, Martial Law Orders and all other laws made between the twentieth day of December, one thousand nine hundred and seventy-one and the twentieth day of April, one thousand nine hundred and seventy-two (both days inclusive), are hereby declared notwithstanding any judgment of any court, to have been validly made by competent authority and shall not be called in question in any court on any ground whatsoever.

(2) All orders made, proceedings taken and acts done by any authority, or by any person, which were made, taken or done, or purported to have been made, taken or done, between the twentieth day of December, one thousand nine hundred and seventy-one, and the twentieth day of April, one thousand nine hundred and seventy-two (both days inclusive) in exercise of the powers derived from any President's Orders, Martial Law Regulations, Martial Law Orders, enactments, notifications, rules, orders or by-laws or in execution of any orders made or sentences passed by any authority in the exercise or purported exercise of powers as aforesaid, shall, notwithstanding any judgment of any court, be deemed to be and always to have been validly made, taken or done and shall not be called in question in any court on any ground whatsoever

(3) No suit or other legal proceedings shall lie in any court against any authority or any person for or on account of or in respect of any order made, proceedings taken or act done whether in the exercise or purported exercise of the powers referred to in clause (2) or in execution of or in compliance with orders made or sentences passed in exercise or purported exercise of such powers

270 (1) Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) may by law made in the manner prescribed for legislations for a matter in Part I of the Federal Legislative List validate all Proclamations, President's Orders, Martial Law Regulations, Martial Law Orders and other laws made between the twenty-fifth day of March, one thousand nine hundred and sixty-nine and the nineteenth day of December, one thousand nine hundred and seventy-one (both days inclusive)

(2) Notwithstanding a judgment of any court, a law made by Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) under clause (1) shall not be questioned in any court on any ground whatsoever

(3) Notwithstanding the provisions of clause (1), and a judgment of any court to the contrary, for a period of two years from the commencing day, the validity of all such instruments as are referred to in clause (1) shall not be called in question before any court on any ground whatsoever

(4) All orders made, proceedings taken and acts done by any authority, or any person, which were made, taken or done, or purported to have been made, taken or done, between the twenty-fifth day of March, one thousand nine hundred and sixty-nine and nineteenth day of December, one thousand nine hundred and seventy-one (both days inclusive), in exercise of powers derived from any President's Orders, Martial Law Regulations, Martial Law Orders, enactments, notifications, rules, orders or by-laws, or in execution of any order made or sentence passed by any authority in the exercise or purported exercise of power as aforesaid shall, notwithstanding any judgment of any court, be deemed to be and always to have been validly made, taken or done, so however that any such order, proceeding or act may be declared invalid by Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) at any time within a period of two years from the commencing day by resolution of both Houses, or in case of disagreement between the two Houses, by such resolution passed at a joint sitting and shall not be called in question before any court on any ground whatsoever

270A. (1) The Proclamation of the fifth day of July, 1977, all President's Orders, Ordinances, Martial Law Regulations, Martial Law Orders, including the Referendum Order, 1984 (P O No 11 of 1984), under which, in consequence of the result of the referendum held on the nineteenth day of December 1984 General Muhammad Zia-ul-Haq became the President of

Pakistan on the day of the first meeting of the Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) in joint sitting for the term specified in clause (7) of Article 41, the Revival of the Constitution of 1973 Order, 1985 (P O No 14 of 1985), the Constitution (Second Amendment) Order 1985 (P O No 24 of 1985), and all other laws, made between the fifth day of July, 1977, and the date on which this Article comes into force are hereby affirmed, adopted and declared, notwithstanding any judgment of any court, to have been validly made by competent authority and, notwithstanding anything contained in the Constitution, shall not be called in question in any court on any ground whatsoever

Provided that a President's Order, Martial Law Regulation or Martial Law Order made after the thirtieth day of September, 1985, shall be confined only to making such provisions as facilitate, or are incidental to, the revocation of the Proclamation of the fifth day of July, 1977

(2) All order made, proceedings taken and acts done by any authority or by any person, which were made, taken or done, or purported to have been made, taken or done, between the fifth day of July, 1977, and the date on which this Article comes into force, in exercise of the powers derived from any Proclamation, President's Orders, Ordinances, Martial Law Regulations, Martial Law Orders, enactments, notifications, rules, orders or by-laws, or in execution of or in compliance with any order made or sentence passed by any authority in the exercise or purported exercise of powers as aforesaid, shall, notwithstanding any judgment of any court, be deemed to be and always to have been validly made, taken or done and shall not be called in question in any court on any ground whatsoever

(3) All President's Orders, Ordinances, Martial Law Regulations, Martial Law Orders, enactments, notifications, rules, orders or by-laws in force immediately before the date on which this Article comes into force shall continue in force until altered, repealed or amended by competent authority

Explanation —In this clause, Competent authority means—

(a) in respect of President's Orders, Ordinances, Martial Law Regulations, Martial Law Orders and enactments, the Legislature, and

(b) in respect of notifications, rules orders and by-laws, the authority in which the power to made, alter, repeal or amend the same vests under the law

(4) No suit, prosecution or other legal proceedings shall lie in any court against any authority or any person, for or on account of or in respect of any order made, proceedings taken or act done whether in the exercise or purported exercise of the powers referred to in clause (2) or in execution of or in compliance with orders made or sentences passed in exercise or purported exercise of such powers

(5) For the purposes of clauses (1), (2) and (4), all orders made, proceedings taken, acts done or purporting to be made, taken or done by any authority or person shall be deemed to have been made, taken or done in good faith and for the purpose intended to be served thereby

(6) Such of the President's Orders and Ordinances referred to in clause (1) as are specified in the Seventh Schedule may be amended in the manner provided for amendment of the Constitution, and all other laws referred to in the said clause may be amended by the appropriate Legislature in the manner provided for amendment of such laws

Explanation—In this Article "President's Orders" includes "President and Chief Martial Law Administrator's Orders" and "Chief Martial Law Administrator's Orders"

270B. Notwithstanding anything contained in the Constitution, the elections held under the Houses of (Parliament) and Provincial Assemblies (Elections) Order, 1977 to the Houses and the Provincial Assemblies shall be deemed to have been held under the Constitution and shall have effect accordingly

271. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Constitution, but subject to Article 64 and Article 223,—

(a) the first National Assembly shall consist of—

(i) persons who have taken oath in the National Assembly of Pakistan existing immediately before the commencing day, and

(ii) the persons to be elected in accordance with law by the members of the Assembly to fill the seats referred to in clause (2A) of Article 51, and, unless sooner dissolved, shall continue until the fourteenth day of August, one thousand nine hundred and seventy-seven, and reference to "total membership" of the National Assembly in the Constitution shall be construed accordingly,

(b) the qualifications and disqualifications for being elected and being a member of the first National Assembly shall, except in case of members filling casual vacancies or to be elected to the additional seats referred to in clause (2A) of Article 51, after the commencing day, be the same as under the Interim Constitution of the Islamic Republic of Pakistan

Provided that no person holding an office of profit in the service of Pakistan shall continue to be a member of the first National Assembly after the expiration of three months from the commencing day.

Article 2(A)

The Objectives Resolution

The Objectives Resolution was passed by the Constituent Assembly of Pakistan in March, 1949, and was made a substantive part of the Constitution of Pakistan by P O (Presidential Order) No 14 of 1985, Art 2 and Sch item 2 (with effect from March 2, 1985)

Whereas sovereignty over the entire universe belongs to Allah Almighty alone and the authority which He has delegated to the State of Pakistan, through its people for being exercised within the limits prescribed by Him is a sacred trust,

This Constituent Assembly representing the people of Pakistan resolves to frame a Constitution for the sovereign independent State of Pakistan,

Wherein the State shall exercise its powers and authority through the chosen representatives of the people,

Wherein the principles of democracy, freedom, equality, tolerance and social justice as enunciated by Islam shall be fully observed,

Wherein the Muslims shall be enabled to order their lives in the individual and collective spheres in accordance with the teachings and requirements of Islam as set out in the Holy Quran and the Sunnah,

Wherein adequate provision shall be made for the minorities to profess and practice their religions and develop their cultures,

Wherein the territories now included in or in accession with Pakistan and such other territories as may hereafter be included in or accede to Pakistan shall form a Federation wherein the units will be autonomous with such boundaries and limitations on their powers and authority as may be prescribed,

Wherein shall be guaranteed fundamental rights including equality of status, of opportunity and before law, social, economic and political justice, and freedom of thought, expression, belief, faith, worship and association, subject to law and public morality,

Wherein adequate provisions shall be made to safeguard the legitimate interests of minorities and backward and depressed classes,

Wherein the independence of the Judiciary shall be fully secured,

Wherein the integrity of the territories of the Federation, its independence and all its rights including its sovereign rights on land, sea and air shall be safeguarded,

So that the people of Pakistan may prosper and attain their rightful and honored place amongst the nations of the World and make their full contribution towards international peace and progress and happiness of humanity

SECOND SCHEDULE*Article 4(3)*Election of President

1. The Chief Election Commissioner shall hold and conduct election to the office of President, and shall be the Returning Officer for such election

2. The Chief Election Commissioner appoint Presiding Officers to preside at the meeting of the members of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) and at the meetings of the members of the Provincial Assemblies

3. The Chief Election Commissioner shall by public notification fix the time and place for depositing nomination papers, holding a scrutiny, making withdrawals, if any, and holding the poll, if necessary

4. At any time before noon on the day fixed for nomination any member of the Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) or of the Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) or of a Provincial Assembly may nominate for election as President a person qualified for election as President by delivering to the Presiding Officer a nomination paper, signed by himself as proposer and by another member of the Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) or, as the case may be Assembly as seconder, together with a statement signed by the person nominated that he consents to the nomination

Provided that no person shall subscribe, whether as proposer or as seconder, more than one nomination paper at any one election

5. The scrutiny shall be held by the Chief Election Commissioner at the time and place fixed by him, and if after scrutiny only one person remains validly nominated, the Chief Election Commissioner shall declare that person to be elected, or if more than one person remains validly nominated, he shall announce, by public notification, the names of the persons validly nominated, to be hereinafter called the candidates

6. A candidate may withdraw his candidature at any time before noon on the day fixed for this purpose by delivering a notice in writing under his hand to the Presiding Officer with whom his nomination paper has been deposited, and a candidate who has given a notice of withdrawal of his candidature under this paragraph shall not be allowed to cancel that notice

7. If all but one of the candidates have withdrawn, that one shall be declared by the Chief Election Commissioner to be elected

8. If there is no withdrawal, or if, after withdrawals have taken place, two or more candidates are left, the Chief Election Commissioner shall announce by public notification the names of the candidates, and their proposers and seconders, and shall proceed to hold a poll by secret ballot in accordance with the provisions of the succeeding paragraphs

9. If a candidate whose nomination has been found to be in order dies after the time for nomination, and a report of his death is received by the Presiding Officer before the commencement of the poll, the Presiding Officer shall, upon, being satisfied of the fact of the death of the candidate, countermand the poll and report the fact to the Chief Election Commissioner, and all proceedings with reference to the election shall be commenced anew in all respects as if for a new election

Provided that no further nomination shall be necessary in the case of a candidate whose nomination was valid at the time of the countermanding of the poll

Provided further that no person who has under paragraph 6 of the this Schedule given notice of withdrawal of his candidature before the countermanding of the poll shall be ineligible for being nominated as a candidate for the election after such countermanding

10 The poll shall be taken at the meetings of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) and of each Provincial Assembly, and respective Presiding Officers shall conduct the poll with the assistance of such officers as they may, with the approval of the Chief Election Commissioner, respectively appoint

11. A ballot paper shall be issued to every member of Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament), and of each Provincial Assembly, who presents himself for voting at the meeting of the members of the Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) or, as the case may be, of the Provincial Assembly of which he is a member (hereinafter referred to as a person voting), and he shall exercise his vote personally by marking the paper in accordance with the provisions of the succeeding paragraphs

12. The poll shall be secret ballot by means of ballot papers containing the names of all the candidates in alphabetical order who have not withdrawn, and person voting shall vote by placing a mark against the name of the person for whom he wishes to vote

13 Ballot papers shall be issued from a book of ballot-papers with counterfoils, each counterfoil being numbered, and when a ballot paper is issued to a person voting his name shall be entered on the counterfoil, and the ballot paper shall be authenticated by the initials of the Presiding Officer.

14. A ballot paper having been marked by the person voting shall be deposited by that person in a ballot box to be placed in front of the Presiding Officer

15 If a ballot paper is spoiled by a person voting he may return it to the Presiding Officer, who shall issue a second ballot paper, canceling the first ballot paper and marking the cancellation on the appropriate counterfoil

16 A ballot paper shall be invalid if—

- (i) there is upon it any name, word or mark, by which the person voting may be identified, or
- (ii) it does not contain the initials of the Presiding Officer, or
- (iii) it does not contain a mark, or
- (iv) a mark is placed against the names of two or more candidates, or
- (v) there is any uncertainty as to the identity of the candidate against whose name the mark is placed

17. After the close of the poll each Presiding Officer shall, in the presence of such of the candidates or their authorized representatives as may desire to be present, open and empty the ballot boxes and examine the ballot papers therein, rejecting any which are invalid, count the number of votes recorded for each candidate on the valid ballot papers, and communicate the number of the votes so recorded to the Chief Election

18. (1) The Chief Election Commissioner shall determine the result of the election in the following manner, namely—

(a) the number of votes cast in the Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) in favour of each candidate shall be counted,

(b) the number of votes cast in a Provincial Assembly in favour of each candidate shall be multiplied by the total number of seats in the Provincial Assembly for the time being having the smallest number of seats and divided by the total number of seats in the Provincial Assembly in which the votes have been cast, and

(c) the number of votes calculated in the manner referred to in clause (b) shall be added to the number of votes counted under clause (a)

Explanation—In this paragraph, "total number of seats" includes seats reserved for non-Muslims and women

(2) A fraction shall be rounded off to the nearest whole

19. The candidate who has obtained the largest number of votes compiled in the manner specified in paragraph 18 shall be declared by the Chief Election Commissioner to be elected

20. Where at any poll any two or more candidates obtain an equal number of votes, the selection of the candidate to be elected shall be by drawing of lots

21. When, after any poll, the counting of the votes has been completed, and the result of the voting determined, the Chief Election Commissioner shall forthwith announce the result to those present, and shall report the result to the Federal Government, who shall forthwith cause the result to be declared by a public notification

22. The Chief Commissioner may, by public notification, with the approval of the President, make rules for carrying out the purposes of this Schedule

PREAMBLE

We, the people of Puerto Rico, in order to organize ourselves politically on a fully democratic basis, to promote the general welfare, and to secure for ourselves and our posterity the complete enjoyment of human rights, placing our trust in Almighty God, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the commonwealth which, in the exercise of our natural rights, we now create within our union with the United States of America

In so doing, we declare

The democratic system is fundamental to the life of the Puerto Rican community,

We understand that the democratic system of Government is one in which the will of the people is the source of public power, the political order is subordinate to the rights of man, and the free participation of the citizen in collective decisions is assured. We consider as determining factors in our life our citizenship of the United States of America and our aspiration continually to enrich our democratic heritage in the individual and collective enjoyment of its rights and privileges, our loyalty to the principles of the Federal Constitution; the coexistence in Puerto Rico of the two great cultures of the American Hemisphere, our fervor for education, our faith in justice, our devotion to the courageous, industrious, and peaceful way of life, our fidelity to individual human values above and beyond social position, racial differences and economic interests, and our hope for a better world based on these principles

ARTICLE I

THE COMMONWEALTH

1. The Commonwealth of Puerto Rico is hereby constituted. Its political power emanates from the people and shall be exercised in accordance with their will, within the terms of the compact agreed upon between the people of Puerto Rico and the United States of America.

2. The Government of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico shall be republican in form and its legislative, judicial and executive branches as established by this Constitution shall be equally subordinate to the sovereignty of the people of Puerto Rico.

3. The political authority of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico shall extend to the Island of Puerto Rico and to the adjacent islands within its jurisdiction.

4. The seat of the Government shall be the city of San Juan.

ARTICLE II

BILL OF RIGHTS

1. The dignity of the human being is inviolable. All men are equal before the law. No discrimination shall be made on account of race, color, sex, birth, social origin or condition, or political or religious ideas. Both the laws and the system of public education shall embody these principles of essential human equality.

2. The laws shall guarantee the expression of the will of the people by means of equal, direct and secret universal suffrage and shall protect the citizen against any coercion in the exercise of the electoral franchise.

3. No law shall be made respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof. There shall be complete separation of Church and State.

4. No law shall be made abridging the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

5. Every person has the right to an education which shall be directed to the full development of the human personality and to the strengthening of respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms. There shall be a system of free and wholly non-sectarian public education. Instruction in the elementary and secondary schools shall be free, and shall be compulsory in the elementary schools to the extent permitted by the facilities of the State. No public property or public funds shall be used for the support of schools or educational institutions other than those of the State. Nothing contained in this provision shall prevent the State from furnishing to any child non-educational services established by law for the protection or welfare of children.

6. Persons may join with each other and organize freely for any lawful purpose, except in military or quasi-military organizations

7. The right to life, liberty and the enjoyment of property is recognized as a fundamental right of man. The death penalty shall not exist. No person shall be deprived of his liberty or property without due process of law. No person in Puerto Rico shall be denied the equal protection of the laws. No laws impairing the obligation of contracts shall be enacted. A minimum amount of property and possessions shall be exempt from attachment as provided by law.

8. Every person has the right to the protection of law against abusive attacks on his honour, reputation and private or family life.

9. Private property shall not be taken or damaged for public use except upon payment of just compensation and in the manner provided by law. No law shall be enacted authorizing condemnation of printing presses, machinery or material devoted to publications of any kind. The buildings in which these objects are located may be condemned only after a judicial finding of public convenience and necessity pursuant to procedure that shall be provided by law, and may be taken before such a judicial finding only when there is placed at the disposition of the publication and adequate site in which it can be installed and continue to operate for a reasonable time.

10. The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures shall not be violated.

No warrant for arrest or search and seizure shall issue except by judicial authority and only upon probable cause supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched and the persons to be arrested or the things to be seized.

Evidence obtained in violation of this section shall be inadmissible in the courts.

11. In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to have a speedy and public trial, to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation and to have a copy thereof, to be confronted with the witnesses against him, to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favour, to have assistance of counsel, and to be presumed innocent.

In all prosecutions for a felony the accused shall have the right of trial by an impartial jury composed of twelve residents of the district, who may render their verdict by a majority vote which in no case may be less than nine.

No person shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself and the failure of the accused to testify may be neither taken into consideration nor commented upon against him.

No person shall be twice put in jeopardy of punishment for the same offense.

Before conviction every accused shall be entitled to be admitted to bail. Incarceration prior to trial shall not exceed six months nor shall bail or fines be excessive. No person shall be imprisoned for debt.

12. Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude shall exist except in the latter case as a punishment for crime after the accused has been duly convicted. Cruel and unusual punishments shall not be inflicted. Suspension of civil rights including the right to vote shall cease upon service of the term of imprisonment imposed.

No ex post facto law or bill of attainder shall be passed.

13. The writ of habeas corpus shall be granted without delay and free of costs. The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended, unless the public safety requires it in case of rebellion, insurrection or invasion. Only the Legislative Assembly shall have the power to suspend the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus and the laws regulating its issuance.

The military authority shall always be subordinate to civil authority.

14. No titles of nobility or other hereditary honours shall be granted. No officer or employee of the Commonwealth shall accept gifts, donations, decorations or offices from any foreign country or officer without prior authorization by the Legislative Assembly.

15. The employment of children less than fourteen years of age in any occupation which is prejudicial to their health or morals or which places them in jeopardy of life or limb is prohibited.

No child less than sixteen years of age shall be kept in custody in a jail or penitentiary.

16. The right of every employee to choose his occupation freely and to resign therefrom is recognized, as is his right to equal pay for equal work, to a reasonable minimum salary, to protection against risks to his health or person in his work or employment, and to an ordinary workday which shall not exceed eight hours. An employee may work in excess of this daily limit only if he is paid extra compensation as provided by law, at a rate never less than one and one-half times the regular rate at which he is employed.

17. Persons employed by private businesses, enterprises and individual employers and by agencies or instrumentalities of the Government operating as private businesses or enterprises, shall have the right to organize and to bargain collectively with their employers through representatives of their own free choosing in order to promote their welfare.

18. In order to assure their right to organize and to bargain collectively, persons employed by private businesses, enterprises and individual employers and by agencies or instrumentalities of the government operating as private businesses or enterprises, in their direct relations with their own employers shall have the right to strike, to picket and to engage in other legal concerted activities.

Nothing herein contained shall impair the authority of the Legislative Assembly to enact laws to deal with grave emergencies that clearly imperil the public health or safety or essential public services.

19. The foregoing enumeration of rights shall not be construed restrictively nor does it contemplate the exclusion of other rights not specifically mentioned which belong to the people in a democracy. The power of the Legislative Assembly to enact laws for the protection of the life, health and general welfare of the people shall likewise not be construed restrictively.

20. The Commonwealth also recognizes the existence of the following human rights

The right of every person to receive free elementary and secondary education

The right of every person to obtain work

The right of every person to a standard of living adequate for the health and well-being of himself and of his family, and especially to food, clothing, housing and medical care and necessary social services

The right of every person to social protection in the event of unemployment, sickness, old age or disability

The right of motherhood and childhood to special care and assistance

The rights set forth in this section are closely connected with the progressive development of the economy of the Commonwealth and require, for their full effectiveness, sufficient resources and an agricultural and industrial development not yet attained by the Puerto Rican community

In the light of their duty to achieve the full liberty of the citizen, the people and the government of Puerto Rico shall do everything in their power to promote the greatest possible expansion of the system of production to assure the fairest distribution of economic output, and to obtain the maximum understanding between individual initiative and collective cooperation. The executive and judicial branches shall bear in mind this duty and shall construe the laws that tend to fulfill it in the most favorable manner possible.

ARTICLE III

THE LEGISLATURE

1. The legislative power shall be vested in a Legislative Assembly, which shall consist of two houses, the Senate and the House of Representatives, whose members shall be elected by direct vote at each general election

2. The Senate shall be composed of twenty-seven Senators and the House of Representatives of fifty-one Representatives, except as these numbers may be increased in accordance with the provisions of section 7 of this Article.

3. For the purpose of election of members of the Legislative Assembly, Puerto Rico shall be divided into eight senatorial districts and forty representative districts. Each senatorial district shall elect two Senators and each representative district one Representative

There shall also be Senators and eleven Representatives elected at large. No elector may vote for more than one candidate for Senator at Large or for more than one candidate for Representative at Large

4. In the first and subsequent elections under this Constitution the division of senatorial and representative districts as provided in Article VIII shall be in effect. After each decennial census beginning with the year 1960, said division shall be revised by a Board composed of the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court as Chairman and of two additional members appointed by the Governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. The two additional members shall not belong to the same political party. Any revision shall maintain the number of senatorial and representative districts here created, which shall be composed of contiguous and compact territory and shall be organized, insofar as practicable, upon the basis of population and means of communication. Each senatorial district shall always include five representative districts.

The decisions of the Board shall be made by majority vote and shall take effect in the general elections next following each revision. The Board shall cease to exist after the completion of each revision.

5. No person shall be a member of the Legislative Assembly unless he is able to read and write the Spanish or English language and unless he is a citizen of the United States and of Puerto Rico and has resided in Puerto Rico at least two years immediately prior to the date of his election or appointment. No person shall be a member of the Senate who is not over thirty years of age, and no person shall be a member of the House of Representatives who is not over twenty-five years of age.

6. No person shall be eligible to election or appointment as Senator or Representative for a district unless he has resided therein at least one year immediately prior to his election or appointment. When there is more than one representative district in a municipality, residence in the municipality shall satisfy this requirement.

7. If in a general election more than two-thirds of the members of either house are elected from one political party or from a single ticket, as both are defined by law, the number of members shall be increased in the following cases:

If the party or ticket which elected more than two-thirds of the members of either or both houses shall have obtained less than two-thirds of the total number of votes cast for the office of Governor, the number of members of the Senate or of the House of Representatives or of both bodies, whichever may be the case, shall be increased by declaring elected a sufficient number of candidates of the minority party or parties to bring the total number of members of the minority party or parties to nine in the Senate and to seventeen in the House of Representatives. When there is more than one minority party, said additional members shall be declared elected from among the candidates of each minority party in the proportion that the number of votes cast for the candidate of each of said parties for the office of Governor bears to the total number of votes cast for the candidates of all the minority parties for the office of Governor.

When one or more minority parties shall have obtained representation in a proportion equal to or greater than the proportion of votes received by their respective candidates for Governor, such party or parties shall not be entitled to additional members until the representation established for each of the other minority parties under these provisions shall have been completed

If the party or ticket which elected more than two-thirds of the members of either or both houses shall have obtained more than two-thirds of the total number of votes cast for the office of Governor, and one or more minority parties shall not have elected the number of members in the Senate or in the House of Representatives or in both houses, whichever may be the case, which corresponds to the proportion of votes cast by each of them for the office of Governor, such additional number of their candidates shall be declared elected as is necessary in order to complete said proportion as nearly as possible, but the number of Senators of all the minority parties shall never, under this provision, be more than nine or that of Representatives more than seventeen

In order to select additional members of the Legislative Assembly from a minority party in accordance with these provisions, its candidates at large who have not been elected shall be the first to be declared elected in the order of the votes that they have obtained, and thereafter its district candidates who, not having been elected, have obtained in their respective districts the highest proportion of the total number of votes cast as compared to the proportion of votes cast in favor of other candidates of the same party not elected to an equal office in the other districts

The additional Senators and Representatives whose election is declared under this section shall be considered for all purposes as Senators at Large or Representatives at Large

The measures necessary to implement these guarantees, the method of adjudicating fractions that may result from the application of the rules contained in this section, and the minimum number of votes that a minority party must cast in favor of its candidate for Governor in order to have the right to the representation provided herein shall be determined by the Legislative Assembly

8. The term of office of Senators and Representative shall begin on the second day of January immediately following the date of the general election in which they shall have been elected. If, prior to the fifteen months immediately preceding the date of the next general election, a vacancy occurs in the office of Senator or Representative for a district, the Governor shall call a special election in said district within thirty days following the date on which the vacancy occurs. This election shall be held not later than ninety days after the call, and the person elected shall hold once for the rest of the unexpired term of his predecessor. When said vacancy occurs during a legislative session, or when the Legislative Assembly or the Senate has been called for a date prior to the certification of the results of the special election, the presiding officer of the appropriate house shall fill said vacancy by appointing the person recommended by the central committee of the political party of which his predecessor in office was a member. Such person shall hold the office until certification of the election of the candidate who was elected. When the vacancy occurs within fifteen months prior to a general election, or when it occurs in the office of a Senator at Large or a Representative at Large, the presiding officer of the appropriate house shall fill it, upon the recommendation of the political party of which the previous holder of the office was a member, by appointing a person selected in the same manner as that in which his predecessor was selected. A vacancy in the office of a Senator at Large or a Representative at Large elected as an independent candidate shall be filled by an election in all districts.

9. Each House shall be the sole judge of the election, returns and qualifications of its members, shall choose its own officers, shall adopt rules for its own proceedings appropriate to legislative bodies, and, with the concurrence of three-fourths of the total number of members of which it is composed, may expel any member for the causes established in section 21 of this Article, authorizing impeachments. The Senate shall elect a President and the House of Representatives a Speaker from among their respective members.

10. The Legislative Assembly shall be deemed a continuous body during the term for which its members are elected and shall meet in regular session each year commencing on the second Monday in January. The duration of regular sessions and the periods of time for introduction and consideration of Bills shall be prescribed by law. When the Governor calls the Legislative Assembly into special session it may consider only those matters specified in the call or in any special message sent to it by him during the session. No special session shall continue longer than twenty calendar days.

11. The sessions of each House shall be open.

12. A majority of the total number of members of which each House is composed shall constitute a quorum, but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day and shall have authority to compel the attendance of absent members.

13. The two Houses shall meet in the Capitol of Puerto Rico and neither of them may adjourn for more than three consecutive days without the consent of the other.

14. No member of the Legislative Assembly shall be arrested while the House of which he is a member is in session, or during the fifteen days before or after such session, except for treason, felony or breach of the peace. The members of the Legislative Assembly shall not be questioned in any other place for any speech, debate or vote in either House or in any Committee.

15. No Senator or Representative may, during the term for which he was elected or chosen, be appointed to any civil office in the Government of Puerto Rico, its municipalities or instrumentalities, which shall have been created or the salary of which shall have been increased during said term. No person may hold office in the Government of Puerto Rico, its municipalities or instrumentalities and be a Senator or Representative at the same time. These provisions shall not prevent a member of the Legislative Assembly from being designated to perform functions ad honorem.

16 The Legislative Assembly shall have the power to create, consolidate or reorganize executive departments and to define their functions

17. No Bill shall become a law unless it has been printed, read, referred to a Committee and returned therefrom with a written report, but either House may discharge a committee from the study and report of any Bill and proceed to the consideration thereof Each House shall keep a journal of its proceedings and of the votes cast for and against Bills The legislative proceedings shall be published in a daily record in the form determined by law Every Bill, except general appropriation Bills, shall be confined to one subject, which shall be clearly expressed in its title, and any part of an Act whose subject has not been expressed in the title shall be void The general Appropriation Act shall contain only appropriations and rules for their disbursement No Bill shall be amended in a manner that changes its original purpose or incorporates matters extraneous to it In amending any Article or section of a law, said Article or section shall be promulgated in its entirety as amended All Bills for raising revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives, but the Senate may propose or concur with amendments as on other Bills

18. The subjects which may be dealt with by means of joint resolution shall be determined by law, but every joint resolution shall follow the same legislative process as that of a Bill

19. Every Bill which is approved by a majority of the total number of members of which each House is composed shall be submitted to the Governor and shall become law if he signs it or if he does not return it, with his objections, to the House in which it originated within ten days (Sundays excepted) counting from the date on which he shall have received it

When the Governor returns a Bill, the House that receives it shall enter his objections on its journal and both Houses may reconsider it If approved by two-thirds of the total number of members of which each House is composed, the Bill shall become law

If the Legislative Assembly adjourns sine die before the Governor has acted on a Bill that has been presented to him less than ten days before, he is relieved of the obligation of returning it with his objections and the Bill shall become law only if the Governor signs it within thirty days after receiving it

Every final passage or reconsideration of a Bill by each House shall be by a roll-call vote

20. In approving any appropriation Bill that contains more than one item the Governor may eliminate one or more of such items or reduce their amounts, at the same time reducing the total amounts involved

21. The House of Representatives shall have exclusive power to initiate impeachment proceedings and with the concurrence of two-thirds of the total number of members of which it is composed, to bring an indictment The Senate shall have exclusive power to try and to decide impeachment cases, and in meeting for such purposes the Senators shall act in the name of the people and under oath or affirmation No judgment of conviction in an impeachment trial shall be pronounced without the concurrence of three-fourths of the total number of members of which the Senate is composed, and the judgment shall be limited to removal from office. The person impeached, however, may be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment according to law. The causes of impeachment shall be treason, bribery, other felonies, and misdemeanors involving moral turpitude. The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court shall preside at the impeachment trial of the Governor.

The two Houses may conduct impeachment proceedings in their regular or special sessions. The presiding officers of the two Houses, upon written request of two-thirds of the total number of members of which the House of Representatives is composed, must convene them to deal with such proceedings.

22. The Governor shall appoint a Controller with the advice and consent of a majority of the total number of members of which each House is composed. The Controller shall meet the requirements prescribed by law and shall hold office for a term of ten years and until his successor has been appointed and qualifies. The Controller shall audit all the revenues, accounts and expenditures of the Commonwealth, of its agencies and instrumentalities and of its municipalities, in order to determine whether they have been made in accordance with law. He shall render annual reports and any special reports that may be required of him by the Legislative Assembly or by the Governor.

In the performance of his duties the Controller shall be authorized to administer oaths, take evidence and compel, under pain of contempt, the attendance of witnesses and the production of books, letters, documents, papers, records and all other Articles deemed essential to a full understanding of the matter under investigation.

The Controller may be removed for the causes and pursuant to the procedure established in the preceding section.

ARTICLE IV

THE EXECUTIVE

1. The executive power shall be vested in a Governor, who shall be elected by direct vote in each general election.

2. The Governor shall hold office for the term of four years from the second day of January of the year following his election and until his successor has been elected and qualifies. He shall reside in Puerto Rico and maintain his office in its capital city.

3. No person shall be Governor unless, on the date of the election, he is at least thirty-five years of age, and is and has been during the preceding five years a citizen of the United States and a citizen and bona fide resident of Puerto Rico.

4. The Governor shall execute the laws and cause them to be executed.

He shall call the Legislative Assembly or the Senate into special session when in his judgment the public interest so requires

He shall appoint, in the manner prescribed by this Constitution or by law, all officers whose appointment he is authorized to make. He shall have the power to make appointments while the Legislative Assembly is not in session. Any such appointments that require the advice and consent of the Senate or of both Houses shall expire at the end of the next regular session

He shall be the Commander-in-Chief of the militia

He shall have the power to call out the militia and summon the posse comitatus in order to prevent or suppress rebellion, invasion or any serious disturbance of the public peace

He shall have the power to proclaim martial law when the public safety requires it in case of rebellion or invasion or imminent danger thereof. The Legislative Assembly shall meet forthwith on their own initiative to ratify or revoke the proclamation

He shall have the power to suspend the execution of sentences in criminal cases and to grant pardons, commutations of punishment, and total or partial remissions of fines and forfeitures for crimes committed in violation of the laws of Puerto Rico. This power shall not extend to cases of impeachment

He shall approve or disapprove in accordance with this Constitution the joint resolutions and Bills passed by the Legislative Assembly.

He shall present to the Legislative Assembly, at the beginning of each regular session, a message concerning the affairs of the Commonwealth and a report concerning the state of the Treasury of Puerto Rico and the proposed expenditures for the ensuing fiscal year. Said report shall contain the information necessary for the formulation of a program of legislation

He shall exercise the other powers and functions and discharge the other duties assigned to him by this Constitution or by law

5. For the purpose of exercising executive power, the Governor shall be assisted by Secretaries whom he shall appoint with advice and consent of the Senate. The appointment of the Secretary of State shall in addition require the advice and consent of the House of Representatives and the person appointed shall fulfill the requirements established in section 3 of this Article. The Secretaries shall collectively constitute the Governor's advisory council, which shall be designated as the Council of Secretaries

6. Without prejudice to the power of the Legislative Assembly to create, reorganize and consolidate executive departments and to define their functions, the following departments are hereby established: State, Justice, Education, Health, Treasury, Labour, Agriculture and Commerce, and Public Works. Each of these executive departments shall be headed by a Secretary

7. When a vacancy occurs in the office of Governor, caused by death, resignation, removal, total and permanent incapacity, or any other absolute disability, said office shall devolve upon the Secretary of State, who shall hold it for the rest of the term until a new Governor has been elected and qualifies. In the event that vacancies exist at the same time in both the office of Governor and that of Secretary of State, the law shall provide which of the Secretaries shall serve as Governor.

8. When for any reason the Governor is temporarily unable to perform his functions, the Secretary of State shall substitute for him during the period he is unable to serve. If for any reason the Secretary of State is not available, the Secretary determined by law shall temporarily hold the office of Governor.

9. If the Governor-elect shall not have qualified, or if he has qualified and a permanent vacancy occurs in the office of Governor before he shall have appointed a Secretary of State, or before said Secretary, having been appointed, shall have qualified, the Legislative Assembly just elected, upon convening for its first regular session, shall elect, by a majority of the total number of members of which each House is composed, a Governor who shall hold office until his successor is elected in the next general election and qualifies.

10. The Governor may be removed for the causes and pursuant to the procedure established in section 21 of Article III of this Constitution.

ARTICLE V THE JUDICIARY

1. The judicial power of Puerto Rico shall be vested in a Supreme Court, and in such other courts as may be established by law.

2. The courts of Puerto Rico shall constitute a unified judicial system for purposes of jurisdiction, operation and administration. The Legislative Assembly may create and abolish courts, except for the Supreme Court, in a manner not inconsistent with this Constitution, and shall determine the venue and organization of the courts.

3. The Supreme Court shall be the court of last resort in Puerto Rico and shall be composed of a Chief Justice and four Associate Justices. The number of Justices may be changed only by law upon request of the Supreme Court.

4. The Supreme Court shall sit, in accordance with rules adopted by it, as a full Court or in divisions. All the decisions of the Supreme Court shall be concurred in by a majority of its members. No law shall be held unconstitutional except by a majority of the total number of Justices of which the Court is composed in accordance with this Constitution or with law.

5. The Supreme Court shall, or any of its divisions, or any of its Justices may hear in the first instance petitions for habeas corpus and any other causes and proceedings as determined by law.

6. The Supreme Court shall adopt for the courts rules of evidence and of civil and criminal procedure which shall not abridge, enlarge or modify the substantive rights of the parties. The rules thus adopted shall be submitted to the Legislative Assembly at the beginning of its next regular session and shall not go into effect until sixty days after the close of said session unless disapproved by the Legislative Assembly, which shall have the power both at said session and subsequently to amend, repeal or supplement any of said rules by a specific law to that effect

7. The Supreme Court shall adopt rules for the administration of the courts. These rules shall be subject to the laws concerning procurement, personnel, audit and appropriation of funds, and other laws which apply generally to all branches of the Government. The Chief Justice shall direct the administration of the courts and shall appoint an administrative director who shall hold office at the will of the Chief Justice

8. Judges shall be appointed by the Governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. Justices of the Supreme Court shall not assume office until after confirmation by the Senate and shall hold their offices during good behavior. The terms of office of the other judges shall be fixed by law and shall not be less than that fixed for the term of once of a judge of the same or equivalent category existing when this Constitution takes effect. The other officials and employees of the courts shall be appointed in the manner provided by law

9. No person shall be appointed a Justice of the Supreme Court unless he is a citizen of the United States and of Puerto Rico, shall have been admitted to the practice of law in Puerto Rico at least ten years prior to his appointment, and shall have resided in Puerto Rico at least five years immediately prior thereto

10. The Legislative Assembly shall establish a retirement system for Judges. Retirement shall be compulsory at the age of seventy years

11. Justices of the Supreme Court may be removed for the causes and pursuant to the procedure established in section 21 of Article III of this Constitution. Judges of the other courts may be removed by the Supreme Court for the causes and pursuant to the procedure provided by law

12. No Judge shall make a direct or indirect financial contribution to any political organization or party, or hold any executive office therein, or participate in a political campaign of any kind, or be a candidate for an elective public office unless he has resigned his judicial office at least six months prior to his nomination

13. In the event that a court or any of its divisions or sections is changed or abolished by law, the person holding a post of Judge therein shall continue to hold it during the rest of the term for which he was appointed and shall perform the judicial functions assigned to him by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court

ARTICLE VI

GENERAL PROVISIONS

1. The Legislative Assembly shall have the power to create, abolish, to reorganize and reorganize municipalities, to change their territorial limits, to determine their organization and functions, and to authorize them to develop programs for the general welfare and to create any agencies necessary for that purpose

No law abolishing or consolidating municipalities shall take effect until ratified in a referendum by a majority of the qualified electors voting in said referendum in each of the municipalities to be abolished or consolidated. The referendum shall be conducted in the manner determined by law, which shall include the applicable procedures of the election laws in effect when the referendum law is approved.

2. The power of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico to impose and collect taxes and to authorize their imposition and collection by municipalities shall be exercised as determined by the Legislative Assembly and shall never be surrendered or suspended. The power of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico to contract and to authorize the contracting of debts shall be exercised as determined by the Legislative Assembly.

3. The rule of taxation in Puerto Rico shall be uniform.

4. General elections shall be held every four years on the day of November determined by the Legislative Assembly. In said elections there shall be elected a Governor, the members of the Legislative Assembly, and the other officials whose election on that date is provided for by law.

Every person over twenty-one years of age shall be entitled to vote if he fulfills the other conditions determined by law. No person shall be deprived of the right to vote because he does not know how to read or write or does not own property.

All matters concerning the electoral process, registration of voters, political parties and candidates shall be determined by law.

Every popularly elected official shall be elected by direct vote and any candidate who receives more votes than any other candidate for the same office shall be declared elected.

5. The laws shall be promulgated in accordance with the procedure prescribed by law and shall specify the terms under which they shall take effect.

6. If at the end of any fiscal year the appropriations necessary for the ordinary operating expenses of the Government and for the payment of interest on and amortization of the public debt for the ensuing fiscal year shall not have been made, the several sums appropriated in the last Appropriation Acts for the objects and purposes therein specified, so far as the same may be applicable, shall continue in effect item by item, and the Governor shall authorize the payments necessary for such purposes until corresponding appropriations are made.

7. The appropriations made for any fiscal year shall not exceed the total revenues, including available surplus, estimated for said fiscal year unless the imposition of taxes sufficient to cover said appropriations is provided by law.

8. In case the available revenues including surplus for any fiscal year are insufficient to meet the appropriations made for that year, interest on the public debt and amortization thereof shall first be paid, and other disbursements shall thereafter be made in accordance with the order of priorities established by law

9. Public property and funds shall only be disposed of for public purposes, for the support and operation of State institutions, and pursuant to law

10 No law shall give extra compensation to any public officer, employee, agent or contractor after services shall have been rendered or contract made No law shall extend the term of any public officer or diminish his salary or emoluments after his election or appointment No person shall draw a salary for more than one office or position in the Government of Puerto Rico

11. The salaries of the Governor, the Secretaries, the members of the Legislative Assembly, the Controller and Judges shall be fixed by a special law and, except for the salaries of the members of the Legislative Assembly, shall not be decreased during the terms for which they are elected or appointed The salaries of the Governor and the Controller shall not be increased during said terms No increase in the salaries of the members of the Legislative Assembly shall take effect until after the expiration of the term of the Legislative Assembly during which it is enacted Any reduction of the salaries of the members of the Legislative Assembly shall be effective only during the term of the Legislative Assembly which approves it

12. The Governor shall occupy and use, free of rent, the buildings and properties belonging to the Commonwealth which have been or shall hereafter be used and occupied by him as chief executive

13. The procedure for granting franchises, rights, privileges and concessions of a public or quasi-public nature shall be determined by law, but every concession of this kind to a person or private entity must be approved by the Governor or by the executive official whom he designates Every franchise, right, privilege or concession of a public or quasi-public nature shall be subject to amendment, alteration or repeal as determined by law

14. No corporation shall be authorized to conduct the business of buying and selling real estate or be permitted to hold or own real estate except such as may be reasonably necessary to enable it to carry out the purposes for which it was created, and every corporation authorized to engage in agriculture shall by its charter be restricted to the ownership and control of not to exceed, five hundred acres of land, and this provision shall be held to prevent any member of a corporation engaged in agriculture from being in any wise interested in any other corporation engaged in agriculture

Corporations, however, may loan funds upon real estate security, and purchase real estate when necessary for the collection of loans, but they shall dispose of real estate so obtained within five years after receiving the title

Corporations not organized in Puerto Rico, but doing business in Puerto Rico shall be bound by the provisions of this section so far as they are applicable

These provisions shall not prevent the ownership, possession or management of lands in excess of five hundred acres by the Commonwealth, its agencies or instrumentalities

15. The Legislative Assembly shall determine all matters concerning the flag, the seal and the anthem of the Commonwealth. Once determined, no law changing them shall take effect until one year after the general election next following the date of enactment of said law

16. All public officials and employees of the Commonwealth, its agencies, instrumentalities and political subdivisions, before entering upon their respective duties, shall take an oath to support the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution and laws of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico

17. In case of invasion, rebellion, epidemic or any other event giving rise to a state of emergency, the Governor may call the Legislative Assembly to meet in a place other than the Capitol of Puerto Rico, subject to the approval or disapproval of the Legislative Assembly. Under the same conditions, the Governor may, during the period of emergency, order the Government, its agencies and instrumentalities to be moved temporarily to a place other than the seat of the Government

18. All criminal actions in the courts of the Commonwealth shall be conducted in the name and by the authority of "The People of Puerto Rico" until otherwise provided by law

19. It shall be the public policy of the Commonwealth to conserve, develop, and use its natural resources in the most effective manner possible for the general welfare of the community, to conserve and maintain buildings and places declared by the Legislative Assembly to be of historic or artistic value; to regulate its penal institutions in a manner that effectively achieves their purposes and to provide, within the limits of available resources, for adequate treatment of delinquents in order to make possible their moral and social rehabilitation

ARTICLE VII

AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION

1. The Legislative Assembly may propose amendments to this Constitution by a concurrent resolution approved by not less than two-thirds of the total number of members of which each House is composed. All proposed amendments shall be submitted to the qualified electors in a special referendum, but if the concurrent resolution is approved by not less than three-fourths of the total number of members of which each House is composed, the Legislative Assembly may provide that the referendum shall be held at the same time as the next general election. Each proposed amendment shall be voted on separately and not more than three proposed amendments may be submitted at the same referendum. Every proposed amendment shall specify the terms under which it shall take effect, and it shall become a part of this Constitution if it is ratified by a majority of the electors voting thereon. Once approved, a proposed amendment must be published at least three months prior to the date of the referendum.

2. The Legislative Assembly, by a concurrent resolution approved by two-thirds of the total number of members of which each House is composed, may submit to the qualified electors at a referendum, held at the same time as a general election, the question of whether a Constitutional Convention shall be called to revise this Constitution. If a majority of the electors voting on this question vote in favour of the revision, it shall be made by a Constitutional Convention elected in the manner provided by law. Every revision of this Constitution shall be submitted to the qualified electors at a special referendum for ratification or rejection by a majority of the votes cast at the referendum.

3. No amendment to this Constitution shall alter the republican form of Government established by it or abolish its Bill of Rights.

ARTICLE VIII

SENATORIAL AND REPRESENTATIVE DISTRICTS

- (l) a member (other than an ex-officio member) of the Armed Forces Council established under the Singapore Armed Forces Act,

- (m) the Commissioner of Police, and

- (n) the Director of the Corrupt Practices Investigation Bureau

22a. Appointment of Members of Statutory Boards

(1) Notwithstanding any other provision of this Constitution—

- (a) where the President is authorized by any written law to appoint the chairman, member or chief executive officer of any statutory board to which this article applies, the President, acting in his discretion, may refuse to make any such appointment or to revoke such appointment if he does not concur with the advice or recommendation of the authority on whose advice or recommendation he is required to act, or

- (b) in any, other case, no appointment to the office of chairman, member or chief executive officer of any statutory board to which this article applies and no revocation of such appointment shall be made by any appointing authority unless the President, acting in his discretion, concurs therewith

(2)(a) The chairman or member of a statutory board to which this article applies shall be appointed for a term not exceeding 3 years and shall be eligible for reappointment

(b) Any appointment to the office of chairman, member or chief executive officer of a statutory board under clause (1)(a) or any revocation thereof shall be void if made without the concurrence of the President

(3) This article shall apply to the statutory boards specified in Part I of the Fifth Schedule

(4) Subject to clause (5), the President acting in accordance with the advice of the Cabinet may, by order in the Gazette, add any other statutory board to Part I of the Fifth Schedule, and no statutory board shall be removed from that Part by any such order

(5) No statutory board shall by order under clause (4) be added to Part I of the Fifth Schedule if the total value of the reserves of the statutory board on the date of making of such order is less than $100 million

22b Budgets of Statutory Boards

(1) Every statutory board to which Article 22a applies shall—

(a) before the commencement of its financial year, present to the President for his approval its budget for that financial year, together with a declaration by the chairman and the chief executive officer of the statutory board whether the budget when implemented is likely to draw on the reserves which were not accumulated by the statutory board during the current term of office of the Government,

(b) present to the President for his approval every supplementary budget for its financial year together with a declaration referred to in paragraph (a) relating to such supplementary budget, and

(c) within 6 months after the close of that financial year, present to the President—

(i) a full and particular audited statement showing the revenue received and expenditure incurred by the statutory board during that financial year,

(ii) as far as practicable, an audited statement of the assets and liabilities of the statutory board at the end of that financial year, and

(iii) a declaration by the chairman and the chief executive officer of the statutory board whether the statements referred to in subparagraphs (i) and (ii) show any drawing on the reserves not accumulated by the statutory board during the current term of office of the Government

(2) The President acting in his discretion, may refuse to approve any budget or supplementary budget of any such statutory board if, in his opinion, the budget is likely to draw on reserves which were not accumulated by the statutory board during the current term of office of the Government, except that if he approves any such budget notwithstanding his opinion that the budget is likely to so draw on those reserves he shall cause his opinion to be published in the Gazette.

(3) Where by the first day of the financial year of such statutory board the President has not approved its budget for that financial year, the statutory board—

(a) shall, within 3 months of the first day of that financial year present to the President a revised budget for that financial year together with the declaration referred to in clause (1); and

(b) may, pending the decision of the President, incur expenditure not exceeding one-quarter of the amount provided in the approved budget of the statutory board for the preceding financial year, and if the President does not approve the revised budget, the statutory board may during that financial year incur total expenditure not exceeding the amount provided in the approved budget of the statutory board for the preceding financial year, and the budget for the preceding financial year shall have effect as the approved budget for that financial year.

(4) Any amount expended during a financial year under clause (3) (b) shall be included in any revised budget subsequently presented to the President under that clause for that financial year.

(5) Nothing in this article shall prevent the taking of any action by the Monetary Authority of Singapore in the management of the Singapore dollar; and a certificate under the hand of the chairman of the board of directors of the Monetary Authority of Singapore shall be conclusive evidence that any action was or was not taken for such purpose.

(6) It shall be the duty of every statutory board and its chief executive officer to which this article applies to inform the President of any proposed transaction of the statutory board which is likely to draw on the reserves accumulated by the statutory board prior to the current term of office of the Government.

(7) Where pursuant to clause (6) the President has been so informed of any such proposed transaction, the President, acting in his discretion, may disapprove the proposed transaction, except that if he does not disapprove any such proposed transaction even though he is of the opinion that the proposed transaction is likely to draw on the reserves accumulated by the statutory board prior to the current term of office of the Government, the President shall cause his decision and opinion to be published in the Gazette.

(8) Where after 30 November 1991 a statutory board is specified in Part I of the Fifth Schedule pursuant to an order made under Article 22a (4) any reference in this article to the approved budget of a statutory board for the preceding financial year shall, in relation to the first-mentioned statutory board, be read as a reference to the budget for the financial year of the first-mentioned statutory board during which that order was made.

(9) For the purpose of this article, where the Minister responsible for finance undertakes in writing to add to the reserves accumulated by the Government prior to its current term of office any reserves of a statutory board which are proposed to be transferred to the Government by or under the authority of any written law or otherwise, the proposed transfer and transfer of those reserves shall have effect as follows

(a) the proposed transfer and transfer shall not be taken into account in determining whether the reserves accumulated by the statutory board prior to the current term of office of the Government are likely to be or have been drawn on, and

(b) the reserves to be transferred by the statutory board shall be deemed to form part of the reserves accumulated by the Government prior to its current term of office on the following occasions

(i) where a budget of the statutory board for any financial year provides for the proposed transfer and the budget is approved by the President under this article at beginning of that financial year, or

(ii) where a supplementary budget provides for the proposed transfer and the supplementary budget is approved by the President under this article on the date of approval by the President

22c. Appointment of Directors of Government Companies

(1) Notwithstanding the provisions of the memorandum and articles of association of the company, the appointment or removal of any person as a director or chief executive officer of any Government company to which this article applies shall not be made unless the President acting in his discretion, concurs with such appointment or removal

(2)(a) A director of a Government company to which this article applies shall be appointed for a term not exceeding 3 years and shall be eligible for reappointment

(b) Any appointment or removal of any director or chief executive officer of a Government company to which this article applies without the concurrence of the President shall be void and of no effect

(3) This article shall apply to the Government companies specified in Part II of the Fifth Schedule

(4) Subject to clause (5), the President acting in accordance with the advice of the Cabinet may, by order in the Gazette, add any other Government company to Part II of the Fifth Schedule, and no Government company shall be removed from that Part by any such order

(5) No Government company shall by order under clause (4) be added to Part II of the Fifth Schedule unless on the date of making of such order—

(a) the value of the shareholders' funds of the company attributable to the Government's interest in the company is worth $100 million or more and

(b) it is not a subsidiary of any of the Government companies specified in Part II of the Fifth Schedule, and for the purposes of this paragraph, "subsidiary" shall have the same meaning as in the Companies Act

22d. Budgets of Government Companies

(1) The board of directors of every Government company to which Article 22c applies shall—

(a) before the commencement of its financial year present to the President for his approval its budget for that financial year, together with declaration by the chairman of the board of directors and the chief executive officer of the Government company whether the budget implemented is likely to draw on the reserves which were not accumulated by the Government company during the current term of office of the Government,

(b) present to the President for his approval every supplementary budget for its financial year together with a declaration referred to in paragraph (a) relating to such supplementary budget, and

(c) within 6 months after the close of that financial year, present to the President—

(i) a full and particular audited profit and loss account showing the revenue collected and expenditure incurred by the Government company during that financial year, and an audited balance sheet showing the assets and liabilities of the Government company at the end of that financial year, and

(ii) a declaration by the chairman of the board of directors and the chief executive officer of the Government company whether the audited profit and loss account and balance-sheet of the Government company show any drawing on the reserves not accumulated by the Government company during the current term of office of the Government

(2) The President, acting in his discretion, may disapprove the budget or supplementary budget of any such Government company if, in his opinion, the budget is likely to draw on reserves not accumulated by that company during the current term of office of the Government, except that if he approves any such budget notwithstanding his opinion that the budget is likely to so draw on those reserves, he shall cause his opinion to be published in the Gazette

(3) Where by the first day of the financial year of such Government company the President has not approved its budget for that financial year, the Government company—

(a) shall, within 3 months of the first day of that financial year, present to the President a revised budget for that financial year together with the declaration referred to in clause (1), and

(b) may, pending the decision of the President, incur expenditure not exceeding one-quarter of the amount provided in the approved budget of the Government company for the preceding financial year, and if the

President does not approve the revised budget, the Government company may during that financial year incur a total expenditure not exceeding the amount provided in the approved budget of the Government company for the preceding financial year, and the budget for the preceding financial year shall have effect as the approved budget for that financial year

(4) Any amount expended during a financial year under clause (3)(b) shall be included in any revised budget subsequently presented to the President under that clause for that financial year

(5) It shall be the duty of the board of directors and the chief executive officer of every Government company referred to in this article to inform the President of any proposed transaction of the company which is likely to draw on the reserves accumulated by the company prior to the current term of office of the Government

(6) Where pursuant to clause (5) the President has been so informed of any such proposed transaction the President, acting in his discretion, may disapprove the proposed transaction, except that if he does not disapprove any such proposed transaction even though he is of the opinion that the proposed transaction is likely to draw on the reserves accumulated by the Government company prior to the current term of office of the Government, the President shall cause his decision and opinion to be published in the Gazette

(7) Where after 30 November 1991 a Government company is specified in Part II of the Fifth Schedule pursuant to an order made under Article 22c (4), any reference in this article to the approved budget of a Government company for the preceding financial year shall, in relation to the first-mentioned Government company, be read as a reference to the budget for the financial year of the first-mentioned Government company immediately preceding the making of that order

(8) For the purpose of this article, where the Minister responsible for finance undertakes in writing to add to the reserves accumulated by the Government prior to its current term of office any reserves of a Government company which are proposed to be transferred to the Government by or under the authority of any written law or otherwise, the proposed transfer and transfer of those reserves shall have effect as follows

(a) the proposed transfer and transfer shall not be taken into account in determining whether the reserves accumulated by the Government company prior to the current term of office of the Government are likely to be or have been drawn on, and

(b) the reserves to be transferred by the Government company shall be deemed to form part of the reserves accumulated by the Government prior to its current term of office on the following occasions

(i) where a budget of the Government company for any financial year provides for the proposed transfer and the budget is approved by the President under this article at beginning of that financial year, or

(ii) where a supplementary budget of the Government company provides for the proposed transfer and the supplementary budget is approved by the President under this article on the date of approval by the President

22e. Moneys of the Central Provident Fund

The President, acting in his discretion, may withhold his assent to any Bill passed by Parliament which provides, directly or indirectly, for varying, changing or increasing the powers of the Central Provident Fund Board to invest the moneys belonging to the Central Provident Fund

22f. President's Access to Information

(1) In the exercise of his functions under this Constitution, the President shall be entitled, at his request, to any information concerning—

(a) the Government which is available to the Cabinet, and

(b) any statutory board or Government company to which Article 22a or 22c, as the case may be, applies which is available to the members of the statutory board or the directors of the Government company

(2) The President may request—

(a) any Minister, or any senior officer of a Ministry or of a department of the Government, or

(b) the chief executive officer and any member of the governing board of any statutory board or the directors of any Government company to which Article 22a or 22c, as the case may be, applies, to furnish any information referred to in clause (1) concerning the reserves of the Government, the statutory board or Government company, as the case may be, and the Minister, member, officer or director concerned shall be under a duty to provide the information

22g. Concurrence of President for Certain Investigations

Notwithstanding that the Prime Minister has refused to give his consent to the Director of the Corrupt Practices Investigation Bureau to make any inquiries or to carry out any investigations into any information received by the Director touching upon the conduct of any person or any allegation or complaint made against any person, the Director may make such inquiries or carry out investigations into such information, allegation or complaint if the President, acting in his discretion, concurs therewith

22h. President May Withhold Assent to Bill Circumventing or Curtailing His Power

(1) The President may, acting in his discretion, in writing withhold his assent to any Bill passed by Parliament (other than a Bill to which Article 5 (2a) applies) if the Bill provides, directly or indirectly, for the circumvention or curtailment of the discretionary powers conferred upon him by this Constitution

(2) If the President withholds his assent to any Bill pursuant to clause (1), the Prime Minister may refer the Bill to the High Court to determine whether the Bill provides, directly or indirectly, for the circumvention or curtailment of the discretionary powers conferred upon the President by this Constitution

(3) Where the High Court determines that a Bill does not provide, directly or indirectly, for the circumvention or curtailment of the discretionary powers conferred upon the President, and

(a) no valid notice of appeal against that determination has been lodged within the time prescribed by the Rules of the Supreme Court, or

(b) where a valid notice of appeal has been lodged, the appeal has been withdrawn or dismissed, the President shall be deemed to have assented to the Bill on the date the High Court made such a determination

22i Restraining Order Under Maintenance of Religious Harmony Act

The President, acting in his discretion, may cancel, vary, confirm or refuse to confirm a restraining order made under the Maintenance of Religious Harmony Act where the advice of the Cabinet is contrary to the recommendation of the Presidential Council for Religious Harmony

22j Civil List and Personal Staff of President

(1) The Legislature shall by law provide a Civil List for the maintenance of the President.

(2) Any person exercising the functions of the office of President pursuant to Article 22n or 22o shall, during any period in which he exercises those functions, be entitled to such remuneration as the Legislature may by law provide

(3) The Civil List for the maintenance of the President or any person exercising the functions of the office of President shall be charged on and paid out of the Consolidated Fund and shall not be diminished during the continuance in office of the President or that person

(4) Subject to clause (5), the appointment, terms of service, disciplinary control, termination of appointment and dismissal of the personal staff of the President shall be matters for the President acting in his discretion

(5) The President may, if he so desires, appoint to his personal staff such public officers as he may select, after consultation with the Prime Minister, from a list of names submitted by the Public Service Commission, and the provisions of clause (4) (except in so far as they relate to appointment) shall apply in relation to a person so appointed as respects his service on the personal staff of the President but not as respects his service as a public officer

(6) The remuneration of the personal staff of the President, other than a person appointed under clause (5), shall be paid out of the Civil List for the maintenance of the President

22k. Immunity of President From Suit

(1) Except as provided in clause (4), the President shall not be liable to any proceedings whatsoever in any court in respect of anything done or omitted to be done by him in his official capacity

(2) No proceedings in any court in respect of anything done or omitted to be done by the President in his private capacity shall be instituted against him during his term of office

(3) Where provision is made by law limiting the time within which proceedings of any description may be brought against any person, the period of time during which such person holds office as President shall not be taken into account in calculating any period of time prescribed by that law

(4) The immunity conferred by clause (1) shall not apply to—

(a) any proceedings instituted under Article 22h,

(b) any inquiry held by a tribunal pursuant to a resolution passed by Parliament under Article 22l, or

(c) any proceedings before the Election Judge under Article 93a to determine the validity of any Presidential election

22l. Vacation of and Removal From Office of President

(1) The office of President shall become vacant—

(a) upon the death of the President,

(b) if the President resigns his office by writing under his hand addressed to the Prime Minister,

(c) if the President is removed from office in accordance with clauses (3) to (7),

(d) if the Election Judge in the exercise of his powers under Article 93a determines that the election of the President was void and does not determine that any other person was duly elected as President, or

(e) if upon the expiration of the term of office of the incumbent the person declared elected as President fails to assume the office of President

(2) {Deleted by Amendment No 2 Act 1994 of 23 September 1994 }

(3) The Prime Minister or not less than one-quarter of the total number of the elected Members of Parliament referred to in Article 39 (1)(a) may give notice of a motion alleging that the President is permanently incapable of discharging the functions of his office by reason of mental or physical infirmity or that the President has been guilty of—

(a) intentional violation of the Constitution,

(b) treason,

(c) misconduct or corruption involving the abuse of the powers of his office, or

(d) any offence involving fraud, dishonesty or moral turpitude, and setting out full particulars of the allegations made and seeking an inquiry and report thereon

Articles 22m-22n]

(4) Where the motion referred to in clause (3) has been adopted by not less than half of the total number of the elected Members of Parliament referred to in Article 39 (1)(a), the Chief Justice shall appoint a tribunal to inquire into the allegations made against the President

(5) A tribunal appointed by the Chief Justice shall consist of not less than 5 Judges of the Supreme Court of whom the Chief Justice shall be one, unless he otherwise decides and such tribunal may regulate its own procedure and make rules for that purpose

(6) A tribunal shall, after due inquiry at which the President shall have the right to appear and to be heard in person or by counsel, make a report of its determination to the Speaker together with the reasons therefor

(7) Where the tribunal reports to the Speaker that in its opinion the President is permanently incapable of discharging the functions of his office by reason of mental or physical infirmity or that the President has been guilty of any of the other allegations contained in such resolution, Parliament may by a resolution passed by not less than three-quarters of the total number of the elected Members of Parliament referred to in Article 39 (1)(a) remove the President from office

22m. Determination by Election Judge That President Was Not Duly Elected

(1) Where the Election Judge in the exercise of his jurisdiction under Article 93a determines

(a) that the election of the President was void and does not determine that any other person was duly elected, then, a poll for the election of the President shall be taken not later than 6 months from the date of the determination, or

(b) that any other person was duly elected as President, then, such other person shall assume the office of President forthwith after the determination

(2) Upon the Election Judge making any determination that the election of the President was void and no other person was duly elected as President, the person who immediately before such determination was exercising the functions of the office of President shall forthwith cease to exercise such functions

(3) The exercise, performance and discharge by any person of the powers, duties and functions of the office of President shall not be invalid by reason only of the fact that the Election Judge subsequently determines that the election of such person as President was void or undue

22n. Persons to Exercise Functions of President

(1) If the office of President becomes vacant, the Chairman of the Council of Presidential Advisers or, if he is unavailable, the Speaker shall exercise the functions of the office of President during the period between the time the office of President becomes vacant and the assumption of office by the person declared elected as President

(2) If neither the Chairman of the Council of Presidential Advisers nor the Speaker is available, Parliament may appoint a person in accordance with clause (3) to exercise the functions of the office of President during the period referred to in clause (1)

(3) Parliament shall not appoint any person to exercise the functions of the office of President under clause (2) unless the person is qualified to be elected as President.

(4) The provisions of this Chapter relating to immunity from suits shall apply in relation to any person exercising the functions of the office of President pursuant to this article as if references to the President in those provisions were references to that person

(5) Any person required or appointed to exercise the function of the office of President pursuant to this article or Article 22o shall, before exercising those functions, take and subscribe in the presence of the Chief Justice or another Judge of the Supreme Court the Oath of Office in the form set out in the First Schedule, except that neither the Chairman of the Council of Presidential Advisers nor the Speaker shall, during his term of office as such Chairman or as Speaker, be required to take such oath more than once in respect of occasions when he is required to exercise the functions of the office of President

22o. Temporary Disability of President

(1) Subject to clause (2), if the President becomes temporarily unable, whether by reason of ill health, absence from Singapore or otherwise, to perform his functions under this Constitution or any other written law, one of the persons referred to in Article 22n shall exercise the functions of the office of President during the period of temporary disability, and the provisions of Article 22n shall apply, mutatis mutandis, to that person

(2) Parliament shall not appoint any person to exercise the functions of the office of President under this article unless the President agrees to that person being so appointed

(3) Clause (2) shall not apply if the President is unable for any reason to signify his agreement to a person being appointed under this article to exercise the functions of the office of President

23. Executive Authority of Singapore

(1) The executive authority of Singapore shall be vested in the President and exercisable subject to the provisions of this Constitution by him or by the Cabinet or any Minister authorized by the Cabinet

(2) The Legislature may by law confer executive functions on other persons

24 Cabinet

(1) There shall be in and for Singapore a Cabinet which shall consist of the Prime Minister and such other Ministers as may be appointed in accordance with Article 25

(2) Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, the Cabinet shall have the general direction and control of the Government and shall be collectively responsible to Parliament

25 Appointment of Prime Minister and Ministers

(1) The President shall appoint as Prime Minister a Member of Parliament who in his judgment is likely to command the confidence of the majority of the Members of Parliament, and shall, acting in accordance with the advice of the Prime Minister, appoint other Ministers from among the Members of Parliament. Provided that, if an appointment is made while Parliament is dissolved, a person who was a Member of the last Parliament may be appointed but shall not continue to hold office after the first sitting of the next Parliament unless he is a Member thereof

(2) Appointments under this article shall be made by the President by instrument under the public seal

26 Tenure of Office of Prime Minister and Ministers

(1) The President shall, by writing under the public seal, declare the office of Prime Minister vacant—

(a) if the Prime Minister resigns his office by writing under his hand addressed to the President, or

(b) if the President, acting in his discretion, is satisfied that the Prime Minister has ceased to command the confidence of a majority of the Members of Parliament.

Provided that, before declaring the office of Prime Minister vacant under this paragraph, the President shall inform the Prime Minister that he is satisfied as aforesaid, and, if the Prime Minister so requests, the President may dissolve Parliament instead of making such a declaration

(2) A Minister, other than the Prime Minister, shall vacate his office—

(a) if his appointment to that office is revoked by the President, acting in accordance with the advice of the Prime Minister, by instrument under the public seal, or

(b) if he resigns his office by writing under his hand addressed to the President

(3) A person who has vacated his office as Minister may, if qualified, be again appointed as Minister from time to time

(1)(a) Whenever the Prime Minister is ill or absent from Singapore or has been granted leave of absence from his duties under Article 32, the functions conferred on him by this Constitution shall be exercisable by any other Minister authorized by the President, by instrument under the public seal in that behalf

(b) The President may, by instrument under the public seal, revoke any authority given under this clause

(c) The powers conferred upon the President by this clause shall be exercised by him acting in his discretion, if in his opinion it is impracticable to obtain the advice of the Prime Minister owing to the Prime Minister's illness or absence, and in any other case shall be exercised by the President in accordance with the advice of the Prime Minister

27. Oath

The Prime Minister and every other Minister shall before entering on the duties of his office, take and subscribe before the President the Oath of Allegiance and the appropriate Oath for the due execution of his office in the forms set out in the First Schedule

28. Summoning of and Presiding in Cabinet

(1) The Cabinet shall not be summoned except by the authority of the Prime Minister

(2) The Prime Minister shall, so far as is practicable, attend and preside at meetings of the Cabinet and, in his absence, such other Minister shall preside as the Prime Minister shall appoint

29. Validity of Proceedings in Cabinet

Any proceedings in the Cabinet shall be valid notwithstanding that some person who was not entitled to do so sat or voted therein or otherwise took part in the proceedings

30. Assignment of Responsibility to Ministers

(1) The Prime Minister may, by directions in writing—

(a) charge any Minister with responsibility for any department or subject, and

(b) revoke or vary any directions given under this clause

(2) The Prime Minister may retain in his charge any department or subject

31. Parliamentary Secretaries

(1) The President, acting in accordance with the advice of the Prime Minister, may by instrument under the public seal, appoint Parliamentary Secretaries from among the Members of Parliament to assist Ministers in the discharge of their duties and functions. Provided that, if an appointment is made while Parliament is dissolved, a person who was a Member of the last Parliament may be appointed a Parliamentary Secretary but shall not continue to hold office after the first sitting of the next Parliament unless he is a Member thereof

(2) Article 26 (2) and (3) and Article 27 shall apply to Parliamentary Secretaries as they apply to Ministers

32 Leave of Absence for Ministers and Parliamentary Secretaries

The President, acting in accordance with the advice of the Prime Minister, may grant leave of absence from his duties to the Prime Minister, to any other Minister and to any Parliamentary Secretary.

33. Disabilities of Ministers and Parliamentary Secretaries

A member of the Cabinet or Parliamentary Secretary shall not hold any office of profit and shall not actively engage in any commercial enterprise

34. Permanent Secretaries

(1) There shall be for each Ministry one or more Permanent Secretaries who shall be persons who are public officers

(2)(a) Appointments to the office of Permanent Secretary shall be made by the President, acting in accordance with the advice of the Prime Minister, from a list of names submitted by the Public Service Commission

(b) The responsibility for the allocation of each Permanent Secretary to a Ministry shall be vested in the Prime Minister

(3) Every Permanent Secretary shall, subject to the general direction and control of the Minister, exercise supervision over the department or departments to which he is allocated

35. Attorney-General

(1) The office of Attorney-General is hereby constituted and appointments thereto shall be made by the President, if he, acting in his discretion, concurs with the advice of the Prime Minister, from among persons who are qualified for appointment as a Judge of the Supreme Court

(2) When it is necessary to make an appointment to the office of Attorney-General otherwise than by reason of the death of the holder of that office or his removal from office under clause (6), the Prime Minister shall, before tendering advice to the President under clause (1), consult the person holding the office of Attorney-General or, if that office is then vacant, the person who has last vacated it, and the Prime Minister shall, in every case, before tendering such advice, consult the Chief Justice and the Chairman of the Public Service Commission

(3) The Prime Minister shall not be obliged to consult any person under clause (2) if he is satisfied that by reason of the infirmity of body or mind of that person or for any other reason it is impracticable to do so

(4) The Attorney-General may be appointed for a specific period and, if he was so appointed, shall, subject to clause (6), vacate his office (without prejudice to his eligibility for reappointment) at the expiration of that period, but subject as aforesaid shall otherwise hold office until he attains the age of 65 years. Provided that—

(a) he may at any time resign his office by writing under his hand addressed to the President and

(b) the President, if he acting in his discretion, concurs with the advice of the Prime Minister, may permit an Attorney-General who has attained the age of 60 years to remain in office for such fixed period as may have been agreed between the Attorney-General and the Government

(5) Nothing done by the Attorney-General shall be invalid by reason only that he has attained the age at which he is required by this article to vacate his office

(6)(a) The Attorney-General may be removed from office by the President, if he, acting in his discretion, concurs with the advice of the Prime Minister, but the Prime Minister shall not tender such advice except for inability of the Attorney-General to discharge the functions of his office (whether arising from infirmity of body or mind or any other cause) or for misbehavior and except with the concurrence of a tribunal consisting of the Chief Justice and two other Judges of the Supreme Court nominated for that purpose by the Chief Justice

(b) The tribunal constituted under this clause shall regulate its own procedure and may make rules for that purpose.

(7) It shall be the duty of the Attorney-General to advise the Government upon such legal matters and to perform such other duties of a legal character, as may from time to time be referred or assigned to him by the President or the Cabinet and to discharge the functions conferred on him by or under this Constitution or any other written law.

(8) The Attorney-General shall have power, exercisable at his discretion, to institute, conduct or discontinue any proceedings for any offence

(9) In the performance of his duties, the Attorney-General shall have the right of audience in, and shall take precedence over any other person appearing before any court or tribunal in Singapore

(10) The Attorney-General shall be paid such remuneration and allowances as may from time to time be determined and such remuneration and allowances shall be charged on and paid out of the Consolidated Fund

(11) Subject to this article, the terms of service of the Attorney-General shall either—

(a) be determined by or under any law made under this Constitution, or

(b) (in so far as they are not determined by or under any such law) be determined by the President

(12) The terms of service of the Attorney-General shall not be altered to his disadvantage during his continuance in office

(13) For the purposes of clause (12), in so far as the terms of service of the Attorney-General depend upon his option, any terms for which he opts shall be taken to be more advantageous to him than any for which he might have opted

36. Secretary of Cabinet

(1) The President, acting in accordance with the advice of the Prime Minister, may appoint a public officer to be the Secretary to the Cabinet

(2) The Secretary to the Cabinet shall be responsible, in accordance with such instructions as may be given to him by the Prime Minister, for arranging the business for, and keeping the minutes of, the meetings of the Cabinet and for conveying the decisions of the Cabinet to the appropriate person or authority and shall have such other functions as the Prime Minister may from time to time direct.

CHAPTER 3

CAPACITY AS REGARDS PROPERTY, CONTRACTS, AND SUITS

37. Capacity of Government as Regards Property, Contracts, and Suits

(1) The Government shall have power to acquire, hold and dispose of property of any kind and to make contracts

(2) The Government may sue and be sued

PART VA

COUNCIL OF PRESIDENTIAL ADVISERS

37a Interpretation

In this Part, unless the context otherwise requires,—

— ‘Chairman’ means the Chairman of the Council,

— ‘Council’ means the Council of Presidential Advisers constituted under Article 37b,

— ‘member’ means a member of the Council and includes the Chairman

37b Council of Presidential Advisers

(1) There shall be a Council of Presidential Advisers which shall consist of—

(a) two members appointed by the President acting in his discretion,

(b) two members appointed by the President on the advice of the Prime Minister, and

(c) one member appointed by the President on the advice of the Chairman of the Public Service Commission

(2) The President, acting in his discretion, shall appoint one of the members of the Council as Chairman

(3) A member of the Council shall serve for a term of 6 years and shall be eligible for reappointment upon the expiry of his term of office except that in respect of the appointment of the first members under clause (1), one of the two members referred to in paragraphs (a) and (b) of that clause shall be appointed for a term of 3 years instead of 6 years

(4) During any period when the Chairman exercises the functions of the office of President under Article 22n or 22o, he shall not act as the Chairman for that period and shall not take part in the proceedings of the Council and shall not appoint—

- (a) a person to serve as a member of the Council for that period, and
- (b) a member of the Council to act as Chairman for that period

37c. Temporary Appointments During Incapacity of Members

Whenever a member informs the Chairman that he is or will be incapable, for a period of 3 months or more, of taking part in the proceedings of the Council by reason of illness, absence or other cause, the Chairman shall convey the information to the President who may appoint another person to serve as a member for that period either in his discretion or, where that member was appointed under Article 37b (1)(b) or (c), on the advice of the Prime Minister or the Chairman of the Public Service Commission, as the case may be

37d. Qualifications of Members

No person shall be qualified to be appointed as a member unless he—

- (a) is a citizen of Singapore,
- (b) is not less than 35 years of age,
- (c) is a resident of Singapore, and
- (d) is not liable to any of the disqualifications referred to in Article 37e

37e. Disqualifications of Members

A person shall be disqualified for appointment as a member if he—

- (a) is or has been found or declared to be of unsound mind,
- (b) is insolvent or an undischarged bankrupt, or
- (c) has been convicted of an offence by a court of law in Singapore or a foreign country and sentenced to imprisonment for a term of not less than one year or to a fine of not less than $2,000 and has not received a free pardon. Provided that where the conviction is by a court in a foreign country, the person shall not be so disqualified unless the offence is also one which, had it been committed in Singapore, would have been punishable by a court of law in Singapore

37f. Termination of Membership

(1) The Chairman shall vacate the office of Chairman of the Council when a newly elected President assumes office during the term of appointment of the Chairman

(2) A member shall vacate his seat in the Council—

- (a) if he ceases to be a citizen of Singapore,
- (b) if by writing under his hand addressed to the Chairman he resigns his seat, or
- (c) if he becomes subject to any of the disqualifications referred to in Article 37e

37g. Determination of Questions as to Membership

(1) Any question as to the validity of the appointment of a member or whether any person has vacated his seat as a member of the Council shall be referred to and determined by a tribunal consisting of a Judge of the Supreme Court appointed by the Chief Justice and two other persons appointed by the Council

(2) Any tribunal constituted under clause (1) shall—

(a) sit in private,

(b) afford the person concerned adequate opportunity to call witnesses and be heard, and

(c) report its decision to the Chairman

(3) The decision of the tribunal shall be final and shall not be questioned in any court

37h Oaths of Allegiance and Secrecy

Before any person who has been appointed Chairman or a member enters upon the duties of his office, he shall take and subscribe before a Judge of the Supreme Court the Oath of Allegiance and the Oath of Secrecy in the forms set out respectively in paragraphs 2 and 8 in the First Schedule

37i. Function of Council

It shall be the function of the Council to advise and make recommendations to the President on any matter referred to the Council by the President pursuant to Article 21 (3) or (4)

37j Proceedings of Council

(1) The proceedings of the Council shall be conducted in private and the Council may require any public officer or any officer of any statutory board or Government company to appear before the Council and to give such information in relation to any matter referred to the Council by the President pursuant to Article 21 (3) or (4) and such officer shall not disclose or divulge to any person any matter which has arisen at any meeting of the Council unless he is expressly authorized to do so by the President

(2) In advising or making recommendations to the President in relation to any Supply Bill, Supplementary Supply Bill, or Final Supply Bill, the Council shall state—

(a) whether its advice or recommendation is unanimous or the number of votes for and against it, and

(b) where the Council advises or recommends to the President to withhold his assent to any Supply Bill, Supplementary Supply Bill, or Final Supply Bill, the grounds on which the Council reached its conclusion

(3) Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, the Council may make rules with respect to the regulation and conduct of its proceedings and the dispatch of its business (including any quorum) but no such rules shall have effect until they have been approved by the President

37k. Council to Report to Prime Minister and Parliament

The Council shall, as soon as practicable after advising or making any recommendation to the President in relation to a Supply Bill, Supplementary Supply Bill, or Final Supply Bill, send a copy of the advice or recommendation to—

- (a) the Prime Minister, and
- (b) the Speaker who shall cause the copy to be presented to Parliament as soon as possible

37l. Fees

(1) There shall be paid to the Chairman and the other members of the Council such fees as may be determined by the President

(2) The fees payable under clause (1) shall be charged on and paid out of the Consolidated Fund and shall not be diminished during the continuance in office of the Chairman and the members of the Council

37m. Appointment of Staff

The Council shall have power to appoint a Secretary to the Council and such other officers as may be required to enable the Council to carry out its functions

PART VI THE LEGISLATIVE

38. Legislature of Singapore

The Legislature of Singapore shall consist of the President and Parliament

39. Parliament

(1) Parliament shall consist of—

(a) such number of elected Members as is required to be returned at a general election by the constituencies prescribed by or under any law made by the Legislature,

(b) such other Members, not exceeding 6 in number, who shall be known as non-constituency Members, as the Legislature may provide in any law relating to Parliamentary elections to ensure the representation in Parliament of a minimum number of Members from a political party or parties not forming the Government, and

(c) such other Members not exceeding 6 in number, who shall be known as nominated Members, as may be appointed by the President in accordance with the provisions of the Fourth Schedule

(2) A non-constituency Member or a nominated Member shall not vote in Parliament on any motion pertaining to—

- (a) a Bill to amend the Constitution,
- (b) a Supply Bill, Supplementary Supply Bill, or Final Supply Bill,
- (c) a Money Bill as defined in Article 68,

- (d) a vote of no confidence in the Government, and
- (e) removing the President from office under Article 221

(3) In this article and in Articles 39a and 47, a constituency shall be construed as an electoral division for the purposes of Parliamentary elections

(4) If any person who is not a Member of Parliament is elected as Speaker or Deputy Speaker, he shall, by virtue of holding the office of Speaker or Deputy Speaker, be a Member of Parliament in addition to the Members aforesaid, except for the purposes of Chapter 2 of Part V and of Article 46

39a. Group Representation Constituencies

(1) The Legislature may, in order to ensure the representation in Parliament of Members from the Malay, Indian and other minority communities, by law make provision for—

(a) any constituency to be declared by the President, having regard to the number of electors in that constituency, as a group representation constituency to enable any election in that constituency to be held on a basis of a group of not less than 3 but not more than 4 candidates, and

(b) the qualifications, in addition to those in Article 44, of persons who may be eligible for any election in group representation constituencies, including the requirements referred to in clause (2)

(2) Any law made pursuant to clause (1) shall provide for—

(a) the President to designate every group representation constituency—

(i) as a constituency where at least one of the candidates in every group shall be a person belonging to the Malay community, or

(ii) as a constituency where at least one of the candidates in every group shall be a person belonging to the Indian or other minority communities,

(b) the establishment of—

(i) a committee to determine whether a person desiring to be a candidate belongs to the Malay community, and

(ii) a committee to determine whether a person desiring to be a candidate belongs to the Indian or other minority communities, for the purpose of any election in group representation constituencies,

(c) all the candidates in every group to be either members of the same political party standing for election for that political party or independent candidates standing as a group,

(d) the minimum and maximum number of Members to be returned in all group representation constituencies at a general election, and

(e) the number of group representation constituencies to be designated under Paragraph (a)(i)

(3) No provision of any law made pursuant to this article shall be invalid on the ground of inconsistency with Article 12 or be considered to be a discriminatory measure under Article 78

(4) In this article—

— “election” means an election for the purpose of electing a Member of Parliament,

— “group” means a group of not less than 3 but not more than 4 candidates nominated for any election in any group representation constituency,

— “person belonging to the Malay community” means any person, whether of the Malay race or otherwise, who considers himself to be a member of the Malay community and who is generally accepted as a member of the Malay community by that community,

— “person belonging to the Indian or other minority communities” means any person of Indian origin who considers himself to be a member of the Indian community and who is generally accepted as a member of the Indian community by that community, or any person who belongs to any minority community other than the Malay or Indian community

40. Speaker

(1) When Parliament first meets after any general election and before it proceeds to the despatch of any other business, it shall elect a person to be Speaker, and, whenever the office of Speaker is vacant otherwise than by reason of a dissolution of Parliament, shall not transact any business other than the election of a person to fill that office

(2) The Speaker may be elected, in such manner as Parliament may from time to time decide, either from among the Members of Parliament who are neither Ministers nor Parliamentary Secretaries or from among persons who are not Members of Parliament. Provided that a person who is not a Member of Parliament shall not be elected as Speaker if, under any of the provisions of this Constitution, he is not qualified for election as a Member of Parliament

(3) Upon the Speaker being elected and before he enters upon the duties of his office, he shall (unless he has already done so in accordance with Article 61) take and subscribe before Parliament the Oath of Allegiance in the form set out in the First Schedule

(4) The Speaker may at any time resign his office by writing under his hand addressed to the Clerk of Parliament, and shall vacate his office

(a) when Parliament first meets after a general election,

(b) in the case of a Speaker elected from among the Members of Parliament, if he ceases to be a Member of Parliament otherwise than by reason of a dissolution thereof or if he is appointed to be a Minister or a Parliamentary Secretary, or

(c) in the case of a Speaker elected from among persons who are not Members of Parliament, if any circumstance arises that, if he had been elected to a seat in Parliament, would cause him to vacate his seat by virtue of Article 46 (2)(a) or (c)

41. Remuneration of Speaker

The Speaker shall be paid such salary as Parliament may from time to time determine, and that salary, which is hereby charged on the Consolidated Fund, shall not be diminished during his continuance in office

42. Deputy Speaker

(1) Parliament shall from time to time elect two Deputy Speakers; and whenever the office of a Deputy Speaker is vacant otherwise than by reason of a dissolution of Parliament, Parliament shall, as soon as convenient, elect a person to that office

(2)(a) A Deputy Speaker may be elected, in such manner as Parliament may from time to time decide, either from among the Members of Parliament who are neither Ministers nor Parliamentary Secretaries or from among persons who are not Members of Parliament. Provided that a person who is not a Member of Parliament shall not be elected as Deputy Speaker if, under any of the provisions of this Constitution, he is not qualified for election as a Member of Parliament

(b) Upon a Deputy Speaker being elected and before he enters upon the duties of his office, he shall (unless he has already done so in accordance with Article 61) take and subscribe before Parliament the Oath of Allegiance in the form set out in the First Schedule

(c) A Deputy Speaker may at any time resign his office, by writing under his hand addressed to the Clerk of Parliament and shall vacate his office—

(i) when Parliament first meets after a general election,

(ii) in the case of a Deputy Speaker elected from among the Members of Parliament, if he ceases to be a Member of Parliament otherwise than by reason of a dissolution thereof or if he is appointed to be a Minister or a Parliamentary Secretary, or

(iii) in the case of a Deputy Speaker elected from among persons who are not Members of Parliament, if any circumstance arises that, if he had been elected to a seat in Parliament, would cause him to vacate his seat by virtue of Article 46 (2)(a) or (c)

(3) A Deputy Speaker shall be paid such salary or allowance as Parliament may from time to time determine and that salary or allowance, which is hereby charged on the Consolidated Fund, shall not be diminished during his continuance in office

43. Performance of Functions of Speaker

The functions conferred by this Constitution upon the Speaker shall, if there is no person holding the office of Speaker or if the Speaker is absent from a sitting of Parliament or is otherwise unable to perform those functions, be performed by a Deputy Speaker, or if there be no Deputy Speaker or if he is likewise absent or unable to perform those functions, by some other person to be elected by Parliament for the purpose

44. Qualifications for Membership of Parliament

(1) Members of Parliament shall be persons qualified for election or for appointment in accordance with the provisions of this Constitution and elected in the manner provided by or under any law for the time being in force in Singapore or appointed in accordance with the provisions of the Fourth Schedule

(2) A person shall be qualified to be elected or appointed as a Member of Parliament if—

(a) he is a citizen of Singapore.

(b) he is of the age of 21 years or above on the day of nomination,

(c) his name appears in a current register of electors,

(d) he is resident in Singapore at the date of his nomination for election and has been so resident for periods amounting in the aggregate to not less than 10 years prior to that date,

(e) he is able, with a degree of proficiency sufficient to enable him to take an active part in the proceedings of Parliament to speak and, unless incapacitated by blindness or other physical cause, to read and write at least one of the following languages, that is to say, English, Malay, Mandarin and Tamil, and

(f) he is not disqualified from being a Member of Parliament under Article 45

(3) Any question whether any person possesses the qualifications mentioned in clause (2) (e) shall be determined in such manner as may be prescribed by or under any law for the time being in force in Singapore or in so far as not so prescribed, as may be provided by order made by the President and published in the Gazette

45. Disqualifications for Membership of Parliament

(1) Subject to this article, a person shall not be qualified to be a Member of Parliament who—

(a) is and has been found or declared to be of unsound mind,

(b) is an undischarged bankrupt,

(c) holds an office of profit,

(d) having been nominated for election to Parliament or the office of President or having acted as election agent to a person so nominated, has failed to lodge any return of election expenses required by law within the time and in the manner so required,

(e) has been convicted of an offence by a court of law in Singapore or Malaysia and sentenced to imprisonment for a term of not less than one year or to a fine of not less than $2,000 and has not received a free pardon. Provided that where the conviction is by a court of law in Malaysia, the person shall not be so disqualified unless the offence is also one which, had it been committed in Singapore, would have been punishable by a court of law in Singapore,

(f) has voluntarily acquired the citizenship of, or exercised rights of citizenship in, a foreign country or has made a declaration of allegiance to a foreign country, or

(g) is disqualified under any law relating to offenses in connection with elections to Parliament or the office of President by reason of having been convicted of such an offence or having in proceedings relating to such an election been proved guilty of an act constituting such an offence

(2) The disqualification of a person under clause (1)(d) or (e) may be removed by the President and shall, if not so removed, cease at the end of 5 years beginning from the date on which the return mentioned in clause (1) (d) was required to be lodged or, as the case may be, the date on which the person convicted as mentioned in clause (1) (e) was released from custody or the date on which the fine mentioned in clause (1) (e) was imposed on such person, and a person shall not be disqualified under clause (1) (f) by reason only of anything done by him before he became a citizen of Singapore

(3) In clause (1)(f), "foreign country" does not include any part of the Commonwealth or the Republic of Ireland

46. Tenure of Office of Members

(1) Every Member of Parliament shall cease to be a Member at the next dissolution of Parliament after he has been elected or appointed, or previously thereto if his seat becomes vacant, under the provisions of this Constitution

(2) The seat of a Member of Parliament shall become vacant—

(a) if he ceases to be a citizen of Singapore,

(b) if he ceases to be a member of, or is expelled or resigns from, the political party for which he stood in the election,

(c) if, by writing under his hand addressed to the Speaker, he resigns his seat in Parliament,

(d) if during two consecutive months in each of which sittings of Parliament (or any committee of Parliament to which he has been appointed) are held, he is absent from all such sittings without having obtained from the Speaker before the termination of any such sitting permission to be or to remain absent therefrom,

(e) if he becomes subject to any of the disqualifications specified in Article 45,

(f) if he is expelled from Parliament in the exercise of its power of expulsion, or

(g) if being a nominated Member, his term of service as such a Member expires

(2a) A non-constituency Member of Parliament shall vacate his seat as such a Member if he is subsequently elected as a Member of Parliament for any constituency

(2b) A nominated Member of Parliament shall vacate his seat as such a Member—

- (a) if he stands as a candidate for any political party in an election, or
- (b) if not being a candidate referred to in paragraph (a), he is elected as a Member of Parliament for any constituency.

(3) Any person whose seat in Parliament has become vacant may, if qualified, again be elected or appointed as a Member of Parliament from time to time

47. Provision Against Double Membership

A person shall not be at the same time a Member of Parliament for more than one constituency

48. Decision on Questions as to Disqualification

Any question whether—

- (a) any Member of Parliament has vacated his seat therein, or
- (b) in the case of any person who has been elected as Speaker or Deputy Speaker from among persons who are not Members of Parliament, any circumstance has arisen that, if he had been elected to a seat in Parliament, would cause him to vacate his seat by virtue of Article 46 (2)(a) or (e), shall be determined by Parliament whose decision shall be final. Provided that this article shall not be taken to prevent the practice of Parliament postponing a decision in order to allow for the taking or determination of any proceedings that may affect the decision (including proceedings for the removal of the disqualification)

49. Filling of Vacancies

(1) Whenever the seat of a Member, not being a non-constituency Member, has become vacant for any reason other than a dissolution of Parliament, the vacancy shall be filled by election in the manner provided by or under any law relating to Parliamentary elections for the time being in force

(2) The Legislature may by law provide for—

- (a) the vacating of a seat of a non-constituency Member in circumstances other than those specified in Article 46,
- (b) the filling of vacancies of the seats of non-constituency Members where such vacancies are caused otherwise than by a dissolution of Parliament

50. Penalty for Unqualified Persons Sitting or Voting in Parliament

(1) Any person who sits or votes in Parliament, knowing or having reasonable ground for knowing that he is not entitled to do so, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding $200 for each day on which he so sits or votes

(2) The said penalty shall be recoverable by action in the High Court at the suit of the Attorney-General

51. Staff of Parliament

(1) The staff of Parliament shall consist of a Clerk of Parliament and such other officers as may from time to time be appointed under Part IX to assist

Articles 52-56]

(2) The Clerk of Parliament shall be appointed by the President after consultation with the Speaker and the Public Service Commission

(3) The Clerk of Parliament may at any time resign his office by writing under his hand addressed to the Speaker and, subject to clause (4), may be removed from office by the President after consultation with the Speaker

(4) The Clerk of Parliament shall not be removed from office under clause (3) unless Parliament, by a resolution which has received the affirmative votes of not less than two-thirds of all the Members thereof, has resolved that he ought to be so removed for inability to discharge the functions of his office (whether arising from infirmity of body or mind or any other cause) or for misbehavior

(5) The staff of Parliament shall not be eligible for promotion or transfer to any other office in the public service without the consent of the Speaker.

(6) Subject to Article 159, the terms of service of the staff of Parliament may be determined by Parliament after receiving the advice of a Commission consisting of the following persons, that is to say

(a) the Speaker, as Chairman,

(b) not more than 3 Ministers nominated by the Prime Minister, of whom one shall be the Minister responsible for finance, and

(c) a member of the Public Service Commission

52 Standing Orders

Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, Parliament may, from time to time, make, amend and revoke Standing Orders for the regulation and orderly conduct of its own proceedings and the despatch of business

53 Use of Languages in Parliament

Until the Legislature otherwise provides, all debates and discussions in Parliament shall be conducted in Malay, English, Mandarin, or Tamil

54 Presiding in Parliament

The Speaker shall preside at each sitting of Parliament

55 Validity of Proceedings of Parliament

Parliament shall not be disqualified for the transaction of business by reason of any vacancies among the Members thereof, including any vacancy not filled when Parliament is first constituted or is reconstituted at any time, and any proceedings therein shall be valid notwithstanding that some person who was not entitled to do so sat or voted in Parliament or otherwise took part in the proceedings

56 Quorum

If objection is taken by any Member present that there are present fewer than one-quarter of the total number of Members and, after such interval as may be prescribed in the Standing Orders of Parliament, the Speaker or other Member presiding certifies that the number of Members present is still less than one-quarter of the total number of Members, he shall thereupon adjourn Parliament

57. Voting

(1) Subject to this Constitution, all questions proposed for decision in Parliament shall be determined by a majority of the votes of the Members present and voting, and if, upon any question before Parliament, the votes of the Members are equally divided, the motion shall be lost

(2) If the Speaker has been elected from among persons who are not Members of Parliament, he shall not vote, but subject to this provision, the Speaker or other person presiding shall have an original vote but no casting vote

58. Exercise of Legislative Power

(1) Subject to the provisions of Part VII, the power of the Legislature to make laws shall be exercised by Bills passed by Parliament and assented to by the President

(2) A Bill shall become law on being assented to by the President and such law shall come into operation on the date of its publication in the Gazette or, if it is enacted either in such law or in any other law for the time being in force in Singapore that it shall come into operation on some other date, on that date

59. Introduction of Bills

(1) Subject to the provisions of this Constitution and of Standing Orders of Parliament, any Member may introduce any Bill or propose any motion for debate in, or may present any petition to, Parliament, and the same shall be debated and disposed of according to the Standing Orders of Parliament

(2) A Bill or amendment making provision (whether directly or indirectly) for—

(a) imposing or increasing any tax or abolishing, reducing or remitting any existing tax,

(b) the borrowing of money, or the giving of any guarantee, by the Government, or the amendment of the law relating to the financial obligations of the Government,

(c) the custody of the Consolidated Fund, the charging of any money on the Consolidated Fund or the abolition or alteration of any such charge;

(d) the payment of moneys into the Consolidated Fund or the payment, issue or withdrawal from the Consolidated Fund of any moneys not charged thereon, or any increase in the amount of such a payment, issue or withdrawal, or

(e) the receipt of any moneys on account of the Consolidated Fund or the custody or issue of such moneys, being provision as respects which the Minister charged with responsibility for finance signifies that it goes beyond what is incidental only and not of a substantial nature having regard to the purposes of the Bill or amendment, shall not be introduced or moved except on the recommendation of the President signified by a Minister

(3) A Bill or amendment shall not be deemed to make provision for any of the said matters by reason only that it provides for the imposition or alteration of any fine or other pecuniary penalty or for the payment or demand of a license fee or a fee or charge for any service rendered

60 Words of Enactment of Laws

In every Bill presented for assent, the words of enactment shall be as follows "Be it enacted by the President with the advice and consent of the Parliament of Singapore, as follows"

61 Oath of Allegiance

No Member of Parliament shall be permitted to take part in the proceedings thereof (other than proceedings necessary for the purpose of this article) until he has taken and subscribed before Parliament the Oath of Allegiance in the form set out in the First Schedule Provided that the election of a Speaker may take place before the Members of Parliament have taken and subscribed such Oath

62 Address by President

The President may address Parliament and may send messages thereto

63 Privileges of Parliament

It shall be lawful for the Legislature by law to determine and regulate the privileges, immunities or powers of Parliament

64 Sessions of Parliament

(1) There shall be a session of Parliament once at least in every year and a period of 6 months shall not intervene between the last sitting of Parliament in any one session and the first sitting thereof in the next session

(2) The sessions of Parliament shall be held in such places and shall commence at such times as the President may, from time to time, by Proclamation in the Gazette appoint

65 Prorogation and Dissolution of Parliament

(1) The President may, at any time, by Proclamation in the Gazette, prorogue Parliament

(2) If, at any time, the office of Prime Minister is vacant, the President shall by Proclamation in the Gazette, dissolve Parliament as soon as he is satisfied, acting in his discretion, that a reasonable period has elapsed since that office was last vacated and that there is no Member of Parliament likely to command the confidence of a majority of the Members thereof

(3) The President may, at any time by Proclamation in the Gazette dissolve Parliament if he is advised by the Prime Minister to do so, but he shall not be obliged to act in this respect in accordance with the advice of the Prime Minister unless he is satisfied that, in tendering that advice the Prime Minister commands the confidence of a majority of the Members of Parliament

(4) The President shall not dissolve Parliament after a notice of motion has been laid on the table inquiring into the conduct of the President has been given under Art. 22(14) unless—

(a) a resolution is not passed pursuant to the notice of such motion under Article 221 (4),

(b) where a resolution has been passed pursuant to the notice of such motion under Article 221 (4), the tribunal appointed under Article 221 (5) determines and reports that the President has not become permanently incapable of discharging the functions of his office or that the President has not been guilty of any of the other allegations contained in such motion,

(c) the consequent resolution for the removal of the President is not passed under Article 221 (7), or

(d) Parliament by resolution requests the President to dissolve Parliament

(4) Parliament, unless sooner dissolved, shall continue for 5 years from the date of its first sitting and shall then stand dissolved

66. General Elections

There shall be a general election at such time, within 3 months after every dissolution of Parliament, as the President shall, by Proclamation in the Gazette, appoint

67. Remuneration of Members

The Legislature may by law make provision for the remuneration of Members of Parliament

PART VII

THE PRESIDENTIAL COUNCIL FOR MINORITY RIGHTS

68. Interpretation

In this Part, unless the context otherwise requires—

— “adverse report” means a report of the Council stating that, in the opinion of the Council, some specified provision of a Bill or of a subsidiary legislation would be a differentiating measure,

— “Chairman” means the Chairman of the Council,

— “Council” means the Presidential Council for Minority Rights established under Article 69,

— “differentiating measure” means any measure which is, or is likely in its practical application to be, disadvantageous to persons of any racial or religious community and not equally disadvantageous to persons of other such communities, either directly by prejudicing persons of that community or indirectly by giving advantage to persons of another community,

— “member” means a member of the Council and includes the Chairman,

— “Money Bill” means a Bill which contains only provisions dealing with all or any of the following matters

(a) the imposition, repeal, remission, alteration or regulation of taxation,

(b) the imposition, for the payment of debt or other financial purposes, of charges on the Consolidated Fund or any other public funds, or the variation or repeal of any such charges,

(c) the grant of money to the Government or to any authority or person, or the variation or revocation of any such grant,

(d) the appropriation, receipt, custody, investment, issue or audit of accounts of public money,

(e) the raising or guarantee of any loan or the repayment thereof, or the establishment, alteration, administration or abolition of any sinking fund provided in connection with any such loan,

(f) subordinate matters which are ancillary or incidental to any of the foregoing matters,

— "sitting day" means any date on which Parliament meets

69. Establishment of Presidential Council for Minority Rights

(1) There shall be a Presidential Council for Minority Rights which shall consist of—

(a) a Chairman appointed for a period of 3 years,

(b) not more than 10 permanent members appointed for life, and

(c) not more than 10 other members appointed for a period of 3 years

(2) The Chairman and the members shall be appointed by the President if he, acting in his discretion, concurs with the advice of the Cabinet

(3) The Chairman and the members appointed under clause (1) (c) shall be eligible for reappointment

70. Temporary Appointment During Incapacity of Member

Whenever a member informs the Chairman that he is or will be incapable, for a period of 3 months or more, of taking part in the proceedings of the Council by reason of illness, absence or other cause, the Chairman shall convey the information to the President who may, if he, acting in his discretion, concurs with the advice of the Cabinet, appoint a person to serve as a member for that period

71. Qualifications of Members

No person shall be qualified to be appointed as a member unless he—

(a) is a citizen of Singapore,

(b) is not less than 35 years of age,

(c) is resident in Singapore, and

(d) is not liable to any of the disqualifications provided in Article 72

72. Disqualifications of Members

A person shall be disqualified for appointment as a member who—

(a) is or has been found or declared to be of unsound mind,

(b) is insolvent or an undischarged bankrupt,

(c) has been convicted of an offence by a court of law in Singapore or Malaysia and sentenced to imprisonment for a term of not less than one year or to a fine of not less than $2,000 and has not received a free pardon. Provided that where the conviction is by a court of law in Malaysia, the person shall not be so disqualified unless the offence is also one which, had it been committed in Singapore, would have been punishable by a court of law in Singapore, or

(d) has voluntarily acquired the citizenship of, or exercise the rights of citizenship in, a foreign country or has made a declaration of alliance to a foreign country

73. Termination of Membership

(a) if he ceases to be a citizen of Singapore,

(b) if by writing under his hand addressed to the Chairman he resigns his seat, or

(c) if he becomes subject to any of the disqualifications provided in Article 72

74. Determination of Questions as to Membership

(1) Any question whether any person has become a member or has vacated his seat as such member shall be referred to and determined by a tribunal consisting of a Judge of the Supreme Court appointed by the Chief Justice and two members appointed by the Council

(2) Any tribunal constituted under clause (1) shall—

(a) sit in private,

(b) afford the person concerned adequate opportunity to call witnesses and be heard, and

(c) report its decision to the Chairman

(3) The decision of the tribunal shall be final and shall not be open to question in any court

75. Oaths of Allegiance and Secrecy

Before any person who has been appointed Chairman or a member enters upon the duties of his office, he shall take and subscribe before a Judge of the Supreme Court the Oath of Allegiance and the Oath of Secrecy in the forms set out respectively in paragraphs 2 and 7 in the First Schedule

76. General Function of Council

(1) It shall be the general function of the Council to consider and report on such matters affecting persons of any racial or religious community in Singapore as may be referred to the Council by Parliament or the Government

(2) A reference to the Council by Parliament may be made by the Speaker, and a reference to the Council by the Government may be made by a Minister

77 Functions of Council in Respect of Bills and Subsidiary Legislation

It shall be the particular function of the Council to draw attention to any Bill or to any subsidiary legislation if that Bill or subsidiary legislation is, in the opinion of the Council, a differentiating measure

78. Copies of Bills and Amendments Thereto to be Sent to Council

(1) Immediately after any Bill to which this article applies has been given a final reading and passed by Parliament and before it is presented to the President for assent, the Speaker shall cause an authenticated copy of the Bill to be sent to the Council

(2) The Council shall consider the Bill and shall, within 30 days of the date on which the Bill was sent to the Council, make a report to the Speaker stating whether or not in the opinion of the Council any and, if so, which provision of the Bill would, if enacted, be a differentiating measure

(3) Whenever after the receipt of an adverse report from the Council, the Bill to which it relates is amended by Parliament, the Speaker shall cause the Bill in its amended form to be sent again to the Council

(4) On the application of the Chairman, the Speaker may extend, as he thinks fit, the period of 30 days prescribed by clause (2), where he considers it proper to do so on account of the length or complexity of any Bill or the number of matters for the time being under consideration by the Council or for any sufficient reason

(5) The Speaker shall cause every report received by him from the Council in pursuance of clause (2) to be presented to Parliament without undue delay. Where the Speaker receives no such report on the Bill within the time provided in clause

(2), or any extension thereof granted under clause (4), it shall be conclusively presumed that the Council is of the opinion that no provision of the Bill would, if enacted, be a differentiating measure

(6) No Bill to which this article applies shall be presented to the President for assent unless it is accompanied by a certificate under the hand of the Speaker stating that—

(a) in the opinion of the Council no provision of the Bill would, if enacted, be a differentiating measure,

(b) no report having been received from the Council within the time prescribed or any extension thereof, the Council is presumed to be of the opinion that no provision of the Bill would, if enacted be a differentiating measure or

(c) notwithstanding the opinion of the Council that some specified provision of the Bill would, if enacted be a differentiating measure, a motion for the presentation of the Bill to the President for assent has been passed by the affirmative vote of not less than two-thirds of the total membership of Parliament

(7) This article shall not apply to—

(a) a Money Bill,

(b) a Bill certified by the Prime Minister as being one which affects the defence or the security of Singapore or which relates to public safety, peace or good order in Singapore, or

(c) a Bill certified by the Prime Minister to be so urgent that it is not in the public interest to delay its enactment

(8) A Bill shall be deemed to be a Money Bill if the Speaker certifies in writing that, in his opinion, it is a Bill to which the definition of "Money Bill" contained in Article 68 applies. No Money Bill shall be presented to the President for assent, unless it is accompanied by the Speaker's certificate which shall be conclusive for all purposes and shall not be open to question in any court

79. Functions of Council in Regard to Bills Enacted on a Certificate of Urgency

(1) Where the President assents to a Bill which has been certified as urgent by the Prime Minister under Article 78 (7), it shall nevertheless be the duty of the Speaker to cause an authenticated copy of the Act to be sent as soon as may be to the Council

(2) The Council shall thereupon consider the Act and shall, within 30 days of the date on which the Act was sent to the Council, make a report to the Speaker stating whether or not in the opinion of the Council any and, if so, which provision of the Act is a differentiating measure

(3) The Speaker shall cause any such report to be presented to Parliament as soon as possible

80. Functions of Council in Regard to Subsidiary Legislation

(1) An authenticated copy of every piece of subsidiary legislation shall be sent to the Council by the appropriate Minister within 14 days of the publication of such subsidiary legislation

(2) The Council shall thereupon consider such subsidiary legislation and shall, within 30 days of the date on which the subsidiary legislation was sent to the Council, make a report to the Speaker and to the appropriate Minister, stating whether or not in the opinion of the Council any and, if so, which provision of the subsidiary legislation is a differentiating measure

(3) The Speaker shall cause every report of the Council on every piece of subsidiary legislation to be presented to Parliament on the next sitting day after receiving the Council's report

(4) Where an adverse report in respect of any provision of any subsidiary legislation is presented to Parliament in pursuance of clause (3), then, within 6 months after the presentation of that report, unless either—

(a) the provision has been revoked or amended by the appropriate Minister, or

(b) Parliament has passed a resolution confirming that provision, the appropriate Minister shall revoke such provision and cause a notice of revocation to be published in the Gazette

(5) If no report on any subsidiary legislation is received from the Council within the time provided in clause (2), it shall be conclusively presumed that the Council is of the opinion that no provision in such subsidiary legislation is a differentiating measure

81. Functions of Council in Regard to Certain Written Law

(1) The Council may examine any written law in force on 9 January, 1970 and may make a report in regard to any provision in such written law which, in the opinion of the Council, is a differentiating measure

(2) The Council shall send such report to the Speaker and the Speaker shall cause such report to be presented to Parliament as soon as possible.

(3) In the case of a report on any subsidiary legislation, the Council shall also cause a copy of the report to be sent to the appropriate Minister

82. Duties of Chairman

(1) The Council shall meet on the summons of the Chairman

(2) The Chairman, if present, shall preside at all meetings of the Council

(3) Whenever the office of Chairman is vacant or the Chairman for any reason is unable to attend, some other member shall be elected by the Council to act as Chairman

83. Quorum and Voting

(1) The Council shall not transact any business unless a quorum of 8 members, including the Chairman or member presiding, is present

(2) Any decision of the Council shall be made by a majority of the votes of the members present and voting

(3) The Chairman or member presiding shall have an original vote but not a casting vote

(4) If upon any question before the Council the votes of the members are equally divided, the motion shall be deemed to be lost

84. Proceedings of Council to be in Private

The proceedings of the Council shall be conducted in private and the Council shall not be entitled to hear objectors or examine witnesses in regard to any Bill or law which is being considered by the Council in pursuance of the provisions of this Part

85. Council's Report

In reporting the opinion of the Council under the provisions of this Part, the Council shall state—

(a) either that the report is unanimous or the number of votes for and against it and

(b) in the case of an adverse report, the grounds on which the Council has reached its conclusion

86. Validity of Proceedings Notwithstanding Vacancy in Membership

Subject to Article 83 (1), the Council shall not be disqualified for the transaction of business by reason of any vacancy among the members thereof, and any proceedings therein shall be valid notwithstanding that some person who was not entitled to do so took part in those proceedings

87. Attendance of Minister, etc.

Any Minister, Minister of State or Parliamentary Secretary specially authorized by the Prime Minister for this purpose shall be entitled to attend and take part in the proceedings of the Council as if he were a member but shall not have the right to vote in the Council

88. Power of Council to Make Rules Regulating Procedure

Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, the Council may make rules with respect to the regulation and conduct of its proceedings and the despatch of its business but no such rules shall have effect until they have been approved by the President

89. Annual Report

(1) Once in every year it shall be the duty of the Council to compile and present to the President a report on the work of the Council during the preceding 12 months

(2) The President shall cause such report to be presented to Parliament as soon as possible

90. Salaries and Fees

(1) There shall be paid to the Chairman and the other members such salaries and fees as may be determined by the President

(2) The salaries and fees payable under clause (1) shall be defrayed out of moneys provided by Parliament

91. Appointment of Staff

The Council shall have power to appoint a Secretary to the Council and such other officers as may be required to enable the Council to carry out its functions under this Part

92. Power to Make Rules Generally

The President may make rules for the conduct of business between the Council and Parliament and between the Council and any authority empowered to make subsidiary legislation, and generally for carrying out the purposes of this Part

PART VIII

93. Judicial Power of Singapore

The judicial power of Singapore shall be vested in a Supreme Court and in such subordinate courts as may be provided by any written law for the time being in force

93a. Jurisdiction to Determine Questions as to Validity of Presidential Election

(1) All proceedings relating to the election of the President shall be heard and determined by the Chief Justice or by a Judge of the Supreme Court nominated by the Chief Justice for the purpose (referred to in this Constitution as the Election Judge)

(2) The Election Judge shall have the power to hear and determine and make such orders as provided by law on proceedings relating to the election of the President, and the decision of the Election Judge in any such proceedings shall be final

(3) The procedure and practice in proceedings relating to the election of the President shall be regulated by rules which may be made by the Rules Committee constituted and appointed under section 80 of the Supreme Court of Judicature Act

94. Constitution of Supreme Court

(1) The Supreme Court shall consist of the Court of Appeal and the High Court with such jurisdiction and powers as are conferred on those Courts by this Constitution or any written law

(2) The office of a Judge of the Supreme Court shall not be abolished during his continuance in office

(3) A person qualified for appointment as a Judge of the Supreme Court or a person who has ceased to hold the office of a Judge of the Supreme Court may be appointed as the Chief Justice in accordance with Article 95, or may sit as a Judge of the High Court or as a Judge of Appeal, if designated for the purpose (as occasion requires) in accordance with Article 95, and such person shall hold office for such period or periods as the President, if the President, acting in his discretion, concurs with the advice of the Prime Minister, shall direct

(4) In order to facilitate the disposal of business in the Supreme Court, the President, if he, acting in his discretion, concurs with the advice of the Prime Minister, may appoint a person qualified for appointment as a Judge of the Supreme Court to be a Judicial Commissioner of the Supreme Court in accordance with Article 95 for such period or periods as the President thinks fit, and a Judicial Commissioner so appointed may in respect of such class or classes of cases as the Chief Justice may specify exercise the powers and perform the functions of a Judge of the High Court. Anything done by a Judicial Commissioner when acting in accordance with the terms of his appointment shall have the same validity and effect as if done by a Judge of that Court and, in respect thereof, he shall have the same powers and enjoy the same immunities as if he had been a Judge of that Court

(5) For the purposes of Clause (4), the President may appoint a person qualified for appointment as a Judge of the Supreme Court to be a Judicial Commissioner to hear and determine a specified case only

95. Appointment of Judges of Supreme Court

(1) The Chief Justice, the Judges of Appeal, and the Judges of the High Court shall be appointed by the President if he, acting in his discretion, concurs with the advice of the Prime Minister

(2) Before tendering his advice as to the appointment under clause (1) of a Judge, other than the Chief Justice, the Prime Minister shall consult the Chief Justice

(3) This article shall apply to the designation of a person to sit as a Judge of the High Court or as a Judge of Appeal under Article 94 (3) and to the appointment of a Judicial Commissioner of the Supreme Court under Article 94 (4) as it applies to the appointment of a Judge of the High Court other than the Chief Justice

96. Qualifications of Judges of Supreme Court

A person is qualified for appointment as a Judge of the Supreme Court if he has for an aggregate period of not less than 10 years been a qualified person within the meaning of section 2 of the Legal Profession Act or a member of the Singapore Legal Service, or both

97. Oath of Office of Judges and Judicial Commissioners of Supreme Court

The Chief Justice and every person appointed or designated to sit as a Judge of the High Court or a Judge of Appeal or appointed as a Judicial Commissioner of the Supreme Court shall, before he enters on the execution of his office, take, in the presence of the President, the Oath of Office in the form set out in the First Schedule

98. Tenure of Office and Remuneration of Judges of Supreme Court

(1) Subject to this article, a Judge of the Supreme Court shall hold office until he attains the age of 65 years or such later time not being later than 6 months after he attains that age, as the President may approve

(2) A Judge of the Supreme Court may at any time resign his office by writing under his hand addressed to the President, but shall not be removed from office except in accordance with clauses (3), (4) and (5)

(3) If the Prime Minister, or the Chief Justice after consulting the Prime Minister, represents to the President that a Judge of the Supreme Court ought to be removed on the ground of misbehavior or of inability, from infirmity of body or mind or any other cause, to properly discharge the functions of his office, the President shall appoint a tribunal in accordance with clause (4) and shall refer that representation to it, and may on the recommendation of the tribunal remove the Judge from office

(4) The tribunal shall consist of not less than 5 persons who hold or have held office as a Judge of the Supreme Court, or, if it appears to the President expedient to make such an appointment, persons who hold or have held equivalent office in any part of the Commonwealth, and the tribunal shall be presided over by the member first in the following order, namely, the Chief Justice according to their precedence among themselves and other members according to the order of their appointment to an office qualifying them for membership (the older coming before the younger of two members with appointments of the same date)

(5) Pending any reference and report under clause (3) the President may, if he, acting in his discretion, concurs with the recommendation of the Prime Minister and, in the case of any other Judge, after consulting the Chief Justice, suspend a Judge of the Supreme Court from the exercise of his functions

(6) Parliament shall by law provide for the remuneration of the Judges of the Supreme Court and the remuneration so provided shall be charged on the Consolidated Fund

(7) Subject to this article, Parliament may by law provide for the terms of office of the Judges of the Supreme Court, other than their remuneration

(8) The remuneration and other terms of office (including pension rights) of a Judge of the Supreme Court shall not be altered to his disadvantage after his appointment

(9) Notwithstanding clause (1), the validity of anything done by a Judge of the Supreme Court shall not be questioned on the ground that he had attained the age on which he was required to retire

(10) The President may in his discretion grant leave of absence from his duties to the Chief Justice and, acting on the advice of the Chief Justice, to any other Judge of the Supreme Court

99. Restriction on Parliamentary Discussion of Conduct of a Judge of Supreme Court

The conduct of a Judge of the Supreme Court or a person designated to sit as such Judge or a Judicial Commissioner shall not be discussed in Parliament except on a substantive motion of which notice has been given by not less than one-quarter of the total number of the Members of Parliament

100. Advisory Opinion

(1) The President may refer to a tribunal consisting of not less than 3 Judges of the Supreme Court for its opinion any question as to the effect of any provision of this Constitution which has arisen or appears to him likely to arise

(2) Where a reference is made to a tribunal under clause (1), it shall be the duty of the tribunal to consider and answer the question so referred as soon as may be and in any case not more than 60 days after the date of such reference and the tribunal shall certify to the President for his information, its opinion on the question referred to it under clause (1) with reasons for its answer, and any Judge in the tribunal who differs from the opinion of the majority shall in like manner certify his opinion and his reasons

(3) The opinion of the majority of the Judges in the tribunal shall, for the purposes of this article, be the opinion of the tribunal, and every such opinion of the tribunal shall be pronounced in open court

(4) No court shall have jurisdiction to question the opinion of any tribunal or the validity of any law, or any provision therein, the Bill for which has been the subject of a reference to a tribunal by the President under this article

101. Continuance of Existing Judges

In this part, "office", in relation to a Judge of the Supreme Court, means the office as Chief Justice, Judge of Appeal, or Judge of the High Court, as the case may be

(7) Articles 105 (6), 106, 107 and 108 shall apply to a member of the Commission appointed under Article 110a (1) (c) or 110b (1) (c) as they apply to a member of the Public Service Commission.

(8) Before assuming the duties of his office a member of the Commission appointed under Article 110a (1)(c) or 110b (1)(c) shall take and subscribe before the Chief Justice or some other Judge of the Supreme Court the Oath for the due execution of his office in the form (with necessary modifications) applicable to a member of the Public Service Commission as set out in the First Schedule.

110d. Personnel Boards

(1) Subject to the provisions of this article, the President may, on the advice of the Prime Minister and by order in the Gazette, establish one or more personnel boards to exercise all or any of the powers and functions of the Public Service Commission, the Education Service Commission and the Police and Civil Defence Services Commission in respect of the public officers each Commission has charge of under Articles 110, 110a, and 110b, respectively

(2) The order under clause (1) shall specify the powers and functions to be exercised by a personnel board and the class or classes of public officers in respect of which those powers and functions may be exercised except the following

(a) the power to dismiss and exercise disciplinary control over all public officers of any grade in Division I, and

(b) all powers of the Public Service Commission in relation to public officers in the Administrative Service and Administrative Service (Foreign Service Branch) who hold appointments of and above significant grade (as defined in Article 111a (1)) in those Services, including the power to nominate officers for appointment or promotion to that grade, and any power of appointment specified in the order as to be exercised by a personnel board shall not include a power to dismiss any person so appointed

(3) Where the President has by order established a personnel board under clause (1) for the purpose of exercising any of the powers or functions of a Commission referred to in that clause, such power or function—

(a) may be exercised by such personnel board notwithstanding anything in Articles 110 (1) and (4), 110a (2), and 110b (2), and

(b) shall, so long as it remains a power or function to be exercised by the boards pursuant to such order, cease to be exercisable by that Commission except to the extent permitted under clause (4)

(4) Subject to regulations made under clause (7), any person aggrieved by any decision of any personnel board may, within such time and in such manner as may be prescribed, appeal to the Commission referred to in clause (1) which would have exercised the powers of that personnel board if this article had not been enacted, and the decision of any such Commission shall be final

(5) Subject to clause (6), a personnel board which is established to exercise any power over officers in Division I shall consist of such persons as the President may, on the advice of the Prime Minister, appoint, except that the President may, acting in his discretion, refuse to make any such appointment if he does not concur with the advice of the Prime Minister

(6) A person shall not be appointed to be a member of a personnel board if he is, and shall cease to be a member if he becomes—

(a) a Member of Parliament or a duly nominated candidate for election as such Member,

(b) a member of any trade union or of any body or association affiliated to a trade union, or

(c) the holder of any office in any political association

(7) The President may by regulations—

(a) provide for matters relating to the appointment of members of personnel boards,

(b) prescribe the procedure to be followed by the personnel boards in the exercise of their powers and functions,

(c) prescribe the manner of appeals under clause (4), and

(d) modify the application of clause (4) by providing that appeals under that clause shall be made first to such person or persons as may be appointed by the President but without prejudice to the right to appeal thereafter to a Commission

(8) Nothing in this article shall affect any direction or delegation issued before the commencement of this article by the Education Service Commission, the Police and Civil Defence Services Commission, or the Public Service Commission under Article 110c (2) or 116 (3), as the case may be, and this article shall not apply to any power or function of these Commissions so long it forms the subject of any such direction or delegation

111. Legal Service Commission

(1) There shall be a Legal Service Commission, whose jurisdiction shall extend to all officers in the Singapore Legal Service

(2) The Legal Service Commission shall consist of—

(a) the Chief Justice, as President,

(b) the Attorney-General,

(c) the Chairman of the Public Service Commission,

(d) a Judge of the Supreme Court nominated generally or specially by the Chief Justice, and

(e) not more than two members of the Public Service Commission nominated generally or specially by the Chairman of the Public Service Commission.

(3) Subject to the provisions of any existing law and to the provisions of this Constitution, it shall be the duty of the Legal Service Commission to appoint, confirm, emplace on the permanent or pensionable establishment, promote, transfer, dismiss and exercise disciplinary control over officers in the Singapore Legal Service

(4) The Legal Service Commission may delegate to any officer in the Singapore Legal Service or to any board of such officers appointed by it any of its functions under clause (3) in respect of any grade of service, and that officer or board shall exercise those functions under the direction and control of the Legal Service Commission

(5) The person who is Secretary to the Public Service Commission shall be Secretary to the Legal Service Commission

111a Promotion to Significant Grade

(1) The President may, by notification in the Gazette, designate as significant a grade each in the Administrative Service Scheme of Service and the Administrative (Foreign Service) Scheme of Service (referred to in this article as the significant grade), and such notification may be subsequently amended to designate as significant any other grade in those Schemes of Service not lower than the grade first so designated

(2) Notwithstanding any other provision in the Constitution, any appointment or promotion of a public officer to the significant grade shall be made by the President, acting in accordance with the advice of the Prime Minister, from public officers nominated by the Public Service Commission

PENSIONS, PROCEEDINGS

112. Protection of Pension Rights

(1) The law applicable to any pension, gratuity or other like allowance (referred to in this article as an award) granted to any public officer or to his widow, children, dependants or personal representatives shall be that in force on the relevant day or any later law not less favorable to the person concerned

(2) For the purposes of this article, the relevant day is,—

(a) in relation to an award made before 16 September 1963, the date on which the award was made,

(b) in relation to an award made after 16 September 1963 to or in respect of any person who was a public officer before that date, the date immediately before that date, and

(c) in relation to an award made to or in respect of any person who first became a public officer on or after 16 September 1963, the date on which he first became a public officer

(3) For the purposes of this article, where the law applicable to an award depends on the option of the person to whom it is made, the law for which he opts shall be taken to be more favorable to him than any other law for which he might have opted

113. Pension power of Public Service Commission and Legal Service Commission

(1) Where under any written law any person or authority has a discretion—

(a) to decide whether or not any award shall be made, or

(b) to withhold, reduce in amount or suspend any such award that has been made, that award shall be made and may not be withheld, reduced in amount or suspended unless the Public Service Commission or the Legal Service Commission, as the case may be, concurs in the refusal to grant the award or, as the case may be, in the decision to withhold, reduce in amount or suspend

(2) Where the amount of any award that may be made to any person is not fixed by law, the amount of the award to be made to him shall be the greatest amount for which he is eligible unless the Public Service Commission or the Legal Service Commission, as the case may be, concurs in the making of an award of a smaller amount

(3) In this article, "award" has the same meaning as in Article 112

114. Pensions, etc., to be Charged on Pension Fund, or Consolidated Fund

Pensions, gratuities, and other like allowances granted in respect of the public service shall be charged on and paid out of, in the first instance, the Pension Fund established by the Pension Fund Act 1995 and, if that Fund is deficient, the Consolidated Fund

115. Pension Rights on Transfer

(1) Notwithstanding any provision of this Constitution relating to the circumstances in which a public officer may vacate his office, any public officer may, with the consent of the Government (which consent shall not be unreasonably withheld), relinquish his office for the purpose of transfer to some other public office or to an office in any other public service, and if he so relinquishes his office, his claim to any pension, gratuity or other like allowance shall not thereby be prejudiced

(2) For the purposes of this article, "other public service" has the meaning given to it by the Pensions Act as in force immediately before the commencement of this Constitution

116 Regulations Regarding Public Service Commission

(1) Subject to the provisions of any written law for the time being in force in Singapore, the President may make regulations for all or any of the following matters

(a) the division of public offices into Divisions and Services,

(b) the prescribing of Schemes regulating the recruitment, service and promotion of members of such Services, and

(c) the conduct and discipline of the public service

(2) The Public Service Commission may, subject to the provisions of this Constitution, regulate its own procedure and make rules for that purpose, and may, in connection with the discharge of its functions, confer powers and impose duties on any person or any authority of the Government

(3) The Public Service Commission may, by directions in writing and subject to such conditions as it thinks fit, delegate any of its functions under Article 110 (1) to any member of the Commission, to any public officer or other person, or to any board consisting of public officers and other persons appointed by it or to any person who is a member of a panel appointed by the Commission for the purposes of representing the public in any disciplinary proceedings in respect of any grade of the public service and that member, officer, board or person shall exercise those functions under the direction and control of the Public Service Commission

117. Validation of Acts Done and Rules Made by Public Service Commission

(1) No legal proceedings whatsoever shall lie or be instituted or maintained in any court of law for or on account of or in respect of any act, decision or thing done or taken by the Public Service Commission or by any member, committee or delegate thereof or by any person acting under the authority of the Public Service Commission during the period from 16 September 1963 to 19 June 1970 if done or taken in good faith in the execution of duty or for the purpose of regulating conduct or enforcing discipline in the public service

(2) No legal proceedings in respect of any such act, decision or thing which is alleged to have been done or taken in bad faith in the execution of duty or for the purpose of regulating conduct or enforcing discipline in the public service during the period from 16 September 1963 to 19 June 1970 shall be instituted or maintained in any court of law unless a certificate of the Attorney-General shall first have been obtained sanctioning the institution of such legal proceedings

(3) In the exercise or purported exercise of any of the powers conferred upon the Public Service Commission to appoint, confirm, emplace on the permanent or pensionable establishment, promote, transfer and exercise disciplinary control over public officers, all acts or things done, exercised or performed by the Public Service Commission or by any member, committee or delegate thereof or by any person acting under the authority of the Public Service Commission during the period from 16 September 1963 to 19 June 1970 shall be deemed to be and always to have been within the competence and jurisdiction of the Public Service Commission or such member, committee, delegate or person, as the case may be, and shall be deemed to be and always to have been validly done, exercised or performed

(4) All rules, regulations, orders or notifications whatsoever made during the period from 16 September 1963 to 19 June 1970 by or in the name of the Public Service Commission or any committee thereof shall be deemed to be and always to have been validly made, notwithstanding that any such rules, regulations, orders or notifications have been revoked or amended or are or have been inconsistent with, or in conflict with, or contrary to any written law or law previously in force

118. Performance by Public Service Commission of Other Functions

Parliament may by law provide for the exercise of other functions by the Public Service Commission

119. Reports of Commissions

The Public Service Commission and the Legal Service Commission shall each make an annual report on its activities to the President and a copy of every such report shall be presented to Parliament

TITLE I
ACQUISITION

120. Status of Citizen of Singapore

- (1) There shall be a status known as citizen of Singapore
- (2) The status of a citizen of Singapore may be acquired—

(b) has resided in Singapore throughout the 12 months immediately preceding the date of his application;

(c) has during the 12 years immediately preceding the date of his application resided in Singapore for periods amounting in the aggregate to not less than 10 years: Provided that the Government may exempt any applicant from compliance with this paragraph—

(i) where such applicant has during the 6 years immediately preceding the date of his application resided in Singapore for periods amounting in the aggregate to not less than 5 years, or

(ii) where in any special case the Government considers fit to confer citizenship upon such applicant;

(d) intends to reside permanently in Singapore, and

(e) has an elementary knowledge of one of the following languages, namely, Malay, English, Mandarin and Tamil: Provided that the Government may exempt an applicant who has attained the age of 45 years or who is deaf or dumb from compliance with this paragraph

(2) Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, any woman who is married to a citizen of Singapore may, on making application therefor in the prescribed manner, be registered as a citizen of Singapore if she satisfies the Government—

(a) that she has resided continuously in Singapore for a period of not less than two years immediately preceding the date of the application,

(b) that she intends to reside permanently in Singapore, and

(c) that she is of good character

124. Registration of Minors

(1) The Government may if satisfied that a child under the age of 21 years—

(a) is the child of a citizen of Singapore, and

(b) is residing in Singapore, cause such child to be registered as a citizen of Singapore on application being made therefor in the prescribed manner by the parent or guardian of such child

(2) The Government may, in such special circumstances as it thinks fit, cause any child under the age of 21 years to be registered as a citizen of Singapore

125. Effect of Registration

Subject to Article 126, a person registered as a citizen of Singapore under Article 123 or 124 shall be a citizen of Singapore from the date on which he is so registered

126. General Provisions as to Registration

(1) No person shall be registered as a citizen of Singapore under Article 123 until he has taken the Oath of Renunciation, Allegiance and Loyalty in the form set out in the Second Schedule

(2) Except with the approval of the Government, no person who has renounced or has been deprived of citizenship of Singapore under this Constitution or the Singapore Citizenship Ordinance 1957 shall be registered as a citizen of Singapore under the provisions of this Constitution

(3) Any person who becomes a citizen of Singapore by registration under section 13 of the Singapore Citizenship Ordinance 1957 or Article 124 shall cease to be a citizen of Singapore on attaining the age of 22 years unless within 12 months after he attains the age of 21 years he takes the Oath of Renunciation, Allegiance and Loyalty in the form set out in the Second Schedule

127. Citizenship by Naturalization

(1) Subject to clause (4), the Government may, upon application made by any person of or over the age of 21 years who is not a citizen of Singapore, grant a certificate of naturalization to that person if the Government is satisfied—

(a) that he has resided in Singapore for the required periods and intends, if the certificate is granted, to do so permanently,

(b) that he is of good character, and

(c) that he has an adequate knowledge of the national language

(2) The periods of residence in Singapore or the relevant part of it which are required for the grant of a certificate of naturalization are periods which amount in the aggregate to not less than 10 years in the 12 years immediately preceding the date of the application for the certificate and which include the 12 months immediately preceding that date.

(3) A person to whom a certificate of naturalization is granted shall be a citizen of Singapore by naturalization from the date on which the certificate is granted

(4) No certificate of naturalization shall be granted to any person until he has taken the Oath of Renunciation, Allegiance and Loyalty in the form set out in the Second Schedule

LOSS

128. Renunciation of Citizenship

(1) Any citizen of Singapore of or over the age of 21 years and of sound mind who is also or is about to become a citizen of another country may renounce his citizenship of Singapore by declaration registered by the Government, and shall upon such registration cease to be a citizen of Singapore

(2) The Government may withhold the registration of a declaration under this article—

(a) if the declaration is made during any war in which Singapore is engaged, or

(b) if the declaration is made by a person subject to the Enlistment Act unless he has—

(i) discharged his liability for full-time service under section 12 of that Act,

(ii) rendered at least 3 years of operationally ready national service under section 13 of that Act in lieu of such full-time service, or

(iii) complied with such conditions as may be determined by the Government

(3) This article applies to a woman under the age of 21 years who has been married as it applies to a person of or over that age

129. Deprivation of Citizenship

(1) A citizen of Singapore who is a citizen by registration or by naturalization shall cease to be such a citizen if he is deprived of his citizenship by an order of the Government made in accordance with this article

(2) The Government may, by order, deprive any such citizen of his citizenship if the Government is satisfied that the registration or the certificate of naturalization—

(a) was obtained by means of fraud, false representation or the concealment of any material fact, or

(b) was effected or granted by mistake

(3) The Government may, by order, deprive of his citizenship—

(a) any person who is a citizen of Singapore by naturalization if the Government is satisfied—

(i) that he has shown himself by act or speech to be disloyal or disaffected towards Singapore, or

(ii) that he has, during any war in which Singapore is or was engaged, unlawfully traded or communicated with an enemy or been engaged in or associated with any business which to his knowledge was carried on in such manner as to assist an enemy in that war, or

(b) any citizen of Singapore by registration or by naturalization if the Government is satisfied—

(i) that he has, within the period of 5 years after registration or naturalization, been sentenced in any country to imprisonment for a term of not less than 12 months or to a fine of not less than $5,000 or the equivalent in the currency of that country, and has not received a free pardon in respect of the offence for which he was so sentenced; or

(ii) that he has, at any time after registration or naturalization, been engaged in any activities which are prejudicial to the security of Singapore, or the maintenance of public order therein, or the maintenance therein of essential services, or in any criminal activities which are prejudicial to the interests of public safety, peace or good order

(4) The Government may, by order, deprive of his citizenship any person who is a citizen of Singapore by naturalization if the Government is satisfied that, without the Government's approval, he has accepted, served in or performed the duties of any office, post or employment under the government of any foreign country or any political subdivision thereof, or under any agency of such a government, in any case where an oath, affirmation or declaration of allegiance is required in respect of the office, post or employment. Provided that a person shall not be deprived of his citizenship under this clause by reason of anything done before 9 August 1965 notwithstanding that he was at the time a citizen of Singapore.

(5) The Government may, by order, deprive of his citizenship any person who is a citizen of Singapore by naturalization if the Government is satisfied that he has been ordinarily resident in foreign countries for a continuous period of 5 years and during that period has neither—

(a) been at any time in the service of Singapore or of an international organization of which the Government was a member, nor

(b) registered annually at a consulate of Singapore his intention to retain his citizenship

(6) The Government may, by order, deprive of her citizenship any woman who is a citizen of Singapore by registration under Article 123 (2) if the Government is satisfied that the marriage by virtue of which she was registered has been dissolved, otherwise than by death, within the period of two years beginning with the date of the marriage.

(7) No person shall be deprived of his citizenship under this article or under Article 130 unless the Government is satisfied that it is not conducive to the public good that that person should continue to be a citizen of Singapore, and no person shall be deprived of his citizenship under clause (2) (b) or clause (3) (a) or (b) (i) or under clause (4) or (5) or under Article 130 if the Government is satisfied that as a result of the deprivation he would not be a citizen of any country.

130. Deprivation of Citizenship of Child of Person Losing Citizenship

Where a person has—

- (a) renounced his citizenship, or
- (b) been deprived of his citizenship under Article 129 (2)(a) or 134 (1)(a), the Government may, by order, deprive of his citizenship any child of that person under the age of 21 years who has been registered as a citizen of Singapore pursuant to this Constitution and was so registered as being the child of that person or of that person's wife or husband

131. General Provisions as to Loss of Citizenship

Renunciation or deprivation of citizenship of Singapore shall not discharge a person from liability in respect of anything done or omitted to be done before he ceased to be a citizen of Singapore

132. Cancellation of Enrolment as Citizen

(1) Where a person has been enrolled as a citizen of Singapore before 9 August 1965 and the Government is satisfied that the enrolment—

- (a) was obtained by means of fraud, false representation or the concealment of any material fact, or
- (b) was effected by mistake,

the Government may, by order, cancel the enrolment

(2) Where under this article a person's enrolment as a citizen of Singapore is cancelled, that shall not discharge him from liability in respect of anything done or omitted to be done before the cancellation

133. Procedure for Deprivation

(1) Before making an order under Article 129, 132, 134 or 135, the Government shall give the person, against whom the order is proposed to be made, notice in writing informing him of the ground on which the order is proposed to be made and of his right to have the case referred to a committee of inquiry under this article

(2) If any person to whom such notice is given applies within such time as may be prescribed to have the case referred to a committee of inquiry, the Government shall, and in any other case may, refer the case to a committee of inquiry consisting of a Chairman, who shall be a person qualified to be appointed as a Judge of the Supreme Court, and two other members chosen from a panel to be appointed by the Government in that behalf

(3) The committee of inquiry shall, on such reference, hold an inquiry in such manner as may be prescribed and submit a report to the Government and the Government shall have regard to such report in making the order

134. Deprivation of Citizenship on Acquisition of Foreign Citizenship

(1) The Government may, by order, deprive a citizen of Singapore of his citizenship if the Government is satisfied that—

(a) he has, while of or over the age of 18 years, at any time after 6 April 1960 acquired by registration, naturalization or other voluntary and formal act (other than marriage) the citizenship of any country outside Singapore or having so acquired such citizenship before the age of 18 years continues to retain it after that age, or

(b) the citizen, being a woman who is a citizen of Singapore by registration under Article 123 (2), has acquired the citizenship of any country outside Singapore by virtue of her marriage to a person who is not a citizen of Singapore

135. Deprivation of Citizenship on Exercise of Rights of Foreign Nationals

(1) The Government may, by order, deprive a citizen of Singapore of his citizenship if the Government is satisfied that—

(a) he has, while of or over the age of 18 years, at any time after 6 April 1960 voluntarily claimed and exercised any rights (other than any rights in connection with the use of a passport) available to him under the law of any country outside Singapore being rights accorded exclusively to the citizens or nationals of that country,

(b) he has, while of or over the age of 18 years, at any time after 6 April 1960 applied to the authorities of a place outside Singapore for the issue or renewal of a passport or used a passport issued by such authorities as a travel document, or

(c) he is of or over the age of 18 years and has, whether before or after attaining the age of 18 years, been ordinarily resident outside Singapore for a continuous period of 10 years (including any period of residence outside Singapore before 2 January 1986) and has not at any time—

(i) during that period or thereafter entered Singapore by virtue of a certificate of status or travel document issued by the competent authorities of Singapore, or

(ii) during that period been in the service of the Government or of an international organization of which Singapore is a member or of such other body or organization as the President may, by notification in the Gazette, designate

(2) For the purposes of clause (1) (a), the exercise of a vote in any political election in a place outside Singapore shall be deemed to be the voluntary claim and exercise of a right available under the law of that place

(3) Where the Government has made an order under this article depriving a citizen of Singapore of his citizenship, he shall cease to be a citizen with effect from the date of the order

136. Termination of Citizenship of Malaysia

Where a person who was a citizen of Singapore had renounced his citizenship of Malaysia or been deprived of his citizenship of Malaysia by the Government of Malaysia before 9 August 1965, such person shall be deemed to have renounced or been deprived of his citizenship of Singapore under this Constitution and to have ceased to be a citizen of Singapore

137. Deprivation of Citizenship or Cancellation of Enrollment of Children

(1) Where a person has been deprived of his citizenship or his enrolment as a citizen has been cancelled under the provisions of this Part, the Government may, by order, deprive of his citizenship or, as the case may be cancel the enrolment of any child of that person under the age of 21 years who has been registered or enrolled as a citizen under the provisions of this Constitution or the Singapore Citizenship Ordinance 1957 and was so registered or enrolled as being the child of that person or of that person's wife or husband

(2) No person shall be deprived of his citizenship under clause (1) unless the Government is satisfied that it is not conducive to the public good that he should continue to be a citizen, and no person shall be deprived of his citizenship under clause (1) if the Government is satisfied that as a result of such deprivation he would not be a citizen of any country

TITLE 3*GRANT, COMMONWEALTH CITIZENSHIP*138. Grant of Certificate of Citizenship in Cases of Doubt

Upon application made in that behalf in the prescribed manner, the Government may grant in the form prescribed a certificate of citizenship to a person with respect to whose citizenship a doubt exists, whether of fact or of law Provided that where the Government is satisfied that such a certificate was obtained in circumstances set out in Article 132 (1) (a) or (b), the Government may, by order, cancel such certificate

139. Commonwealth Citizenship

(1) In accordance with the position of Singapore within the Commonwealth, every person who is a citizen of Singapore enjoys by virtue of that citizenship the status of a Commonwealth citizen in common with the citizens of other Commonwealth countries

(2) Any existing law shall, except so far as Parliament otherwise provides, apply in relation to a citizen of the Republic of Ireland who is not also a Commonwealth citizen as it applies in relation to a Commonwealth citizen

140. Application of Third Schedule

Until the Legislature otherwise provides by law, the supplementary provisions contained in the Third Schedule shall have effect for the purposes of this Part

141. Repeal

(1) The Singapore Citizenship Ordinance 1957 is hereby repealed

(2) Any person who immediately before the commencement of this Constitution was, by virtue of the Singapore Citizenship Ordinance 1957, a citizen of Singapore by birth, descent, registration or naturalization, shall as from the commencement of this Constitution continue, subject to the provisions of this Constitution, to possess that status

(3) Where a person would have been a citizen of Singapore by descent immediately before the commencement of this Constitution if his birth had been registered under the provisions of the Singapore Citizenship Ordinance 1957, he shall become a citizen of Singapore by descent if his birth is registered at a consulate of Singapore or with the Government in the prescribed manner within one year of its occurrence or, with the permission of the Government, later

(4) Notwithstanding the repeal of the Singapore Citizenship Ordinance 1957, where a person who has become a citizen of Singapore was liable in respect of things done before the commencement of this Constitution to be deprived of that status under the Ordinance, then the Government may, by order, deprive him of his citizenship if proceedings for that purpose are begun during the period of two years after the commencement of this Constitution

(5) Where a person is liable to be deprived of citizenship under clause (4) and proceedings had before the commencement of this Constitution been begun to deprive him of citizenship of Singapore under the provisions of the Singapore Citizenship Ordinance 1957, those proceedings shall be treated as proceedings to deprive him of citizenship under that clause and shall be continued as such in accordance with the provisions of the Singapore Citizenship Ordinance 1957 in force immediately before the commencement of this Constitution

PART XI*FINANCIAL PROVISIONS*TITLE 1*CONSOLIDATED FUND*142 Interpretation

(5) The Minister responsible for finance shall, as soon as practicable after the end of every financial year, prepare in respect of that year—

(i) in relation to accounts maintained in respect of the Consolidated Fund a full and particular account showing the amounts actually received and spent in that year. and a full and particular statement showing receipts and expenditure of any loan moneys,

(b) a statement of receipts and expenditure of moneys accounted in the Development Fund Account,

(c) a statement of receipts and expenditure of moneys accounted in any Government fund created by any law,

(d) so far as is practicable, a statement of the assets and liabilities of Singapore at the end of the financial year,

(e) so far as is practicable, a statement of outstanding guarantees and other financial liabilities of Singapore at the end of the financial year, and

(f) such other statements as the Minister may think fit and after the accounts and statements referred to in this clause have been audited, present to the President those audited accounts and statements together with another statement stating whether the audited accounts and statements referred to in this clause show any drawing on or likelihood of drawing on the reserves of the Government which were not accumulated by the Government during its current term of office

TITLE 2 EXPENDITURE

148. Authorization of Expenditure from Consolidated Fund and Development Fund

(1) The heads of expenditure to be met from the Consolidated Fund and Development Fund (other than statutory expenditure and expenditure to be met by such sums as are mentioned in Article 147 (2)(b)(i), (ii) or (iii)) shall be included in a Bill to be known as a Supply Bill providing for the issue from the Consolidated Fund and Development Fund of the sums necessary to meet that expenditure and the appropriation of those sums for the purposes specified therein

(2) Wherever—

(a) any moneys are expended or are likely to be expended in any financial year upon any service or purpose which are in excess of the sum provided for that service or purpose by the Supply law relating to that year, or

(b) any moneys are expended or are likely to be expended (otherwise than by way of statutory expenditure) in any financial year upon any new service or purpose not provided for by the Supply law relating to that year, supplementary estimates (or, as the case may be, statements of excess) shall be prepared by the Minister responsible for finance and when approved by the Cabinet, shall be presented to and voted on by Parliament, in respect of all supplementary expenditure so voted the Minister responsible for finance may, at any time before the end of the financial year, introduce into Parliament a Supplementary Supply Bill containing, under appropriate heads the estimated sums so voted and shall, as soon as possible after the end of each financial year, introduce into Parliament a Final Supply Bill containing any such sums which have not yet been included in any Supply Bill

(2a) The Minister responsible for finance shall, in presenting to Parliament any supplementary estimates or statement of excess under clause (2), also present a statement stating whether the supplementary estimates or statement of excess, as the case may be, is likely to draw on the reserves which were not accumulated by the Government during its current term of office.

(3) The part of any estimates of expenditure presented to Parliament which shows statutory expenditure shall not be voted on by Parliament, and such expenditure shall, without further authority of Parliament, be paid out of the Consolidated Fund

(4) For the purposes of this article, "statutory expenditure" means expenditure charged on the Consolidated Fund or on the general revenues and assets of Singapore by virtue of Articles 18, 22j (3), 35 (10), 41, 42 (3), 108 (1), 114, 148e and 148f (4) or by virtue of the provisions of any other law for the time being in force in Singapore

148a. Withholding of Assent to Supply Bill, etc.

(1) The President may, acting in his discretion, withhold his assent to any Supply or Supplementary Supply or Final Supply Bill for any financial year if, in his opinion, the estimates of revenue and expenditure for that year, the supplementary estimates or the statement of excess, as the case may be, are likely to lead to a drawing on the reserves which were not accumulated by the Government during its current term of office, except that if the President assents to any such Bill notwithstanding his opinion that the estimates, supplementary estimates, or statement of excess are likely to lead to a drawing on those reserves, the President shall state his opinion in writing addressed to the Speaker and shall cause his opinion to be published in the Gazette

(2) If the President withholds his assent to any Supply Bill, Supplementary Supply Bill, or Final Supply Bill relating to any financial year and no resolution to overrule the President is passed by Parliament under Article 148d within 30 days of such withholding of assent, Parliament may by resolution authorize expenditure or supplementary expenditure, as the case may be (not otherwise authorized by law) from the Consolidated Fund and Development Fund during that financial year. Provided that—

(a) where the President withholds his assent to a Supply Bill, the expenditure so authorized for any service or purpose for that financial year (which shall include any amount authorized under Article 148b (4)) shall not exceed the total amount appropriated for that service or purpose in the preceding financial year, or

(b) where the President withholds his assent to a Supplementary Supply Bill or Final Supply Bill, the expenditure so authorized for any service or purpose shall not exceed the amount necessary to replace an amount advanced from any Contingencies Fund under Article 148c (1) for that service or purpose

(3) For the purpose of Paragraph (a) of the proviso to clause (2), the total amount appropriated for any service or purpose in any financial year shall be ascertained by adding the sums appropriated for such service or purpose by the Supply law, Supplementary Supply law, and Final Supply law (if any) for that financial year.

(3a) Upon the passing of a resolution under clause (2), the Minister responsible for finance shall introduce in Parliament a Supply Bill, Supplementary Supply Bill, or Final Supply Bill, as the case may be, containing, under appropriate heads, the sums so voted on by Parliament.

(4) In forming his opinion under clause (1) in relation to any Supplementary Supply Bill or Final Supply Bill, the President shall not have regard to any amount for any service or purpose included in the Supplementary Supply Bill or Final Supply Bill which is to replace any amount advanced from any Contingencies Fund under Article 148c (1)

(5) For the purposes of this article and Article 148d, where, on the expiration of 30 days after a Supply Bill, Supplementary Supply Bill, or Final Supply Bill has been presented to the President for his assent, the President has not signified the withholding of his assent to the Bill, the President shall be deemed to have given his assent to the Bill and the date of such assent shall be deemed to be the day immediately following the expiration of the said 30 days.

148b. Power to Authorize Expenditure on Account or for Unspecified Purposes

(1) Subject to clause (3), Parliament may, by resolution approving estimates containing a vote on account, authorize expenditure for part of any year before the passing of the Supply law for that year, but the aggregate sums so voted shall be included under the appropriate heads, in the Supply law for that year.

(2) Subject to clause (3), Parliament may, by resolution approving a vote of credit, authorize expenditure for the whole or part of the year, otherwise than in accordance with Articles 147 and 148, if, owing to the magnitude or indefinite character of any service or to circumstances of unusual urgency, it appears to Parliament desirable to do so

(3) No resolution of Parliament made under clause (1) or (2) shall have effect unless the President, acting in his discretion, concurs therewith

(4) If no Supply Bill has become law by the first day of the financial year to which it relates (whether by reason of the President withholding his assent thereto or otherwise), the Minister responsible for finance may, with the prior approval of the Cabinet, authorize such expenditure (not otherwise authorized by law) from the Consolidated Fund, Development Fund or other Government fund as he may consider essential for the continuance of the public services or any purpose of development shown in the estimates until there is a supply law for that financial year. Provided that the expenditure so authorized for any service or purpose shall not exceed one-quarter of the amount voted for that service or purpose in the Supply law for the preceding

148c. Contingencies Funds

(1) The Legislature may by law create a Contingencies Fund each for the Consolidated Fund and for the Development Fund and authorize the Minister responsible for finance to make advances from the appropriate Contingencies Fund if—

(a) he is satisfied that there is an urgent and unforeseen need for expenditure for which no provision or no sufficient provision has been made by a Supply law, and

(b) the President, acting in his discretion, concurs with the making of such advances

(2) Where any advance is made by virtue of the authority conferred under clause (1), a supplementary estimate of the sum required to replace the amount so advanced shall, as soon as practicable, be presented to and voted on by Parliament and the sum shall be included in a Supplementary Supply Bill or Final Supply Bill

(3) If the Minister responsible for finance intends to make any advance from a Contingencies Fund, he shall present to the President a statement stating whether the proposed advance, if replaced, is likely to draw on the reserves which were not accumulated by the Government during its current term of office

(4) The President may, acting in his discretion, refuse to concur with the making of an advance from a Contingencies Fund which in his opinion, if replaced, is likely to draw on the reserves which were not accumulated by the Government during its current term of office

148d. Parliament May Overrule President's Withholding of Assent to Supply Bill

(1) Where the President withholds his assent under Article 148a to any Supply Bill, Supplementary Supply Bill, or Final Supply Bill relating to any financial year contrary to the recommendation of the Council of Presidential Advisers, Parliament may by resolution passed by not less than two-thirds of the total number of the elected Members of Parliament referred to in Article 39 (1)(a) overrule the decision of the President.

(2) Upon the passing of a resolution under clause (1), the assent of the President shall be deemed to have been given on the date of the passing of such resolution

148e. Debt Charges and Moneys Required to Satisfy Judgments

(1) The following are hereby charged on the Consolidated Fund

(a) all debt charges for which the Government is liable; and

(b) any moneys required to satisfy any judgment, decision or award against the Government by any court or tribunal

(2) For the purposes of this article, "debt charges" includes interest, sinking fund charges, repayment or amortisation of debt and all expenditure in connection with the raising of loans on the security of the Consolidated Fund and the service and redemption of debt created thereby

AUDITOR-GENERAL

148f. Appointment of Auditor-General

(1) There shall be an Auditor-General who shall be appointed by the President in accordance with the advice of the Prime Minister unless the President, acting in his discretion, does not concur with that advice.

(2) The Prime Minister shall, before tendering any advice under clause (1), consult the Chairman of the Public Service Commission

(3) It shall be the duty of the Auditor-General to audit and report on the accounts of all departments and offices of the Government, the Public Service Commission, the Legal Service Commission, the Education Service Commission, the Police and Civil Defence Services Commission the Supreme Court, all subordinate courts and Parliament

(4) The Auditor-General shall perform such other duties and exercise such other powers in relation to the accounts of the Government and accounts of other public authorities and other bodies administering public funds as may be prescribed by or under any written law.

(5) Subject to the provisions of this article, the Auditor-General shall hold office until he attains the age of 60 years, except that the President, acting in his discretion, may, if he concurs with the advice of the Prime Minister appoint an Auditor-General who has attained that age to further hold that office for such fixed periods as may be agreed between the Auditor-General and the Government.

(6) A person who has held office as Auditor-General shall not be eligible for any other appointment as a public officer.

(7) The Auditor-General may at any time resign his office by writing under his hand addressed to the President.

(8) The Auditor-General may be removed from office by the President, if the President concurs with the advice of the Prime Minister, but the Prime Minister shall not tender such advice except for inability of the Auditor-General to discharge the functions of his office (whether arising from infirmity of body or mind or any other cause) or for misbehavior and except with the concurrence of a tribunal consisting of the Chief Justice and two other Judges of the Supreme Court nominated for that purpose by the Chief Justice

(9) The tribunal constituted under clause (8) shall regulate its own procedure and may make rules for that purpose

(10) Parliament shall by resolution provide for the remuneration of the Auditor-General and the remuneration so provided shall be charged on the Consolidated Fund.

(11) The remuneration and other terms of service of the Auditor-General shall not be altered to his disadvantage during his continuance in office

148g Duty to Inform President of Certain Transactions

(1) It shall be the duty of the Auditor-General and the Accountant-General to inform the President of any proposed transaction by the Government which to their knowledge is likely to draw on the reserves of the Government which were not accumulated by the Government during its current term of office

(2) Where pursuant to clause (1) the President has been so informed of any such proposed transaction, the President, acting in his discretion, may disapprove the proposed transaction

(3) Where the President does not disapprove of any proposed transaction under clause (2) even though he is of the opinion that the proposed transaction is likely to draw on the reserves of the Government which were not accumulated by the Government during its current term of office, the President shall cause his decision and opinion to be published in the Gazette

148h Publication of President's Opinion Regarding Certain Liabilities of the Government

Where the President considers that certain liabilities of the Government, though not requiring his approval, are likely to draw on the reserves of the Government which were not accumulated by the Government during its current term of office, he shall state his opinion in writing to the Prime Minister and shall cause the opinion to be published in the Gazette

PART XII*SPECIAL POWERS AGAINST SUBVERSION AND EMERGENCY POWERS*149. Legislation Against Subversion

(1) If an Act recites that action has been taken or threatened by any substantial body of persons, whether inside or outside Singapore—

(a) to cause, or to cause a substantial number of citizens to fear, organized violence against persons or property,

(b) to excite disaffection against the President or the Government,

(c) to promote feelings of ill-will and hostility between different races or other classes of the population likely to cause violence,

(d) to procure the alteration, otherwise than by lawful means, of anything by law established, or

(e) which is prejudicial to the security of Singapore, any provision of that law designed to stop or prevent that action or any amendment to that law or any provision in any law enacted under clause (3) is valid notwithstanding that it is inconsistent with Article 9, 11, 12, 13 or 14, or would, apart from this article, be outside the legislative power of Parliament

(2) A law containing such a recital as is mentioned in clause (1) shall, if not sooner repealed, cease to have effect if a resolution is passed by Parliament annulling such law, but without prejudice to anything previously done by virtue thereof or to the power of Parliament to make a new law under this article.

(3) If, in respect of any proceedings whether instituted before or after the commencement of this clause, any question arises in any court as to the validity of any decision made or act done in pursuance of any power conferred upon the President or the Minister by any law referred to in this article, such question shall be determined in accordance with the provisions of any law as may be enacted by Parliament for this purpose: and nothing in Article 22c shall invalidate any law enacted pursuant to this clause.

150. Proclamation of Emergency

(1) If the President is satisfied that a grave emergency exists whereby the security or economic life of Singapore is threatened he may issue a Proclamation of Emergency.

(2) If a Proclamation of Emergency is issued when Parliament is not sitting the President shall summon Parliament as soon as practicable, and may, until Parliament is sitting, promulgate ordinances having the force of law if satisfied that immediate action is required

(3) A Proclamation of Emergency and any ordinance promulgated under clause (2) shall be presented to Parliament and if not sooner revoked shall cease to have effect if a resolution is passed by Parliament annulling such Proclamation or ordinance, but without prejudice to anything previously done by virtue thereof or to the power of the President to issue a new Proclamation under clause (1) or promulgate any ordinance under clause (2).

(4) Subject to clause (5) (b), while a Proclamation of Emergency is in force, Parliament may, notwithstanding anything in this Constitution make laws with respect to any matter, if it appears to Parliament that the law is required by reason of the emergency, and any provision of this Constitution (except Articles 22e, 22h, 144 (2) and 148a) or of any written law which requires any consent or concurrence to the passing of a law or any consultation with respect thereto, or which restricts the coming into force of a law after it is passed or the presentation of a Bill to the President for his assent, shall not apply to a Bill for such a law or an amendment to such a Bill

(5)(a) Subject to Paragraph (b), no provision of any ordinance promulgated under this article, and no provision of any Act which is passed while a Proclamation of Emergency is in force and which declares that the law appears to Parliament to be required by reason of the emergency shall be invalid on the ground of inconsistency with any provision of this Constitution

(b) Paragraph (a) shall not validate any provision inconsistent with—

(i) Article 5 (2a):

(ii) the provisions of this Constitution specified in Article 5 (2a) conferring discretionary powers on the President: and

(iii) the provisions of this Constitution relating to religion, citizenship or language

(6) At the expiration of a period of 6 months beginning with the date on which a Proclamation of Emergency ceases to be in force, any ordinance promulgated in pursuance of the Proclamation and, to the extent that it could not have been validly made but for this article, any law made while the Proclamation was in force, shall cease to have effect, except as to things done or omitted to be done before the expiration of that period

151. Restrictions on Preventive Detention

(1) Where any law or ordinance made or promulgated in pursuance of this Part provides for preventive detention

(a) the authority on whose order any person is detained under that law or ordinance shall as soon as may be, inform him of the grounds for his detention and, subject to clause (3), the allegations of fact on which the order is based and shall give him the opportunity of making representations against the order as soon as may be, and

(b) no citizen of Singapore shall be detained under that law or ordinance for a period exceeding 3 months unless an advisory board constituted as mentioned in clause (2) has considered any representations made by him under paragraph (a) and made recommendations thereon to the President

(2) An advisory board constituted for the purposes of this article shall consist of a chairman, who shall be appointed by the President and who shall be or have been, or be qualified to be, a Judge of the Supreme Court, and two other members, who shall be appointed by the President after consultation with the Chief Justice

(3) This article does not require any authority to disclose facts the disclosure of which would, in its opinion, be against the national interest

(4) Where an advisory board constituted for the purposes of this article recommends the release of any person under any law or ordinance made or promulgated in pursuance of this Part, the person shall not be detained or further detained without the concurrence of the President if the recommendations of the advisory board are not accepted by the authority on whose advice or order the person is detained

151a Defence and Security Measures

(1) Articles 22b (7), 22d (6), 148g (2) and (3), and 148h shall not apply to any defence and security measure

(2) For the purpose of clause (1), a defence and security measure means any liability or proposed transaction which the Prime Minister and the Minister responsible for defence on the recommendations of the Permanent Secretary to the Ministry of Defence and the Chief of Defence Force, certify to be necessary for the defence and security of Singapore and any certificate under the hands of the Prime Minister and the Minister responsible for defence shall be conclusive evidence of the matters specified therein

(2) The President may, from time to time, authorize the Attorney-General to cause to be printed and published an up-to-date reprint of the Constitution of the Republic of Singapore, incorporating therein all amendments in force at the date of such authorization

(3) Any reprint of the Constitution of the Republic of Singapore, printed and published pursuant to clause (1) or (2), shall be deemed to be and shall be, without any question whatsoever in all courts of justice and for all purposes whatsoever, the authentic text of the Constitution of the Republic of Singapore in force as from the date specified in that reprint until superseded by the next or subsequent reprint

(4) In the preparation and compilation of any reprint pursuant to clause (1) or (2), the Attorney-General shall have, mutatis mutandis, the powers conferred upon the Law Revision Commissioners by section 4 of the Revised Edition of the Laws Act in addition to the powers conferred on him by section 38 of the Interpretation Act.

(5) In the preparation and compilation of the consolidated reprint pursuant to clause (1), the Attorney-General shall have the power in his discretion—

(a) to merge the existing provisions of both Constitutions, making thereto such modifications as may be necessary or expedient in consequence of the independence of Singapore upon separation from Malaysia,

(b) to re-arrange the Parts, Articles and provisions of the Constitution of Singapore and of the Constitution of Malaysia in such connected sequence as he thinks fit, omitting inappropriate or inapplicable provisions, in the latter Constitution,

(c) where provisions exist in both Constitutions on the same subject-matter, to include in the consolidated reprint the provisions of the Constitution of Singapore on such subject-matter and to omit the duplicated provisions appearing in the Constitution of Malaysia from the consolidated reprint, and

(d) generally, to do all other things necessitated by, or consequential upon, the exercise of the powers conferred upon the Attorney-General by this article or which may be necessary or expedient for the perfecting of the consolidated reprint of the Constitution of the Republic of Singapore

CONSTITUTION OF SOUTH AFRICA

{Adopted on 8 May 1996}
{Amended on 11 Oct 1996}
{In Force since 7 Feb 1997}

PREAMBLE

We, the people of South Africa, Recognise the injustices of our past.
Honour those who suffered for justice and freedom in our land, Respect those who have worked to build and develop our country, and Believe that South Africa belongs to all who live in it, united in our diversity

We therefore, through our freely elected representatives, adopt this Constitution as the supreme law of the Republic so as to—Heal the divisions of the past and establish a society based on democratic values, social justice and fundamental human rights,

Lay the foundations for a democratic and open society in which government is based on the will of the people and every citizen is equally protected by law,

Improve the quality of life of all citizens and free the potential of each person, and

Build a united and democratic South Africa able to take its rightful place as a sovereign state in the family of nations

May God protect our people

- (2) All citizens are—
  - (a) equally entitled to the rights, privileges and benefits of citizenship, and
  - (b) equally subject to the duties and responsibilities of citizenship
- (3) National legislation must provide for the acquisition, loss and restoration of citizenship

4. National anthem

The national anthem of the Republic is determined by the President by proclamation

5. National flag

The national flag of the Republic is black, gold, green, white, red and blue, as described and sketched in Schedule 1

6. Languages

- (1) The official languages of the Republic are Sepedi, Sesotho, Setswana, <sup>isi</sup>Swati, Tshivenda, Xitsonga, Afrikaans, English, <sup>isi</sup>Ndebele, <sup>isi</sup>Xhosa and <sup>isi</sup>Zulu
- (2) Recognising the historically diminished use and status of the indigenous languages of our people, the state must take practical and positive measures to elevate the status and advance the use of these languages
- (3) (a) The national government and provincial governments may use any particular official languages for the purposes of government, taking into account usage, practicality, expense, regional circumstances and the balance of the needs and preferences of the population as a whole or in the province concerned, but the national government and each provincial government must use at least two official languages

(b) Municipalities must take into account the language usage and preferences of their residents

(4) The national government and provincial governments, by legislative and other measures, must regulate and monitor their use of official languages. Without detracting from the provisions of sub-section (2), all official languages must enjoy parity of esteem and must be treated equitably

(5) A Pan South African Language Board established by national legislation must—

(a) promote and create conditions for the development and use of—

(i) all official languages,

(ii) the Xhosa, Nama and San languages, and

(iii) sign language, and

(b) promote and ensure respect for—

(i) all languages commonly used by communities in South Africa, including German, Greek, Gujarati, Hindi, Portuguese, Tamil, Telugu and Urdu, and

(ii) Arabic, Hebrew, Sanskrit and other languages used for religious purposes in South Africa

7. Rights

(1) This Bill of Rights is a cornerstone of democracy in South Africa. It enshrines the rights of all people in our country and affirms the democratic values of human dignity, equality and freedom

(2) The state must respect, protect, promote and fulfil the rights in the Bill of Rights

(3) The rights in the Bill of Rights are subject to the limitations contained or referred to in section 36, or elsewhere in the Bill

8. Application

(1) The Bill of Rights applies to all law, and binds the legislature, the executive, the judiciary and all organs of state

(2) A provision of the Bill of Rights binds a natural or a juristic person if, and to the extent that, it is applicable, taking into account the nature of the right and the nature of any duty imposed by the right

(3) When applying a provision of the Bill of Rights to a natural or juristic person in terms of sub-section (2) a court—

(a) in order to give effect to a right in the Bill must apply, or if necessary develop, the common law to the extent that legislation does not give effect to that right, and

(b) may develop rules of the common law to limit the right, provided that the limitation is in accordance with section 36(1)

(4) A juristic person is entitled to the rights in the Bill of Rights to the extent required by the nature of the rights and the nature of that juristic person

9. Equality

(1) Everyone is equal before the law and has the right to equal protection and benefit of the law

(2) Equality includes the full and equal enjoyment of all rights and freedoms To promote the achievement of equality, legislative and other measures designed to protect or advance persons, or categories of persons, disadvantaged by unfair discrimination may be taken

(3) The state may not unfairly discriminate directly or indirectly against anyone on one or more grounds, including race, gender, sex, pregnancy, marital status, ethnic or social origin, colour, sexual orientation, age, disability, religion, conscience, belief, culture, language and birth

(4) No person may unfairly discriminate directly or indirectly against anyone on one or more grounds in terms of sub-section (3) National legislation must be enacted to prevent or prohibit unfair discrimination

(5) Discrimination on one or more of the grounds listed in sub-section (3) is unfair unless it is established that the discrimination is fair

10. Human dignity

Everyone has inherent dignity and the right to have their dignity respected and protected

11. Life

Everyone has the right to life

12. Freedom and security of the person

(1) Everyone has the right to freedom and security of the person, which includes the right—

(a) not to be deprived of freedom arbitrarily or without just cause,

(b) not to be detained without trial,

(c) to be free from all forms of violence from either public or private sources,

(d) not to be tortured in any way, and

(e) not to be treated or punished in a cruel, inhuman or degrading way

(2) Everyone has the right to bodily and psychological integrity, which includes the right—

(a) to make decisions concerning reproduction,

- (b) to security in and control over their body, and
- (c) not to be subjected to medical or scientific experiments without their informed consent

13. Slavery, servitude and forced labour

No one may be subjected to slavery, servitude or forced labour

14 Privacy

Everyone has the right to privacy, which includes the right not to have—

- (a) their person or home searched,
- (b) their property searched,
- (c) their possessions seized, or
- (d) the privacy of their communications infringed

15. Freedom of religion, belief and opinion

(1) Everyone has the right to freedom of conscience, religion, thought, belief and opinion

(2) Religious observances may be conducted at state or state-aided institutions, provided that—

- (a) those observances follow rules made by the appropriate public authorities,
- (b) they are conducted on an equitable basis, and
- (c) attendance at them is free and voluntary

(3) (a) This section does not prevent legislation recognising—

(i) marriages concluded under any tradition, or a system of religious, personal or family law, or

(ii) systems of personal and family law under any tradition, or adhered to by persons professing a particular religion

(b) Recognition in terms of paragraph (a) must be consistent with this section and the other provisions of the Constitution

16 Freedom of expression

(1) Everyone has the right to freedom of expression, which includes—

- (a) freedom of the press and other media,
- (b) freedom to receive or impart information or ideas,
- (c) freedom of artistic creativity, and
- (d) academic freedom and freedom of scientific research

(2) The right in sub-section (1) does not extend to—

- (a) propaganda for war,
- (b) incitement of imminent violence, or
- (c) advocacy of hatred that is based on race, ethnicity, gender or religion and that constitutes incitement to cause harm

17. Assembly, demonstration, picket and petition

Everyone has the right, peacefully and unarmed, to assemble, to demonstrate, to picket and to present petitions

18. Freedom of association

Everyone has the right to freedom of association

19. Political rights

(1) Every citizen is free to make political choices, which includes the right—

- (a) to form a political party,
- (b) to participate in the activities of, or recruit members for, a political party, and
- (c) to campaign for a political party or cause

(2) Every citizen has the right to free, fair and regular elections for any legislative body established in terms of the Constitution

(3) Every adult citizen has the right—

- (a) to vote in elections for any legislative body established in terms of the Constitution, and to do so in secret, and
- (b) to stand for public office and, if elected, to hold office

No citizen may be deprived of citizenship

21. Freedom of movement and residence

(1) Everyone has the right to freedom of movement

(2) Everyone has the right to leave the Republic

(3) Every citizen has the right to enter, to remain in and to reside anywhere in, the Republic

(4) Every citizen has the right to a passport

22. Freedom of trade, occupation and profession

Every citizen has the right to choose their trade, occupation or profession freely

The practice of a trade, occupation or profession may be regulated by law

23. Labour relations

(1) Everyone has the right to fair labour practices

(2) Every worker has the right—

- (a) to form and join a trade union,
- (b) to participate in the activities and programmes of a trade union, and
- (c) to strike

(3) Every employer has the right—

- (a) to form and join an employers' organisation, and
- (b) to participate in the activities and programmes of an employers' organisation

(4) Every trade union and every employers' organisation has the right—

- (a) to determine its own administration, programmes and activities,
- (b) to organise, and
- (c) to form and join a federation

(5) Every trade union, employers' organisation and employer has the right to engage in collective bargaining. National legislation may be enacted to regulate collective bargaining. To the extent that the legislation may limit a right in this Chapter, the limitation must comply with section 36(1).

(6) National legislation may recognise union security arrangements contained in collective agreements. To the extent that the legislation may limit a right in this Chapter, the limitation must comply with section 36(1).

24 Environment

Everyone has the right—

- (a) to an environment that is not harmful to their health or well-being, and

(b) to have the environment protected, for the benefit of present and future generations, through reasonable legislative and other measures that—

- (i) prevent pollution and ecological degradation,
- (ii) promote conservation, and
- (iii) secure ecologically sustainable development and use of natural resources while promoting justifiable economic and social development

25. Property

(1) No one may be deprived of property except in terms of law of general application, and no law may permit arbitrary deprivation of property.

(2) Property may be expropriated only in terms of law of general application—

- (a) for a public purpose or in the public interest, and

(b) subject to compensation, the amount of which and the time and manner of payment of which have either been agreed to by those affected or decided or approved by a court.

(3) The amount of the compensation and the time and manner of payment must be just and equitable, reflecting an equitable balance between the public interest and the interests of those affected, having regard to all relevant circumstances, including—

- (a) the current use of the property,
- (b) the history of the acquisition and use of the property,

- (c) the market value of the property,
- (d) the extent of direct state investment and subsidy in the acquisition and beneficial capital improvement of the property, and
- (e) the purpose of the expropriation.

(4) For the purposes of this section—

(a) the public interest includes the nation's commitment to land reform, and to reforms to bring about equitable access to all South Africa's natural resources; and

(b) property is not limited to land

(5) The State must take reasonable legislative and other measures, within its available resources, to foster conditions which enable citizens to gain access to land on an equitable basis

(6) A person or community whose tenure of land is legally insecure as a result of past racially discriminatory laws or practices is entitled, to the extent provided by an Act of Parliament, either to tenure which is legally secure or to comparable redress

(7) A person or community dispossessed of property after 19 June 1913 as a result of past racially discriminatory laws or practices is entitled, to the extent provided by an Act of Parliament, either to restitution of that property or to equitable redress

(8) No provision of this section may impede the State from taking legislative and other measures to achieve land, water and related reform, in order to redress the results of past racial discrimination, provided that any departure from the provisions of this section is in accordance with the provisions of section 36(1)

(9) Parliament must enact the legislation referred to in sub-section (6)

26. Housing

(1) Everyone has the right to have access to adequate housing

(2) The State must take reasonable legislative and other measures, within its available resources, to achieve the progressive realisation of this right

(3) No one may be evicted from their home, or have their home demolished, without an order of court made after considering all the relevant circumstances. No legislation may permit arbitrary evictions

27. Health care, food, water and social security

(1) Everyone has the right to have access to—

(a) health care services, including reproductive health care,

(b) sufficient food and water, and

(c) social security, including, if they are unable to support themselves and their dependants, appropriate social assistance

(2) The state must take reasonable legislative and other measures, within its available resources, to achieve the progressive realisation of each of these rights

(3) No one may be refused emergency medical treatment

28 Children

(1) Every child has the right—

- (a) to a name and a nationality from birth,
- (b) to family care or parental care, or to appropriate alternative care when removed from the family environment,
- (c) to basic nutrition, shelter, basic health care services and social services,
- (d) to be protected from maltreatment, neglect, abuse or degradation,
- (e) to be protected from exploitative labour practices,
- (f) not to be required or permitted to perform work or provide services that—

(i) are inappropriate for a person of that child's age, or

(ii) place at risk the child's well-being, education, physical or mental health or spiritual, moral or social development,

(g) not to be detained except as a measure of last resort, in which case, in addition to the rights a child enjoys under sections 12 and 35, the child may be detained only for the shortest appropriate period of time, and has the right to be—

(i) kept separately from detained persons over the age of 18 years, and

(ii) treated in a manner, and kept in conditions, that take account of the child's age,

(h) to have a legal practitioner assigned to the child by the State, and at State expense, in civil proceedings affecting the child, if substantial injustice would otherwise result, and

(i) not to be used directly in armed conflict, and to be protected in times of armed conflict

(2) A child's best interests are of paramount importance in every matter concerning the child

(3) In this section "child" means a person under the age of 18 years

29. Education

(1) Everyone has the right—

(a) to a basic education, including adult basic education, and

(b) to further education, which the State, through reasonable measures, must make progressively available and accessible

(2) Everyone has the right to receive education in the official language or languages of their choice in public educational institutions where that education is reasonably practicable. In order to ensure the effective access to, and implementation of, this right, the State must consider all reasonable educational alternatives, including single medium institutions, taking into account—

- (a) equity,
  - (b) practicability, and
  - (c) the need to redress the results of past racially discriminatory laws and practices
- (3) Everyone has the right to establish and maintain, at their own expense, independent educational institutions that—
- (a) do not discriminate on the basis of race,
  - (b) are registered with the State, and
  - (c) maintain standards that are not inferior to standards at comparable public educational institutions
- (4) Sub-section (3) does not preclude State subsidies for independent educational institutions

30. Language and culture

Everyone has the right to use the language and to participate in the cultural life of their choice, but no one exercising these rights may do so in a manner inconsistent with any provision of the Bill of Rights

31. Cultural, religious and linguistic communities

(1) Persons belonging to a cultural, religious or linguistic community may not be denied the right, with other members of that community—

- (a) to enjoy their culture, practise their religion and use their language, and

- (b) to form, join and maintain cultural, religious and linguistic associations and other organs of civil society

(2) The rights in sub-section (1) may not be exercised in a manner inconsistent with any provision of the Bill of Rights

32. Access to information

(1) Everyone has the right of access to—

- (a) any information held by the State, and

- (b) any information that is held by another person and that is required, for the exercise or protection of any rights

(2) National legislation must be enacted to give effect to this right, and may provide for reasonable measures to alleviate the administrative and financial burden on the State

33. Just administrative action

(1) Everyone has the right to administrative action that is lawful, reasonable and procedurally fair.

(2) Everyone whose rights have been adversely affected by administrative action has the right to be given written reasons

(3) National legislation must be enacted to give effect to these rights, and must—

- (a) provide for the review of administrative action by a court or, where appropriate, an independent and impartial tribunal,

- (b) impose a duty on the State to give effect to the rights in sub-sections (1) and (2); and
- (c) promote an efficient administration.

34. Access to courts

Everyone has the right to have any dispute that can be resolved by the application of law decided in a fair public hearing before a court or, where appropriate, another independent and impartial tribunal or forum.

35. Arrested, detained and accused persons

(1) Everyone who is arrested for allegedly committing an offence has the right—

- (a) to remain silent;
- (b) to be informed promptly—
  - (i) of the right to remain silent; and
  - (ii) of the consequences of not remaining silent;
- (c) not to be compelled to make any confession or admission that could be used in evidence against that person;
- (d) to be brought before a court as soon as reasonably possible, but not later than—
  - (i) 48 hours after the arrest, or
  - (ii) the end of the first court day after the expiry of the 48 hours, if the 48 hours expire outside ordinary court hours or on a day which is not an ordinary court day,
- (e) at the first court appearance after being arrested, to be charged or to be informed of the reason for the detention to continue, or to be released, and
- (f) to be released from detention if the interests of justice permit, subject to reasonable conditions

(2) Everyone who is detained, including every sentenced prisoner, has the right—

- (a) to be informed promptly of the reason for being detained;
- (b) to choose, and to consult with, a legal practitioner, and to be informed of this right promptly,
- (c) to have a legal practitioner assigned to the detained person by the state and at state expense, if substantial injustice would otherwise result, and to be informed of this right promptly,
- (d) to challenge the lawfulness of the detention in person before a court and, if the detention is unlawful, to be released;
- (e) to conditions of detention that are consistent with human dignity, including at least exercise and the provision at state expense of adequate accommodation, nutrition, reading material and medical treatment; and
- (f) to communicate with and be visited by that person's—

- (i) spouse or partner,
- (ii) next of kin;
- (iii) chosen religious counsellor, and
- (iv) chosen medical practitioner

(3) Every accused person has a right to a fair trial, which includes the right—

- (a) to be informed of the charge with sufficient detail to answer it,
- (b) to have adequate time and facilities to prepare a defence,
- (c) to a public trial before an ordinary court,
- (d) to have their trial begin and conclude without unreasonable delay,
- (e) to be present when being tried,
- (f) to choose, and be represented by, a legal practitioner, and to be informed of this right promptly,

(g) to have a legal practitioner assigned to the accused person by the State and at State expense, if substantial injustice would otherwise result, and to be informed of this right promptly,

(h) to be presumed innocent, to remain silent, and not to testify during the proceedings,

(i) to adduce and challenge evidence,

(j) not to be compelled to give self-incriminating evidence,

(k) to be tried in a language that the accused person understands or, if that is not practicable, to have the proceedings interpreted in that language,

(l) not to be convicted for an act or omission that was not an offence under either national or international law at the time it was committed or omitted,

(m) not to be tried for an offence in respect of an act or omission for which that person has previously been either acquitted or convicted,

(n) to the benefit of the least severe of the prescribed punishments if the prescribed punishment for the offence has been changed between the time that the offence was committed and the time of sentencing, and

(o) of appeal to, or review by, a higher court

(4) Whenever this section requires information to be given to a person, that information must be given in a language that the person understands

(5) Evidence obtained in a manner that violates any right in the Bill of Rights must be excluded if the admission of that evidence would render the trial unfair or otherwise be detrimental to the administration of justice

36. Limitation of rights

(1) The rights in the Bill of Rights may be limited only in terms of law of general application to the extent that the limitation is reasonable and justifiable in an open and democratic society based on human dignity, equality and freedom, taking into account all relevant factors, including—

- (a) the nature of the right,
- (b) the importance of the purpose of the limitation,
- (c) the nature and extent of the limitation,
- (d) the relation between the limitation and its purpose, and
- (e) less restrictive means to achieve the purpose

(2) Except as provided in sub-section (1) or in any other provision of the Constitution, no law may limit any right entrenched in the Bill of Rights

37. States of emergency

(1) A state of emergency may be declared only in terms of an Act of Parliament, and only when—

- (a) the life of the nation is threatened by war, invasion, general insurrection, disorder, natural disaster or other public emergency, and
- (b) the declaration is necessary to restore peace and order

(2) A declaration of a state of emergency, and any legislation enacted or other action taken in consequence of that declaration, may be effective only—

- (a) prospectively, and

- (b) for no more than 21 days from the date of the declaration, unless the National Assembly resolves to extend the declaration. The Assembly may extend a declaration of a state of emergency for no more than three months at a time. The first extension of the state of emergency must be by a resolution adopted with a supporting vote of a majority of the members of the Assembly. Any subsequent extension must be by a resolution adopted with a supporting vote of at least 60 per cent of the members of the Assembly. A resolution in terms of this paragraph may be adopted only following a public debate in the Assembly.

(3) Any competent court may decide on the validity of—

- (a) a declaration of a state of emergency,
- (b) any extension of a declaration of a state of emergency, or
- (c) any legislation enacted, or other action taken, in consequence of a declaration of a state of emergency

(4) Any legislation enacted in consequence of a declaration of a state of emergency may derogate from the Bill of Rights only to the extent that—

- (a) the derogation is strictly required by the emergency, and
- (b) the legislation—

(i) is consistent with the Republic's obligations under international law applicable to states of emergency,

(ii) conforms to sub-section (5), and

(iii) is published in the national Government Gazette as soon as reasonably possible after being enacted

(5) No Act of Parliament that authorises a declaration of a state of emergency, and no legislation enacted or other action taken in consequence of a declaration may permit or authorise—

(a) indemnifying the state, or any person, in respect of any unlawful act,

(b) any derogation from this section, or

(c) any derogation from a section mentioned in column 1 of the Table of Non-Derogable Rights, to the extent indicated opposite that section in column 3 of the Table.

Table of Non-Derogable Rights

Section Number	Section Title	Extent to which the right is protected
9	Equality	With respect to unfair discrimination solely on the grounds of race, colour, ethnic or social origin, sex religion or language
10	Human dignity	Entirely
11	Life	Entirely
12	Freedom and Security of the person	With respect to sub-sections (1)(d) and (e) and (2)(c)
13	Slavery, servitude and forced labour	With respect to slavery and servitude
28	Children	With respect to sub-section (1)(d) and (e), the rights in sub-paragraphs (i) and (ii) of sub-section (1)(g), and sub-section 1(f) in respect of children of 15 years and younger
35	Arrested, detained and accused persons	With respect to sub-sections (1)(a), (b) and (c) and (2)(d), the rights in paragraphs (a) to (o) of sub-section (3), excluding paragraph (d) sub-section (4), and sub-section (5) with respect to the exclusion of evidence if the admission of that evidence would render the trial unfair

(6) Whenever anyone is detained without trial in consequence of a derogation of rights resulting from a declaration of a state of emergency, the following conditions must be observed:

(a) An adult family member or friend of the detainee must be contacted as soon as reasonably possible, and informed that the person has been detained

(b) A notice must be published in the national Government Gazette within five days of the person being detained, stating the detainee's name and place of detention and referring to the emergency measure in terms of which that person has been detained

(c) The detainee must be allowed to choose, and be visited at any reasonable time by, a medical practitioner

(d) The detainee must be allowed to choose, and be visited at any reasonable time by, a legal representative

(e) A court must review the detention as soon as reasonably possible, but no later than 10 days after the date the person was detained, and the court must release the detainee unless it is necessary to continue the detention to restore peace and order

(f) A detainee who is not released in terms of a review under paragraph (e), or who is not released in terms of a review under this paragraph, may apply to a court for a further review of the detention at any time after 10 days have passed since the previous review, and the court must release the detainee unless it is still necessary to continue the detention to restore peace and order

(g) The detainee must be allowed to appear in person before any court considering the detention, to be represented by a legal practitioner at those hearings, and to make representations against continued detention

(h) The State must present written reasons to the court to justify the continued detention of the detainee, and must give a copy of those reasons to the detainee at least two days before the court reviews the detention

(7) If a court releases a detainee, that person may not be detained again on the same grounds unless the State first shows a court good cause for re-detaining that person

(8) Sub-sections (6) and (7) do not apply to persons who are not South African citizens and who are detained in consequence of an international armed conflict. Instead, the State must comply with the standards binding on the Republic under international humanitarian law in respect of the detention of such persons.

38. Enforcement of rights

Anyone listed in this section has the right to approach a competent court alleging that a right in the Bill of Rights has been infringed or threatened, and the court may grant appropriate relief, including a declaration of rights. The persons who may approach a court are

(a) Anyone acting in their own interest,

(b) Anyone acting on behalf of another person who cannot act in their own name

(c) anyone acting as a member of, or in the interest of, a group or class of persons,

(d) anyone acting in the public interest, and

(e) an association acting in the interest of its members

39. Interpretation of Bill of Rights

(1) When interpreting the Bill of Rights, a court, tribunal or forum—

(a) must promote the values that underlie an open and democratic society based on human dignity, equality and freedom,

(b) must consider international law, and

(c) may consider foreign law

(2) When interpreting any legislation, and when developing the common law or customary law, every court, tribunal or forum must promote the spirit, purport and objects of the Bill of Rights

(3) The Bill of Rights does not deny the existence of any other rights or freedoms that are recognised or conferred by common law, customary law or legislation, to the extent that they are consistent with the Bill

CO-OPERATIVE GOVERNMENT

40. Government of the Republic

(1) In the Republic, government is constituted as national, provincial and local spheres of government, which are distinctive, interdependent and interrelated

(2) All spheres of government must observe and adhere to the principles in this Chapter and must conduct their activities within the parameters that the Chapter provides

41. Principles of co-operative government and intergovernmental relations

(1) All spheres of government and all organs of State within each sphere must—

(a) preserve the peace, national unity and the indivisibility of the Republic,

(b) secure the well-being of the people of the Republic,

(c) provide effective, transparent, accountable and coherent government for the Republic as a whole,

(d) be loyal to the Constitution, the Republic and its people,

(e) respect the constitutional status, institutions, powers and functions of government in the other spheres,

(f) not assume any power or function except those conferred on them in terms of the Constitution,

(g) exercise their powers and perform their functions in a manner that does not encroach on the geographical, functional or institutional integrity of government in another sphere, and

(h) co-operate with one another in mutual trust and good faith by—

(i) fostering friendly relations,

(ii) assisting and supporting one another,

(iii) informing one another of, and consulting one another on, matters of common interest,

(iv) co-ordinating their actions and legislation with one another,

(v) adhering to agreed procedures, and

(vi) avoiding legal proceedings against one another

(2) An Act of Parliament must—

(a) establish or provide for structures and institutions to promote and facilitate intergovernmental relations, and

(b) provide for appropriate mechanisms and procedures to facilitate settlement of intergovernmental disputes

(3) An organ of State involved in an intergovernmental dispute must make every reasonable effort to settle the dispute by means of mechanisms and procedures provided for that purpose, and must exhaust all other remedies before it approaches a court to resolve the dispute

(4) If a court is not satisfied that the requirements of sub-section (3) have been met, it may refer a dispute back to the organs of State involved

TITLE 0 GENERAL PROVISIONS

42. Composition of Parliament

(1) Parliament consists of—

(a) the National Assembly, and

(b) the National Council of Provinces

(2) The National Assembly and the National Council of Provinces participate in the legislative process in the manner set out in the Constitution

(3) The National Assembly is elected to represent the people and to ensure government by the people under the Constitution. It does this by choosing the President, by providing a national forum for public consideration of issues, by passing legislation and by scrutinizing and overseeing executive

(4) The National Council of Provinces represents the provinces to ensure that provincial interests are taken into account in the national sphere of government. It does this mainly by participating in the national legislative process and by providing a national forum for public consideration of issues affecting the provinces.

(5) The President may summon Parliament to an extraordinary sitting at any time to conduct special business.

(6) The seat of Parliament is Cape Town, but an Act of Parliament, enacted in accordance with section 76(1) and (5), may determine that the seat of Parliament is elsewhere.

43. Legislative authority of the Republic

In the Republic, the legislative authority—

(a) of the national sphere of government is vested in Parliament, as set out in section 44,

(b) of the provincial sphere of government is vested in the provincial legislatures, as set out in section 104, and

(c) of the local sphere of government is vested in the Municipal Councils, as set out in section 156.

44. National legislative authority

(1) The national legislative authority as vested in Parliament—

(a) confers on the National Assembly the power—

(i) to amend the Constitution,

(ii) to pass legislation with regard to any matter, including a matter within a functional area listed in Schedule 4, but excluding, subject to sub-section (2), a matter within a functional area listed in Schedule 5, and

(iii) to assign any of its legislative powers, except the power to amend the Constitution, to any legislative body in another sphere of government, and

(b) confers on the National Council of Provinces the power—

(i) to participate in amending the Constitution in accordance with section 74,

(ii) to pass, in accordance with section 76, legislation with regard to any matter within a functional area listed in Schedule 4, and any other matter required by the Constitution to be passed in accordance with section 76, and

(iii) to consider, in accordance with section 75, any other legislation passed by the National Assembly.

(2) Parliament may intervene by passing legislation, in accordance with section 76(1), with regard to a matter falling within a functional area listed in Schedule 5, when it is necessary—

(a) to maintain national security,

(b) to maintain economic unity,

(c) to maintain essential national standards.

(d) to establish minimum standards required for the rendering of services, or

(e) to prevent unreasonable action taken by a province which is prejudicial to the interests of another province or to the country as a whole

(3) Legislation with regard to a matter that is reasonably necessary for, or incidental to, the effective exercise of a power concerning any matter listed in Schedule 4 is, for all purposes, legislation with regard to a matter listed in Schedule 4

(4) When exercising its legislative authority, Parliament is bound only by the Constitution, and must act in accordance with, and within the limits of, the Constitution

45 Joint rules and orders and joint committees

(1) The National Assembly and the National Council of Provinces must establish a joint rules committee to make rules and orders concerning the joint business of the Assembly and Council, including rules and orders—

(a) to determine procedures to facilitate the legislative process, including setting a time limit for completing any step in the process,

(b) to establish joint committees composed of representatives from both the Assembly and the Council to consider and report on Bills envisaged in sections 74 and 75 that are referred to such a committee,

(c) to establish a joint committee to review the Constitution at least annually, and

(d) to regulate the business of—

(i) the Joint Rules Committee,

(ii) the Mediation Committee,

(iii) the Constitutional Review Committee, and

(iv) any Joint Committees established in terms of paragraph (b)

(2) Cabinet members, members of the National Assembly and delegates to the National Council of Provinces have the same privileges and immunities before a joint committee of the Assembly and the Council as they have before the Assembly or the Council

46 Composition and election

(1) The National Assembly consists of no fewer than 350 and no more than 400 women and men elected as members in terms of an electoral system that—

(a) is prescribed by national legislation,

(b) is based on the national common voters roll,

(c) provides for a minimum voting age of 18 years, and

(d) results, in general, in proportional representation

(2) An Act of Parliament must provide a formula for determining the number of members of the National Assembly

47. Membership

(1) Every citizen who is qualified to vote for the National Assembly is eligible to be a member of the Assembly, except—

(a) anyone who is appointed by, or is in the service of, the State and receives remuneration for that appointment or service, other than—

(i) the President, Deputy President, Ministers and Deputy Ministers, and

(ii) other office-bearers whose functions are compatible with the functions of a member of the Assembly, and have been declared compatible with those functions by national legislation,

(b) permanent delegates to the National Council of Provinces or members of a provincial legislature or a Municipal Council,

(c) unrehabilitated insolvents,

(d) anyone declared to be of unsound mind by a court of the Republic, or

(e) anyone who, after this section took effect, is convicted of an offence and sentenced to more than 12 months imprisonment without the option of a fine, either in the Republic, or outside the Republic if the conduct constituting the offence would have been an offence in the Republic, but no one may be regarded as having been sentenced until an appeal against the conviction or sentence has been determined, or until the time for an appeal has expired. A disqualification under this paragraph ends five years after the sentence has been completed

(2) A person who is not eligible to be a member of the National Assembly in terms of sub-section (1)(a) or (b) may be a candidate for the Assembly, subject to any limits or conditions established by national legislation

(3) A person loses membership of the National Assembly if that person—

(a) ceases to be eligible, or

(b) is absent from the Assembly without permission in circumstances for which the rules and orders of the Assembly prescribe loss of membership

(4) Vacancies in the National Assembly must be filled in terms of national legislation

48. Oath or affirmation

Before members of the National Assembly begin to perform their functions in the Assembly, they must swear or affirm faithfulness to the Republic and obedience to the Constitution, in accordance with Schedule 2

49. Duration of National Assembly

- (1) The National Assembly is elected for a term of five years
- (2) If the National Assembly is dissolved in terms of section 50, or when its term expires, the President, by proclamation, must call and set dates for an election, which must be held within 90 days of the date the Assembly was dissolved or its term expired
- (3) If the result of an election of the National Assembly is not declared within the period established in terms of section 190, or if an election is set aside by a court, the President, by proclamation, must call and set dates for another election, which must be held within 90 days of the expiry of that period or of the date on which the election was set aside
- (4) The National Assembly remains competent to function from the time it is dissolved or its term expires, until the day before the first day of polling for the next Assembly

50. Dissolution of National Assembly before expiry of its term

- (1) The President must dissolve the National Assembly if—
  - (a) the Assembly has adopted a resolution to dissolve with a supporting vote of a majority of its members, and
  - (b) three years have passed since the Assembly was elected
- (2) The Acting President must dissolve the National Assembly if—
  - (a) there is a vacancy in the office of President, and
  - (b) the Assembly fails to elect a new President within 30 days after the vacancy occurred

51. Sittings and recess periods

- (1) After an election, the first sitting of the National Assembly must take place at a time and on a date determined by the President of the Constitutional Court, but not more than 14 days after the election result has been declared. The National Assembly may determine the time and duration of its other sittings and its recess periods
- (2) The President may summon the National Assembly to an extraordinary sitting at any time to conduct special business
- (3) Sittings of the National Assembly are permitted at places other than the seat of Parliament only on the grounds of public interest, security or convenience, and if provided for in the rules and orders of the Assembly.

52. Speaker and Deputy Speaker

- (1) At the first sitting after its election, or when necessary to fill a vacancy, the National Assembly must elect a Speaker and a Deputy Speaker from among its members
- (2) The President of the Constitutional Court must preside over the election of a Speaker, or designate another judge to do so. The Speaker presides over the election of a Deputy Speaker
- (3) The procedure set out in Part A of Schedule 3 applies to the election of the Speaker and the Deputy Speaker

(4) The National Assembly may remove the Speaker or Deputy Speaker from office by resolution. A majority of the members of the Assembly must be present when the resolution is adopted.

(5) In terms of its rules and orders the National Assembly may elect from among its members other presiding officers to assist the Speaker and the Deputy Speaker.

53. Decisions

(1) Except where the Constitution provides otherwise—

(a) a majority of the members of the National Assembly must be present before a vote may be taken on a Bill or an amendment to a Bill;

(b) at least one third of the members must be present before a vote may be taken on any other question before the Assembly; and

(c) all questions before the Assembly are decided by a majority of the votes cast.

(2) The member of the National Assembly presiding at a meeting of the Assembly has no deliberative vote, but—

(a) must cast a deciding vote when there is an equal number of votes on each side of a question; and

(b) may cast a deliberative vote when a question must be decided with a supporting vote of at least two thirds of the members of the Assembly.

54. Rights of certain Cabinet members in National Assembly

The President and any member of the Cabinet who is not a member of the National Assembly may attend and may speak in the Assembly, but may not vote.

55. Powers of National Assembly

(1) In exercising its legislative power, the National Assembly may—

(a) consider, pass, amend or reject any legislation before the Assembly; and

(b) initiate or prepare legislation, except money Bills.

(2) The National Assembly must provide for mechanisms—

(a) to ensure that all executive organs of State in the national sphere of government are accountable to it; and

(b) to maintain oversight of—

(i) the exercise of national executive authority, including the implementation of legislation; and

(ii) any organ of State.

56. Evidence or information before National Assembly

The National Assembly or any of its committees may—

(a) summon any person to appear before it to give evidence on oath or affirmation, or to produce documents;

(b) require any person or institution to report to it.

(c) compel, in terms of national legislation or the rules and orders, any person or institution to comply with a summons or requirement in terms of paragraph (a) or (b), and

(d) receive petitions, representations or submissions from any interested persons or institutions

57. Internal arrangements, proceedings and procedures of National Assembly

(1) The National Assembly may—

(a) determine and control its internal arrangements, proceedings and procedures, and

(b) make rules and orders concerning its business, with due regard to representative and participatory democracy, accountability, transparency and public involvement

(2) The rules and orders of the National Assembly must provide for—

(a) the establishment, composition, powers, functions, procedures and duration of its committees,

(b) the participation in the proceedings of the Assembly and its committees of minority parties represented in the Assembly, in a manner consistent with democracy,

(c) financial and administrative assistance to each party represented in the Assembly in proportion to its representation, to enable the party and its leader to perform their functions in the Assembly effectively, and

(d) the recognition of the leader of the largest opposition party in the Assembly as the Leader of the Opposition

58. Privilege

(1) Cabinet members and members of the National Assembly—

(a) have freedom of speech in the Assembly and in its committees, subject to its rules and orders, and

(b) are not liable to civil or criminal proceedings, arrest, imprisonment or damages for—

(i) anything that they have said in, produced before or submitted to the Assembly or any of its committees, or

(ii) anything revealed as a result of anything that they have said in, produced before or submitted to the Assembly or any of its committees

(2) Other privileges and immunities of the National Assembly, Cabinet members and members of the Assembly may be prescribed by national legislation

(3) Salaries, allowances and benefits payable to members of the National Assembly are a direct charge against the National Revenue Fund.

59. Public access to and involvement in National Assembly

(1) The National Assembly must—

- (a) facilitate public involvement in the legislative and other processes of the Assembly and its committees, and
- (b) conduct its business in an open manner, and hold its sittings, and those of its committees, in public, but reasonable measures may be taken—
  - (i) to regulate public access, including access of the media, to the Assembly and its committees, and
  - (ii) to provide for the searching of any person and, where appropriate, the refusal of entry to, or the removal of, any person
- (2) The National Assembly may not exclude the public, including the media, from a sitting of a committee unless it is reasonable and justifiable to do so in an open and democratic society

NATIONAL COUNCIL OF PROVINCES

60. Composition of National Council

- (1) The National Council of Provinces is composed of a single delegation from each province consisting of ten delegates
- (2) The ten delegates are—
  - (a) four special delegates consisting of—
    - (i) the Premier of the province or, if the Premier is not available, any member of the provincial legislature designated by the Premier either generally or for any specific business before the National Council of Provinces, and
    - (ii) three other special delegates, and
  - (b) six permanent delegates appointed in terms of section 61(2)
- (3) The Premier of a province, or if the Premier is not available, a member of the province's delegation designated by the Premier, heads the delegation

61. Allocation of delegates

- (1) Parties represented in a provincial legislature are entitled to delegates in the province's delegation in accordance with the formula set out in Part B of Schedule 3
- (2) Within 30 days after the result of an election of a provincial legislature is declared, the legislature must—
  - (a) determine, in accordance with national legislation, how many of each party's delegates are to be permanent delegates and how many are to be special delegates, and
  - (b) appoint the permanent delegates in accordance with the nominations of the parties
- (3) The national legislation envisaged in sub-section (2)(a) must ensure the participation of minority parties in both the permanent and special delegates" components of the delegation in a manner consistent with democracy.

(4) The legislature, with the concurrence of the Premier and the leaders of the parties entitled to special delegates in the province's delegation, must designate special delegates, as required from time to time, from among the members of the legislature

62. Permanent delegates

(1) A person nominated as a permanent delegate must be eligible to be a member of the provincial legislature

(2) If a person who is a member of a provincial legislature is appointed as a permanent delegate, that person ceases to be a member of the legislature.

(3) Permanent delegates are appointed for a term that expires immediately before the first sitting of the provincial legislature after its next election

(4) A person ceases to be a permanent delegate if that person—

(a) ceases to be eligible to be a member of the provincial legislature for any reason other than being appointed as a permanent delegate,

(b) becomes a member of the Cabinet,

(c) has lost the confidence of the provincial legislature and is recalled by the party that nominated that person,

(d) ceases to be a member of the party that nominated that person and is recalled by that party, or

(e) is absent from the National Council of Provinces without permission in circumstances for which the rules and orders of the Council prescribe loss of office as a permanent delegate

(5) Vacancies among the permanent delegates must be filled in terms of national legislation

(6) Before permanent delegates begin to perform their functions in the National Council of Provinces, they must swear or affirm faithfulness to the Republic and obedience to the Constitution, in accordance with Schedule 2

63. Sitzings of National Council

(1) The National Council of Provinces may determine the time and duration of its sittings and its recess periods

(2) The President may summon the National Council of Provinces to an extraordinary sitting at any time to conduct special business

(3) Sitzings of the National Council of Provinces are permitted at places other than the seat of Parliament only on the grounds of public interest, return or convenience, and if provided for in the rules and orders of the Council

64. Chairperson and Deputy Chairpersons

(1) The National Council of Provinces must elect a Chairperson and two Deputy Chairpersons from among the delegates

(2) The Chairperson and one of the Deputy Chairpersons are elected from among the permanent delegates for five years unless their terms as delegates expire earlier.

(3) The other Deputy Chairperson is elected for a term of one year, and must be succeeded by a delegate from another province, so that every province is represented in turn.

(4) The President of the Constitutional Court must preside over the election of the Chairperson, or designate another judge to do so. The Chairperson presides over the election of the Deputy Chairpersons.

(5) The procedure set out in Part A of Schedule 3 applies to the election of the Chairperson and the Deputy Chairpersons.

(6) The National Council of Provinces may remove the Chairperson or a Deputy Chairperson from office.

(7) In terms of its rules and orders, the National Council of Provinces may elect from among the delegates other presiding officers to assist the Chairperson and Deputy Chairpersons.

65. Decisions

(1) Except where the Constitution provides otherwise—

(a) each province has one vote, which is cast on behalf of the province by the head of its delegation; and

(b) all questions before the National Council of Provinces are agreed when at least five provinces vote in favour of the question.

(2) An Act of Parliament, enacted in accordance with the procedure established by either sub-section (1) or sub-section (2) of section 76, must provide for a uniform procedure in terms of which provincial legislatures confer authority on their delegations to cast votes on their behalf.

66. Participation by members of national executive

(1) Cabinet members and Deputy Ministers may attend, and may speak in, the National Council of Provinces, but may not vote.

(2) The National Council of Provinces may require a Cabinet member, a Deputy Minister or an official in the national executive or a provincial executive to attend a meeting of the Council or a committee of the Council.

67. Participation by local government representatives

Not more than ten part-time representatives designated by organised local government in terms of section 163, to represent the different categories of municipalities, may participate when necessary in the proceedings of the National Council of Provinces, but may not vote.

68. Powers of National Council

In exercising its legislative power, the National Council of Provinces may—

(a) consider, pass, amend, propose amendments to or reject any legislation before the Council, in accordance with this Chapter, and

(b) initiate or prepare legislation falling within a functional area listed in Schedule 4 or other legislation referred to in section 76 (3), but may not initiate or prepare money Bills

69. Evidence or information before National Council

The National Council of Provinces or any of its committees may—

(a) summon any person to appear before it to give evidence on oath or affirmation or to produce documents,

(b) require any institution or person to report to it,

(c) compel, in terms of national legislation or the rules and orders, any person or institution to comply with a summons or requirement in terms of paragraph (a) or (b), and

(d) receive petitions, representations or submissions from any interested persons or institutions

70 Internal arrangements, proceedings and procedures of National Council

(1) The National Council of Provinces may—

(a) determine and control its internal arrangements, proceedings and procedures, and

(b) make rules and orders concerning its business, with due regard to representative and participatory democracy, accountability, transparency and public involvement

(2) The rules and orders of the National Council of Provinces must provide for—

(a) the establishment, composition, powers, functions, procedures and duration of its committees,

(b) the participation of all the provinces in its proceedings in a manner consistent with democracy, and

(c) the participation in the proceedings of the Council and its committees of minority parties represented in the Council, in a manner consistent with democracy, whenever a matter is to be decided in accordance with section 75

71. Privilege

(1) Delegates to the National Council of Provinces and the persons referred to in sections 66 and 67—

(a) have freedom of speech in the Council and in its committees, subject to its rules and orders, and

(b) are not liable to civil or criminal proceedings, arrest, imprisonment or damages for—

(i) anything that they have said in, produced before or submitted to the Council or any of its committees, or

(ii) anything revealed as a result of anything that they have said in, produced before or submitted to the Council or any of its committees

(2) Other privileges and immunities of the National Council of Provinces, delegates to the Council and persons referred to in sections 66 and 67 may be prescribed by national legislation

(3) Salaries, allowances and benefits payable to permanent members of the National Council of Provinces are a direct charge against the National Revenue Fund

72. Public access to and involvement in National Council

(1) The National Council of Provinces must—

(a) facilitate public involvement in the legislative and other processes of the Council and its committees, and

(b) conduct its business in an open manner, and hold its sittings, and those of its committees, in public, but reasonable measures may be taken—

(i) to regulate public access, including access of the media, to the Council and its committees, and

(ii) to provide for the searching of any person and, where appropriate, the refusal of entry to, or the removal of, any person

(2) The National Council of Provinces may not exclude the public, including the media, from a sitting of a committee unless it is reasonable and justifiable to do so in an open and democratic society

TITLE 3

NATIONAL LEGISLATIVE PROCESS

73. All Bills

(1) Any Bill may be introduced in the National Assembly

(2) Only a Cabinet member or a Deputy Minister, or a member or committee of the Assembly, may introduce a Bill in the Assembly; but only the Cabinet member responsible for national financial matters may introduce a Money Bill in the Assembly

(3) A Bill referred to in section 76(3), except a Money Bill, may be introduced in the National Council of Provinces

(4) Only a member or committee of the National Council of Provinces may introduce a Bill in the Council

(5) A Bill passed by the National Assembly must be referred to the National Council of Provinces if it must be considered by the Council. A Bill passed by the Council must be referred to the Assembly

74. Bills amending the Constitution

(1) Section 1 and this sub-section may be amended by a Bill passed by—

(a) the National Assembly, with a supporting vote of at least 75 per cent of its members, and

(b) the National Council of Provinces, with a supporting vote of at least six provinces

(2) Chapter 2 may be amended by a Bill passed by—

(a) the National Assembly, with a supporting vote of at least two thirds of its members, and

(b) the National Council of Provinces, with a supporting vote of at least six provinces

(3) Any other provision of the Constitution may be amended by a Bill passed—

(a) by the National Assembly, with a supporting vote of at least two thirds of its members, and

(b) also by the National Council of Provinces, with a supporting vote of at least six provinces, if the amendment—

(i) relates to a matter that affects the Council,

(ii) alters provincial boundaries, powers, functions or institutions, or

(iii) amends a provision that deals specifically with a provincial matter

(4) A Bill amending the Constitution may not include provisions other than constitutional amendments and matters connected with the amendments

(5) At least 30 days before a Bill amending the Constitution is introduced in terms of section 73(2), the person or committee intending to introduce the Bill must—

(a) publish in the national Government Gazette, and in accordance with the rules and orders of the National Assembly, particulars of the proposed amendment for public comment,

(b) submit, in accordance with the rules and orders of the Assembly, those particulars to the provincial legislatures for their views, and

(c) submit, in accordance with the rules and orders of the National Council of Provinces, those particulars to the Council for a public debate, if the proposed amendment is not an amendment that is required to be passed by the Council

(6) When a Bill amending the Constitution is introduced, the person or committee introducing the Bill must submit any written comments received from the public and the provincial legislatures—

(a) to the Speaker for tabling in the National Assembly, and

(b) in respect of amendments referred to in sub-section (1), (2), or (3)(b), to the Chairperson of the National Council of Provinces for tabling in the Council

(7) A Bill amending the Constitution may not be put to the vote in the National Assembly within 30 days of—

(a) its introduction, if the Assembly is sitting when the Bill is introduced, or

(b) its tabling in the Assembly, if the Assembly is in recess when the Bill is introduced

(8) If a Bill referred to in sub-section (3)(b), or any part of the Bill, concerns only a specific province or provinces, the National Council of Provinces may not pass the Bill or the relevant part unless it has been approved by the legislature or legislatures of the province or provinces concerned

(9) A Bill amending the Constitution that has been passed by the National Assembly and, where applicable, by the National Council of Provinces, must be referred to the President for assent

75. Ordinary Bills not affecting provinces

(1) When the National Assembly passes a Bill other than a Bill to which the procedure set out in section 74 or 76 applies, the Bill must be referred to the National Council of Provinces and dealt with in accordance with the following procedure

(a) The Council must—

(i) pass the Bill,

(ii) pass the Bill subject to amendments proposed by it, or

(iii) reject the Bill

(b) If the Council passes the Bill without proposing amendments, the Bill must be submitted to the President for assent

(c) If the Council rejects the Bill or passes it subject to amendments, the Assembly must reconsider the Bill, taking into account any amendment proposed by the Council, and may—

(i) pass the Bill again, either with or without amendments, or

(ii) decide not to proceed with the Bill

(d) A Bill passed by the Assembly in terms of paragraph (c) must be submitted to the President for assent

(2) When the National Council of Provinces votes on a question in terms of this section, section 65 does not apply, instead—

(a) each delegate in a provincial delegation has one vote,

(b) at least one third of the delegates must be present before a vote may be taken on the question, and

(c) the question is decided by a majority of the votes cast, but if there is an equal number of votes on each side of the question, the delegate presiding must cast a deciding vote

76. Ordinary Bills affecting provinces

(1) When the National Assembly passes a Bill referred to in sub-section (3), (4) or (5), the Bill must be referred to the National Council of Provinces and dealt with in accordance with the following procedure

(a) The Council must—

(i) pass the Bill,

(ii) pass an amended Bill, or

(iii) reject the Bill

(b) If the Council passes the Bill without amendment, the Bill must be submitted to the President for assent

(c) If the Council passes an amended Bill, the amended Bill must be referred to the Assembly, and if the Assembly passes the amended Bill, it must be submitted to the President for assent

(d) If the Council rejects the Bill, or if the Assembly refuses to pass an amended Bill referred to it in terms of paragraph (c), the Bill and, where applicable, also the amended Bill, must be referred to the Mediation Committee, which may agree on—

(i) the Bill as passed by the Assembly,

(ii) the amended Bill as passed by the Council; or

(iii) another version of the Bill

(e) If the Mediation Committee is unable to agree within 30 days of the Bill's referral to it, the Bill lapses unless the Assembly again passes the Bill, but with a supporting vote of at least two thirds of its members

(f) If the Mediation Committee agrees on the Bill as passed by the Assembly, the Bill must be referred to the Council, and if the Council passes the Bill, the Bill must be submitted to the President for assent

(g) If the Mediation Committee agrees on the amended Bill as passed by the Council, the Bill must be referred to the Assembly, and if it is passed by the Assembly, it must be submitted to the President for assent

(h) If the Mediation Committee agrees on another version of the Bill, that version of the Bill must be referred to both the Assembly and the Council, and if it is passed by the Assembly and the Council, it must be submitted to the President for assent

(i) If a Bill referred to the Council in terms of paragraph (f) or (h) is not passed by the Council, the Bill lapses unless the Assembly passes the Bill with a supporting vote of at least two thirds of its members

(j) If a Bill referred to the Assembly in terms of paragraph (g) or (h) is not passed by the Assembly, that Bill lapses, but the Bill as originally passed by the Assembly may again be passed by the Assembly, but with a supporting vote of at least two thirds of its members

(k) A Bill passed by the Assembly in terms of paragraph (c), (i) or (j) must be submitted to the President for assent

(2) When the National Council of Provinces passes a Bill referred to in sub-section (3) the Bill must be referred to the National Assembly and dealt with in accordance with the following procedure

(a) The Assembly must—

(i) pass the Bill,

(ii) pass an amended Bill, or

(iii) reject the Bill

(b) A Bill passed by the Assembly in terms of paragraph (a)(i) must be submitted to the President for assent.

(c) If the Assembly passes an amended Bill, the amended Bill must be referred to the Council, and if the Council passes the amended Bill, it must be submitted to the President for assent.

(d) If the Assembly rejects the Bill, or if the Council refuses to pass an amended Bill referred to it in terms of paragraph (c), the Bill and, where applicable, also the amended Bill must be referred to the Mediation Committee, which may agree on—

- (i) the Bill as passed by the Council;
- (ii) the amended Bill as passed by the Assembly; or
- (iii) another version of the Bill

(e) If the Mediation Committee is unable to agree within 30 days of the Bill's referral to it, the Bill lapses.

(f) If the Mediation Committee agrees on the Bill as passed by the Council, the Bill must be referred to the Assembly, and if the Assembly passes the Bill, the Bill must be submitted to the President for assent.

(g) If the Mediation Committee agrees on the amended Bill as passed by the Assembly, the Bill must be referred to the Council, and if it is passed by the Council, it must be submitted to the President for assent.

(h) If the Mediation Committee agrees on another version of the Bill, that version of the Bill must be referred to both the Council and the Assembly, and if it is passed by the Council and the Assembly, it must be submitted to the President for assent.

(i) If a Bill referred to the Assembly in terms of paragraph (f) or (h) is not passed by the Assembly, the Bill lapses.

(3) A Bill must be dealt with in accordance with the procedure established by either sub-section (1) or sub-section (2) if it falls within a functional area listed in Schedule 4 or provides for legislation envisaged in any of the following sections—

- (a) Section 63(2);
- (b) section 163;
- (c) section 182;
- (d) section 195(3) and (4);
- (e) section 196, and
- (f) section 197.

(4) A Bill must be dealt with in accordance with the procedure established by sub-section (1) if it provides for legislation—

- (a) envisaged in section 44(2) or 220(3); or
- (b) envisaged in Chapter 13 and which affects the financial interests of the provincial sphere of government.

(5) A Bill envisaged in section 42(6) must be dealt with in accordance with the procedure established by sub-section (1) except that—

(a) when the National Assembly votes on the Bill, the provisions of section 53(1) do not apply, instead, the Bill may be passed only if a majority of the members of the Assembly vote in favour of it, and

(b) if the Bill is referred to the Mediation Committee, the following rules apply

(i) If the National Assembly considers a Bill envisaged in sub-section (1) (g) or (h), that Bill may be passed only if a majority of the members of the Assembly vote in favour of it

(ii) If the National Assembly considers or reconsiders a Bill envisaged in sub-section (1)(e), (i) or (j), that Bill may be passed only if at least two-thirds of the members of the Assembly vote in favour of it

(6) This section does not apply to Money Bills

77. Money Bills

(1) A Bill that appropriates money or imposes taxes, levies or duties is a Money Bill. A Money Bill may not deal with any other matter except a subordinate matter incidental to the appropriation of money or the imposition of taxes, levies or duties

(2) All Money Bills must be considered in accordance with the procedure established by section 75. An Act of Parliament must provide for a procedure to amend Money Bills before Parliament

78. Mediation Committee

(1) The Mediation Committee consists of—

(a) nine members of the National Assembly elected by the Assembly in accordance with a procedure that is prescribed by the rules and orders of the Assembly and results in the representation of parties in substantially the same proportion that the parties are represented in the Assembly, and

(b) one delegate from each provincial delegation in the National Council of Provinces, designated by the delegation

(2) The Mediation Committee has agreed on a version of a Bill, or decided a question, when that version, or one side of a question, is supported by—

(a) at least five of the representatives of the National Assembly, and

(b) at least five of the representatives of the National Council of Provinces

79. Assent to Bills

(1) The President must either assent to and sign a Bill passed in terms of this Chapter or, if the President has reservations about the constitutionality of the Bill, refer it back to the National Assembly for reconsideration

(2) The joint rules and orders must provide for the procedure for the reconsideration of a Bill by the National Assembly and the participation of the National Council of Provinces in the process

(3) The National Council of Provinces must participate in the reconsideration of a Bill that the President has referred back to the National Assembly, if—

(a) the President's reservations about the constitutionality of the Bill relate to a procedural matter that involves the Council, or

(b) section 74(1), (2) or (3)(b) or 76 was applicable in the passing of the Bill

(4) If, after reconsideration, a Bill fully accommodates the President's reservations, the President must assent to and sign the Bill; if not, the President must either—

(a) assent to and sign the Bill, or

(b) refer it to the Constitutional Court for a decision on its constitutionality.

(5) If the Constitutional Court decides that the Bill is constitutional, the President must assent to and sign it

80 Application by members of National Assembly to Constitutional Court

(1) Members of the National Assembly may apply to the Constitutional Court for an order declaring that all or part of an Act of Parliament is unconstitutional

(2) An application—

(a) must be supported by at least one third of the members of the Assembly, and

(b) must be made within 30 days of the date on which the President assented to and signed the Act

(3) The Constitutional Court may order that all or part of an Act that is the subject of an application in terms of sub-section (1) has no force until the Court has decided the application if—

(a) the interests of justice require this, and

(b) the application has a reasonable prospect of success

(4) If an application is unsuccessful, and did not have a reasonable prospect of success, the Constitutional Court may order the applicants to pay costs

81. Publication of Acts

A Bill assented to and signed by the President becomes an Act of Parliament, must be published promptly, and takes effect when published or on a date determined in terms of the Act

82. Safekeeping of Acts of Parliament

The signed copy of an Act of Parliament is conclusive evidence of the provisions of that Act and, after publication, must be entrusted to the Constitutional Court for safekeeping

THE PRESIDENT AND NATIONAL EXECUTIVE

83. The President

The President—

(e) performing any other executive function provided for in the Constitution or in national legislation

86. Election of President

(1) At its first sitting after its election, and whenever necessary to fill a vacancy, the National Assembly must elect a woman or a man from among its members to be the President

(2) The President of the Constitutional Court must preside over the election of the President, or designate another judge to do so. The procedure set out in Part A of Schedule 3 applies to the election of the President

(3) An election to fill a vacancy in the office of President must be held at a time and on a date determined by the President of the Constitutional Court, but not more than 30 days after the vacancy occurs

87. Assumption of office by President

When elected President, a person ceases to be a member of the National Assembly and, within five days, must assume office by swearing or affirming faithfulness to the Republic and obedience to the Constitution, in accordance with Schedule 2

88. Term of office of President

(1) The President's term of office begins on assuming office and ends upon a vacancy occurring or when the person next elected President assumes office

(2) No person may hold office as President for more than two terms, but when a person is elected to fill a vacancy in the office of President, the period between that election and the next election of a President is not regarded as a term

89. Removal of President

(1) The National Assembly, by a resolution adopted with a supporting vote of at least two thirds of its members, may remove the President from office only on the grounds of—

(a) a serious violation of the Constitution or the law,

(b) serious misconduct, or

(c) inability to perform the functions of office

(2) Anyone who has been removed from the office of President in terms of sub-section (1) (a) or (b) may not receive any benefits of that office, and may not serve in any public office

90. Acting President

(1) When the President is absent from the Republic or otherwise unable to fulfil the duties of President, or during a vacancy in the office of President, an office-bearer in the order below acts as President

(a) The Deputy President

(b) A Minister designated by the President

(c) A Minister designated by the other members of the Cabinet

(d) The Speaker, until the National Assembly designates one of its other members

(2) An Acting President has the responsibilities, powers and functions of the President

(3) Before assuming the responsibilities, powers and functions of the President, the Acting President must swear or affirm faithfulness to the Republic and obedience to the Constitution, in accordance with Schedule 2

91. Cabinet

(1) The Cabinet consists of the President, as head of the Cabinet, a Deputy President and Ministers

(2) The President appoints the Deputy President and Ministers, assigns their powers and functions, and may dismiss them

(3) The President—

(a) must select the Deputy President from among the members of the National Assembly,

(b) may select any number of Ministers from among the members of the Assembly, and

(c) may select not more than two Ministers from outside the Assembly.

(4) The President must appoint a member of the Cabinet to be the leader of government business in the National Assembly

(5) The Deputy President must assist the President in the execution of the functions of government

92. Accountability and responsibilities

(1) The Deputy President and Ministers are responsible for the powers and functions of the executive assigned to them by the President

(2) Members of the Cabinet are accountable collectively and individually to Parliament for the exercise of their powers and the performance of their functions

(3) Members of the Cabinet must—

(a) act in accordance with the Constitution, and

(b) provide Parliament with full and regular reports concerning matters under their control

93. Deputy Ministers

The President may appoint Deputy Ministers from among the members of the National Assembly to assist the members of the Cabinet, and may dismiss them

94. Continuation of Cabinet after elections

When an election of the National Assembly is held, the Cabinet, the Deputy President, Ministers and any Deputy Ministers remain competent to function until the person elected President by the next Assembly assumes office.

95. Oath or affirmation

Before the Deputy President, Ministers and any Deputy Ministers begin to perform their functions, they must swear or affirm faithfulness to the Republic and obedience to the Constitution, in accordance with Schedule 2

96. Conduct of Cabinet members and Deputy Ministers

(1) Members of the Cabinet and Deputy Ministers must act in accordance with a code of ethics prescribed by national legislation

(2) Members of the Cabinet and Deputy Ministers may not—

(a) undertake any other paid work,

(b) act in any way that is inconsistent with their office, or expose themselves to any situation involving the risk of a conflict between their official responsibilities and private interests, or

(c) use their position or any information entrusted to them, to enrich themselves or improperly benefit any other person

97. Transfer of functions

The President by proclamation may transfer to a member of the Cabinet—

(a) the administration of any legislation entrusted to another member, or

(b) any power or function entrusted by legislation to another member

98. Temporary assignment of functions

The President may assign to a Cabinet member any power or function of another member who is absent from office or is unable to exercise that power or perform that function

99. Assignment of functions

A Cabinet member may assign any power or function that is to be performed in terms of an Act of Parliament to a member of a provincial Executive Council or to a Municipal Council. An assignment—

(a) must be in terms of an agreement between the relevant Cabinet member and the Executive Council member or Municipal Council,

(b) must be consistent with that of Parliament in terms of which the relevant power or function is exercised or performed, and

(c) takes effect upon proclamation by the President

100. National supervision of provincial administration

(1) When a province cannot or does not fulfil an executive obligation in terms of legislation or the Constitution, the national executive may intervene by taking any appropriate steps to ensure fulfilment of that obligation,

(a) issuing a directive to the provincial executive, describing the extent of the failure to fulfil its obligations and stating any steps required to meet its obligations, and

(b) assuming responsibility for the relevant obligation in that province to the extent necessary to—

(i) maintain essential national standards or meet established minimum standards for the rendering of a service,

(ii) maintain economic unity,

(iii) maintain national security, or

(iv) prevent that province from taking unreasonable action that is prejudicial to the interests of another province or to the country as a whole

(2) If the national executive intervenes in a province in terms of sub-section (1)(b)—

(a) notice of the intervention must be tabled in the National Council of Provinces within 14 days of its first sitting after the intervention began,

(b) the intervention must end unless it is approved by the Council within 30 days of its first sitting after the intervention began, and

(c) the Council must review the intervention regularly and make any appropriate recommendations to the national executive

(3) National legislation may regulate the process established by this section

101. Executive decisions

(1) A decision by the President must be in writing if it—

(a) is taken in terms of legislation; or

(b) has legal consequences

(2) A written decision by the President must be countersigned by another Cabinet member if that decision concerns a function assigned to that other Cabinet member

(3) Proclamations, regulations and other instruments of subordinate legislation must be accessible to the public

(4) National legislation may specify the manner in which, and the extent to which, instruments mentioned in sub-section (3) must be—

(a) tabled in Parliament, and

(b) approved by Parliament

102. Motions of no confidence

(1) If the National Assembly, by a vote supported by a majority of its members, passes a motion of no confidence in the Cabinet excluding the President the President must reconstitute the Cabinet

(2) If the National Assembly, by a vote supported by a majority of its members passes a motion of no confidence in the President, the President and the other members of the Cabinet and any Deputy Ministers must resign

CHAPTER 6 PROVINCES

TITLE 0 GENERAL PROVISION

103. Provinces

(1) The Republic has the following provinces

- (a) Eastern Cape
- (b) Free State
- (c) Gauteng
- (d) KwaZulu-Natal
- (e) Mpumalanga
- (f) Northern Cape
- (g) Northern Province
- (h) North West
- (i) Western Cape

(2) The boundaries of the provinces are those that existed when the Constitution took effect

TITLE 1 PROVINCIAL LEGISLATURES

104. Legislative authority of provinces

(1) The legislative authority of a province is vested in its provincial legislature, and confers on the provincial legislature the power—

(a) to pass a constitution for its province or to amend any constitution passed by it in terms of sections 142 and 143,

(b) to pass legislation for its province with regard to—

- (i) any matter within a functional area listed in Schedule 4,
- (ii) any matter within a functional area listed in Schedule 5,
- (iii) any matter outside those functional areas, and that is expressly assigned to the province by national legislation, and
- (iv) any matter for which a provision of the Constitution envisages the enactment of provincial legislation, and

(c) to assign any of its legislative powers to a Municipal Council in that province

(2) The legislature of a province, by a resolution adopted with a supporting vote of at least two thirds of its members, may request Parliament to change the name of that province

(3) A provincial legislature is bound only by the Constitution and, if it has passed a constitution for its province, also by that constitution, and must act in accordance with, and within the limits of, the Constitution and that provincial constitution

(4) Provincial legislation with regard to a matter that is reasonably necessary for, or incidental to, the effective exercise of a power concerning any matter listed in Schedule 4, is for all purposes legislation with regard to a matter listed in Schedule 4

(5) A provincial legislature may recommend to the National Assembly legislation concerning any matter outside the authority of that legislature, or in respect of which an Act of Parliament prevails over a provincial law

105 Composition and election of provincial legislatures

(1) A provincial legislature consists of women and men elected as members in terms of an electoral system that—

- (a) is prescribed by national legislation,
- (b) is based on that province's segment of the national common voters roll,
- (c) provides for a minimum voting age of 18 years, and
- (d) results, in general, in proportional representation

(2) A provincial legislature consists of between 30 and 80 members. The number of members, which may differ among the provinces, must be determined in terms of a formula prescribed by national legislation

106 Membership

(1) Every citizen who is qualified to vote for the National Assembly is eligible to be a member of a provincial legislature, except—

(a) anyone who is appointed by, or is in the service of, the State and receives remuneration for that appointment or service, other than—

(i) the Premier and other members of the Executive Council of a province, and

(ii) other office-bearers whose functions are compatible with the functions of a member of a provincial legislature, and have been declared compatible with those functions by national legislation,

(b) members of the National Assembly, permanent delegates to the National Council of Provinces or members of a Municipal Council,

(c) unrehabilitated insolvents,

(d) anyone declared to be of unsound mind by a court of the Republic, or

(e) anyone who after this section took effect, is convicted of an offence and sentenced to more than 12 months' imprisonment without the option of a fine, either in the Republic, or outside the Republic if the conduct constituting the offence would have been an offence in the Republic, but no one may be regarded as having been sentenced until an appeal against the conviction or sentence has been determined, or until the time for an appeal has expired. A disqualification under this paragraph ends five years after the sentence has been completed

(2) A person who is not eligible to be a member of a provincial legislature in terms of sub-section (1) (a) or (b) may be a candidate for the legislature, subject to any limits or conditions established by national legislation

(3) A person loses membership of a provincial legislature if that person--

(a) ceases to be eligible, or

(b) is absent from the legislature without permission in circumstances for which the rules and orders of the legislature prescribe loss of membership

(4) Vacancies in a provincial legislature must be filled in terms of national legislation

107. Oath or affirmation

Before members of a provincial legislature begin to perform their functions in the legislature, they must swear or affirm faithfulness to the Republic and obedience to the Constitution, in accordance with Schedule 2

108. Duration of provincial legislatures

(1) A provincial legislature is elected for a term of five years

(2) If a provincial legislature is dissolved in terms of section 109, or when its term expires, the Premier of the province, by proclamation, must call and set dates for an election, which must be held within 90 days of the date the legislature was dissolved or its term expired

(3) If the result of an election of a provincial legislature is not declared within the period referred to in section 190, or if an election is set aside by a court, the President, by proclamation, must call and set dates for another election, which must be held within 90 days of the expiry of that period or of the date on which the election was set aside

(4) A provincial legislature remains competent to function from the time it is dissolved or its term expires, until the day before the first day of polling for the next legislature

109. Dissolution of provincial legislatures before expiry of term

(1) The Premier of a province must dissolve the provincial legislature if--

(a) the legislature has adopted a resolution to dissolve with a supporting vote of a majority of its members, and

(b) three years have passed since the legislature was elected

(2) An Acting Premier must dissolve the provincial legislature if--

(a) there is a vacancy in the office of Premier; and

(b) the legislature fails to elect a new Premier within 30 days after the vacancy occurred

110. Sittings and recess periods

(1) After an election, the first sitting of a provincial legislature must take place at a time and on a date determined by a judge designated by the President of the Constitutional Court, but not more than 14 days after the election result has been declared. A provincial legislature may determine the time and duration of its other sittings and its recess periods.

(2) The Premier of a province may summon the provincial legislature to an extraordinary sitting at any time to conduct special business.

(3) A provincial legislature may determine where it ordinarily will sit.

111. Speakers and Deputy Speakers

(1) At the first sitting after its election, or when necessary to fill a vacancy, a provincial legislature must elect a Speaker and a Deputy Speaker from among its members.

(2) A judge designated by the President of the Constitutional Court must preside over the election of a Speaker. The Speaker presides over the election of a Deputy Speaker.

(3) The procedure set out in Part A of Schedule 3 applies to the election of Speakers and Deputy Speakers.

(4) A provincial legislature may remove its Speaker or Deputy Speaker from office by resolution. A majority of the members of the legislature must be present when the resolution is adopted.

(5) In terms of its rules and orders, a provincial legislature may elect from among its members other presiding officers to assist the Speaker and the Deputy Speaker.

112. Decisions

(1) Except where the Constitution provides otherwise—

(a) a majority of the members of a provincial legislature must be present before a vote may be taken on a Bill or an amendment to a Bill,

(b) at least one third of the members must be present before a vote may be taken on any other question before the legislature, and

(c) all questions before a provincial legislature are decided by a majority of the votes cast.

(2) The member presiding at a meeting of a provincial legislature has no deliberative vote, but—

(a) must cast a deciding vote when there is an equal number of votes on each side of a question, and

(b) may cast a deliberative vote when a question must be decided with a supporting vote of at least two thirds of the members of the legislature.

113. Permanent delegates' rights in provincial legislatures

A province's permanent delegates to the National Council of Provinces may attend, and may speak in, their provincial legislature and its committees, but may not vote. The legislature may require a permanent delegate to attend the legislature or its committees.

114. Powers of provincial legislatures

(1) In exercising its legislative power, a provincial legislature may—

- (a) consider, pass, amend or reject any Bill before the legislature; and
- (b) initiate or prepare legislation, except Money Bills.

(2) A provincial legislature must provide for mechanisms—

- (a) to ensure that all provincial executive organs of State in the province are accountable to it; and
- (b) to maintain oversight of—
  - (i) the exercise of provincial executive authority in the province including the implementation of legislation; and
  - (ii) any provincial organ of State.

115. Evidence or information before provincial legislatures

A provincial legislature or any of its committees may—

- (a) summon any person to appear before it to give evidence on oath or affirmation, or to produce documents;
- (b) require any person or provincial institution to report to it;
- (c) compel, in terms of provincial legislation or the rules and orders, any person or institution to comply with a summons or requirement in terms of paragraph (a) or (b); and
- (d) receive petitions, representations or submissions from any interested persons or institutions.

116. Internal arrangements, proceedings and procedures of provincial legislatures

(1) A provincial legislature may—

- (a) determine and control its internal arrangements, proceedings and procedures; and
- (b) make rules and orders concerning its business with due regard to representative and participatory democracy, accountability, transparency and public involvement.

(2) The rules and orders of a provincial legislature must provide for—

- (a) the establishment, composition, powers, functions, procedures and duration of its committees;
- (b) the participation in the proceedings of the legislature and its committees of minority parties represented in the legislature in a manner consistent with democracy;
- (c) financial and administrative assistance to each party represented in the legislature, in proportion to its representation, to enable the party and its leader to perform their functions in the legislature effectively; and
- (d) the recognition of the leader of the largest opposition party in the legislature as the Leader of the Opposition.

117. Privilege

(1) Members of a provincial legislature and the province's permanent delegates to the National Council of Provinces—

(a) have freedom of speech in the legislature and in its committees, subject to its rules and orders, and

(b) are not liable to civil or criminal proceedings, arrest, imprisonment or damages for—

(i) anything that they have said in, produced before or submitted to the legislature or any of its committees, or

(ii) anything revealed as a result of anything that they have said in, produced before or submitted to the legislature or any of its committees

(2) Other privileges and immunities of a provincial legislature and its members may be prescribed by national legislation

(3) Salaries, allowances and benefits payable to members of a provincial legislature are a direct charge against the Provincial Revenue Fund

118 Public access to and involvement in provincial legislatures

(1) A provincial legislature must—

(a) facilitate public involvement in the legislative and other processes of the legislature and its committees, and

(b) conduct its business in an open manner, and hold its sittings, and those of its committees, in public, but reasonable measures may be taken—

(i) to regulate public access, including access of the media, to the legislature and its committees, and

(ii) to provide for the searching of any person and, where appropriate, the refusal of entry to, or the removal of, any person

(2) A provincial legislature may not exclude the public, including the media, from a sitting of a committee unless it is reasonable and justifiable to do so in an open and democratic society

119. Introduction of Bills

Only members of the Executive Council of a province or a committee or member of a provincial legislature may introduce a Bill in the legislature, but only the member of the Executive Council who is responsible for financial matters in the province may introduce a Money Bill in the legislature

120 Money Bills

(1) A Bill that appropriates money or imposes taxes, levies or duties is a Money Bill. A Money Bill may not deal with any other matter except a subordinate matter incidental to the appropriation of money or the imposition of taxes, levies or duties

(2) A provincial Act must provide for a procedure by which the province's legislature may amend a Money Bill

121. Assent to Bills

(1) The Premier of a province must either assent to and sign a Bill passed by the provincial legislature in terms of this Chapter or, if the Premier has reservations about the constitutionality of the Bill, refer it back to the legislature for reconsideration.

(2) If, after reconsideration a Bill fully accommodates the Premier's reservations, the Premier must assent to and sign the Bill: if not, the Premier must either—

(a) assent to and sign the Bill; or

(b) refer it to the Constitutional Court for a decision on its constitutionality.

(3) If the Constitutional Court decides that the Bill is constitutional the Premier must assent to and sign it.

122. Application by members to Constitutional Court

(1) Members of a provincial legislature may apply to the Constitutional Court for an order declaring that all or part of a provincial Act is unconstitutional.

(2) An application—

(a) must be supported by at least 20 per cent of the members of the legislature, and

(b) must be made within 30 days of the date on which the Premier assented to and signed the Act.

(3) The Constitutional Court may order that all or part of an Act that is the subject of an application in terms of sub-section (1) has no force until the Court has decided the application if—

(a) the interests of justice require this; and

(b) the application has a reasonable prospect of success

(4) If an application is unsuccessful, and did not have a reasonable prospect of success the Constitutional Court may order the applicants to pay costs.

123. Publication of provincial Acts

A Bill assented to and signed by the Premier of a province becomes a provincial Act, must be published promptly and takes effect when published or on a date determined in terms of the Act.

124. Safekeeping of provincial Acts

The signed copy of a provincial Act is conclusive evidence of the provisions of that Act and, after publication, must be entrusted to the Constitutional Court for safekeeping

PROVINCIAL EXECUTIVES

125. Executive authority of provinces

(1) The executive authority of a province is vested in the Premier of that province.

(2) The Premier exercises the executive authority, together with the other members of the Executive Council, by—

(a) implementing provincial legislation in the province,

(b) implementing all national legislation within the functional areas listed in Schedule 4 or 5 except where the Constitution or an Act of Parliament provides otherwise,

(c) administering in the province, national legislation outside the functional areas listed in Schedules 4 and 5, the administration of which has been assigned to the provincial executive in terms of an Act of Parliament,

(d) developing and implementing provincial policy,

(e) co-ordinating the functions of the provincial administration and its departments,

(f) preparing and initiating provincial legislation, and

(g) performing any other function assigned to the provincial executive in terms of the Constitution or an Act of Parliament

(3) A province has executive authority in terms of sub-section (2) (b) only to the extent that the province has the administrative capacity to assume effective responsibility. The national government, by legislative and other measures, must assist provinces to develop the administrative capacity required for the effective exercise of their powers and performance of their functions referred to in sub-section (2).

(4) Any dispute concerning the administrative capacity of a province in regard to any function must be referred to the National Council of Provinces for resolution within 30 days of the date of the referral to the Council

(5) Subject to section 100, the implementation of provincial legislation in a province is an exclusive provincial executive power

(6) The provincial executive must act in accordance with—

(a) the Constitution, and

(b) the provincial constitution, if a constitution has been passed for the province

126 Assignment of functions

A member of the Executive Council of a province may assign any power or function that is to be exercised or performed in terms of an Act of Parliament or a provincial Act, to a Municipal Council. An assignment—

(a) must be in terms of an agreement between the relevant Executive Council member and the Municipal Council

(b) must be consistent with the Act in terms of which the relevant power or function is exercised or performed, and

(c) takes effect upon proclamation by the Premier

127 Powers and functions of Premiers

(1) The Premier of a province has the powers and functions entrusted to him by the Constitution and any legislation

(2) The Premier of a province is responsible for—

(1) At its first sitting after its election, and whenever necessary to fill a vacancy, a provincial legislature must elect a woman or a man from among its members to be the Premier of the province

(2) A judge designated by the President of the Constitutional Court must preside over the election of the Premier. The procedure set out in Part A of Schedule 3 applies to the election of the Premier

(3) An election to fill a vacancy in the office of Premier must be held at a time and on a date determined by the President of the Constitutional Court, but not later than 30 days after the vacancy occurs

129. Assumption of office by Premiers

A Premier-elect must assume office within five days of being elected, by swearing or affirming faithfulness to the Republic and obedience to the Constitution, in accordance with Schedule 2

130. Term of office and removal of Premiers

(1) A Premier's term of office begins when the Premier assumes office and ends upon a vacancy occurring or when the person next elected Premier assumes office

(2) No person may hold office as Premier for more than two terms, but when a person is elected to fill a vacancy in the office of Premier, the period between that election and the next election of a Premier is not regarded as a term

(3) The legislature of a province, by a resolution adopted with a supporting vote of at least two thirds of its members, may remove the Premier from office only on the grounds of—

- (a) a serious violation of the Constitution or the law,
- (b) serious misconduct, or
- (c) inability to perform the functions of office

(4) Anyone who has been removed from the office of Premier in terms of sub-section (3) (a) or (b) may not receive any benefits of that office, and may not serve in any public office

131. Acting Premiers

(1) When the Premier is absent or otherwise unable to fulfil the duties of the office of Premier, or during a vacancy in the office of Premier, an office-bearer in the order below acts as the Premier

(a) A member of the Executive Council designated by the Premier

(b) A member of the Executive Council designated by the other members of the Council

(c) The Speaker, until the legislature designates one of its other members

(2) An Acting Premier has the responsibilities, powers and functions of the Premier

(3) Before assuming the responsibilities, powers and, functions of the Premier, the Acting Premier must swear or affirm faithfulness to the Republic and obedience to the Constitution, in accordance with Schedule 2

132. Executive Councils

(1) The Executive Council of a province consists of the Premier, as head of the Council, and no fewer than five and no more than ten members appointed by the Premier from among the members of the provincial legislature

(2) The Premier of a province appoints the members of the Executive Council, assigns their powers and functions, and may dismiss them

133. Accountability and responsibilities

(1) The members of the Executive Council of a province are responsible for the functions of the executive assigned to them by the Premier

(2) Members of the Executive Council of a province are accountable collectively and individually to the legislature for the exercise of their powers and the performance of their functions

(3) Members of the Executive Council of a province must—

(a) act in accordance with the Constitution and, if a provincial constitution has been passed for the province, also that constitution, and

(b) provide the legislature with full and regular reports concerning matters under their control

134. Continuation of Executive Councils after elections

When an election of a provincial legislature is held, the Executive Council and its members remain competent to function until the person elected Premier by the next legislature assumes office

135. Oath or affirmation

Before members of the Executive Council of a province begin to perform their functions, they must swear or affirm faithfulness to the Republic and obedience to the Constitution, in accordance with Schedule 2

136. Conduct of members of Executive Councils

(1) Members of the Executive Council of a province must act in accordance with a code of ethics prescribed by national legislation

(2) Members of the Executive Council of a province may not—

(a) undertake any other paid work,

(b) act in any way that is inconsistent with their office, or expose themselves to any situation involving the risk of a conflict between their official responsibilities and private interests, or

(c) use their position or any information entrusted to them, to enrich themselves or improperly benefit any other person

137. Transfer of functions

The Premier by proclamation may transfer to a member of the Executive Council—

(a) the administration of any legislation entrusted to another member, or

(b) any power or function entrusted by legislation to another member

138. Temporary assignment of functions

The Premier of a province may assign to a member of the Executive Council any power or function of another member who is absent from office or is unable to exercise that power or perform that function

139. Provincial supervision of local government

(1) When a municipality cannot or does not fulfil an executive obligation in terms of legislation, the relevant provincial executive may intervene by taking any appropriate steps to ensure fulfilment of that obligation, including—

(a) issuing a directive to the Municipal Council, describing the extent of the failure to fulfil its obligations and stating any steps required to meet its obligations, and

(b) assuming responsibility for the relevant obligation in that municipality to the extent necessary—

(i) to maintain essential national standards or meet established minimum standards for the rendering of a service,

(ii) to prevent that Municipal Council from taking unreasonable action that is prejudicial to the interests of another municipality or to the province as a whole, or

(iii) to maintain economic unity

(2) If a provincial executive intervenes in a municipality in terms of subsection (1)(b)—

(a) the intervention must end unless it is approved by the Cabinet member responsible for local government affairs within 14 days of the intervention,

(b) notice of the intervention must be tabled in the provincial legislature and in the National Council of Provinces within 14 days of their respective first sittings after the intervention began,

(c) the intervention must end unless it is approved by the Council within 30 days of its first sitting after the intervention began, and

(d) the Council must review the intervention regularly and make any appropriate recommendations to the provincial executive

(3) National legislation may regulate the process established by this section

140. Executive decisions

(1) A decision by the Premier of a province must be in writing if it—

(a) is taken in terms of legislation, or

(b) has legal consequences

(2) A written decision by the Premier must be countersigned by another Executive Council member if that decision concerns a function assigned to that other member

(3) Proclamations, regulations and other instruments of subordinate legislation of a province must be accessible to the public

(4) Provincial legislation may specify the manner in which, and the extent to which, instruments mentioned in sub-section (3) must be—

(a) tabled in the provincial legislature, and

(b) approved by the provincial legislature

141. Motions of no confidence

(1) If a provincial legislature, by a vote supported by a majority of its members, passes a motion of no confidence in the province's Executive Council excluding the Premier, the Premier must reconstitute the Council

(2) If a provincial legislature, by a vote supported by a majority of its members, passes a motion of no confidence in the Premier, the Premier and the other members of the Executive Council must resign

PROVINCIAL CONSTITUTIONS

142 Adoption of provincial constitutions

A provincial legislature may pass a constitution for the province or, where applicable, amend its constitution, if at least two thirds of its members vote in favour of the Bill

143. Contents of provincial constitutions

(1) A provincial constitution, or constitutional amendment, must not be inconsistent with this Constitution but may provide for—

(a) provincial legislative or executive structures and procedures that differ from those provided for in this Chapter, or

(b) the institution, role, authority and status of a traditional monarch, where applicable

(2) Provisions included in a provincial constitution or constitutional amendment in terms of paragraph (a) or (b) of sub-section (1)—

(a) must comply with the values in section 1 and with Chapter 3, and

(b) may not confer on the province any power or function that falls—

(i) outside the area of provincial competence in terms of Schedules 4 and 5, or

(ii) outside the powers and functions conferred on the province by other sections of the Constitution

144. Certification of provincial constitutions

(1) If a provincial legislature has passed or amended a constitution, the Speaker of the legislature must submit the text of the constitution or constitutional amendment to the Constitutional Court for certification

(2) No text of a provincial constitution or constitutional amendment becomes law until the Constitutional Court has certified—

(a) that the text has been passed in accordance with section 142, and

(b) that the whole text complies with section 143

145. Signing, publication and safekeeping of provincial constitutions

(1) The Premier of a province must assent to and sign the text of a provincial constitution or constitutional amendment that has been certified by the Constitutional Court

(2) The text assented to and signed by the Premier must be published in the national Government Gazette and takes effect on publication or on a later date determined in terms of that constitution or amendment

(3) The signed text of a provincial constitution or constitutional amendment is conclusive evidence of its provisions and, after publication, must be entrusted to the Constitutional Court for safekeeping

TITLE 4

CONFLICTING LAWS

146. Conflicts between national and provincial legislation

(1) This section applies to a conflict between national legislation and provincial legislation falling within a functional area listed in Schedule 4

(2) National legislation that applies uniformly with regard to the country as a whole prevails over provincial legislation if any of the following conditions is met

(a) The national legislation deals with a matter that cannot be regulated effectively by legislation enacted by the respective provinces individually

(b) The national legislation deals with a matter that, to be dealt with effectively, requires uniformity across the nation, and the national legislation provides that uniformity by establishing—

- (i) norms and standards,
- (ii) frameworks, or
- (iii) national policies

(c) The national legislation is necessary for—

- (i) the maintenance of national security;
- (ii) the maintenance of economic unity,
- (iii) the protection of the common market in respect of the mobility of goods, services, capital and labour,
- (iv) the promotion of economic activities across provincial boundaries,
- (v) the promotion of equal opportunity or equal access to government services, or
- (vi) the protection of the environment

(3) National legislation prevails over provincial legislation if the national legislation is aimed at preventing unreasonable action by a province that —

(a) is prejudicial to the economic, health or security interests of another province or the country as a whole; or

(b) impedes the implementation of national economic policy

(4) When there is a dispute concerning whether national legislation is necessary for a purpose set out in sub-section (2)(c) and that dispute comes before a court for resolution, the court must have due regard to the approval or the rejection of the legislation by the National Council of Provinces

(5) Provincial legislation prevails over national legislation if sub-section (2) or (3) does not apply

(6) A law made in terms of an Act of Parliament or a provincial Act can prevail only if that law has been approved by the National Council of Provinces

(7) If the National Council of Provinces does not reach a decision within 30 days of its first sitting after a law was referred to it, that law must be considered for all purposes to have been approved by the Council

(8) If the National Council of Provinces does not approve a law referred to in sub-section (6), it must, within 30 days of its decision, forward reasons for not approving the law to the authority that referred the law to it

147. Other conflicts

(1) If there is a conflict between national legislation and a provision of a provincial constitution with regard to—

- (a) a matter, concerning which this Constitution specifically requires or envisages the enactment of national legislation, the national legislation prevails over the affected provision of the provincial constitution,

(b) national legislative intervention in terms of section 44(2), the national legislation prevails over the provision of the provincial constitution; or

(c) a matter within a functional area listed in Schedule 4, section 146 applies as if the affected provision of the provincial constitution were provincial legislation referred to in that section

(2) National legislation referred to in section 44(2) prevails over provincial legislation in respect of matters within the functional areas listed in Schedule 5.

148. Conflicts that cannot be resolved

If a dispute concerning a conflict cannot be resolved by a court, the national legislation prevails over the provincial legislation or provincial constitution

149. Status of legislation that does not prevail

A decision by a court that legislation prevails over other legislation does not invalidate that other legislation, but that other legislation becomes inoperative for as long as the conflict remains

150. Interpretation of conflicts

When considering an apparent conflict between national and provincial legislation, or between national legislation and a provincial constitution, every court must prefer any reasonable interpretation of the legislation or constitution that avoids a conflict over any alternative interpretation that results in a conflict.

CHAPTER 7 LOCAL GOVERNMENT

151. Status of municipalities

(1) The local sphere of government consists of municipalities which must be established for the whole of the territory of the Republic.

(2) The executive and legislative authority of a municipality is vested in its Municipal Council.

(3) A municipality has the right to govern on its own initiative the local government affairs of its community, subject to national and provincial legislation, as provided for in the Constitution.

(4) The national or a provincial government may not compromise or impede a municipality's ability or right to exercise its powers or perform its functions

152. Objects of local government

(1) The objects of local government are.

(2) To provide democratic and accountable government for local communities,

(b) to ensure the provision of services to communities in a sustainable manner,

(c) to promote social and economic development,

(d) to promote a safe and healthy environment, and

(e) to encourage the involvement of communities and community organisations in the matters of local government

(2) A municipality must strive, within its financial and administrative capacity, to achieve the objects set out in sub-section (1)

153. Developmental duties of municipalities

A municipality must—

(a) structure and manage its administration, and budgeting and planning processes to give priority to the basic needs of the community, and to promote the social and economic development of the community, and

(b) participate in national and provincial development programmes

154. Municipalities in co-operative government

(1) The national government and provincial governments, by legislative and other measures, must support and strengthen the capacity of municipalities to manage their own affairs, to exercise their powers and to perform their functions

(2) Draft national or provincial legislation that affects the status, institutions, powers or functions of local government must be published for public comment before it is introduced in Parliament or a provincial legislature, in a manner that allows organised local government, municipalities and other interested persons an opportunity to make representations with regard to the draft legislation

155. Establishment of municipalities

(1) There are the following categories of municipality

(a) Category A A municipality that has exclusive municipal executive and legislative authority in its area

(b) Category B A municipality that shares municipal executive and legislative authority in its area with a category C municipality within whose area it falls

(c) Category C A municipality that has municipal executive and legislative authority in an area that includes more than one municipality

(2) National legislation must define the different types of municipality that may be established within each category

(3) National legislation must—

(a) establish the criteria for determining when an area should have a single category A municipality or when it should have municipalities of both category B and category C

(b) establish criteria and procedures for the determination of municipal boundaries by an independent authority, and

(c) subject to section 229, make provision for an appropriate division of powers and functions between municipalities when an area has municipalities of both category B and category C. A division of powers and functions between a category B municipality and a category C municipality may differ from the division of powers and functions between another category B municipality and that category C municipality

(4) The legislation referred to in sub-section (3) must take into account the need to provide municipal services in an equitable and sustainable manner

(5) Provincial legislation must determine the different types of municipality to be established in the province

(6) Each provincial government must establish municipalities in its province in a manner consistent with the legislation enacted in terms of sub-sections (2) and (3) and, by legislative or other measures, must—

(a) provide for the monitoring and support of local government in the province, and

(b) promote the development of local government capacity to enable municipalities to perform their functions and manage their own affairs

(7) The national government, subject to section 44, and the provincial governments have the legislative and executive authority to see to the effective performance by municipalities of their functions in respect of matters listed in Schedules 4 and 5, by regulating the exercise by municipalities of their executive authority referred to in section 156(1)

156. Powers and functions of municipalities

(1) A municipality has executive authority in respect of, and has the right to administer—

(a) the local government matters listed in Part B of Schedule 4 and Part B of Schedule 5, and

(b) any other matter assigned to it by national or provincial legislation

(2) A municipality may make and administer by-laws for the effective administration of the matters which it has the right to administer

(3) Subject to section 151(4), a by-law that conflicts with national or provincial legislation is invalid. If there is a conflict between a by-law and national or provincial legislation that is inoperative because of a conflict referred to in section 149, the by-law must be regarded as valid for as long as that legislation is inoperative

(4) The national government and provincial governments must assign to a municipality, by agreement and subject to any conditions, the administration of a matter listed in Part A of Schedule 4 or Part A of Schedule 5 which necessarily relates to local government, if—

- (a) that matter would most effectively be administered locally, and
- (b) the municipality has the capacity to administer it

(5) A municipality has the right to exercise any power concerning a matter reasonably necessary for, or incidental to, the effective performance of its functions

157. Composition and election of Municipal Councils

(1) A Municipal Council consists of—

(a) members elected in accordance with sub-sections (2), (3), (4) and (5); or

(b) if provided for by national legislation—

(i) members appointed by other Municipal Councils to represent those other Councils, or

(ii) both members elected in accordance with paragraph (a) and members appointed in accordance with sub-paragraph (i) of this paragraph

(2) The election of members to a Municipal Council as anticipated in sub section (1)(a) must be in accordance with national legislation, which must prescribe a system—

(a) of proportional representation based on that municipality's segment of the national common voters roll, and which provides for the election of members from lists of party candidates drawn up in a party's order of preference, or

(b) of proportional representation as described in paragraph (a) combined with a system of ward representation based on that municipality's segment of the national common voters roll

(3) An electoral system in terms of sub-section (2) must ensure that the total number of members elected from each party reflects the total proportion of the votes recorded for those parties

(4) If the electoral system includes ward representation, the delimitation of wards must be done by an independent authority appointed in terms of, and operating according to, procedures and criteria prescribed by national legislation

(5) A person may vote in a municipality only if that person is registered on that municipality's segment of the national common voters roll

(6) The national legislation referred to in sub-section (1)(b) must establish a system that allows for parties and interests reflected within the Municipal Council making the appointment, to be fairly represented in the Municipal Council to which the appointment is made

158 Membership of Municipal Councils

(1) Every citizen who is qualified to vote for a Municipal Council is eligible to be a member of that Council, except—

(a) anyone who is appointed by, or is in the service of, the municipality and receives remuneration for that appointment or service, and who has not been exempted from this disqualification in terms of national legislation,

(b) anyone who is appointed by, or is in the service of, the State in another sphere, and receives remuneration for that appointment or service, and who has been disqualified from membership of a Municipal Council in terms of national legislation,

(c) anyone who is disqualified from voting for the National Assembly or is disqualified in terms of section 47(1)(c), (d) or (e) from being a member of the Assembly,

(d) a member of the National Assembly, a delegate to the National Council of Provinces or a member of a provincial legislature, but this disqualification does not apply to a member of a Municipal Council representing local government in the National Council, or

(e) a member of another Municipal Council, but this disqualification does not apply to a member of a Municipal Council representing that Council in another Municipal Council of a different category

(2) A person who is not eligible to be a member of a Municipal Council in terms of sub-section (1)(a), (b), (d) or (e) may be a candidate for the Council, subject to any limits or conditions established by national legislation.

159. Terms of Municipal Councils

The term of a Municipal Council may be no more than four years, as determined by national legislation

160. Internal procedures

(1) A Municipal Council—

(a) makes decisions concerning the exercise of all the powers and the performance of all the functions of the municipality,

(b) must elect its chairperson,

(c) may elect an executive committee and other committees, subject to national legislation; and

(d) may employ personnel that are necessary for the effective performance of its functions

(2) The following functions may not be delegated by a Municipal Council

(a) The passing of by-laws,

(b) the approval of budgets,

(c) the imposition of rates and other taxes, levies and duties, and

(d) the raising of loans

(3) (a) A majority of the members of a Municipal Council must be present before a vote may be taken on any matter

(b) All questions concerning matters mentioned in sub-section (2) are determined by a decision taken by a Municipal Council with a supporting vote of a majority of its members

(c) All other questions before a Municipal Council are decided by a majority of the votes cast.

(4) No by-law may be passed by a Municipal Council unless—

(a) all the members of the Council have been given reasonable notice, and

(b) the proposed by-law has been published for public comment

(5) National legislation may provide criteria for determining—

(a) the size of a Municipal Council,

(b) whether Municipal Councils may elect an executive committee or any other committee, or

(c) the size of the executive committee or any other committee of a Municipal Council,

(6) A Municipal Council may make by-laws which prescribe rules and orders for—

(a) its internal arrangements;

(b) its business and proceedings, and

(c) the establishment, composition, procedures, powers and functions of its committees

(7) A Municipal Council must conduct its business in an open manner, and may close its sittings, or those of its committees, only when it is reasonable to do so having regard to the nature of the business being transacted

(8) Members of a Municipal Council are entitled to participate in its proceedings and those of its committees in a manner that—

(a) allows parties and interests reflected within the Council to be fairly represented,

(b) is consistent with democracy, and

(c) may be regulated by national legislation

161. Privilege

Provincial legislation within the framework of national legislation may provide for privileges and immunities of Municipal Councils and their members

162. Publication of municipal by-laws

(1) A municipal by-law may be enforced only after it has been published in the official gazette of the relevant province

(2) A provincial official gazette must publish a municipal by-law upon request by the municipality

(3) Municipal by-laws must be accessible to the public

163 Organised local government

An Act of Parliament enacted in accordance with the procedure established by section 76 must—

(a) provide for the recognition of national and provincial organisations representing municipalities, and

(b) determine procedures by which local government may—

(i) consult with the national or a provincial government,

(ii) designate representatives to participate in the National Council of Provinces, and

(iii) nominate persons to the Financial and Fiscal Commission

164. Other matters

Any matter concerning local government not dealt with in the Constitution may be prescribed by national legislation or by provincial legislation within the framework of national legislation

COURTS AND ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE

165. Judicial authority

(1) The judicial authority of the Republic is vested in the courts

(2) The courts are independent and subject only to the Constitution and the law, which they must apply impartially and without fear, favour or prejudice

(3) No person or organ of State may interfere with the functioning of the courts

(4) Organs of State, through legislative and other measures, must assist and protect the courts to ensure the independence, impartiality, dignity, accessibility and effectiveness of the courts

(5) An order or decision issued by a court binds all persons to whom and organs of State to which it applies

166. Judicial system

The courts are—

(a) the Constitutional Court,

(b) the Supreme Court of Appeal,

(c) the High Courts, including any high court of appeal that may be established by an Act of Parliament to hear appeals from High Courts,

(d) the Magistrates' Courts, and

(e) any other court established or recognised in terms of an Act of Parliament, including any court of a status similar to either the High Courts or the Magistrates' Courts

167. Constitutional Court

(1) The Constitutional Court consists of a President, a Deputy President and nine other judges

(2) A matter before the Constitutional Court must be heard by at least eight judges

(3) The Constitutional Court—

- (a) is the highest court in all constitutional matters,
- (b) may decide only constitutional matters, and issues connected with decisions on constitutional matters; and
- (c) makes the final decision whether a matter is a constitutional matter or whether an issue is connected with a decision on a constitutional matter

(4) Only the Constitutional Court may—

- (a) decide disputes between organs of State in the national or provincial sphere concerning the constitutional status, powers or functions of any of those organs of State,
- (b) decide on the constitutionality of any parliamentary or provincial Bill, but may do so only in the circumstances anticipated in section 79 or 121,
- (c) decide applications envisaged in section 80 or 122,
- (d) decide on the constitutionality of any amendment to the Constitution;
- (e) decide that Parliament or the President has failed to fulfil a constitutional obligation, or
- (f) certify a provincial constitution in terms of section 144

(5) The Constitutional Court makes the final decision whether an Act of Parliament, a provincial Act or conduct of the President is constitutional, and must confirm any order of invalidity made by the Supreme Court of Appeal, a High Court, or a court of similar status, before that order has any force

(6) National legislation or the rules of the Constitutional Court must allow a person, when it is in the interests of justice and with leave of the Constitutional Court—

- (a) to bring a matter directly to the Constitutional Court, or
- (b) to appeal directly to the Constitutional Court from any other court

(7) A constitutional matter includes any issue involving the interpretation, protection or enforcement of the Constitution

168 Supreme Court of Appeal

(1) The Supreme Court of Appeal consists of a Chief Justice, a Deputy Chief Justice and the number of judges of appeal determined by an Act of Parliament

(2) A matter before the Supreme Court of Appeal must be decided by the number of judges determined by an Act of Parliament

(3) The Supreme Court of Appeal may decide appeals in any matter. It is the highest court of appeal except in constitutional matters, and may decide only—

- (a) appeals

- (b) issues connected with appeals, and
- (c) any other matter that may be referred to it in circumstances defined by an Act of Parliament

169. High Courts

A High Court may decide—

- (a) any constitutional matter except a matter that—
  - (i) only the Constitutional Court may decide, or
  - (ii) is assigned by an Act of Parliament to another court of a status similar to a High Court, and
- (b) any other matter not assigned to another court by an Act of Parliament

170. Magistrates' Courts and other courts

Magistrates' Courts and all other courts may decide any matter determined by an Act of Parliament, but a court of a status lower than a High Court may not enquire into or rule on the constitutionality of any legislation or any conduct of the President

171. Court procedures

All courts function in terms of national legislation, and their rules and procedures must be provided for in terms of national legislation

172. Powers of courts in constitutional matters

- (1) When deciding a constitutional matter within its power, a court—

(a) must declare that any law or conduct that is inconsistent with the Constitution is invalid to the extent of its inconsistency, and

(b) may make any order that is just and equitable, including—

(i) an order limiting the retrospective effect of the declaration of invalidity, and

(ii) an order suspending the declaration of invalidity for any period and on any conditions, to allow the competent authority to correct the defect

(2) (a) The Supreme Court of Appeal, a High Court or a court of similar status may make an order concerning the constitutional validity of an Act of Parliament, a provincial Act or any conduct of the President, but an order of constitutional invalidity has no force unless it is confirmed by the Constitutional Court

(b) A court which makes an order of constitutional invalidity may grant a temporary interdict or other temporary relief to a party, or may adjourn the proceedings, pending a decision of the Constitutional Court on the validity of that Act or conduct

(c) National legislation must provide for the referral of an order of constitutional invalidity to the Constitutional Court

(d) Any person or organ of State with a sufficient interest may appeal, or apply, directly to the Constitutional Court to confirm or vary an order of constitutional invalidity by a court in terms of this sub-section

173 Inherent power

The Constitutional Court, Supreme Court of Appeal and High Courts have the inherent power to protect and regulate their own process, and to develop the common law, taking into account the interests of justice

174. Appointment of judicial officers

(1) Any appropriately qualified woman or man who is a fit and proper person may be appointed as a judicial officer. Any person to be appointed to the Constitutional Court must also be a South African citizen

(2) The need for the judiciary to reflect broadly the racial and gender composition of South Africa must be considered when judicial officers are appointed

(3) The President as head of the national executive, after consulting the Judicial Service Commission and the leaders of parties represented in the National Assembly, appoints the President and Deputy President of the Constitutional Court and, after consulting the Judicial Service Commission, appoints the Chief Justice and Deputy Chief Justice

(4) The other judges of the Constitutional Court are appointed by the President as head of the national executive, after consulting the President of the Constitutional Court and the leaders of parties represented in the National Assembly, in accordance with the following procedure

(a) The Judicial Service Commission must prepare a list of nominees with three names more than the number of appointments to be made, and submit the list to the President

(b) The President may make appointments from the list, and must advise the Judicial Service Commission, with reasons, if any of the nominees are unacceptable and any appointment remains to be made

(c) The Judicial Service Commission must supplement the list with further nominees and the President must make the remaining appointments from the supplemented list

(5) At all times, at least four members of the Constitutional Court must be persons who were judges at the time they were appointed to the Constitutional Court

(6) The President must appoint the judges of all other courts on the advice of the Judicial Service Commission

(7) Other judicial officers must be appointed in terms of an Act of Parliament which must ensure that the appointment, promotion, transfer or dismissal of or disciplinary steps against these judicial officers take place without favour or prejudice

(8) Before judicial officers begin to perform their functions, they must take an oath or affirm in accordance with Schedule 2 that they will uphold and protect the Constitution

175. Acting judges

(1) The President may appoint a woman or a man to be an acting judge of the Constitutional Court if there is a vacancy or if a judge is absent. The appointment must be made on the recommendation of the Cabinet member responsible for the administration of justice acting with the concurrence of the President of the Constitutional Court and the Chief Justice.

(2) The Cabinet member responsible for the administration of justice must appoint acting judges to other courts after consulting the senior judge of the court on which the acting judge will serve.

176. Terms of office and remuneration

(1) A Constitutional Court judge is appointed for a non-renewable term of 12 years, but must retire at the age of 70.

(2) Other judges hold office until they are discharged from active service in terms of an Act of Parliament.

(3) The salaries, allowances and benefits of judges may not be reduced.

177. Removal

(1) A judge may be removed from office only if—

(a) the Judicial Service Commission finds that the judge suffers from an incapacity, is grossly incompetent or is guilty of gross misconduct, and

(b) the National Assembly calls for that judge to be removed, by a resolution adopted with a supporting vote of at least two thirds of its members.

(2) The President must remove a judge from office upon adoption of a resolution calling for that judge to be removed.

(3) The President, on the advice of the Judicial Service Commission, may suspend a judge who is the subject of a procedure in terms of sub-section (1).

178. Judicial Service Commission

(1) There is a Judicial Service Commission consisting of—

- (a) the Chief Justice, who presides at meetings of the Commission,
- (b) the President of the Constitutional Court,
- (c) one Judge President designated by the Judges President,
- (d) the Cabinet member responsible for the administration of justice, or an alternate designated by that Cabinet member,

(e) two practising advocates nominated from within the advocates' profession to represent the profession as a whole, and appointed by the President,

(f) two practising attorneys nominated from within the attorneys' profession to represent the profession as a whole, and appointed by the President,

(g) one teacher of law designated by teachers of law at South African universities,

(h) six persons designated by the National Assembly from among its members, at least three of whom must be members of opposition parties represented in the Assembly,

(i) four permanent delegates to the National Council of Provinces designated together by the Council with a supporting vote of at least six provinces,

(j) four persons designated by the President as head of the national executive after consulting the leaders of all the parties in the National Assembly, and

(k) when considering matters specifically relating to a provincial or local division of the High Court, the Judge President of that division and the Premier, or an alternate designated by the Premier, of the province concerned

(2) If the number of persons nominated from within the advocates' or attorneys' profession in terms of sub-section (1)(e) or (f) equals the number of vacancies to be filled, the President must appoint them. If the number of persons nominated exceeds the number of vacancies to be filled, the President, after consulting the relevant profession, must appoint sufficient of the nominees to fill the vacancies, taking into account the need to ensure that those appointed represent the profession as a whole

(3) Members of the Commission designated by the National Council of Provinces serve until they are replaced together, or until any vacancy occurs in their number. Other members who were designated or nominated to the Commission serve until they are replaced by those who designated or nominated them

(4) The Judicial Service Commission has the powers and functions assigned to it in the Constitution and national legislation

(5) The Judicial Service Commission may advise the national government on any matter relating to the judiciary or the administration of justice, but when it considers any matter except the appointment of a judge, it must sit without the members designated in terms of sub-section (1) (h) and (i)

(6) The Judicial Service Commission may determine its own procedure, but decisions of the Commission must be supported by a majority of its members

179. Prosecuting authority

(1) There is a single national prosecuting authority in the Republic, structured in terms of an Act of Parliament, and consisting of—

(a) a National Director of Public Prosecutions, who is the head of the prosecuting authority, and is appointed by the President as head of the national executive, and

(b) Directors of Public Prosecutions and prosecutors as determined by an Act of Parliament

(2) The prosecuting authority has the power to institute criminal proceedings on behalf of the State, and to carry out any necessary functions relating to instituting criminal proceedings

(3) National legislation must ensure that the Directors of Public Prosecutions—

(a) are appropriately qualified; and

(b) are responsible for prosecutions in specific jurisdictions subject to sub-section (5).

(4) National legislation must ensure that the prosecuting authority exercises its functions without fear, favour or prejudice.

(5) The National Director of Public Prosecutions—

(a) must determine, with the concurrence of the Cabinet member responsible for the administration of justice, and after consulting the Directors of Public Prosecutions prosecution policy which must be observed in the prosecution process

(b) must issue policy directives which must be observed in the prosecution process

(c) may intervene in the prosecution process when policy directives are not complied with; and

(d) may review a decision to prosecute or not to prosecute, after consulting the relevant Director of Public Prosecutions and after taking representations within a period specified by the National Director of Public Prosecutions, from the following:

(i) The accused person.

(ii) The complainant.

(iii) Any other person or party whom the National Director considers to be relevant.

(6) The Cabinet member responsible for the administration of justice must exercise final responsibility over the prosecuting authority.

(7) All other matters concerning the prosecuting authority must be determined by national legislation.

180. Other matters concerning administration of justice

National legislation may provide for any matter concerning the administration of justice that is not dealt with in the Constitution, including—

(a) training programmes for judicial officers

(b) procedures for dealing with complaints about judicial officers; and

(c) the participation of people other than judicial officers in court decisions

STATE INSTITUTIONS SUPPORTING CONSTITUTIONAL DEMOCRACY

GENERAL PROVISION

181. Establishment and governing principles

(1) The following State institutions strengthen constitutional democracy in the Republic

(a) The Public Protector

(b) The Human Rights Commission

193. Appointments

(1) The Public Protector and members of any Commission established by this Chapter must be women or men who—

(a) are South African citizens,

(b) are fit and proper persons to hold the particular office, and

(c) comply with any other requirements prescribed by national legislation

(2) The need for a Commission established by this Chapter to reflect broadly the race and gender composition of South Africa must be considered when members are appointed

(3) The Auditor-General must be a woman or a man who is a South African citizen and a fit and proper person to hold that office. Specialised knowledge of, or experience in, auditing, State finances and public administration must be given due regard in appointing the Auditor-General

(4) The President, on the recommendation of the National Assembly, must appoint the Public Protector, the Auditor-General and members of—

(a) the Human Rights Commission,

(b) the Commission for Gender Equality, and

(c) the Electoral Commission

(5) The National Assembly must recommend persons—

(a) nominated by a committee of the Assembly proportionally composed of members of all parties represented in the Assembly, and

(b) approved by the Assembly by a resolution adopted with a supporting vote—

(i) of at least 60 per cent of the members of the Assembly, if the recommendation concerns the appointment of the Public Protector or the Auditor-General, or

(ii) of a majority of the members of the Assembly, if the recommendation concerns the appointment of a member of a Commission

(6) The involvement of civil society in the recommendation process may be provided for as envisaged in section 59(1)(a)

194. Removal from office

(1) The Public Protector, the Auditor-General or a member of a Commission established by this Chapter may be removed from office only on—

(a) the ground of misconduct, incapacity or incompetence,

(b) a finding to that effect by a committee of the National Assembly, and

(c) the adoption by the Assembly of a resolution calling for that person's removal from office

(2) A resolution of the National Assembly concerning the removal from office of—

(a) the Public Protector or the Auditor-General must be adopted with a supporting vote of at least two thirds of the members of the Assembly, or

(b) a member of a commission must be adopted with a supporting vote of a majority of the members of the Assembly

(2) The President—

(a) may suspend a person from office at any time after the start of the proceedings of a committee of the National Assembly for the removal of that person; and

(b) must remove a person from office upon adoption by the Assembly of the resolution calling for that person's removal

CHAPTER 10 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION

195. Basic values and principles governing public administration

(1) Public administration must be governed by the democratic values and principles enshrined in the Constitution, including the following principles

(a) A high standard of professional ethics must be promoted and maintained

(b) Efficient, economic and effective use of resources must be promoted.

- (c) Public administration must be development-oriented
  - (d) Services must be provided impartially, fairly, equitably and without bias
  - (e) People's needs must be responded to, and the public must be encouraged to participate in policy-making
  - (f) Public administration must be accountable
  - (g) Transparency must be fostered by providing the public with timely, accessible and accurate information
  - (h) Good human-resource management and career-development practices, to maximise human potential, must be cultivated
  - (i) Public administration must be broadly representative of the South African people, with employment and personnel management practices based on ability, objectivity, fairness, and the need to redress the imbalances of the past to achieve broad representation
- (2) The above principles apply to—
- (a) administration in every sphere of government,
  - (b) organs of State, and
  - (c) public enterprises
- (3) National legislation must ensure the promotion of the values and principles listed in sub-section (1)
- (4) The appointment in public administration of a number of persons on policy considerations is not precluded, but national legislation must regulate these appointments in the public service
- (5) Legislation regulating public administration may differentiate between different sectors, administrations or institutions
- (6) The nature and functions of different sectors, administrations or institutions of public administration are relevant factors to be taken into account in legislation regulating public administration

196 Public Service Commission

- (1) There is a single Public Service Commission for the Republic
- (2) The Commission is independent and must be impartial, and must exercise its powers and perform its functions without fear, favour or prejudice in the interest of the maintenance of effective and efficient public administration and a high standard of professional ethics in the public service. The Commission must be regulated by national legislation
- (3) Other organs of State, through legislative and other measures, must assist and protect the Commission to ensure the independence, impartiality, dignity and effectiveness of the Commission. No person or organ of State may interfere with the functioning of the Commission
- (4) The powers and functions of the Commission are
  - (a) To promote the values and principles set out in section 195 throughout the public service.

(b) to investigate, monitor and evaluate the organisation and administration, and the personnel practices, of the public service,

(c) to propose measures to ensure effective and efficient performance within the public service,

(d) to give directions aimed at ensuring that personnel procedures relating to recruitment, transfers, promotions and dismissals comply with the values and principles set out in section 195,

(e) to report in respect of its activities and the performance of its functions, including any finding it may make and directions and advice it may give, and to provide an evaluation of the extent to which the values and principles set out in section 195 are complied with, and

(f) either of its own accord or on receipt of any complaint—

(i) to investigate and evaluate the application of personnel and public administration practices, and to report to the relevant executive authority and legislature,

(ii) to investigate grievances of employees in the public service concerning official acts or omissions, and recommend appropriate remedies,

(iii) to monitor and investigate adherence to applicable procedures in the public service; and

(iv) to advise national and provincial organs of State regarding personnel practices in the public service, including those relating to the recruitment, appointment, transfer, discharge and other aspects of the careers of employees in the public service

(5) The Commission is accountable to the National Assembly

(6) The Commission must report at least once a year in terms of sub-section (4)(e)—

(a) to the National Assembly, and

(b) in respect of its activities in a province, to the legislature of that province

(7) The Commission has the following 14 commissioners appointed by the President

(a) Five commissioners approved by the National Assembly in accordance with sub-section (8)(a), and

(b) one commissioner for each province nominated by the Premier of the province in accordance with sub-section (8)(b)

(8) (a) A commissioner appointed in terms of sub-section (7)(a) must be—

(i) recommended by a committee of the National Assembly that is proportionally composed of members of all parties represented in the Assembly, and

(ii) approved by the Assembly by a resolution adopted with a supporting vote of a majority of its members

(b) A commissioner nominated by the Premier of a province must be—

(i) recommended by a committee of the provincial legislature that is proportionally composed of members of all parties represented in the legislature, and

(ii) approved by the legislature by a resolution adopted with a supporting vote of a majority of its members

(9) An Act of Parliament must regulate the procedure for the appointment of commissioners

(10) A commissioner is appointed for a term of five years, which is renewable for one additional term only, and must be a woman or a man who is—

(a) a South African citizen, and

(b) a fit and proper person with knowledge of, or experience in, administration, management or the provision of public services

(11) A commissioner may be removed from office only on—

(a) the ground of misconduct, incapacity or incompetence,

(b) a finding to that effect by a committee of the National Assembly or, in the case of a commissioner nominated by the Premier of a province, by a committee of the legislature of that province, and

(c) the adoption by the Assembly or the provincial legislature concerned, of a resolution with a supporting vote of a majority of its members calling for the commissioner's removal from office

(12) The President must remove the relevant commissioner from office upon—

(a) the adoption by the Assembly of a resolution calling for that commissioner's removal, or

(b) written notification by the Premier that the provincial legislature has adopted a resolution calling for that commissioner's removal

(13) Commissioners referred to in sub-section (7)(b) may exercise the powers and perform the functions of the Commission in their provinces as prescribed by national legislation

197. Public Service

(1) Within public administration there is a public service for the Republic, which must function, and be structured, in terms of national legislation, and which must loyally execute the lawful policies of the government of the day

(2) The terms and conditions of employment in the public service must be regulated by national legislation. Employees are entitled to a fair pension as regulated by national legislation

(3) No employee of the public service may be favoured or prejudiced only because that person supports a particular political party or cause

(4) Provincial governments are responsible for the recruitment, appointment, promotion, transfer and dismissal of members of the public service in their administrations within a framework of uniform norms and standards applying to the public service

CHAPTER 11 SECURITY SERVICES

198. Governing principles

The following principles govern national security in the Republic

(a) National security must reflect the resolve of South Africans, as individuals and as a nation, to live as equals, to live in peace and harmony, to be free from fear and want and to seek a better life

(b) The resolve to live in peace and harmony precludes any South African citizen from participating in armed conflict, nationally or internationally, except as provided for in terms of the Constitution or national legislation

(c) National security must be pursued in compliance with the law, including international law

(d) National security is subject to the authority of Parliament and the national executive

199. Establishment, structuring and conduct of security services

(1) The security services of the Republic consist of a single defence force, a single police service and any intelligence services established in terms of the Constitution

(2) The defence force is the only lawful military force in the Republic

(3) Other than the security services established in terms of the Constitution, armed organisations or services may be established only in terms of national legislation

(4) The security services must be structured and regulated by national legislation

(5) The security services must act, and must teach and require their members to act, in accordance with the Constitution and the law, including customary international law and international agreements binding on the Republic

(6) No member of any security service may obey a manifestly illegal order

(7) Neither the security services, nor any of their members, may, in the performance of their functions—

(a) prejudice a political party interest that is legitimate in terms of the Constitution, or

(b) further, in a partisan manner, any interest of a political party

(8) To give effect to the principles of transparency and accountability, multi-party parliamentary committees must have oversight of all security services in a manner determined by national legislation or the rules and orders of Parliament

TITLE 1

DEFENCE

200 Defence force

(1) The defence force must be structured and managed as a disciplined military force

(2) The primary object of the defence force is to defend and protect the Republic, its territorial integrity and its people in accordance with the Constitution and the principles of international law regulating the use of force

201. Political responsibility

(1) A member of the Cabinet must be responsible for defence

(2) Only the President, as head of the national executive, may authorise the employment of the defence force—

(a) in co-operation with the police service,

(b) in defence of the Republic, or

(c) in fulfilment of an international obligation

(3) When the defence force is employed for any purpose mentioned in sub-section (2), the President must inform Parliament, promptly and in appropriate detail, of—

(a) the reasons for the employment of the defence force,

(b) any place where the force is being employed,

(c) the number of people involved, and

(d) the period for which the force is expected to be employed

(4) If Parliament does not sit during the first seven days after the defence force is employed as envisaged in sub-section (2), the President must provide the information required in sub-section (3) to the appropriate oversight committee

202. Command of defence force

(1) The President as head of the national executive is Commander-in-Chief of the defence force, and must appoint the Military Command of the defence force

(2) Command of the defence force must be exercised in accordance with the directions of the Cabinet member responsible for defence, under the authority of the President

203. State of national defence

(1) The President as head of the national executive may declare a State of national defence, and must inform Parliament promptly and in appropriate detail of—

- (a) the reasons for the declaration,
- (b) any place where the defence force is being employed, and
- (c) the number of people involved

(2) If Parliament is not sitting when a State of national defence is declared, the President must summon Parliament to an extraordinary sitting within seven days of the declaration

(3) A declaration of a State of national defence lapses unless it is approved by Parliament within seven days of the declaration

204. Defence civilian secretariat

A civilian secretariat for defence must be established by national legislation to function under the direction of the Cabinet member responsible for defence

TITLE 2*POLICE*205. Police service

(1) The national police service must be structured to function in the national, provincial and, where appropriate, local spheres of government

(2) National legislation must establish the powers and functions of the police service and must enable the police service to discharge its responsibilities effectively, taking into account the requirements of the provinces

(3) The objects of the police service are to prevent, combat and investigate crime, to maintain public order, to protect and secure the inhabitants of the Republic and their property, and to uphold and enforce the law

206. Political responsibility

(1) A member of the Cabinet must be responsible for policing and must determine national policing policy after consulting the provincial governments and taking into account the policing needs and priorities of the provinces as determined by the provincial executives

(2) The national policing policy may make provision for different policies in respect of different provinces after taking into account the policing needs and priorities of these provinces

(3) Each province is entitled—

- (a) to monitor police conduct,
- (b) to oversee the effectiveness and efficiency of the police service, including receiving reports on the police service,

- (c) to promote good relations between the police and the community
- (d) to assess the effectiveness of visible policing, and
- (e) to liaise with the Cabinet member responsible for policing with respect to crime and policing in the province
- (4) A provincial executive is responsible for policing functions—
  - (a) vested in it by this Chapter,
  - (b) assigned to it in terms of national legislation, and
  - (c) allocated to it in the national policing policy
- (5) In order to perform the functions set out in sub-section (3), a province—
  - (a) may investigate, or appoint a commission of inquiry into, any complaints of police inefficiency or a breakdown in relations between the police and any community, and
  - (b) must make recommendations to the Cabinet member responsible for policing
- (6) On receipt of a complaint lodged by a provincial executive, an independent police complaints body established by national legislation must investigate any alleged misconduct of, or offence committed by, a member of the police service in the province
- (7) National legislation must provide a framework for the establishment, powers, functions and control of municipal police services
- (8) A committee composed of the Cabinet member and the members of the Executive Councils responsible for policing must be established to ensure effective co-ordination of the police service and effective co-operation among the spheres of government
- (9) A provincial legislature may require the provincial commissioner of the province to appear before it or any of its committees to answer questions

207. Control of police service

- (1) The President as head of the national executive must appoint a woman or a man as the National Commissioner of the police service, to control and manage the police service
- (2) The National Commissioner must exercise control over and manage the police service in accordance with the national policing policy and the directions of the Cabinet member responsible for policing
- (3) The National Commissioner, with the concurrence of the provincial executive, must appoint a woman or a man as the provincial commissioner for that province, but if the National Commissioner and the provincial executive are unable to agree on the appointment, the Cabinet member responsible for policing must mediate between the parties
  - (1) The provincial commissioners are responsible for policing in their respective provinces—
  - (2) as prescribed by national legislation, and

(b) subject to the power of the National Commissioner to exercise control over and manage the police service in terms of sub-section (2).

(5) The provincial commissioner must report to the provincial legislature annually on policing in the province, and must send a copy of the report to the National Commissioner.

(6) If the provincial commissioner has lost the confidence of the provincial executive, that executive may institute appropriate proceedings for the removal or transfer of, or disciplinary action against, that Commissioner, in accordance with national legislation.

208. Police civilian secretariat

A civilian secretariat for the police service must be established by national legislation to function under the direction of the Cabinet member responsible for policing.

TITLE 3 INTELLIGENCE

209. Establishment and control of intelligence services

(1) Any intelligence service, other than any intelligence division of the defence force or police service, may be established only by the President, as head of the national executive, and only in terms of national legislation.

(2) The President as head of the national executive must appoint a woman or a man as head of each intelligence service established in terms of sub-section (1), and must either assume political responsibility for the control and direction of any of those services, or designate a member of the Cabinet to assume that responsibility.

210. Powers, functions and monitoring

National legislation must regulate the objects, powers and functions of the intelligence services, including any intelligence division of the defence force or police service, and must provide for—

- (a) the co-ordination of all intelligence services; and
- (b) civilian monitoring of the activities of those services by an inspector appointed by the President as head of the national executive, and approved by a resolution adopted by the National Assembly with a supporting vote of at least two thirds of its members

CHAPTER 12 TRADITIONAL LEADERS

211. Recognition

(1) The institution, status and role of traditional leadership, according to customary law, are recognised, subject to the Constitution

(2) A traditional authority that observes a system of customary law may function subject to any applicable legislation and customs, which includes amendments to, or repeal of, that legislation or those customs

(3) The courts must apply customary law when that law is applicable, subject to the Constitution and any legislation that specifically deals with customary law

212. Role of traditional leaders

(1) National legislation may provide for a role for traditional leadership as an institution at local level on matters affecting local communities

(2) To deal with matters relating to traditional leadership, the role of traditional leaders, customary law and the customs of communities observing a system of customary law—

(a) national or provincial legislation may provide for the establishment of houses of traditional leaders, and

(b) national legislation may establish a council of traditional leaders

CHAPTER 13

GENERAL FINANCIAL MATTERS

213. National Revenue Fund

(1) There is a National Revenue Fund into which all money received by the national government must be paid, except money reasonably excluded by an Act of Parliament

(2) Money may be withdrawn from the National Revenue Fund only—

(a) in terms of an appropriation by an Act of Parliament, or

(b) as a direct charge against the National Revenue Fund, when it is provided for in the Constitution or an Act of Parliament

(3) A province's equitable share of revenue raised nationally is a direct charge against the National Revenue Fund

214. Equitable shares and allocations of revenue

(1) An Act of Parliament must provide for—

(a) the equitable division of revenue raised nationally among the national, provincial and local spheres of government,

(b) the determination of each province's equitable share of the provincial share of that revenue, and

(c) any other allocations to provinces, local government or municipalities from the national government's share of that revenue, and any conditions on which those allocations may be made

(2) The Act referred to in sub-section (1) may be enacted only after the provincial governments, organised local government and the Financial and Fiscal Commission have been consulted, and any recommendations of the Commission have been considered, and must take into account—

- (a) the national interest,
- (b) any provision that must be made in respect of the national debt and other national obligations,
- (c) the needs and interests of the national government, determined by objective criteria,
- (d) the need to ensure that the provinces and municipalities are able to provide basic services and perform the functions allocated to them,
- (e) the fiscal capacity and efficiency of the provinces and municipalities,
- (f) developmental and other needs of provinces, local government and municipalities,
- (g) economic disparities within and among the provinces,
- (h) obligations of the provinces and municipalities in terms of national legislation,
- (i) the desirability of stable and predictable allocations of revenue shares, and
- (j) the need for flexibility in responding to emergencies or other temporary needs, and other factors based on similar objective criteria

215. National, provincial and municipal budgets

(1) National, provincial and municipal budgets and budgetary processes must promote transparency, accountability and the effective financial management of the economy, debt and the public sector

(2) National legislation must prescribe—

- (a) the form of national, provincial and municipal budgets,
- (b) when national and provincial budgets must be tabled, and
- (c) that budgets in each sphere of government must show the sources of revenue and the way in which proposed expenditure will comply with national legislation

(3) Budgets in each sphere of government must contain—

- (a) estimates of revenue and expenditure, differentiating between capital and current expenditure,
- (b) proposals for financing any anticipated deficit for the period to which they apply, and
- (c) an indication of intentions regarding borrowing and other forms of public liability that will increase public debt during the ensuing year

216. Treasury control

(1) National legislation must establish a national treasury and prescribe measures to ensure both transparency and expenditure control in each sphere of government, by introducing—

- (a) generally recognised accounting practice,
- (b) uniform expenditure classifications, and
- (c) uniform treasury norms and standards

(2) The national treasury, with the concurrence of the Cabinet member responsible for national financial matters, may stop the transfer of funds to an organ of State only for serious or persistent material breach of the measures established in terms of sub-section (1)

(3) A decision to stop the transfer of funds to a province may be taken only in terms of sub-section (2), and—

(a) may not stop the transfer of funds for more than 120 days, and

(b) may be enforced immediately, but will lapse retrospectively unless Parliament approves it following a process substantially the same as that established in terms of section 76(1) and prescribed by the joint rules and orders of Parliament. This process must be completed within 30 days of the decision by the national treasury

(4) Parliament may renew a decision to stop the transfer of funds for no more than 120 days at a time, following the process established in terms of sub-section (3)

(5) Before Parliament may approve or renew a decision to stop the transfer of funds to a province—

(a) the Auditor-General must report to Parliament, and

(b) the province must be given an opportunity to answer the allegations against it, and to State its case, before a committee

217. Procurement

(1) When an organ of State in the national, provincial or local sphere of government, or any other institution identified in national legislation, contracts for goods or services, it must do so in accordance with a system which is fair, equitable, transparent, competitive and cost-effective

(2) Sub-section (1) does not prevent the organs of State or institutions referred to in that sub-section from implementing a procurement policy providing for—

(a) categories of preference in the allocation of contracts, and

(b) the protection or advancement of persons, or categories of persons, disadvantaged by unfair discrimination

(3) National legislation must prescribe a framework within which the policy referred to in sub-section (2) may be implemented

218 Government guarantees

(1) The national government, a provincial government or a municipality may guarantee a loan only if the guarantee complies with any conditions set out in national legislation

(2) National legislation referred to in sub-section (1) may be enacted only after any recommendations of the Financial and Fiscal Commission have been considered

(3) Each year, every government must publish a report on the guarantees it has granted

219. Remuneration of persons holding public office

(1) An Act of Parliament must establish a framework for determining—

(a) the salaries, allowances and benefits of members of the National Assembly, permanent delegates to the National Council of Provinces, members of the Cabinet, Deputy Ministers, traditional leaders and members of any councils of traditional leaders, and

(b) the upper limit of salaries, allowances or benefits of members of provincial legislatures, members of Executive Councils and members of Municipal Councils of the different categories

(2) National legislation must establish an independent commission to make recommendations concerning the salaries, allowances and benefits referred to in sub-section (1)

(3) Parliament may pass the legislation referred to in sub-section (1) only after considering any recommendations of the commission established in terms of sub-section (2)

(4) The national executive, a provincial executive, a municipality or any other relevant authority may implement the national legislation referred to in sub-section (1) only after considering any recommendations of the commission established in terms of sub-section (2)

(5) National legislation must establish frameworks for determining the salaries, allowances and benefits of judges, the Public Protector, the Auditor-General, and members of any commission provided for in the Constitution, including the broadcasting authority referred to in section 192

FINANCIAL AND FISCAL COMMISSION

220. Establishment and functions

(1) There is a Financial and Fiscal Commission for the Republic which makes recommendations envisaged in this Chapter, or in national legislation, to Parliament, provincial legislatures and any other authorities determined by national legislation

(2) The Commission is independent and subject only to the Constitution and the law, and must be impartial

(3) The Commission must function in terms of an Act of Parliament and, in performing its functions, must consider all relevant factors, including those listed in section 214(2)

221. Appointment and tenure of members

(1) The Commission consists of the following women and men appointed by the President as head of the national executive

(a) A chairperson and a deputy chairperson who are full-time members,

(b) nine persons, each of whom is nominated by the Executive Council of a province, with each province nominating only one person,

(c) two persons nominated by organised local government in terms of section 163, and

(d) nine other persons

(2) Members of the Commission must have appropriate expertise

(3) Members serve for a term established in terms of national legislation

The President may remove a member from office on the ground of misconduct, incapacity or incompetence

222 Reports

The Commission must report regularly both to Parliament and to the provincial legislatures

CENTRAL BANK

223. Establishment

The South African Reserve Bank is the central bank of the Republic and is regulated in terms of an Act of Parliament

224. Primary object

(1) The primary object of the South African Reserve Bank is to protect the value of the currency in the interest of balanced and sustainable economic growth in the Republic

(2) The South African Reserve Bank, in pursuit of its primary object, must perform its functions independently and without fear, favour or prejudice, but there must be regular consultation between the Bank and the Cabinet member responsible for national financial matters

225. Powers and functions

The powers and functions of the South African Reserve Bank are those customarily exercised and performed by central banks, which powers and functions must be determined by an Act of Parliament and must be exercised or performed subject to the conditions prescribed in terms of that Act

TITLE 4

PROVINCIAL AND LOCAL FINANCIAL MATTERS

226. Provincial Revenue Funds

(1) There is a Provincial Revenue Fund for each province into which all money received by the provincial government must be paid, except money excluded by an Act of Parliament.

- (2) Money may be withdrawn from a Provincial Revenue Fund only—
  - (a) in terms of an appropriation by a provincial Act, or
  - (b) as a direct charge against the Provincial Revenue Fund, when it is provided for in the Constitution or a provincial Act
- (3) Revenue allocated through a province to local government in that province in terms of section 214(1), is a direct charge against that province's Revenue Fund

227. National sources of provincial and local government funding

- (1) Local government and each province—
  - (a) is entitled to an equitable share of revenue raised nationally to enable it to provide basic services and perform the functions allocated to it, and
  - (b) may receive other allocations from national government revenue, either conditionally or unconditionally
- (2) Additional revenue raised by provinces or municipalities may not be deducted from their share of revenue raised nationally, or from other allocations made to them out of national government revenue. Equally, there is no obligation on the national government to compensate provinces or municipalities that do not raise revenue commensurate with their fiscal capacity and tax base
- (3) A province's equitable share of revenue raised nationally must be transferred to the province promptly and without deduction, except when the transfer has been stopped in terms of section 216
- (4) A province must provide for itself any resources that it requires, in terms of a provision of its provincial constitution, that are additional to its requirements envisaged in the Constitution

228. Provincial taxes

- (1) A provincial legislature may impose—
  - (a) taxes, levies and duties other than income tax, value-added tax, general sales tax, rates on property or customs duties, and
  - (b) flat-rate surcharges on the tax bases of any tax, levy or duty that is imposed by national legislation, other than the tax bases of corporate income tax, value-added tax, rates on property or customs duties
- (2) The power of a provincial legislature to impose taxes, levies, duties and surcharges—
  - (a) may not be exercised in a way that materially and unreasonably prejudices national economic policies, economic activities across provincial boundaries, or the national mobility of goods, services, capital or labour, and
  - (b) must be regulated in terms of an Act of Parliament, which may be enacted only after any recommendations of the Financial and Fiscal Commission have been considered

229. Municipal fiscal powers and functions

(1) Subject to sub-sections (2), (3) and (4) a municipality may impose—

(a) rates on property and surcharges on fees for services provided by or on behalf of the municipality; and

(b) if authorised by national legislation, other taxes, levies and duties appropriate to local government or to the category of local government in which that municipality falls, but no municipality may impose income tax, value-added tax, general sales tax or customs duty.

(2) The power of a municipality to impose rates on property, surcharges on fees for services provided by or on behalf of the municipality, or other taxes, levies or duties—

(a) may not be exercised in a way that materially and unreasonably prejudices national economic policies, economic interests across municipal boundaries or the national mobility of goods, services, capital or labour; and

(b) may be regulated by national legislation.

(3) When two municipalities have the same fiscal powers and functions with regard to the same area, an appropriate division of those powers and functions must be made in terms of national legislation. The division may be made only after taking into account at least the following criteria:

(a) The need to comply with sound principles of taxation;

(b) the powers and functions performed by each municipality;

(c) the fiscal capacity of each municipality;

(d) the effectiveness and efficiency of raising taxes, levies and duties; and

(e) equity.

(4) Nothing in this section precludes the sharing of revenue raised in terms of this section between municipalities that have fiscal power and functions in the same area.

(5) National legislation envisaged in this section may be enacted without consulting local government and the Financial and Fiscal Commission may be consulted and any recommendations of the Commission have been followed.

230. Provincial and municipal loans

(1) A province or a municipality may take loans for capital or current expenditure in accordance with reasonable conditions determined by national legislation, but may not incur expenditure—

(a) that may be raised only when necessary for pending purposes during a financial year; and

(b) that may be repaid within twelve months.

(2) National legislation referred to in subsection (1) may be enacted without consulting local government and the Financial and Fiscal Commission may be consulted.

CHAPTER 14 GENERAL PROVISIONS

TITLE 1 INTERNATIONAL LAW

231. International agreements

(1) The negotiating and signing of all international agreements is the responsibility of the national executive

(2) An international agreement binds the Republic only after it has been approved by resolution in both the National Assembly and the National Council of Provinces, unless it is an agreement referred to in sub-section (3)

(3) An international agreement of a technical, administrative or executive nature, or an agreement which does not require either ratification or accession, entered into by the national executive, binds the Republic without approval by the National Assembly and the National Council of Provinces, but must be tabled in the Assembly and the Council within a reasonable time

(4) Any international agreement becomes law in the Republic when it is enacted into law by national legislation, but a self-executing provision of an agreement that has been approved by Parliament is law in the Republic unless it is inconsistent with the Constitution or an Act of Parliament

(5) The Republic is bound by international agreements which were binding on the Republic when this Constitution took effect

232. Customary international law

Customary international law is law in the Republic unless it is inconsistent with the Constitution or an Act of Parliament

233. Application of international law

When interpreting any legislation, every court must prefer any reasonable interpretation of the legislation that is consistent with international law over any alternative interpretation that is inconsistent with international law

TITLE 2 OTHER MATTERS

234. Charters of Rights

In order to deepen the culture of democracy established by the Constitution, Parliament may adopt Charters of Rights consistent with the provisions of the Constitution

235. Self-determination

The right of the South African people as a whole to self-determination, as manifested in this Constitution, does not preclude, within the framework of this right, recognition of the notion of the right of self-determination of any community sharing a common cultural and language heritage, within a territorial entity in the Republic or in any other way, determined by national legislation

236. Funding for political parties

To enhance multi-party democracy, national legislation must provide for the funding of political parties participating in national and provincial legislatures on an equitable and proportional basis

237. Diligent performance of obligations

All constitutional obligations must be performed diligently and without delay

238. Agency and delegation

An executive organ of State in any sphere of government may—

- (a) delegate any power or function that is to be exercised or performed in terms of legislation to any other executive organ of State, provided the delegation is consistent with the legislation in terms of which the power is exercised or the function is performed, or
- (b) exercise any power or perform any function for any other executive organ of State on an agency or delegation basis

239. Definitions

In the Constitution, unless the context indicates otherwise, "national legislation" includes—

- (a) subordinate legislation made in terms of an Act of Parliament; and
- (b) legislation that was in force when the Constitution took effect and that is administered by the national government, "organ of State" means—

- (a) any department of State or administration in the national, provincial or local sphere of government, or

- (b) any other functionary or institution—

- (i) exercising a power or performing a function in terms of the Constitution or a provincial constitution, or

- (ii) exercising a public power or performing a public function in terms of any legislation, but does not include a court or a judicial officer, "provincial legislation" includes—

- (a) subordinate legislation made in terms of a provincial Act, and

- (b) legislation that was in force when the Constitution took effect and that is administered by a provincial government

240 Inconsistencies between different texts

In the event of an inconsistency between different texts of the Constitution the English text prevails

241. Transitional arrangements

Schedule 6 applies to the transition to the new constitutional order established by this Constitution, and any matter incidental to that transition

242. Repeal of laws

The laws mentioned in Schedule 7 are repealed, subject to section 243 and Schedule 6

243. Short title and commencement

(1) This Act is called the Constitution of the Republic of South Africa, 1996, and comes into effect as soon as possible on a date set by the President by proclamation, which may not be a date later than 1 July 1997

(2) The President may set different dates before the date mentioned in sub-section (1) in respect of different provisions of the Constitution

(3) Unless the context otherwise indicates, a reference in a provision of the Constitution to a time when the Constitution took effect must be construed as a reference to the time when that provision took effect

(4) If a different date is set for any particular provision of the Constitution in terms of sub-section (2), any corresponding provision of the Constitution of the Republic of South Africa, 1993 (Act 200 of 1993), mentioned in the proclamation, is repealed with effect from the same date

(5) Sections 213, 214, 215, 216, 218, 226, 227, 228, 229 and 230 come into effect on 1 January 1998, but this does not preclude the enactment in terms of this Constitution of legislation envisaged in any of these provisions before that date. Until that date any corresponding and incidental provisions of the Constitution of the Republic of South Africa, 1993, remain in force

SCHEDULE 1*NATIONAL FLAG

(1) The national flag is rectangular, it is one and a half times longer than it is wide

(2) It is black, gold, green, white, chull red and blue

(3) It has a green Y-shaped band that is one fifth as wide as the flag. The centre lines of the band start in the top and bottom corners next to the flag post, converge in the centre of the flag, and continue horizontally to the middle of the free edge

(4) The green band is edged, above and below in white, and towards the flag post end, in gold. Each edging is one fifteenth as wide as the flag

(5) The triangle next to the flag post is black

(6) The upper horizontal band is chull red and the lower horizontal band is blue. These bands are each one third as wide as the flag

(In the case of an oath So help me God )

(2) A person appointed to the office of Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Appeal who is not already a judge at the time of that appointment must swear or affirm before the President of the Constitutional Court

(3) Judicial officers, and acting judicial officers, other than judges, must swear/affirm in terms of national legislation

SCHEDULE 3

ELECTION PROCEDURES

Part A.—Election Procedures for Constitutional Office-Bearers

1. Application

The procedure set out in this Schedule applies whenever—

(a) the National Assembly meets to elect the President, or the Speaker or Deputy Speaker of the Assembly.

(b) the National Council of Provinces meets to elect its Chairperson or a Deputy Chairperson, or

(c) a provincial legislature meets to elect the Premier of the province or the Speaker or Deputy Speaker of the legislature

2. Nominations

The person presiding at a meeting to which this Schedule applies must call for the nomination of candidates at the meeting

3. Formal requirements

(1) A nomination must be made on the form prescribed by the rules mentioned in item 9

(2) The form on which a nomination is made must be signed—

(a) by two members of the National Assembly, if the President or the Speaker or Deputy Speaker of the Assembly is to be elected,

(b) on behalf of two provincial delegations, if the Chairperson or a Deputy Chairperson of the National Council of Provinces is to be elected, or

(c) by two members of the relevant provincial legislature, if the Premier of the province or the Speaker or Deputy Speaker of the legislature is to be elected

(3) A person who is nominated must indicate acceptance of the nomination by signing either the nomination form or any other form of written confirmation

4. Announcement of names of candidates

At a meeting to which this Schedule applies, the person presiding must announce the names of the persons who have been nominated as candidates, but may not permit any debate

5. Single candidate

If only one candidate is nominated, the person presiding must declare that candidate elected

6. Election procedure

If more than one candidate is nominated—

(a) a vote must be taken at the meeting by secret ballot.

(b) each member present, or if it is a meeting of the National Council of Provinces, each province represented, at the meeting may cast one vote; and

(c) the person presiding must declare elected the candidate who receives a majority of the votes

7. Elimination procedure

(1) If no candidate receives a majority of the votes, the candidate who receives the lowest number of votes must be eliminated and a further vote taken on the remaining candidates in accordance with item 6. This procedure must be repeated until a candidate receives a majority of the votes

(2) When applying sub-item (1), if two or more candidates each have the lowest number of votes, a separate vote must be taken on those candidates, and repeated as often as may be necessary to determine which candidate is to be eliminated

8. Further meetings

(1) If only two candidates are nominated, or if only two candidates remain after an elimination procedure has been applied, and those two candidates receive the same number of votes, a further meeting must be held within seven days, at a time determined by the person presiding

(2) If a further meeting is held in terms of sub-item (1) the procedure prescribed in this Schedule must be applied at that meeting as if it were the first meeting for the election in question.

9. Rules

(1) The President of the Constitutional Court must make rules prescribing—

(a) the procedure for meetings to which this Schedule applies

(b) the duties of any person presiding at a meeting and any person assisting the person presiding,

(c) the form on which nominations must be submitted; and

(d) the manner in which voting is to be conducted

(2) These rules must be made known in the way that the President of the Constitutional Court determines

Part B.—Formula to Determine Party Participation in Provincial Delegations to the National Council of Provinces

The number of delegates in a provincial delegation to the National Council of Provinces to which a party is entitled, must be determined by multiplying the number of seats the party holds in the provincial legislature by ten and dividing the result by the number of seats in the legislature plus one.

2. If a calculation in terms of item 1 yields a surplus not absorbed by the delegates allocated to a party in terms of that item the surplus must compete with similar surpluses accruing to any other party or parties and any undistributed delegates in the delegation must be allocated to the party or parties in the sequence of the highest surplus.

(a) must nominate its permanent delegates from among the persons who were senators when the new Constitution took effect and are available to serve as permanent delegates, and

(b) may nominate other persons as permanent delegates only if none or an insufficient number of its former senators are available

(3) A provincial legislature must appoint its permanent delegates in accordance with the nominations of the parties

(4) Sub-items (2) and (3) apply only to the first appointment of permanent delegates to the National Council

(5) Section 62(1) of the new Constitution does not apply to the nomination and appointment of former senators as permanent delegates in terms of this item

(6) The rules and orders of the Senate in force when the new Constitution took effect, must be applied in respect of the business of the National Council to the extent that they can be applied, subject to any amendment or repeal

8. Former senators

(1) A former senator who is not appointed as a permanent delegate to the National Council of Provinces is entitled to become a full voting member of the legislature of the province from which that person was nominated as a senator in terms of section 48 of the previous Constitution.

(2) If a former senator elects not to become a member of a provincial legislature that person is regarded as having resigned as a senator the day before the new Constitution took effect.

(3) The salary, allowances and benefits of a former senator appointed as a permanent delegate or as a member of a provincial legislature may not be reduced by reason only of that appointment.

9. National executive

(1) Anyone who was the President, an Executive Deputy President, a Minister or a Deputy Minister under the previous Constitution when the new Constitution took effect, continues in and holds that office in terms of the new Constitution, but subject to sub-item (2).

(2) Until 30 April 1999, sections 84, 89, 90, 91, 93 and 96 of the new Constitution must be regarded to read as set out in Annexure B to this Schedule.

(3) Sub-item (2) does not prevent a Minister who was a senator when the new Constitution took effect, from continuing as a Minister referred to in section 91(1)(a) of the new Constitution, as that section reads in Annexure B.

10. Provincial legislatures

(1) Anyone who was a member or office-bearer of a province's legislature when the new Constitution took effect, becomes a member or office-bearer of the legislature for that province under the new Constitution, and holds office as a member or office-bearer in terms of the new Constitution and any provincial constitution that may be enacted.

(2) A provincial legislature as constituted in terms of sub-item (1) must be regarded as having been elected under the new Constitution for a term that expires on 30 April 1999.

(3) For the duration of its term that expires on 30 April 1999, and subject to section 108(4), a provincial legislature consists of the number of members determined for that legislature under the previous Constitution plus the number of former senators who became members of the legislature in terms of item 8 of this Schedule.

(4) The rules and orders of a provincial legislature in force when the new Constitution took effect, continue in force, subject to any amendment or repeal.

11. Elections of provincial legislatures

(1) Despite the repeal of the previous Constitution, Schedule 2 to that Constitution, as amended by Annexure A to this Schedule, applies—

(a) to the first election of a provincial legislature under the new Constitution,

(b) to the loss of membership of a legislature in circumstances other than those provided for in section 106(3) of the new Constitution, and

(c) to the filling of vacancies in a legislature, and the supplementation, review and use of party lists for the filling of vacancies, until the second election of the legislature under the new Constitution

(2) Section 106(4) of the new Constitution is suspended in respect of a provincial legislature until the second election of the legislature under the new Constitution

12. Provincial executives

(1) Anyone who was the Premier or a member of the Executive Council of a province when the new Constitution took effect, continues in and holds that office in terms of the new Constitution and any provincial constitution that may be enacted, but subject to sub-item (2)

(2) Until the Premier elected after the first election of a province's legislature under the new Constitution assumes office, or the province enacts its constitution, whichever occurs first, sections 132 and 136 of the new Constitution must be regarded to read as set out in Annexure C to this Schedule

13. Provincial constitutions

A provincial constitution passed before the new Constitution took effect must comply with section 143 of the new Constitution

14. Assignment of legislation to provinces

(1) Legislation with regard to a matter within a functional area listed in Schedule 4 or 5 to the new Constitution and which, when the new Constitution took effect, was administered by an authority within the national executive, may be assigned by the President, by proclamation, to an authority within a provincial executive designated by the Executive Council of the province

(2) To the extent that it is necessary for an assignment of legislation under sub-item (1) to be effectively carried out, the President, by proclamation, may—

(a) amend or adapt the legislation to regulate its interpretation or application,

(b) where the assignment does not apply to the whole of any piece of legislation, repeal and re-enact, with or without any amendments or adaptations referred to in paragraph (a), those provisions to which the assignment applies or to the extent that the assignment applies to them, or

(c) regulate any other matter necessary as a result of the assignment, including the transfer or secondment of staff, or the transfer of assets, liabilities, rights and obligations, to or from the national or a provincial executive or any department of State, administration, security service or other institution.

(3) (a) A copy of each proclamation issued in terms of sub-item (1) or (2) must be submitted to the National Assembly and the National Council of Provinces within 10 days of the publication of the proclamation

(b) If both the National Assembly and the National Council by resolution disapprove the proclamation or any provision of it, the proclamation or provision lapses, but without affecting—

(i) the validity of anything done in terms of the proclamation or provision before it lapsed, or

(ii) a right or privilege acquired or an obligation or liability incurred before it lapsed.

(4) When legislation is assigned under sub-item (1) any reference in the legislation to an authority administering it, must be construed as a reference to the authority to which it has been assigned

(5) Any assignment of legislation under section 235(8) of the previous Constitution including any amendment, adaptation or repeal and re-enactment of any legislation and any other action taken under that section, is regarded as having been done under this item.

15 Existing legislation outside Parliament's legislative power

(1) An authority within the national executive that administers any legislation falling outside Parliament's legislative power when the new Constitution takes effect, remains competent to administer that legislation until it is assigned to an authority within a provincial executive in terms of item 14 of this Schedule.

(2) Sub-item (1) lapses two years after the new Constitution took effect.

16 Courts

(1) Every court, including courts of traditional leaders, existing when the new Constitution took effect, continues to function and to exercise jurisdiction in terms of the legislation applicable to it, and anyone holding office as a judicial officer continues to hold office in terms of the legislation applicable to that office, subject to—

(a) any amendment or repeal of that legislation; and

(b) consistency with the new Constitution

(2) (a) The Constitutional Court established by the previous Constitution becomes the Constitutional Court under the new Constitution

(b) Anyone holding office as the President, the Deputy President or a judge of the Constitutional Court when the new Constitution takes effect, becomes the President, the Deputy President or a judge of the Constitutional Court under the new Constitution, and continues in office for the unexpired portion of their term as fixed by section 176(1) of the new Constitution

(3) (a) The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of South Africa becomes the Supreme Court of Appeal under the new Constitution

(b) Anyone holding office as the Chief Justice, the Deputy Chief Justice or a judge of the Appellate Division when the new Constitution takes effect, becomes the Chief Justice, the Deputy Chief Justice or a judge of the Supreme Court of Appeal under the new Constitution

(4) (a) A provincial or local division of the Supreme Court of South Africa or a supreme court of a homeland or a general division of such a court, becomes a High Court under the new Constitution without any alteration in its area of jurisdiction, subject to any rationalisation contemplated in sub-item (6)

(b) Anyone holding office or deemed to hold office as the Judge President, the Deputy Judge President or a judge of a court referred to in paragraph (a) when the new Constitution takes effect, becomes the Judge President, the Deputy Judge President or a judge of such a court under the new Constitution, subject to any rationalisation contemplated in sub-item (6)

(5) Unless inconsistent with the context or clearly inappropriate, a reference in any legislation or process to—

(a) the Constitutional Court under the previous Constitution, must be construed as a reference to the Constitutional Court under the new Constitution,

(b) the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of South Africa, must be construed as a reference to the Supreme Court of Appeal, and

(c) a provincial or local division of the Supreme Court of South Africa or a supreme court of a homeland or general division of that court, must be construed as a reference to a High Court

(6) (a) As soon as is practical after the new Constitution took effect all courts, including their structure, composition, functioning and jurisdiction, and all relevant legislation, must be rationalised with a view to establishing a judicial system suited to the requirements of the new Constitution

(b) The Cabinet member responsible for the administration of justice, acting after consultation with the Judicial Service Commission, must manage the rationalisation envisaged in paragraph (a)

17. Cases pending before courts

All proceedings which were pending before a court when the new Constitution took effect, must be disposed of as if the new Constitution had not been enacted, unless the interests of justice require otherwise

18. Prosecuting authority

(1) Section 108 of the previous Constitution continues in force until the Act of Parliament envisaged in section 179 of the new Constitution takes effect. This sub-item does not affect the appointment of the National Director of Public Prosecutions in terms of section 179

(2) An attorney-general holding office when the new Constitution takes effect, continues to function in terms of the legislation applicable to that office, subject to sub-item (1)

19. Oaths and affirmations

A person who continues in office in terms of this Schedule and who has taken the oath of office or has made a solemn affirmation under the previous Constitution, is not obliged to repeat the oath of office or solemn affirmation under the new Constitution

20. Other constitutional institutions

(1) In this section "constitutional institution" means—

- (a) the Public Protector,
- (b) the Human Rights Commission,
- (c) the Commission on Gender Equality,
- (d) the Auditor-General,
- (e) the South African Reserve Bank,
- (f) the Financial and Fiscal Commission,
- (g) the Judicial Service Commission, or
- (h) the Pan South African Language Board

(2) A constitutional institution established in terms of the previous Constitution continues to function in terms of the legislation applicable to it, and anyone holding office as a commission member, a member of the board of the Reserve Bank or the Pan South African Language Board, the Public Protector or the Auditor-General when the new Constitution takes effect, continues to hold office in terms of the legislation applicable to that office, subject to—

- (a) any amendment or repeal of that legislation, and
- (b) consistency with the new Constitution

(3) Sections 199(1), 200(1), (3) and (5) to (11) and 201 to 206 of the previous Constitution continue in force until repealed by an Act of Parliament passed in terms of section 75 of the new Constitution

(4) The members of the Judicial Service Commission referred to in section 105(1)(h) of the previous Constitution cease to be members of the Commission when the members referred to in section 178(1)(i) of the new Constitution are appointed

(5) (a) The Volkstaat Council established in terms of the previous Constitution continues to function in terms of the legislation applicable to it, and anyone holding office as a member of the Council when the new Constitution takes effect, continues to hold office in terms of the legislation applicable to that office, subject to—

- (i) any amendment or repeal of that legislation, and
- (ii) consistency with the new Constitution

(b) Sections 184A and 184B(1)(a), (b) and (d) of the previous Constitution continue in force until repealed by an Act of Parliament passed in terms of section 75 of the new Constitution

21. Enactment of legislation required by new Constitution

(1) Where the new Constitution requires the enactment of national or provincial legislation, that legislation must be enacted by the relevant authority within a reasonable period of the date the new Constitution took effect.

(2) Section 198(b) of the new Constitution may not be enforced until the legislation envisaged in that section has been enacted

(3) Section 199(3)(a) of the new Constitution may not be enforced before the expiry of three months after the legislation envisaged in that section has been enacted

(4) National legislation envisaged in section 217(3) of the new Constitution must be enacted within three years of the date on which the new Constitution took effect, but the absence of this legislation during this period does not prevent the implementation of the policy referred to in section 217(2).

(5) Until the Act of Parliament referred to in section 65(2) of the new Constitution is enacted each provincial legislature may determine its own procedure in terms of which authority is conferred on its delegation to cast votes on its behalf in the National Council of Provinces

(6) Until the legislation envisaged in section 229(1)(b) of the new Constitution is enacted, a municipality remains competent to impose any tax, levy or duty which it was authorised to impose when the Constitution took effect

22. National unity and reconciliation

Notwithstanding the other provisions of the new Constitution and despite the repeal of the previous Constitution, all the provisions relating to amnesty contained in the previous Constitution under the heading "National Unity and Reconciliation" are deemed to be part of the new Constitution for the purposes of the Promotion of National Unity and Reconciliation Act, 1995 (Act 34 of 1995), as amended, including for the purposes of its validity

23. Bill of Rights

(1) National legislation envisaged in sections 9(4), 32(2) and 33(3) of the new Constitution must be enacted within three years of the date on which the new Constitution took effect

(2) Until the legislation envisaged in sections 32(2) and 33(3) of the new Constitution is enacted—

(a) section 32(1) must be regarded to read as follows

"(1) Every person has the right of access to all information held by the State or any of its organs in any sphere of government in so far as that information is required for the exercise or protection of any of their rights", and

(b) section 33(1) and (2) must be regarded to read as follows "Every person has the right to—

(a) lawful administrative action where any of their rights or interests is affected or threatened,

(b) procedurally fair administrative action where any of their rights or legitimate expectations is affected or threatened,

(c) be furnished with reasons in writing for administrative action which affects any of their rights or interests unless the reasons for that action have been made public, and

(d) administrative action which is justifiable in relation to the reasons given for it where any of their rights is affected or threatened."

(3) Sections 32(2) and 33(3) of the new Constitution lapse if the legislation envisaged in those sections, respectively, is not enacted within three years of the date the new Constitution took effect

24. Public administration and security services

(1) Sections 82(4)(b), 215, 218(1), 219(1), 224 to 228, 236(1), (2), (3), (6), (7)(b) and (8), 237(1) and (2)(a) and 239 (4) and (5) of the previous Constitution continue in force as if the previous Constitution had not been repealed, subject to—

(a) the amendments to those sections as set out in Annexure D,

(b) any further amendment or any repeal of those sections by an Act of Parliament passed in terms of section 75 of the new Constitution, and

(c) consistency with the new Constitution

(2) The Public Service Commission and the provincial service commissions referred to in Chapter 13 of the previous Constitution continue to function in terms of that Chapter and the legislation applicable to it as if that Chapter had not been repealed, until the Commission and the provincial service commissions are abolished by an Act of Parliament passed in terms of section 75 of the new Constitution

(3) The repeal of the previous Constitution does not affect any proclamation issued under section 237(3) of the previous Constitution, and any such proclamation continues in force, subject to—

(a) any amendment or repeal, and

(b) consistency with the new Constitution

25 Additional disqualification for legislatures

(1) Anyone who, when the new Constitution took effect, was serving a sentence in the Republic of more than 12 months' imprisonment without the option of a fine, is not eligible to be a member of the National Assembly or a provincial legislature

(2) The disqualification of a person in terms of sub-item (1)—

(a) lapses if the conviction is set aside on appeal or the sentence is reduced on appeal to a sentence that does not disqualify that person, and

(b) ends five years after the sentence has been completed

26. Local Government

(1) Notwithstanding the provisions of sections 151, 155, 156 and 157 of the new Constitution—

(a) the provisions of the Local Government Transition Act, 1993 (Act 209 of 1993), as may be amended from time to time by national legislation consistent with the new Constitution, remain in force until 30 April 1999 or until repealed, whichever is sooner, and

(b) a traditional leader of a community observing a system of indigenous law and residing on land within the area of a transitional local council, transitional rural council or transitional representative council, referred to in the Local Government Transition Act, 1993, and who has been identified as set out in section 182 of the previous Constitution, is ex officio entitled to be a member of that council until 30 April 1999 or until an Act of Parliament provides otherwise

(2) Section 245(4) of the previous Constitution continues in force until the application of that section lapses Section 16(5) and (6) of the Local Government Transition Act, 1993, may not be repealed before 30 April 1999

27. Safekeeping of Acts of Parliament and Provincial Acts

Sections 82 and 124 of the new Constitution do not affect the safekeeping of Acts of Parliament or provincial Acts passed before the new Constitution took effect

28. Registration of immovable property owned by the State

(1) On the production of a certificate by a competent authority that immovable property owned by the State is vested in a particular government in terms of section 239 of the previous Constitution, a registrar of deeds must make such entries or endorsements in or on any relevant register, title deed or other document to register that immovable property in the name of that government

(2) No duty, fee or other charge is payable in respect of a registration in terms of sub-item (1)

ANNEXURE A*Amendments to Schedule 2 to the previous Constitution

1 The replacement of item 1 with the following item

"1 Parties registered in terms of national legislation and contesting an election of the National Assembly, shall nominate candidates for such election on lists of candidates prepared in accordance with this Schedule and national legislation "

2 The replacement of item 2 with the following item

"2. The seats in the National Assembly as determined in terms of section 46 of the new Constitution, shall be filled as follows

(a) One half of the seats from regional lists submitted by the respective parties, with a fixed number of seats reserved for each region as determined by the Commission for the next election of the Assembly, taking into account available scientifically based data in respect of voters, and representations by interested parties

(b) The other half of the seats from national lists submitted by the respective parties, or from regional lists where national lists were not submitted "

3 The replacement of item 3 with the following item

"3 The lists of candidates submitted by a party, shall in total contain the names of not more than a number of candidates equal to the number of seats in the National Assembly, and each such list shall denote such names in such fixed order of preference as the party may determine "

4 The amendment of item 5 by replacing the words preceding paragraph (a) with the following words

"5 The seats referred to in item 2(a) shall be allocated per region to the parties contesting an election, as follows "

5 The amendment of item 6—

(a) by replacing the words preceding paragraph (a) with the following words

"6 The seats referred to in item 2(b) shall be allocated to the parties contesting an election, as follows ", and

(b) by replacing paragraph (a) with the following paragraph

"(a) A quota of votes per seat shall be determined by dividing the total number of votes cast nationally by the number of seats in the National Assembly, plus one, and the result plus one, disregarding fractions, shall be the quota of votes per seat "

6 The amendment of item 7(3) by replacing paragraph (b) with the following paragraph

"(b) An amended quota of votes per seat shall be determined by dividing the total number of votes cast nationally, minus the number of votes cast nationally in favour of the party referred to in paragraph (a), by the number of seats in the Assembly, plus one, minus the number of seats finally allocated to the said party in terms of paragraph (a) ".

7 The replacement of item 10 with the following item

"10 The number of seats in each provincial legislature shall be as determined in terms of section 105 of the new Constitution "

8 The replacement of item 11 with the following item

"11 Parties registered in terms of national legislation and contesting an election of a provincial legislature, shall nominate candidates for election to such provincial legislature on provincial lists prepared in accordance with this Schedule and national legislation "

9 The replacement of item 16 with the following item

"Designation of representatives

16 (1) After the counting of votes has been concluded, the number of representatives of each party has been determined and the election result has been declared in terms of section 190 of the new Constitution, the Commission shall, within two days after such declaration, designate from each list of candidates, published in terms of national legislation, the representatives of each party in the legislature

(2) Following the designation in terms of sub-item (1), if a candidate's name appears on more than one list for the National Assembly or on lists for both the National Assembly and a provincial legislature (if an election of the Assembly and a provincial legislature is held at the same time), and such candidate is due for designation as a representative in more than one case, the party which submitted such lists shall, within two days after the said declaration, indicate to the Commission from which list such candidate will be designated or in which legislature the candidate will serve, as the case may be, in which event the candidate's name shall be deleted from the other lists

(3) The Commission shall forthwith publish the list of names of representatives in the legislature or legislatures "

10. The amendment of item 18 by replacing paragraph (b) with the following paragraph

"(b) a representative is appointed as a permanent delegate to the National Council of Provinces,"

11 The replacement of item 19 with the following item

"19 Lists of candidates of a party referred to in item 16(1) may be supplemented on one occasion only at any time during the first 12 months following the date on which the designation of representatives in terms of item 16 has been concluded, in order to fill casual vacancies. Provided that any such supplementation shall be made at the end of the list "

12 The replacement of item 23 with the following item

"Vacancies

23 (1) In the event of a vacancy in a legislature to which this Schedule applies, the party which nominated the vacating member shall fill the vacancy by nominating a person—

(a) whose name appears on the list of candidates from which the vacating member was originally nominated, and

(b) who is the next qualified and available person on the list

(2) A nomination to fill a vacancy shall be submitted to the Speaker in writing

(3) If a party represented in a legislature dissolves or ceases to exist and the members in question vacate their seats in consequence of item

23A(1), the seats in question shall be allocated to the remaining parties mutatis mutandis as if such seats were forfeited seats in terms of item 7 or 14, as the case may be "

13 The insertion of the following item after item 23

"Additional ground for loss of membership of legislatures

23A (1) A person loses membership of a legislature to which this Schedule applies if that person ceases to be a member of the party which nominated that person as a member of the legislature.

(2) Despite sub-item (1) any existing political party may at any time change its name

(3) An Act of Parliament may, within a reasonable period after the new Constitution took effect, be passed in accordance with section 76(1) of the new Constitution to amend this item and item 23 to provide for the manner in which it will be possible for a member of a legislature who ceases to be a member of the party which nominated that member, to retain membership of such legislature

(4) An Act of Parliament referred to in sub-item (3) may also provide for—

(a) any existing party to merge with another party, or

(b) any party to subdivide into more than one party "

14 The deletion of item 24

15 The amendment of item 25—

(a) by replacing the definition of "Commission" with the following definition

" "Commission" means the Electoral Commission referred to in section 190 of the new Constitution,"; and

(b) by inserting the following definition after the definition of "national list"

" "new Constitution" means the Constitution of the Republic of South Africa, 1996,"

16 The deletion of item 26

ANNEXURE B

Government of National Unity: National Sphere

1 Section 84 of the new Constitution is deemed to contain the following additional sub-section

(3) The President must consult the Executive Deputy Presidents—

(a) in the development and execution of the policies of the national government

(b) in all matters relating to the management of the Cabinet and the performance of Cabinet business.

(c) in the assignment of functions to the Executive Deputy Presidents,

(d) before making any appointment under the Constitution or any legislation, including the appointment of ambassadors or other diplomatic representatives,

(e) before appointing commissions of inquiry,

(f) before calling a referendum, and

(g) before pardoning or relieving offenders "

2 Section 89 of the new Constitution is deemed to contain the following additional sub-section:

"(3) Sub-sections (1) and (2) apply also to an Executive Deputy President."

3 Paragraph (a) of section 90(1) of the new Constitution is deemed to read as follows

"(a) an Executive Deputy President designated by the President,"

4 Section 91 of the new Constitution is deemed to read as follows

91 (1) The Cabinet consists of the President, the Executive Deputy Presidents and—

(a) not more than 27 Ministers who are members of the National Assembly and appointed in terms of sub-sections (8) to (12), and

(b) not more than one Minister who is not a member of the National Assembly and appointed in terms of sub-section (13), provided the President, acting in consultation with the Executive Deputy Presidents and the leaders of the participating parties, deems the appointment of such a Minister expedient

(2) Each party holding at least 80 seats in the National Assembly is entitled to designate an Executive Deputy President from among the members of the Assembly

(3) If no party or only one party holds 80 or more seats in the Assembly, the party holding the largest number of seats and the party holding the second largest number of seats are each entitled to designate one Executive Deputy President from among the members of the Assembly

(4) On being designated, an Executive Deputy President may elect to remain or cease to be a member of the Assembly

(5) An Executive Deputy President may exercise the powers and must perform the functions vested in the office of Executive Deputy President by the Constitution or assigned to that office by the President

(6) An Executive Deputy President holds office—

(a) until 30 April 1999 unless replaced or recalled by the party entitled to make the designation in terms of sub-sections (2) and (3), or

(b) until the person elected President after any election of the National Assembly held before 30 April 1999, assumes office

(7) A vacancy in the office of an Executive Deputy President may be filled by the party which designated that Deputy President

(8) A party holding at least 20 seats in the National Assembly and which has decided to participate in the government of national unity, is entitled to be allocated one or more of the Cabinet portfolios in respect of which Ministers referred to in sub-section (1)(a) are to be appointed, in proportion to the number of seats held by it in the National Assembly relative to the number of seats held by the other participating parties

(9) Cabinet portfolios must be allocated to the respective participating parties in accordance with the following formula

(a) A quota of seats per portfolio must be determined by dividing the total number of seats in the National Assembly held jointly by the participating parties by the number of portfolios in respect of which Ministers referred to in sub-section (1) (a) are to be appointed, plus one

(b) The result, disregarding third and subsequent decimals, if any, is the quota of seats per portfolio.

(c) The number of portfolios to be allocated to a participating party is determined by dividing the total number of seats held by that party in the National Assembly by the quota referred to in paragraph (b).

(d) The result, subject to paragraph (e), indicates the number of portfolios to be allocated to that party.

(e) Where the application of the above formula yields a surplus not absorbed by the number of portfolios allocated to a party, the surplus competes with other similar surpluses accruing to another party or parties, and any portfolio or portfolios which remain unallocated must be allocated to the party or parties concerned in sequence of the highest surplus

(10) The President after consultation with the Executive Deputy Presidents and the leaders of the participating parties must—

(a) determine the specific portfolios to be allocated to the respective participating parties in accordance with the number of portfolios allocated to them in terms of sub-section (9).

(b) appoint in respect of each such portfolio a member of the National Assembly who is a member of the party to which that portfolio was allocated under paragraph (a), as the Minister responsible for that portfolio,

(c) if it becomes necessary for the purposes of the Constitution or in the interest of good government, vary any determination under paragraph (a), subject to sub-section (9),

(d) terminate any appointment under paragraph (b)—

(i) if the President is requested to do so by the leader of the party of which the Minister in question is a member, or

(u) if it becomes necessary for the purposes of the Constitution or in the interest of good government, or

(e) fill, when necessary, subject to paragraph (b), a vacancy in the office of Minister.

(11) Sub-section (10) must be implemented in the spirit embodied in the concept of a government of national unity, and the President and the other functionaries concerned must in the implementation of that sub-section seek to achieve consensus at all times. Provided that if consensus cannot be achieved on—

(a) the exercise of a power referred to in paragraph (a), (c) or (d)(i) of that sub-section, the President's decision prevails,

(b) the exercise of a power referred to in paragraph (b), (d)(i) or (e) of that sub-section affecting a person who is not a member of the President's party, the decision of the leader of the party of which that person is a member prevails, and

(c) the exercise of a power referred to in paragraph (b) or (e) of that sub-section affecting a person who is a member of the President's party, the President's decision prevails

(12) If any determination of portfolio allocations is varied under sub-section (10)(c), the affected Ministers must vacate their portfolios but are eligible, where applicable, for reappointment to other portfolios allocated to their respective parties in terms of the varied determination.

(13) The President—

(a) in consultation with the Executive Deputy Presidents and the leaders of the participating parties, must—

(i) determine a specific portfolio for a Minister referred to in sub-section (1) (b) should it become necessary pursuant to a decision of the President under that sub-section,

(u) appoint in respect of that portfolio a person who is not a member of the National Assembly, as the Minister responsible for that portfolio,

(iii) fill, if necessary, a vacancy in respect of that portfolio, or

(b) after consultation with the Executive Deputy Presidents and the leaders of the participating parties, must terminate any appointment under paragraph (a) if it becomes necessary for the purposes of the Constitution or in the interest of good government

(14) Meetings of the Cabinet must be presided over by the President, or, if the President so instructs, by an Executive Deputy President. Provided that the Executive Deputy Presidents preside over meetings of the Cabinet in turn unless the exigencies of government and the spirit embodied in the concept of a government of national unity otherwise demand

(15) The Cabinet must function in a manner which gives consideration to the consensus-seeking spirit embodied in the concept of a government of national unity as well as the need for effective government".

5 Section 93 of the new Constitution is deemed to read as follows

"Appointment of Deputy Ministers

93 (1) The President may, after consultation with the Executive Deputy Presidents and the leaders of the parties participating in the Cabinet, establish deputy ministerial posts

(2) A party is entitled to be allocated one or more of the deputy ministerial posts in the same proportion and according to the same formula that portfolios in the Cabinet are allocated

(3) The provisions of section 91 (10) to (12) apply, with the necessary changes, in respect of Deputy Ministers, and in such application a reference in that section to a Minister or a portfolio must be read as a reference to a Deputy Minister or a deputy ministerial post, respectively

(4) If a person is appointed as the Deputy Minister of any portfolio entrusted to a Minister—

(a) that Deputy Minister must exercise and perform on behalf of the relevant Minister any of the powers and functions assigned to that Minister in terms of any legislation or otherwise which may, subject to the directions of the President, be assigned to that Deputy Minister by that Minister, and

(b) any reference in any legislation to that Minister must be construed as including a reference to the Deputy Minister acting in terms of an assignment under paragraph (a) by the Minister for whom that Deputy Minister acts

(5) Whenever a Deputy Minister is absent or for any reason unable to exercise or perform any of the powers or functions of office, the President may appoint any other Deputy Minister or any other person to act in the said Deputy Minister's stead, either generally or in the exercise or performance of any specific power or function "

6 Section 96 of the new Constitution is deemed to contain the following additional sub-sections

(3) Ministers are accountable individually to the President and to the National Assembly for the administration of their portfolios, and all members of the Cabinet are correspondingly accountable collectively for the performance of the functions of the national government and for its policies

(i) Ministers must administer their portfolios in accordance with the policy determined by the Cabinet.

(2) The approval, modification, or repeal of organic laws shall require an absolute majority of the House of Representatives in a final vote on the entire Bill

82. Delegation

(1) The Parliament may delegate to the Government the power to set norms with the status law on specific matters not included in the previous Article

(2) Legislative delegation must be granted by means of a basic law when its objective is the formation of articulated texts, or by an ordinary law when it is a matter of arranging several legal texts into a single one

(3) Legislative delegation must be granted to the Government in an express form for a concrete matter and with the establishment of a period for its exercise. The delegation becomes void when the Government has made use of it after the publication of the corresponding law. Such delegation cannot be understood to be granted implicitly or for an indefinite period. The sub-delegation to different authorities, even within the Government itself, is not permitted

(4) The basic laws shall precisely limit the object and scope of legislative delegation and the principles and criteria which must be followed in its exercise

(5) Authorization for the consolidation of legal texts shall define the normative scope to which the content of the delegation referred, specifying whether it shall be limited to the mere formulation into a unified text or whether it includes regulation, clarification, and harmonization of the legal texts which are to be recast

(6) Without prejudice to the proper competence of the courts, the laws on delegation may establish additional formulas for control in each case

83. Prohibited Laws

Basic laws may in no case do the following

- a) Authorize the modification of the basic laws,
- b) Make provision for the enactment of norms with retroactive character

84. Delegation Conflict

When a proposed law or an amendment is contrary to a valid legislative delegation, the Government may oppose its processing. In such a case, a law proposal may be presented for the total or partial abolishment of the law on delegation

85. Legislative Decrees

The dispositions of the Government containing delegated legislation shall receive the title of Legislative Decrees

86. Decree-Laws

(1) In the case of extraordinary and urgent necessity, the Government may issue provisional legislative decisions which shall take the form of Decree-laws and which may not affect the regulation of the basic institution of the State, the rights, duties, and liberties of the citizens which are regulated in Title I, the systems of Autonomous Communities, or the general electoral Law

(2) The Decree-laws must be immediately submitted for debate and voting by the entire House of Representatives of Deputies convoked for that purpose, if it is not already in session, within a period of thirty days after their promulgation. The House of Representatives must expressly declare within that period its approval or repeal, for which purpose the Regulation shall establish a special and summary procedure

(3) During the period established in the foregoing paragraph, the Parliament may treat them as draft laws by emergency procedure

87. Initiative, Proposal, Public Initiative

(1) Legislative initiative belongs to the Government, the House of Representatives, and the Senate, according to the Constitution and the regulations of the Chambers

(2) The Assemblies of the Autonomous Communities may request the Government to adopt a Bill or send to the Board of the House of Representatives a proposal of law, delegating a maximum of three members of their Assembly to that Chamber to defend it

(3) An organic law shall regulate the forms and requirements for the exercise of the popular initiative for the presentation of proposals of law. In any case no fewer than 500,000 valid signatures will be required. This initiative is not applicable to organic laws, taxation, or international affairs nor to the prerogative of pardon

88. Approval of Bills

Bills shall be approved in the Council of Ministers, which shall submit them to the House of Representatives accompanied by an exposition of the motives and the antecedents which are necessary for action

89. Processing Proposals

(1) The processing of proposals of law shall be regulated by the Regulations of the Chambers without the priority due to Bills impeding the exercise of legislative initiative under the terms regulated by Article 87

(2) Proposals of law, which in accordance with Article 87 are taken under consideration by the Senate, shall be sent to the House of Representatives for processing as such

90. Veto and Amendment of Bills

(1) Once an ordinary or organic Bill has been approved by the Deputies of the House of Representatives, its President shall immediately notify the President of the Senate, who shall submit it for its deliberation

(2) The Senate, within a period of two months after the day of the receipt of the text, may, through a message explaining the reasons, veto it or introduce amendments to it. The veto must be approved by an absolute majority. The Bill cannot be submitted to the King for approval unless the House of Representatives ratifies the initial text, in the case of a veto by an absolute majority, or by a simple majority once two months have passed since the presentation of the text, or express itself on the amendments, stating whether or not it accepts them by a simple majority

(3) The period of two months which the Senate has to veto or amend the Bill shall be reduced to twenty calendar days for those Bills declared urgent by the Government or by the House of Representatives

(2) The Government or either of the Chambers may request the Constitutional Court to declare whether or not such a contradiction exists

96. Amendment, Abolishment

(1) Validly concluded international treaties once officially published in Spain shall constitute part of the internal legal order. Their provisions may only be abolished, modified, or suspended in the manner provided for in the treaties themselves or in accordance with general norms of international law.

(2) To denounce international treaties and agreements, the same procedure established for their approval in Article 94 shall be used

TITLE IV*GOVERNMENT AND ADMINISTRATION*97. Directing Policy

The Government directs domestic and foreign policy, civil and military Administration, and the defense of the State. It exercises the executive function and regulatory power in accordance with the Constitution and the laws.

98. Composition, President, Incompatibilities

(1) The Government is composed of the President, Vice Presidents, and in some cases the Ministers and other members the law may establish.

(2) The President directs the actions of the Government and coordinates the functions of the other members of it without prejudice to their competence and direct responsibility in their activity.

(3) The members of the Government may not exercise representative functions other than those of the parliamentary mandate itself, nor any other public function which does not derive from their office, nor any professional or mercantile activity whatsoever.

(4) A law shall regulate the Statute and the incompatibilities of the members of the Government.

99. Election

(1) After each renewal of the House of Representatives and in the other cases provided for by the Constitution, the King shall, after consultation with the representatives designated by the political groups represented in parliament, and through the President of the House of Representatives propose a candidate for the Presidency of the Government.

(2) The proposed candidate, in conformity with the provisions of the foregoing paragraph, shall submit to the House of Representatives the political program of the Government he intends to form and shall seek the confidence of the Chamber.

(3) If the House of Representatives, by an absolute majority of its members, grants its confidence to said candidate, the King will appoint him President. If said majority is not obtained, the same proposal shall be submitted to a new vote 98 hours after the former, and confidence shall be understood to have been granted if a simple majority is obtained.

(4) If after the aforementioned votes are cast, confidence is not granted for investiture, successive proposals will be made in the manner foreseen in the foregoing paragraphs.

(5) If within two months from the first voting for investiture no candidate has obtained the confidence of the House of Representatives, the King shall dissolve both Chambers and call for new elections with the concurrence of the President of the House of Representatives.

100 The other members of the Government shall be appointed and dismissed by the King at the proposal of its President

101. Resignation

(1) The Government shall resign after the holding of general elections in the cases of the loss of confidence by Parliament as stipulated in the Constitution, or because of the resignation or death of its President

(2) But the outgoing Government shall continue in its functions until the new Government takes office

102. Criminal Responsibility

(1) The Criminal Division of the Supreme Court shall have jurisdiction in the cases of criminal responsibility of the President and the other members of the Government

(2) If the charge were treason or any crime against the security of the State in the exercise of their functions, it could only be brought against them through the initiative of one-fourth of the members of the House of Representatives and with the approval of the absolute majority thereof

(3) The royal prerogative of pardon shall not be applicable to any of the provisions of the present Article

103. Public Administration

(1) The Public Administration serves the general interest with objectivity and it acts in accordance with the principles of efficacy, hierarchy, decentralization, deconcentration, and coordination while fully complying with the law and legality

(2) The organs of the Administration of the State are created, governed, and coordinated in accordance with the law

(3) The law shall regulate the statute of the public officials, the access to civil service in accordance with the principles of merit and ability, the system under which they exercise their right to form unions, the system of incompatibilities, and the safeguards for political impartiality in the exercise of their functions

104. Security Forces and Corps

(1) The Security Forces and Corps which are instruments of the Government shall have the mission of protecting the free exercise of rights and liberties and that of guaranteeing the security of the citizens

(2) An organic law shall determine the functions, basic principles of action, and the statutes of the Security Forces and Corps

105. Guarantees

The law shall regulate

a) The hearing of citizens, directly or through the organizations and associations recognized by the law, in the process of elaborating the administrative decisions which affect them,

c) the procedure for administrative actions and for guaranteeing when appropriate the hearing of interested persons

106. Control, Indemnification

(1) The courts control the regulatory power and the legality of administrative acts as well as its compliance with the objectives which justify it.

(2) Private individuals, under the terms established by the law, shall have the right to be indemnified for any harm they suffer in any of their property and rights, except in the cases of force majeure, whenever such harm is the result of the functioning of the public services

107. Council of State

The Council of State is the supreme consultative body of the Government. An organic law shall regulate its composition and competence

TITLE V

GOVERNMENT AND PARLIAMENT

108. Responsibility

The Government in its political conduct is collectively accountable before the House of Representatives

109. Information, Assistance

The Chambers and their Commissions may request, through their Presidents, the information and assistance they need from the Government and its Departments and from any authority of the State and the Autonomous Communities

110. Presence

(1) The Chambers and their Commissions may require the presence of the members of the Government

(2) The members of the Government are entitled to have access to the sessions of the Chambers and to their Commissions and are entitled to be heard in them, and they may request that officials of their departments present information to them

111. Interpellation

(1) The Government and each of its members are subject to interpellations or questions put to them in the Chambers. The rules shall establish a weekly minimum time for this type of debate

(2) Any interpellation may lead to a motion in which the Chamber can express its position

112. Vote of Confidence

The President of the Government, after deliberation by the Council of Ministers, may pose before the House of Representatives the question of confidence on his program or on a declaration of general policy. Confidence shall be taken as granted when the absolute majority of the Deputies vote for it.

113. Motion of Censure, Vote of No-confidence

(1) The House of Representatives may require political responsibility from the Government by means of the adoption by an absolute majority of a motion of censure.

(2) The motion of censure must be proposed by at least one-tenth of the Deputies and must include a candidate to the office of the Presidency of the Government.

(3) The motion of censure cannot be voted on until five days after its presentation. During the first two days of this period, alternative motions may be presented.

(4) If the motion of censure is not approved by the House of Representatives, its signers cannot present another during the same period of sessions.

114. Resignation, New Appointment

(1) If the House of Representatives denies its confidence to the Government, it must present its resignation to the King, the President of the Government then to be designated pursuant to the provisions of Article 99.

(2) If the House of Representatives adopts a motion of censure, the Government shall present its resignation to the King and the candidate included in it shall be understood to have the confidence of the Chamber for the purposes specified in Article 92. The King shall appoint him President of the Government.

115. Dissolution of Parliament

(1) The President of the Government, after deliberation of the Council of Ministers, and on his exclusive responsibility, may propose the dissolution of the House of Representatives, the Senate, and the Parliament, which shall be decreed by the King. The dissolution decree shall establish the date of the elections.

(2) The proposal for dissolution may not be presented when a motion of censure is in process.

(3) No new dissolution may take place before a year has passed since the previous one, except as provided for in Article 99 (5).

116. Alarm, Emergency, Siege

(1) An organic law shall regulate the states of alarm, emergency, and siege and the corresponding competencies and limitations.

(2) The state of alarm shall be declared by the Government, by means of a decree agreed upon by the Council of Ministers, for a maximum period of fifteen days informing the House of Representatives, which has convened immediately for that purpose and without whose authorization the period cannot be extended. The decree shall determine the territorial area to which the effects of the declaration shall be excluded.

(3) The state of emergency shall be declared by the Government by means of a decree agreed upon in the Council of Ministers after authorization by the House of Representatives. The authorization and proclamation of a state of emergency must expressly determine its purposes, the territorial area to which it is extended and its duration, which cannot exceed thirty days but which may be extended for a like period with the same requirements.

(4) The state of siege shall be declared by the absolute majority of the House of Representatives at the exclusive proposal by the Government. The House of Representatives shall determine its territorial scope, duration, and conditions.

(5) The House of Representatives may not be dissolved while any of the states contained in the present article are in effect, the Chambers being automatically convoked if they are not in a period of sessions. Their functioning, like that of the other constitutional powers of the State, may not be interrupted during the effectiveness of these states. In the event that the House of Representatives has been dissolved or its mandate has expired if one of the situations exists which leads to one of the aforementioned states, the competencies of the House of Representatives shall be assumed by its Permanent Deputation.

(6) The declaration of the states of alarm, emergency, and siege shall not modify the principle of the responsibility of the Government or its agents as recognized in the Constitution and in the laws.

TITLE VI JUDICIAL POWER

117. Independence, Courts, Tribunals

(1) Justice emanates from the people and is administered in the name of the King by Judges and Magistrates who are members of the judicial power and are independent, irremovable, responsible, and subject only to the rule of the law.

(2) The Judges and Magistrates cannot be separated, suspended, transferred, or retired except for causes and with the guarantees provided for in the law.

(3) The exercise of jurisdictional power in any type of processes passing judgments and having judgments executed belongs exclusively to the courts and tribunals as determined by the laws according to the norms on the competence and procedure which they establish.

(4) The courts and tribunals shall not exercise any functions other than those set forth in the previous paragraph and those expressly attributed to them by law to guarantee any right.

(5) The principle of jurisdictional unity is the basis of the organization and operation of the Tribunals. 31) statistics for State purposes, and

32) authorization for the convocation of popular consultations via referendum

(2) Without prejudice to the competencies which the Autonomous Communities may assume, the State shall consider the service of culture a duty and essential attribute and shall facilitate cultural communication among the Autonomous Communities in agreement with them

(3) The matters not attributed expressly to the state by this Constitution belong to the Autonomous Communities by virtue of their respective statutes. Authority over matters not assumed by the Statutes of Autonomy shall belong to the state, whose norms shall prevail in case of conflict over those of the Autonomous Communities in everything which is not attributed to their exclusive competence. The law of the State shall in every case be supplementary to the law of the Autonomous Communities

150 Granting and Retaining Authority

(1) The Parliament, in matters within the competence of the State, may grant to all or one of the Autonomous Communities the authority to dictate for itself legislative norms within the framework of the principles, bases, and directives established by a State law. Without prejudice to the competence of the courts, within the framework of every law shall be established the method of control by the Parliament over these legislative norms of the Autonomous Communities

(2) The State may transfer or delegate to the Autonomous Communities by an organic law those faculties on matters within the competence of the State, which because of their own nature are susceptible to transference or delegation. The law shall in each case contain the pertinent transfer of financial means as well as the forms of control the State reserves for itself

(3) The State may dictate laws which establish the principles necessary to harmonize the normative provisions of the Autonomous Communities even in the case of matters attributed to their competence when the general interest so demands. It is up to the Parliament, by the absolute majority in each Chamber, to evaluate this necessity

151. Immediate Autonomy

(1) It shall not be necessary to wait for the five year period referred to in Article 148 (2) to elapse when the initiative for the autonomous process is agreed upon within the time limit specified in Article 143 (2), not only by the corresponding Provincial Deputations or inter-island bodies, but also by three-quarters of the Municipalities of each province concerned, representing at least the majority of the electorate of each one, and said initiative is ratified by means of a referendum by the affirmative vote of the absolute majority of the electors in each province, under the terms to be established by an organic law

(2) In the case provided for in the foregoing paragraph, the procedure for drafting the statute shall be as follows

1) The Government shall summon all the Deputies and Senators elected in the electoral districts within the territorial area seeking self-government in order to constitute themselves into an Assembly for the sole purpose of drawing up the corresponding draft statute for self-government, to be adopted by the absolute majority of its members

2) Once the draft statute has been passed by the assembly, it shall be remitted to the Constitutional Commission of the House of Representatives which shall examine it within the time of two months with the concurrence and assistance of a delegation from the Assembly which has proposed it, in order to decide in common agreement upon its definitive formulation

3) If such an agreement is reached, the resulting text shall be submitted in a referendum of the electoral corps of the provinces within the territorial area to be covered by the proposed statute

4) If the draft statute is approved in each province by the majority of validly cast votes, it shall be referred to the Parliament Both Chambers, in plenary assembly, shall decide upon the text by means of a vote of ratification. Once the statute has been approved, the King shall sanction it and shall promulgate it as law

5) If the agreement referred to in sub-paragraph 2) is not reached, the draft statute shall be treated like a draft law in the Parliament. The text approved by them shall be submitted in a referendum of the electoral corps of the provinces within the territorial area to be covered by the draft statute. In the event that it is passed by the majority of the validly cast votes in each province, it shall be promulgated under the terms outlined in the foregoing sub-paragraph

(3) In the cases described in sub-paragraphs 4) and 5) of the foregoing paragraph, failure to pass the draft statute by one or several of the provinces shall not impede the constitution of the remaining provinces into an Autonomous Community in the form as shall be established by the organic law envisaged in paragraph (1)

152. Governing Council

(1) In the statutes passed by means of the procedure referred to in the foregoing Article, the institutional autonomous organization shall be based on a legislative assembly elected by universal suffrage in accordance with a system of proportional representation which assures, moreover, the representation of the various areas of the territory, a Governing Council with executive and administrative functions, and a president elected by the Assembly from among its members and appointed by the King to whom shall be responsible for directing the Governing Council, which constitutes the supreme representation of the respective Community as well as the State's ordinary representation in the latter. The President and the members of the Governing Council shall be politically responsible before the Assembly. A High Court of Justice, without prejudice to the jurisdiction exercised by the Supreme Court, shall be at the head of the Judiciary within the territorial area of the Autonomous Community. The statutes of the Autonomous Communities shall establish the circumstances and manner in which they will participate in the organization of the judicial demarcations of the territory. All of this must be in conformity with the provisions of the organic law on judicial power and compatible with its unity and independence. Without prejudice to the provisions of Article 123, successive appeals shall, where applicable, be lodged with judicial bodies located in the same territory of the Autonomous Community as that in which the competent court of the first instance is located.

(2) Once the respective statutes have been sanctioned and promulgated, they may only be amended by means of the procedures established therein and through a referendum of the electors registered in the corresponding electoral rolls.

(3) By means of grouping the bordering municipalities together, the Statutes may establish their own territorial electoral districts, which will enjoy full legal personality.

153. Control

Control over the activity of the organs of the Autonomous Communities shall be exercised by

a) the Constitutional Court, in matters relative to the constitutionality of its normative provisions having the force of law,

b) the Government, after the handing down by the Council of State of its opinion, regarding the exercise of the delegated functions referred to in Article 150 (2),

c) the jurisdiction in administrative litigation, with regard to autonomous administration and its regulatory norms,

d) the Court of Accounts, with regard to economic and budgetary matters.

154. Government Delegate

A delegate appointed by the Government shall direct the administration of the State in the territorial area of each Autonomous Community and shall coordinate it, when necessary, with the Community's own administration.

155. Government Force

(1) If an Autonomous Community does not fulfill the obligations imposed upon it by the Constitution or other laws, or should act in a manner seriously prejudicing the general interest of Spain, the Government, after lodging a complaint with the President of the Autonomous Community and failing to receive satisfaction therefor, may, following approval granted by an absolute majority of the Senate, adopt the means necessary in order to oblige the latter forcibly to meet said obligations, or in order to protect the above-mentioned general interest

(2) With a view to implementing the measures provided for in the foregoing paragraph, the Government may give instructions to all the authorities of the Autonomous Communities

156. Financial Autonomy

(1) The Autonomous Communities shall enjoy financial autonomy for the development and exercise of their competencies, in conformity with the principles of coordination with the State Treasury and solidarity among all Spaniards

(2) The Autonomous Communities may act as delegates or collaborators of the State for the collection, management, and settlement of the latter's tax resources, in conformity with the law and the statutes

157. Tax Autonomy

(1) The resources of the Autonomous Communities shall consist of

a) taxes wholly or partially assigned to them by statute, charges on State taxes, and other shares in State taxes

b) their own taxes, rates, and special levies,

c) transfers from an inter-territorial clearing fund and other allocations to be charged to the General State Budgets,

d) revenues accruing from their property and private law income,

e) the yield from credit operations

(2) The Autonomous Communities may under no circumstances adopt measures to raise taxes on property located outside their territory or likely to hinder the free movement of goods or services

(3) By means of an organic law, the exercise of the financial competencies enumerated in paragraph (1) may be regulated, the norms for settling the conflicts which may arise, and the possible forms of financial collaboration between the Autonomous Communities and the State

158. State Allocation, Clearing Fund

(1) In the General State Budgets, an allocation may be made to the Autonomous Communities in proportion to the volume of State services and State activities for which they have assumed responsibility and to their guarantee to provide a minimum level of basic public services throughout Spanish territory

(2) With the object of correcting inter-territorial economic imbalances and implementing the principle of solidarity a clearing fund shall be established for investment expenditure whose resources shall be distributed by the Parliament among the Autonomous Communities and the provinces as the case may be

159. Composition

(1) The Constitutional Court is composed of twelve members appointed by the King. Of these, four shall be nominated by the House of Representatives by a majority of three-fifths of its members, four shall be nominated by the Senate with the same majority; two shall be nominated by the Government, and two by the General Council of the Judiciary.

(2) The members of the Constitutional Court shall be appointed from among Magistrates and Prosecutors university professors, public officials, and lawyers, all of whom must be jurists of acknowledged competence with a least fifteen years of professional experience.

(3) The members of the Constitutional Court shall be appointed for a period of nine years and shall be renewed by two-thirds every three years.

(4) The office of member of the Constitutional Court is incompatible with any representative function with a management role in a political party or trade union, or any employment in their service, with a career as Judge or Prosecutor, and with any professional or commercial activity whatsoever. In other cases, the incompatibilities relative to the judicial power shall also be applicable to the members of the Constitutional Court.

(5) The members of the Constitutional Court shall be independent and irremovable during their term of office.

160. President

The President of the Constitutional Court shall be appointed by the King from among its members on the recommendation of the Plenum of the Court itself, for a period of three years

161. Competencies

(1) The Constitutional Court has jurisdiction over the whole of Spanish territory and is competent to hear:

a) appeals on the grounds of unconstitutionality against laws and regulations having the force of law; a declaration of unconstitutionality of a legal rule with the status of law, interpreted by jurisprudence, shall also affect the latter, although an overturned sentence or sentences shall not lose the validity of a judgment;

b) appeals against violation of the rights and liberties referred to in Article 53 (2), in the cases and forms to be established by law;

c) conflicts of competence between the State and the Autonomous Communities or between the Autonomous Communities themselves;

d) other matters assigned to it by the Constitution or by organic laws

(2) The Government may contest before the Constitutional Court the provisions and resolutions adopted by the organs of the Autonomous

Communities The challenge shall produce the suspension of the contested provisions or resolution, but the Court must either ratify or lift the suspension, as the case may be, within a period of not more than five months

162 Standing

(1) The following are eligible to

a) lodge an appeal of unconstitutionality the President of the Government, the Defender of the People, fifty Deputies, fifty Senators, the executive corporate bodies of the Self-Governing Communities and when applicable, their Assemblies

b) lodge an appeal any natural or legal person invoking a legitimate interest as well as the Defender of the People and the Office of the Public Prosecutor

(2) In all other cases, the organic law shall determine which persons and organs are eligible

163. Constitutionality Review

If a judicial organ considers, in some action, that a regulation with the status of law which is applicable thereto and upon the validity of which the judgment depends, may be contrary to the Constitution it may bring the matter before the Constitutional Court in the cases, manner and with the consequences which the law establishes, which in no case shall be suspensive

164. Effect of judgments

(1) The verdicts of the Constitutional Court shall be published in the Official State Gazette with the dissenting votes, if any. They have the validity of a judgment as from the day following their publication and no appeal may be brought against them. Those which declare the unconstitutionality of a law or of a norm with the force of law, and all those which are not limited to the subjective evaluation of a right, shall be fully binding on everybody

(2) Unless the verdict rules otherwise, that part of the law not affected by unconstitutionality shall remain in force

165 Organizational Law

An organic law shall regulate the functioning of the Constitutional Court, the statutes of its members, the procedure to be followed before it and the conditions governing actions brought before it

TITLE X

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT

166 Initiative

The right to propose a Constitutional amendment shall be exercised under the terms contained in Article 87 (1) and (2)

167 Procedure

(1) Bills on Constitutional amendment must be approved by a majority of three-fifths of the members of each Chamber. If there is no agreement between the Chambers, an effort to reach it shall be made by setting up a Joint Commission of Deputies and Senators which shall submit a text to be voted on by the House of Representatives and the Senate.

(2) If adoption is not obtained by means of the procedure outlined in the foregoing paragraph, and provided that the text has obtained a favourable vote by an absolute majority of the Senate, the House of Representatives may approve the amendment by a two-thirds vote.

(3) Once the amendment has been passed by the Parliament, it shall be submitted to a referendum for its ratification, if so requested by one-tenth of the members of either Chamber within fifteen days after its passage.

168. Revision

(1) When a total revision of the Constitution is proposed, or a partial revision thereof, affecting the Preliminary Title, Chapter II, Section 1 of Title I, or Title II, the principle shall be approved by a two-thirds majority of the members of each Chamber, and the Parliament shall immediately be dissolved.

(2) The Chambers elected must ratify the decision and proceed to examine the new Constitutional text, which must be approved by a two-thirds majority of the members of both Chambers.

(3) Once the amendment has been passed by the Parliament, it shall be submitted to ratification by referendum.

169. Restriction

A Constitutional amendment may not be initiated in time of war or when any of the states outlined in Article 116 are in operation.

TITLE XI

ADDITIONAL PROVISIONS

1. (1) The Constitution protects and respects the historic rights of the territories with "fueros".

(2) The general updating of the "fuero" system shall be carried out, when appropriate, within the framework of the Constitution and of the Statutes of Autonomy.

2. The declaration regarding coming of age contained in Article 12 shall not be prejudicial to the cases to which the "fuero" rights are applicable within the sphere of Private Law.

3. Any modification of the financial and tax system of the Canarian Archipelago shall require a previous report from the Autonomous Community or, as the case may be, from the provisional autonomous organ.

4. In those Autonomous Communities where more than one Territorial Court has its offices, the Statutes of Autonomy may maintain the existing Courts, distributing jurisdiction among them, provided this is done always in accordance with the provisions of the organic law on Judicial Power and in conformity with its unity and independence

TITLE XII

TRANSITIONAL PROVISIONS

1. In the territories with a provisional regime of Autonomy, their higher collegiate organs may, by means of an agreement adopted by an absolute majority of their members, substitute for the initiative which, in Article 143 (2) is attributed to the Provincial Councils or corresponding inter-island organs

2. The territories which in the past have, by plebiscite, approved draft Statutes of Autonomy, and which, at the time of the promulgation of this Constitution, have provisional regimes of autonomy, may proceed immediately in the manner provided in Article 148 (2), when agreement thereon is reached by an absolute majority of their pre-autonomous higher collegiate organs, and the Government is duly informed. The draft statutes shall be drawn up in accordance with the provisions of Article 151 (2) when so requested by the pre-autonomous collegiate organ

3. The initiative of the process towards autonomy conferred on the local corporations or their members, which is contained in Article 43 (2), shall be postponed for all purposes until the first local elections have taken place, once the Constitution has come into effect

4. In the case of Navarra, and for the purposes of its incorporation into the General Basque Council or the Basque Autonomous Regime replacing it, instead of the provisions established by Article 143, the initiative shall lie with the competent "Foral" organ, which shall adopt its decision by a majority of the members comprising it. In order for this initiative to be valid, the decision of the competent "Foral" organ must also be ratified by a referendum expressly held for this purpose and passed by a majority of the valid votes cast. If the initiative does not succeed, it may only be repeated during a different term of office of the competent "Foral" organ and, in any case, only when the minimum period laid down in Article 143 has elapsed

5. The cities of Ceuta and Melilla may constitute themselves as Autonomous Communities if their respective Municipal Councils should so decide by means of an absolute majority of their members and if the Parliament thus authorizes, by means of an organic law, under the terms provided in Article 144.

6. When various draft statutes are referred to the Constitutional Commission of the House of Representatives, decisions regarding them shall be taken according to the order in which they are received. The two months' period referred to in Article 151 shall be counted from the moment that the Commission terminates its study of the draft or drafts that it has successively examined

7. The provisional autonomous organisms shall be considered dissolved in the following cases:

a) once the organs established in the Statutes of Autonomy approved in conformity with the Constitution have been established,

b) in the event that the initiative of the autonomous process should not be successful on account of non-compliance with the requirements provided in Article 143,

c) if the organism has not exercised the right recognized in the first transitory provision within a period of three years

8. (1) Once the present Constitution has become effective, the Chambers which adopted it shall assume the functions and powers indicated therein for the House of Representatives and the Senate respectively, while under no circumstances shall their term of office continue beyond 15 June 1981

(2) With regard to the provisions established in Article 99, the promulgation of the Constitution shall be considered as creating the Constitutional basis for its subsequent application. To this end, there shall be a thirty-day period, as from the date of the promulgation, for implementing the provisions laid down in said Article

During this period, the current President of the Government, who shall assume the functions and competencies established by the Constitution for this office, may opt to utilize the authority conferred on him by Article 115 or, by means of resignation, leave the way open for application of the provisions established in Article 99. In the latter case, the situation relative to the President shall be that provided in Article 101 (2)

(3) In the case of dissolution, in accordance with the provisions of Article 115, and if the provisions contained in Articles 68 and 69 have not been enacted into law, the rules previously in force shall be applicable in the elections, with the sole exception of those provisions which refer to ineligibilities and incompatibilities, to which the provisions of Article 70 (1) b) shall be directly applicable, as well as its provisions concerning the voting age and those contained in Article 69 (3)

9. Three years after the election for the first time of the members of the Constitutional Court, lots shall be drawn for the designation of a group of four members of the same background as those who must retire and be replaced. For this purpose, the two members designated by the General Council of the Judicial Power shall be considered as coming from the same background. In the same manner, after three years have elapsed, the same procedure shall be carried out with regard to the two groups not affected by the previous drawing of lots. Thereafter, the provisions established in Article 159 (3) shall be applied

TITLE XIII

REPEAL PROVISION

1. (1) Law 1/1977, of 4 Jan, for political reform, is hereby repealed, as well as the following laws, in so far as they were not already repealed by the abovementioned law

— the Law of the Fundamental Principles of the Movement of 17 May 1958,

— the "Fuero" of the Spanish People of 17 July 1945,

— the "Fuero" of Labor of 9 March 1938,

— the Constitutive Law of the Parliament of 17 July 1942,

— the Law of Succession for the Headship of State of 26 July 1947,

— all of which as amended by the Organic Law of State of 10 Jan 1967, and under the same terms, last mentioned,

— the law of the National Referendum of 22 Oct 1948

(2) To the extent that it may still retain some validity, the Royal Decree of 25 Oct 1839 shall be definitively repealed in so far as it affects the provinces of Alava, Guipuzcoa, and Vizcaya

Under the same terms, the Law of 21 July 1876 shall be considered definitively repealed

(3) Likewise, any provisions contrary to those contained in the Constitution shall be repealed

TITLE XIV

FINAL PROVISION

1. This Constitution shall enter into force on the day of the publication of the official text in the Official State Gazette. It shall also be published in the other languages of Spain

CONSTITUTION OF SRI LANKA

Justice and Constitutional Affairs Minister Prof G L Peiris released 18 Chapters of the Draft Constitution of the Republic of Sri Lanka on March 27, 1997. Chapters released were Ch 1 through XIV and XVI through XIX. The Chapter XV that deals with "Devolution of Powers to Regions" was not included.

PREAMBLE

Whereas it is the will of the people of Sri Lanka to establish and strengthen an order—

Wherein the sovereignty of the people is assured and the exercise of authority by their freely chosen representatives is in the nature of a sacred trust,

Wherein the principles of democracy, freedom, humanity, tolerance and equal opportunity shall be fully observed,

Wherein the dignity of the individual shall be upheld through the guaranteeing of human rights and fundamental freedoms and the rule of law,

Wherein the territories constituting the nation shall form one indissoluble union, the units whereof will be characterised by such boundaries and limitations on their powers and authority as may be prescribed,

Wherein the territorial integrity, independence and unity of the nation including its sovereign rights over land, sea and air shall be safeguarded,

Wherein peace and fraternity among all communities shall be secured and provision made enabling all communities to enjoy and nurture their distinct culture, practice and profess their own religion and promote their own language, thus preserving the rich cultural and ethnic diversity characteristic of a plural society,

Now, therefore, we the people of Sri Lanka having solemnly resolved to constitute Sri Lanka into a free, sovereign, united and independent Republic,

Cognisant of the sacrifices made by the people in the cause of sustaining the unity and sovereignty of the republic,

Mindful of our obligations to succeeding generations of Sri Lankans and the International Community,

Inspired by the vision of a Sri Lankan nation where all communities co-exist in equality, safety and contentment,

Conscious of the desire to achieve rapid, sustained and equitable development so that the people of Sri Lanka may prosper and attain their rightful place among the community of nations,

Do, on this (DAY) acting through our freely chosen representatives constituting the 10th Parliament of Sri Lanka established by us, hereby adopt, enact and give to ourselves

This CONSTITUTION as the SUPREME LAW of the REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

CHAPTER I

THE PEOPLE, THE STATE AND SOVEREIGNTY

1 Sri Lanka is a Sovereign Republic and shall be known as the Republic of Sri Lanka. The Republic of Sri Lanka shall be an indissoluble Union of Regions.

2. (1) The territory of the Republic shall consist of Regions, the names, boundaries and areas of which are set out in the First Schedule, the Capital Territory and its territorial waters

(2) No Regional Administration or Regional Administrations shall attempt, by direct or indirect means, to promote or otherwise advocate an initiative towards—

(a) The separation or secession of such Region or Regions from the Union of Regions constituting the Republic of Sri Lanka

(b) Alteration of the area of such Region or Regions

(c) Alteration of the boundaries of such Region or Regions

(d) Alteration of the name or names of such Region or Regions,

(e) Formation of a new Region by separation of territory from any Region or by uniting two or more Regions or parts of Regions or by uniting any territory with a part of any region

Provided that nothing in this paragraph shall be read and construed as prohibiting a Regional Administration from making representations to the Central Government regarding the matters referred to in sub paragraph (e) of this paragraph

3 In the Republic of Sri Lanka, sovereignty is in the People and is inalienable. Sovereignty includes the powers of Government fundamental rights and the franchise and shall be exercised and enjoyed in the following manner —

(a) The legislative power of the People shall be exercised by Parliament, Regional Councils and the People at a Referendum as hereinafter provided,

(b) The executive power of the People shall be exercised by the President of the Republic acting on the advice of the Prime Minister and the Cabinet of Ministers, and the Governors acting on the advice of the respective Chief Ministers and Regional Boards of Ministers to the extent hereinafter provided,

(c) The judicial power of the people shall be exercised through courts, tribunals and institutions created and established, or recognised, by the Constitution, or created and established by law, except in regard to matters relating to the privileges, immunities and powers of Parliament and of its members, wherein the judicial power of the people may also be exercised directly by Parliament according to law,

(d) The fundamental rights which are by the Constitution declared and recognised shall be respected, secured and advanced by all the organs of Government, and shall not be abridged, restricted or denied, save in the manner and to the extent hereinafter provided, and

(e) The franchise shall be exercisable at the election of Members of Parliament, and of the members of Regional Councils, and at every Referendum by every citizen who has attained the age of eighteen years, and who, being qualified to be an elector as hereinafter provided, has his name entered in the register of electors

4. The National Flag of the Republic of Sri Lanka shall be the Lion Flag depicted in the Third Schedule

5. The National Anthem of the Republic of Sri Lanka shall be "Sri Lanka Matha", the words and music of which are set out in the Fourth Schedule

6. The National Day of the Republic of Sri Lanka shall be the fourth day of February

CHAPTER II

BUDDHISM

7. (1) The Republic of Sri Lanka shall give to Buddhism the foremost place and accordingly it shall be the duty of the state to protect and foster the Buddha Sasana, while guaranteeing to all religions the rights granted by Articles 15 (1) and 15 (3)

(2) The State shall consult the Supreme Council in all matters pertaining to the protection and fostering of the Buddha Sasana

(3) For the purpose of this Article "Supreme Council" means a Council established by law in consultation with the Maha Sangha

CHAPTER III

FUNDAMENTAL RIGHTS AND FREEDOMS

8 Inherent right to life

Every person has an inherent right to life and no person shall be intentionally or arbitrarily deprived of his life

9. Freedom from torture or cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment

(1) No person shall be subjected to torture or to cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment

(2) No restriction shall be placed on the right declared and recognised by this Article

10 Freedom from arbitrary arrest, detention and punishment and prohibition of retroactive penal legislation

(1) No person shall be imprisoned or otherwise physically restrained except in accordance with procedure prescribed by law

(2) No person shall be arrested except by an authorised officer acting in accordance with procedure prescribed by law under a warrant issued by a judicial officer causing such person to be apprehended and brought before a competent court

Provided that any person authorised so to do by any law may, in the manner, and in the circumstances, prescribed by law, arrest any person without such a warrant

(3) Any person arrested shall at the time of arrest be informed, in a language which he appears to understand, of the reason for his arrest and of his rights under paragraphs (4) and (5) of this Article

Provided that such person, if he so requests, shall be informed in writing of the reasons of his arrest within a reasonable time

(4) Any person arrested shall have the right to communicate with any relative or friend of his choice, and, if he so requests, such person shall be afforded means of communicating with such relative or friend

(5) Any person arrested shall have the right to consult and retain an Attorney-at-law shall be afforded all reasonable facilities by the State

(6) Any person arrested shall not be detained in custody or confined for a longer period than under all the circumstances of the case is reasonable, and shall, in every case be brought before the judge of a competent court within twenty-four hours of the arrest, exclusive of the time necessary for the journey from the place of arrest to such judge, and no person shall be detained in custody beyond such period except upon, and in terms of the order of such judge

(7) (a) Any person detained in custody or confined who is entitled, under the provisions of any law, to be released on bail or on his executing a bond shall be so released

(b) The amount of bail and the amount of every such bond shall be fixed with due regard to the circumstances of the case and shall not be excessive

(8) Any person suspected of committing an offence shall be charged or indicted or released, without unreasonable delay

(9) Any person charged with an offence shall be entitled to be heard in person or by any Attorney-at-Law of his own choosing and shall be so informed by the Judge.

(10) Any person charged with an offence shall be entitled to be tried---

- (a) without undue delay,
- (b) at a fair trial,
- (c) by a competent court,
- (d) at a public hearing

Provided that a Judge may, in his discretion, whenever he considers it necessary, in proceedings relating to sexual matters, or where the interests of juveniles so require, or in the interests of national security or public order necessary in a democratic society or in the interests of order and security within the precincts of such court, exclude therefrom such persons as are not directly interested in the proceedings

(11) Every person shall be presumed innocent until he is proved guilty

Provided that burden of proving particular facts may, by law, be placed on the accused

(12) No person shall be compelled to testify against himself or to confess guilt

(13) No person shall be held guilty of an offence on account of any act or omission which did not, at the time of such act or omission, constitute such an offence, and no penalty shall be imposed for any offence more severe than the penalty in force at the time when such offence was committed

Provided that nothing in this Article shall prejudice the trial and punishment of any person for any act or omission which at the time when it was committed, was criminal according to the general principles of law recognised by the community of nations

(14) Any person who has once been tried by a competent court for an offence and convicted or acquitted of such offence shall not be liable to be tried for the same offence

(15) No person shall be punished with death or imprisonment except by order of a competent court in accordance with law. The arrest, holding in custody, detention or other deprivation of personal liberty of a person, pending investigation or trial shall, if not unreasonable having regard to the circumstances, not constitute punishment

Provided that the arrest, holding in custody, detention or other deprivation of personal liberty of a person, by reason of a removal order or a deportation order made under the provisions of the Immigrants and Emigrants Act or the Indo-Ceylon Agreement Implementation Act No 14 of

1967 or other such law as may be enacted in substitution therefor, shall not be a contravention of this Article

(16) All persons deprived of their liberty shall be treated with humanity and respect for the inherent dignity of the human person

(17) No restriction shall be placed on the rights declared and recognised by this Article other than such restrictions prescribed by law as are necessary in a democratic society in the interests of national security, public order or for the purpose of securing due recognition and respect for the rights and freedoms of others

11. Right to equality

(1) All persons are equal before the law and are entitled to the equal protection of the law

(2) No citizen shall be discriminated against on the grounds of race, religion, language, caste, sex, political or other opinion, place of birth or any one of such grounds

Provided that it shall be lawful to require a person to acquire within a reasonable time sufficient knowledge of any national language as a qualification for employment or office in the Public Service, Judicial Service, Regional Public Service or Local Government service or in the service of any public corporation, where such knowledge is reasonably necessary for the discharge of such employment or office

Provided further that it shall be lawful to require a person to have a sufficient knowledge of any language as a qualification for any such employment or office where no function of that employment or office can be discharged otherwise than with a knowledge of that language

(3) No person shall on the grounds of race, religion, language, caste, sex, political or other opinion, place of birth or any one of such grounds, be subject to any disability, liability, restriction or condition with regard to access to shops, public restaurants, hotels, places of public entertainment and places of public worship of his own religion

(4) Nothing in this Article shall prevent special measures being taken by law, subordinate legislation or executive action where necessary for the sole purpose of the protection or advancement of disadvantaged or underprivileged individuals or groups including those that are disadvantaged or underprivileged because of race, sex, age or mental or physical disability

(5) No restriction shall be placed on the exercise of the rights declared and recognised by this article other than such restrictions prescribed by law as are necessary in a democratic society in the interests of national security, public order or the protection of public health or for the purpose of securing due recognition and respect for the rights and freedoms of others

12. Freedom of movement

(1) Every person lawfully resident within Sri Lanka is entitled to the freedom of movement within Sri Lanka and of choosing his residence within Sri Lanka

(2) Every person shall be free to leave Sri Lanka

(3) No restrictions shall be placed on the exercise of the rights declared and recognised by this Article other than such restrictions prescribed by law as are necessary in a democratic society in the interests of national security or public order or national economy or the protection of public health or morality or for securing due recognition and respect for the rights and freedoms of others

13. Freedom to return to Sri Lanka

Every citizen shall be entitled to return to Sri Lanka

14. Right to private and family life

(d) on his removal by the President on account of ill health or physical or mental infirmity, or

(c) on his removal by the President upon an address of Parliament

(6) Whenever the Secretary-General is unable to discharge the functions of his office, the President may appoint a person to act in the place of the Secretary-General

79. Vacation of seats

The seat of a member shall become vacant—

(a) upon his death,

(b) if, by a writing under his hand addressed to the Secretary-General of Parliament, he resigns his seat,

(c) upon his assuming the office of President consequent to his election to such office, by Parliament,

(d) if he becomes subject to any disqualification specified in Article 101 and 102,

(e) if he becomes a member of the Public Service or a Regional Public Service or an employee of a public corporation or, being a member of the Public Service or a Regional Public Service or an employee of a public corporation, does not cease to be member of such service or an employee of such corporation, before he sits in Parliament,

(f) if, without the leave of Parliament first obtained, he absents himself from the sittings of Parliament during a continuous period of three months,

(g) if his election as a member is declared void under the law in force for the time being,

(h) upon the dissolution of Parliament, or

(i) upon a resolution for his expulsion being passed in terms of Article 93

80. Privileges and Powers of Parliament and its members

The privileges, immunities and powers of Parliament and of its members may be determined and regulated by Parliament by law, and until so determined and regulated, the provisions of the Parliament (Powers and Privileges) Act, shall, mutatis mutandis, apply

81. Remuneration and allowances of Members

Ministers, Deputy Ministers and Members, including the Speaker, the Deputy Speaker and the Deputy Chairman of Committees, shall be paid such remuneration or allowance as may be provided by Parliament, by law or by resolution, and the receipt thereof shall not disqualify the recipient from sitting or voting in Parliament

82. Power to act notwithstanding vacancies

Parliament shall have power to act notwithstanding any vacancy in its membership, and its proceedings shall be valid notwithstanding that it is discovered subsequently that a person who was not entitled so to do sat or voted or otherwise took part in the proceedings

CHAPTER X

THE CENTRAL LEGISLATURE—PARLIAMENT— PROCEDURE AND POWERS

83 Sessions of Parliament

(1) The President may, from time to time, by Proclamation summon, prorogue and dissolve Parliament

(2) Parliament shall be summoned to meet once at least in every year

(3) A Proclamation proroguing Parliament shall fix a date for the next session, not being more than two months after the date of the Proclamation

Provided that, at any time while Parliament stands prorogues the President may by Proclamation—

(i) summon Parliament for an earlier date, not being less than three days from the date of such Proclamation, or

(ii) subject to the provisions of this Article, dissolve Parliament

(4) All matters which, having been duly brought before Parliament, have not been disposed of at the time of the prorogation of Parliament may be proceeded with during the next session

(5) (a) A Proclamation dissolving Parliament shall fix a date or dates for the election of members of Parliament and shall summon the new Parliament to meet on a date not later than three months after the date of such Proclamation

(b) Upon the dissolution of Parliament by virtue of the provisions of paragraph (2) of Article 75 the President shall forthwith by Proclamation fix a date or dates for the election of members of Parliament and shall summon the new Parliament to meet on a date not later than three months after the date of such Proclamation

(c) The date fixed for the first meeting of Parliament by a Proclamation under sub-paragraph (a) or sub-paragraph (b) may be varied by a subsequent proclamation provided that the date so fixed by the subsequent Proclamation shall be a date not later than three months after the date of the original Proclamation

(6) If at any time after the dissolution of Parliament, the President is satisfied that an emergency has arisen of such a nature that an earlier meeting of Parliament is necessary, he may by Proclamation summon the Parliament which has been dissolved to meet on a date not less than three days from the date of such Proclamation and such Parliament shall stand dissolved upon the termination of the emergency or the conclusion of the General Election whichever is earlier

84. Adjournment

Parliament may adjourn from time to time as it may determine in resolution or Standing Order, until it is prorogued or dissolved

85. Voting

(1) Save as otherwise provided in the Constitution, any question proposed for decision by Parliament shall be decided by the majority of votes of the members present and voting

(2) The person presiding shall not vote in the first instance but shall have and exercise a casting vote in the event of an equality of votes

86. Quorum

If at any time during a meeting of Parliament the attention of the person presiding is drawn to the fact that there are fewer than twenty members present, the person presiding shall, subject to any Standing Order, adjourn the sitting without question put

87. Standing Orders

(1) Subject to the provisions of the Constitution, Parliament may by resolution or Standing Order provide for—

(i) the election and retirement of the Speaker, the Deputy Speaker and the Deputy Chairman of Committees, and

(ii) the regulation of its business, the preservation of order of its sittings and any other matter for which provision is required or authorised to be so made by the Constitution

(2) Until Parliament otherwise provides by law or by resolution, the Standing Orders of Parliament, in force immediately prior to the commencement of the Constitution, shall, mutatis mutandis, be the Standing Orders of Parliament

88. Legislative Power

Notwithstanding anything in this Constitution, Parliament shall have power to make law, repealing or amending any provision of the Constitution, or adding any provision to the Constitution

Provided that Parliament shall not make any law—

(a) suspending the operation of the Constitution or any part thereof, or

(b) repealing the Constitution as a whole unless such law also enacts a new Constitution to replace it

89. Publication and Passing of Bills

(1) Every Bill shall be published in the Gazette at least fourteen days before it is placed on the Order Paper of Parliament

(2) The passing of a Bill or a resolution by Parliament shall be in accordance with the Constitution and the Standing Orders of Parliament. Any one or more of the Standing Orders may be suspended by Parliament in the circumstances and in the manner prescribed by the Standing Orders

90. Certificate of Speaker

The Speaker shall endorse on every Bill passed by Parliament a certificate in the following form

"This bill (here state the short title of the Bill) has been duly passed by Parliament "

Such certificate may also state the majority by which such Bill was passed

Provided that where by virtue of the provisions of Article 94 or Article 95 or Article 96 or Article 164(2) a special majority is required for the passing of a Bill, the Speaker shall certify such Bill only if such Bill has been passed with such special majority

Provided further that where by virtue of Article 95, the Bill or any provision thereof requires the approval of the People at a Referendum, such certificate shall further state that the Bill or such provision shall not become law until approved by the People at a Referendum

91 When Bill becomes law

(1) Subject to the provisions of paragraph (2) of this Article, a Bill passed by Parliament shall become law when the certificate of the Speaker is endorsed thereon

(2) Where the Cabinet of Ministers has certified that any Bill or any provision thereof is intended to be submitted for approval by the People at a Referendum or where the Supreme Court has determined that a Bill or any provision thereof requires the approval of the People at a Referendum such Bill or such provision shall become law upon being approved by the People at a Referendum in accordance with paragraph (2) of Article 97 only when the President certifies that the Bill or provision thereof has been so approved. The President shall endorse on every Bill so approved a certificate in the following form

"This Bill/provision has been duly approved by the People at a Referendum "

Every such certificate shall be final and conclusive, and shall not be called in question in any court

92. Validity of Acts not to be questioned

Subject to the provisions of Article 165, where a Bill becomes law upon the certificate of the President or the Speaker, as the case may be, being endorsed thereon, no court or tribunal shall inquire into, pronounce upon or in any manner call in question, the validity of such Act or of any provision contained therein on any ground whatsoever

93 Imposition of Civic disability

(1) Where a Special Presidential Commission of Inquiry established under the Special Presidential Commission of Inquiry Law and consisting of a member or members each of whom is a Judge of the Supreme Court, Court of Appeal, High Court or the District Court recommends that any person should be made subject to civic disability by reason of any act done or omitted to be done by such person before or after the commencement of the Constitution Parliament may by resolution passed by not less than two thirds of the whole number of members (including those not present) voting in its favour—

(a) impose civic disability on such person for a period not exceeding seven years; and

(b) expel such person from Parliament, if he is a Member of Parliament

Where a Special Presidential Commission of Inquiry consists of more than one member, a recommendation made by the majority of such members, in case of any difference of opinion, shall be, and shall be deemed for all purposes to be, the recommendation of such Commission of Inquiry

(2) No such resolution shall be entertained by the Speaker or placed on the Order Paper of Parliament unless introduced by the Prime Minister with the approval of the Cabinet of Ministers

(3) The Speaker shall endorse on every resolution passed in accordance with the preceding provision of this Article a certificate in the following form

"This resolution has been duly passed by Parliament in accordance with the provisions of Article 93 of the Constitution"

Every such certificate shall be conclusive for all purposes and shall not be questioned in any court, and no court or tribunal shall inquire into, or pronounce upon or in any manner call in question, the validity of such resolution on any ground whatsoever

(4) In this Article, "District Court" means a District Court created and established by existing law and includes a court that may be created by Parliament to exercise and perform powers and functions corresponding or substantially similar to the powers and functions exercised and performed by the District Court

THE CENTRAL LEGISLATURE— AMENDMENT OF THE CONSTITUTION

94. Amendment or repeal of the Constitution must be express

(1) No Bill for the amendment of any provision of the Constitution shall be placed on the Order Paper of Parliament unless the provision to be repealed, altered or added, and consequential amendments, if any, are expressly specified in the Bill and is described in the long title thereto as being an Act for the amendment of the Constitution

(2) No Bill for the repeal of the Constitution shall be placed on the Order Paper of Parliament unless the Bill contains provisions replacing the Constitution and is described in the long title thereof as being an Act for the repeal and replacement of the Constitution

(3) If in the opinion of the Speaker, a Bill does not comply with the requirements of paragraph (1) or paragraph (2) of this Article, he shall direct that such Bill be not proceeded with unless it is amended so as to comply with those requirements

(4) Notwithstanding anything in the preceding provisions of this Article, it shall be lawful for a Bill which complies with the requirements of paragraph (1) For paragraph (2) of this Article to be amended by Parliament provided that the Bill as so amended shall comply with those requirements

(5) A Bill for the amendment of any provision of the Constitution or for the repeal and replacement of the Constitution shall become law if the number of votes cast in favour thereof amounts to not less than two-thirds of the whole number of members (including those not present) and upon a certificate by the President or Speaker, as the case may be, being endorsed thereon in accordance with the provisions of Article 90 or 91

(6) No provision in any law shall, or shall be deemed to, amend, repeal or replace the Constitution or any provision thereof, or be so interpreted or construed, unless enacted in accordance with the requirements of the preceding provisions of this Article

(7) In this Chapter, "amendment" includes repeal, alteration and addition

95 Approval of certain Bills at a referendum

Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in the provisions of Article 94—

(a) a Bill for the amendment or the repeal and replacement of or which is inconsistent with any of the provisions of Articles 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9 and 15 of this Article, and

(b) a Bill for the amendment or for the repeal and replacement of or which is inconsistent with the provisions of paragraph (2) of Article 75 which would extend the duration of Parliament to over six years, shall become law if the number of votes cast in favour thereof, amounts to not less than two-thirds of the whole number of members (including those not present) is approved by the People at a Referendum and a certificate endorsed thereon by the President in accordance with Article 91

96 Bills inconsistent to the Constitution

(1) A Bill which is not for the amendment of any provision of the Constitution or for the repeal and replacement of the Constitution, but which is inconsistent with any provision of the Constitution may be placed on the Order Paper of Parliament without complying with the requirements of paragraph (1) or paragraph (2) of Article 94

(2) Where the Cabinet of Ministers has certified that a Bill is intended to be passed by the special majority required by this Article or where the Supreme Court has determined that a Bill requires to be passed by such special majority, such Bill shall become law only if the number of votes cast in favour thereof amounts to not less than two-thirds of the whole number of members (including those not present) and a certificate by the President and the Speaker, as the case may be, is endorsed thereon in accordance in the case provisions of Article 90 or Article 91 three persons appointed by him who he is satisfied are not actively engaged in politics. The President shall appoint one of such persons to be the Chairman.

(2) If any member of the Delimitation Commission shall die or resign or if the President is satisfied that any such member has become incapable of discharging his functions as such, the President shall, in accordance with the provisions of paragraph (1) of this Article, appoint another person in his place.

108. Electoral districts

(1) The Delimitation Commission shall divide Sri Lanka into not less than twenty and not more than twenty-five electoral districts, and shall assign names thereto.

(2) Each region of Sri Lanka may itself constitute an electoral district or may be divided into two or more electoral districts.

(3) Where a region is divided into a number of electoral districts the Delimitation Commission shall have regard to the existing administrative districts so as to ensure as far as is practicable that each electoral district shall be an administrative district or a combination of two or more administrative districts or two or more electoral districts together constitute an administrative district.

(4) The electoral districts of each region shall together be entitled to return four members, (independently of the number of members which they are entitled to return by reference to the number of electors whose names appear in the registers of electors of such electoral district), and the Delimitation Commission shall apportion such entitlement equitably among such electoral districts.

(5) In the event of a difference of opinion among the members of the Delimitation Commission, the opinion of the majority thereof shall prevail and shall be deemed to be the decision of the Commission, where each member of the Commission is of a different opinion, the opinion of the Chairman shall be deemed to be the decision of the Commission. Any dissentient member may state his reasons for such dissent.

(6) The Chairman of the Delimitation Commission shall communicate the decisions of the Commission together with the reasons, if any, stated by a dissentient member to the President.

109. Proclamation of names etc. of Electoral Districts

The President shall by Proclamation publish the names and boundaries of the electoral districts and the number of members, which each such electoral district is entitled to return by virtue of the provisions of paragraph (4) of Article 108 in accordance with the decision of the Delimitation Commission. The electoral districts specified in the Proclamation shall come into operation at the next ensuing General Election of members of Parliament and shall thereafter be the electoral districts of Sri Lanka for all the purposes of the Constitution and of any law for the time being in force relating to the election of members of Parliament.

110. Number of members to be returned by the several electoral districts and their apportionment among such electoral districts

(1) The several electoral districts shall together be entitled to return one hundred and ninety-six members

(2) The apportionment of the number of members that each electoral district shall be entitled to return shall, in the case of thirty-six members, be determined in accordance with the provisions of paragraph (4) of Article 108

(3) The apportionment of the number of members that each electoral district shall be entitled to return out of the balance number of one hundred and sixty members shall be determined in accordance with the succeeding provisions of this Article

(4) The total number of electors whose names appear in the registers of electors of all the electoral districts shall be divided by one hundred and sixty. The whole number, resulting from such division (any fraction not being taken into account) is hereinafter referred to as the "qualifying number"

(5) The total number of electors whose names appear in the register of electors of each electoral district shall be entitled to return such number of members as is equivalent to the whole number resulting from the division of the total number of such electors in that electoral district by the qualifying number and the balance number of such electors, if any, after such division shall be dealt with, if necessary, in accordance with paragraph (6) of this Article

(6) Where the total number of members to be returned by all the electoral districts ascertained by reference to the qualifying number in accordance with paragraph (5) of this Article is less than one hundred and sixty members, the apportionment of the entitlement among the electoral districts of the balance number of members shall be by reference to the balance number of such electors and in the case of any electoral district not entitled to return a single member according to the determination made under paragraph (5), the total number of electors whose names appear in the register of electors of such electoral district, the electoral district having the highest of such balance number of such electors or such total number of such electors being entitled to return one more member and so on until the total number of members to be returned number one hundred and sixty

(7) Where in making an apportionment under paragraph (6) of this Article an equality is found to exist between two or more balance number of such electors or two or more total number of such electors or any combination of them and the addition of one such elector would entitle one electoral district to return an additional member, the determination of the electoral district to which one such elector shall be deemed to be added shall be determined by lot

(8) The Commissioner of Elections, as soon as possible after the certification of the registers of electors for all the electoral districts shall, by order published in the Gazette certify the number of members which each electoral district is entitled to return by virtue of the Proclamation under Article 109 and this Article

(9) For the purposes of this Article "the register of electors" means the register of electors for the time being in operation on the basis of which an election is being held

111. Proportional representation

(1) At any election of members of Parliament the total number of members which an electoral district is entitled to return shall be the number specified by the Commissioner of Elections in the order published in accordance with the provisions of paragraph (8) of Article 110

(2) Every elector at an election of members of Parliament shall, in addition to his vote, be entitled to indicate his preferences for not more than three candidates nominated by the same recognised political party or independent group

(3) Any recognised political party or any group of persons contesting as independent candidates (hereinafter referred to as an "independent group") may for the purpose of any election of members of Parliament for any electoral district, submit one nomination paper setting out the names of such number of candidates as is equivalent to the number of members to be elected for that electoral district, increased by three

(4) Each elector whose name appears in the register of electors shall be entitled to only one vote notwithstanding that his name appeared in the electoral register in more than one electoral district

(5) The recognised political party or independent group which polls the highest number of votes in any electoral district shall be entitled to have the candidates nominated by it, who has secured the highest number of preferences, declared elected

(6) (a) Every recognised political party and independent group polling less than one twentieth of the total votes polled at any election in any electoral district shall be disqualified from having any candidates of such party or group being elected for that electoral district

(b) The votes polled by the disqualified parties and independent groups, if any, shall be deducted from the total votes polled at the election in that electoral district and the number of votes resulting from such deduction is hereinafter referred to as the "relevant numbers of votes "

(7) The relevant number of votes shall be divided by the number of members to be elected for that electoral district reduced by one, if the number resulting from such division is an integer, that integer, or if that number is an integer and fraction, the integer immediately higher to that integer and fraction is hereinafter referred to as the "resulting number"

(8) The number of votes polled by each recognised political party and independent group (other than those parties or groups disqualified under paragraph (6) of this Article) beginning with the party or group which polled the highest number of votes shall then be divided by the resulting number and the returning officer shall declare elected from each such party or group, in accordance with the preferences secured by each of the candidates nominated by such party or group (the candidate securing the highest number of preferences being declared elected first, the candidate securing the next highest number of preferences being declared elected next and so on) such number of candidates (excluding the candidate declared elected under paragraph (5) of this Article) as is equivalent to the whole number resulting from the division by the resulting number of the votes polled by such party or group. The remainder of the votes, if any, after such division, shall be dealt with if necessary, under paragraph (9) of this Article.

(9) Where after the declaration of the election of members as provided in paragraph (8) of this Article there are one or more members yet to be declared elected, such member or members shall be declared elected by reference to the remainder of the votes referred to in paragraph (8) to the credit of each party or group after the declaration made under that paragraph and the votes polled by any party or group not having any of its candidates declared elected under paragraph (8), the candidate nominated by the party or group having the highest of such votes, who has secured the highest or next highest number of preferences being declared elected a member and so on until all the members to be elected are declared elected.

(10) (a) Where the number of votes polled by each recognised political party or independent group is less than the resulting number referred to in paragraph (7) of this Article the party or group which has polled the highest number of votes shall be entitled to have the candidate nominated by that party or group (excluding the candidate declared elected under paragraph (5) of this Article) who has secured the highest number of preferences declared elected and if there are one or more members yet to be declared elected, the party or group having the next highest number of votes polled shall be entitled to have the candidate nominated by that party or group who has secured the highest number of preferences declared elected and so on, until all the members to be elected for that electoral district are declared elected under the provisions of this paragraph.

(b) After the determination under paragraph (a) if there are one or more members yet to be declared elected in respect of that electoral district the provisions of that paragraph shall mutatis mutandis apply to the election of such members.

(11) Where under paragraph (5) or (9) or (10) of this Article an equality is found to exist between the votes polled by two or more recognised political parties or two or more independent groups or any combination of them and the addition of a vote would entitle the candidate of one such party or group to be elected, the determination of the party or group to which such additional vote shall be deemed to have been given shall be made by lot.

(12) For the purposes of this Article the number of votes polled shall be deemed to be the number of votes counted other than rejected votes.

(13) (a) Where a member of Parliament ceases, by resignation, expulsion or otherwise, to be a member of a recognised political party or independent group on whose nomination paper (hereinafter referred to as the "relevant nomination paper") his name appeared at the time of his becoming such member of Parliament, his seat shall become vacant upon the expiration of a period of one month from the date of his ceasing to be such member

Provided that in the case of the expulsion of a member of Parliament his seat shall not become vacant if prior to the expiration of the said period of one month he applies to the Supreme Court by petition in writing, and the Supreme Court upon such application determines that such expulsion was invalid. Such petition shall be inquired into by three Judges of the Supreme Court who shall make their determination within two months of the filing of such petition. Where the Supreme Court determines that the expulsion was valid the vacancy shall occur from the date of such determination.

(b) Where the seat of a member of Parliament (other than a member declared elected under Article 112) becomes vacant as provided in Article 79 (other than paragraph (g) of that Article) or by virtue of the preceding provisions of this paragraph the candidate from the relevant recognised political party or independent group who has secured the next highest number of preferences shall be declared elected to fill such vacancy.

In this paragraph, "nomination paper" when used in relation to a recognised political party or independent group, includes a list submitted by that recognised political party or independent group under paragraph (2) of Article 112.

112. Election of Members of Parliament on the basis of the total number of votes polled at a General Election

(1) After the one hundred and ninety six members referred to in Article 110 have been declared elected at a General Election of members of Parliament, the Commissioner of Elections shall forthwith apportion the balance twenty nine seats among the recognised political parties and independent groups contesting such General Election in the same proportion as the proportion which the number of votes polled by each such party or group at such General Election bears to the total number of votes polled at such General Election and for the purposes of such apportionment, the provisions of paragraphs (4), (5), (6) and (7) of Article 110 shall, mutatis mutandis, apply.

(2) Every recognised political party or independent group contesting a General Election shall submit to the Commissioner of Elections within the nomination period specified for such election a list of persons qualified to be elected as members of Parliament, from which it may nominate persons to fill the seats, if any, which such party or group will be entitled to, on such apportionment. The Commissioner of Elections shall cause every list submitted to him under this Article to be published forthwith in the Gazette and in one Sinhala, Tamil and English newspaper upon the expiry of the nomination period

(3) Where a recognised political party or independent group is entitled to a seat under the apportionment referred to in paragraph (2) the Commissioner of Elections shall by a notice, require the secretary of such recognised political party or group leader of such independent group to nominate within one week of such notice, persons qualified to be elected as members of Parliament (being persons whose names are included in the list submitted to the Commissioner of Elections under this Article or in any nomination paper submitted in respect of any electoral district by such party or group at that election) to fill such seats and shall declare elected as members of Parliament, the persons so nominated

(4) The Commissioner of Elections shall before issuing the aforesaid notice determine whether the number of members belonging to any community, ethnic or otherwise, elected to Parliament under Article 111 is commensurate with the national population ratio and request the Secretary of such recognised political party or group leader of such independent group in so nominating persons to be elected as members of Parliament to ensure as far as practicable, that the representation of all communities is commensurate with their national population ratios

(5) Where the seat of a member of Parliament elected under this Article becomes vacant, as provided for in Article 79 or sub-paragraph (a) of paragraph (13) of Article 111, the provisions of paragraphs (3) and (4) of this Article shall, mutatis mutandis, apply to the filling of such vacancy

For the purposes of this Article the number of votes polled at a General Election shall be deemed to be the number of votes actually counted and shall not include any votes rejected as void

113 Penalty for sitting and voting in Parliament or Regional Council when disqualified

Any person who—

(a) having been elected a member of Parliament or a member of a Regional Council but not having been at the time of such election qualified to be so elected shall sit or vote in Parliament or such Regional Council or

(b) shall sit or vote in Parliament or a Regional Council after his seat therein has become vacant or he has become disqualified from sitting or voting therein, knowing or having reasonable grounds for knowing that he was so disqualified or that his seat has become vacant as the case may be, shall be liable to a penalty of five hundred rupees for every day upon which he so sits or votes to be recovered as a debt due to the Republic by an action instituted by the Attorney-General in the District Court of Colombo

114. Parliament may make provision in respect of elections

(1) Parliament may by law make provision for—

- (a) the registration of electors,
- (b) the prescribing of a qualifying date on which a person should be resident in any electoral district to be entered in the register of electors of that electoral district,
- (c) the prescribing of a qualifying date on which a person should have attained the age of eighteen years to qualify for the purposes of registration as an elector,
- (d) the preparation and revision of registers of electors,
- (e) the procedure for the election of members of Parliament and of members of Regional Councils,
- (f) the creation of offences relating to such elections and the punishment therefore,
- (g) the grounds for avoiding such elections, and where an election has been held void the manner of holding fresh elections,
- (h) the form and manner in which vacancies shall be filled when all the candidates whose names appearing in the nomination paper of a recognised political party or independent group have been exhausted by election or otherwise,
- (i) the manner of determination of disputed elections and such other matters as are necessary or incidental to the election of members of Parliament and of members of Regional Councils

Provided that no such law shall add to the disqualification's specified in Articles 101 and 102

(2) Until Parliament by law makes provision for such matters, the Parliamentary Elections Act No 1 of 1981 and the Provincial Councils Elections Act, No 1 of 1988 as amended from time to time, shall, subject to the provisions of the Constitution, mutatis mutandis, apply, to the election of members of Parliament and to the election of members of Regional Councils

115. Public Officer or an Officer of a Public Corporation not to Function during period of Election

When a public officer or an officer of a public corporation is a candidate at any election of members of Parliament or of members of a Regional Council, he shall be deemed to be on leave from the date on which he stands nominated as a candidate until the conclusion of the election. Such a public officer or an officer of a public corporation shall not during such period exercise, perform or discharge any of the powers, duties or functions of his office

CHAPTER XVI

THE JUDICIARY INSTITUTIONS
FOR THE ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE

145. Establishment of Courts

(1) Subject to the provisions of the Constitution, the institutions for the administration of justice which protect, vindicate and enforce the rights of the people shall be—

(a) the Supreme Court of the Republic of Sri Lanka, which shall be the highest and final Superior Court of record in the Republic;

(b) the Court of Appeal of the Republic of Sri Lanka,

(c) the High Court established for each Region, and

(d) such courts of First Instance, tribunals or institutions as Parliament may from time to time ordain and establish

(2) Subject to the provisions of the Constitution, all courts, tribunals and institutions created and established by existing written law for the administration of justice and for the adjudication and settlement of industrial and other disputes, shall be deemed to be courts, tribunals and institutions created and established by Parliament. Parliament may replace or abolish, or amend the powers, duties, jurisdiction and procedure of, such courts, tribunals and institutions.

(3) The Supreme Court, the Court of Appeal, the Regional High Courts and the courts, tribunals and institutions referred to in this Chapter shall have and exercise such powers and jurisdiction conferred on such courts, tribunals and institutions by the constitution, or subject to the provisions of the Constitution by existing law as well as any such powers and jurisdiction, appellate or original, as Parliament may by law vest and ordain.

(4) The Supreme Court of the Republic of Sri Lanka and the Court of Appeal of the Republic of Sri Lanka shall each be a superior Court of record and shall have all the powers of such Court including the power to punish for contempt of itself, whether committed in the Court itself or elsewhere, with imprisonment or fine or both as the Court may deem fit. The power of the Court of Appeal shall include the power to punish for contempt of any other court, tribunal or institution referred to in sub-paragraphs (c) and (d) of paragraph (1) of this Article, whether committed in the presence of such court or elsewhere.

Provided that the preceding provisions of this Article shall not prejudice or affect the rights now or hereafter vested by any law in such other court, tribunal or institution to punish for contempt of itself.

(5) Parliament may by law provide for the creation and establishment of courts, tribunals or institutions for the adjudication and settlement of matters relating to the discipline of bhikkhus or any dispute between bhikkhus or any other dispute relating to the performance of services in or in relation to temples. Such law may notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this Constitution make provision —

(a) for the appointment, transfer, dismissal and disciplinary control of the member or members of such courts, tribunals or institutions by President or by such other person or body of persons as may be provided for in such law,

(b) for the exclusion of the jurisdiction of any other institution referred to in paragraph (1) of this Article in relation to such matters and disputes

In this paragraph the expressions "bhikkhu" and "temple" shall have the same meanings as in the Buddhist Temporalities Ordinance, as at the commencement of the Constitution

THE SUPREME COURT AND THE COURT OF APPEAL

146. Constitution of the Supreme Court

(1) The Supreme Court shall consist of the Chief Justice and not less than six and not more than ten other Judges who shall be appointed as provided for in Article 149

(2) The Supreme Court shall have power to act notwithstanding any vacancy in its membership. No act or proceeding of the Court shall, or shall be deemed to be, invalid by a reason only of any such vacancy or any defect in appointment of a Judge

(3) The several jurisdictions of the Supreme Court shall be ordinarily exercised at Colombo, unless the Chief Justice otherwise directs

(4) The jurisdiction of the Supreme Court may be exercised in different matters at the same time by the several Judges of that Court sitting apart

Provided that its jurisdiction shall, subject to the provisions of the Constitution, ordinarily be exercised at all times by not less than three Judges of the Court sitting together as the Supreme Court

(5) The Chief Justice may,—

(a) of his own motion, or

(b) at the request of two or more judges hearing any matters, or

(c) on the application on a party to any appeal, proceeding or matter, if the question involved is in the opinion of the Chief Justice, one of general and public importance, direct that such appeal, proceeding or matter be heard by a Bench comprising of five or more judges of the Supreme Court

(6) The judgement of the Supreme Court shall, when it is not a unanimous decision be the decision of the majority

(7) Any party proceedings in the Supreme Court in the exercise of its jurisdiction shall have the right to be heard in such proceedings either in person or by representation by an Attorney-at-law

(8) The Supreme Court may in its discretion, grant to any other person or his legal representative, such hearing as may appear to the Court to be necessary in the exercise of its jurisdiction

(9) The Registrar of the Supreme Court shall be in charge of an officer designated the Registrar of the Supreme Court who shall be subjected to the supervision, direction and control of the Chief Justice

(10) Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, Parliament may by law confer any additional jurisdiction and powers on the Supreme Court and may vary or remove any jurisdiction of power vested in the Supreme Court by any written law other than by this Constitution

147. Rules of the Supreme Court

(1) Subject to the provisions of the Constitution and of any law the Chief Justice with any three Judges of the Supreme Court nominated by him, may, from time to time, make rules regulating generally the practice and procedure of the Court including

(a) rules as to the procedure for hearing appeals and other matters pertaining to appeals including the terms under which appeals to the Supreme Court, Court of Appeal, and the Regional High Courts are to be entertained and provision for the dismissal of such appeals for non-compliance with such rules,

(b) rules as to the proceedings in the Supreme Court Court of Appeal, and the Regional High Courts in the exercise of the several jurisdictions conferred on such Courts by the Constitution or by any law, including the time within which such matters may be instituted or brought before such Courts and the dismissal of such matters for non-compliance with such rules,

(c) rules as to the stay of proceedings,

(d) rules providing for the summary determination of any appeal or any other matter before such Court by petition or otherwise which appears to the Court to be frivolous and vexatious or brought for the purpose of delay,

(f) the admission, enrolment, suspension and removal of Attorneys-at-Law and the rules of conduct and etiquette for such Attorneys-at-Law,

(g) the attire of Judges, Attorneys-at-Law officers of Court and persons attending the Courts in Sri Lanka whether established by the constitution or by Parliament or by existing law,

(h) the manner in which panels of jurors may be prepared, and the mode of summoning, empanelling and challenging of jurors,

(i) proceedings of Fiscal and other ministerial officers of such Courts and the process of such Courts and the mode of executing the same,

(j) the binding effect of the decisions of the Supreme Court,

(k) all matters of practice and procedure including the nature and extent of costs that may be awarded, the manner in which such costs may be taxed and the stamping of documents in the Supreme Court Court of

Appeal, Regional High Courts, and Courts of First Instance not specially provided by or under any law

(2) Every rule made under this Article shall be published in the Gazette and shall come into operation on the date of such publication or on such later date as may be specified in such rule

(3) All rules made under this Article shall as soon as convenient after their publication in the Gazette be brought before Parliament for approval. Any such rule which is not so approved shall be deemed to be rescinded as from the date it was not so approved, but without prejudice to anything previously done thereunder

(4) the Chief Justice and any three Judges of the Supreme Court nominated by him may amend, alter or revoke any such rules of Court and such amendment, alteration or revocation of the rules will operate in the like manner as set out in the preceding paragraph with reference to the making of the rules of Court

(5) All rules made under Article 136 of the 1978 Constitution and in force immediately prior to the commencement of the Constitution shall, mutatis mutandis, be deemed to be rules made and approved under this Article. The rules relating to the Court of Appeal shall, mutatis mutandis, apply to the Regional High Courts in the exercise of their respective appellate, revisionary and writ jurisdictions, and to appeals from Regional High Courts to the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeal

(6) For the avoidance of doubts it is hereby declared that in the event of any inconsistency between a rule made under this Article and the provision of any law, the provisions of such law shall prevail

148. Constitution of the Court of Appeal

(1) The Court of Appeal shall consist of the President of the Court of Appeal and not less than six and not more than eleven Judges who shall be appointed as provided in Article 149

(2) The Court of Appeal shall ordinarily exercise its jurisdiction at Colombo

Provided however, that the Chief Justice may, from time to time when he deems it so expedient direct that the Court of Appeal shall hold its sittings and exercise its jurisdiction in any region, judicial zone or district specified in the direction

(3) The jurisdiction of the Court of Appeal may be exercised in different matters at the same time by the several Judges of the Court sitting apart

Provided that—

(a) its jurisdiction in respect of—

(i) judgements and orders of a Regional High Court pronounced at a trial at Bar, shall be exercised at least three Judges of the Court, and

(ii) other judgements and orders of a Regional High Court, shall be exercised by at least two Judges of the Court,

(b) its jurisdiction to try election petitions in respect of the election to membership of Parliament or a Regional Council, shall be exercised by the President of the Court of Appeal or any Judge of that Court nominated by the President or two or more of such Judges nominated by the President of whom such President may be one,

(c) its jurisdiction in respect of other matters shall be exercised by a single Judge of the Court unless the President of the Court of Appeal by general or special order, otherwise directs

(4) In the event of any difference of opinion between two Judges constituting the Bench, the matter shall be considered by a Bench of three Judges

(5) The judgement of the Court of Appeal shall, when it is not an unanimous decision, be the decision of the majority.

(6) The Registry of the Court of Appeal shall be in charge of an officer designated the Registrar of the Court of Appeal who shall be subject to the supervision, direction and control of the President of the Court of Appeal

(7) Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, Parliament may by law confer any additional jurisdiction and powers on the Court of Appeal and may vary or remove any jurisdiction or power vested in the Court of Appeal by any written law other than by this Constitution

CHAPTER XVII

THE INDEPENDENCE OF THE JUDICIARY

149 Appointment, resignation and removal of Judges of the Supreme Court and Court of Appeal

(1) The Chief Justice shall be appointed by the President by warrant under his hand

(2) The President of the Court of Appeal and every other Judge of the Supreme Court and Court of Appeal shall be appointed by the President of the Republic by warrant under his hand after ascertaining the views of the Chief Justice

(3) The Chief Justice and every such Judge shall hold office during good behaviour, and shall not be removed except by an order of the President made after an address of Parliament supported by a majority of the total number of members of Parliament (including those not present) has been presented to the President for such removal on the ground of proved misbehaviour or incapacity

Provided that no resolution for the presentation of such an address shall be entertained by the Speaker or placed on the Order Paper of Parliament unless—

(a) notice of such resolution is signed by not less than one-third of the total number of members of Parliament and sets out full particulars of the alleged misbehaviour or incapacity, and

(b) an inquiry has been held by a Committee consisting of three persons who hold or have held office as a Judge of the Supreme Court or the Court of Appeal and appointed by the Speaker to inquire into allegations of misbehaviour or incapacity made against such Judge, and such Committee has determined that a prima facie case of misbehaviour or incapacity has been established against such Judge. In the case of an inquiry in respect of the Chief Justice, the Committee shall consist of three persons each of whom hold, or have held, office as a Judge in the highest court of any Commonwealth country

(4) Parliament shall by law or by Standing Orders provide for all matters relating to the presentation of such an address including the procedure for the passing of such resolution, the holding of inquiries by a Committee of Parliament for the investigation and proof of the alleged misbehaviour and incapacity and the right of such Judge to appear before and be heard by such Committee in person or by representative

(5) Every person appointed to be or to act as Chief Justice, President of the Court of Appeal or a Judge of the Supreme Court or Court of Appeal shall not enter upon the duties of his office until he takes and subscribes or makes and subscribes before the President, the oath or the affirmation set out in the Schedule (not reproduced)

(6) A Judge of the Supreme Court or of the Court of Appeal shall be entitled to hold office until he reaches the age of sixty five years

Provided however any such Judge may opt to retire on completion of such period of service as would entitle him to the grant of a pension under the Minute on Pensions or resign his office by a writing under his hand addressed to the President, prior to reaching such age

150. Salaries of Judges of the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeal

(1) The salaries of the Judges of the Supreme Court and of the Court of Appeal shall be determined by Parliament and shall be charged on the Consolidated Fund

(2) The salary payable to, and the pension entitlement of, a Judge of the Supreme Court and a Judge of the Court of Appeal shall not be reduced after his appointment

151. Acting appointments

(1) If the Chief Justice or the President of the Court of Appeal is temporarily unable to exercise, perform and discharge the powers, duties and functions of his office by reason of illness, absence from Sri Lanka or any other cause, the President shall appoint, another Judge of the Supreme Court, or of the Court of Appeal, as the case may be, to act in the office of Chief Justice, or President of the Court of Appeal, as the case may be, during such period

(2) If any Judge of the Supreme Court or of the Court of Appeal is temporarily unable to exercise, perform and discharge the powers, duties and functions of his office, by reason of illness, absence from Sri Lanka or any other cause, the President may appoint another person to act as a Judge of the Supreme Court, or Court of Appeal, as the case may be, during such period

152. Performance or discharge of other duties or functions by Judges

(1) A Judge of the Supreme Court or Court of Appeal may be required by the President of the Republic to perform or discharge any other appropriate duties or functions under any written law

(2) No Judge of the Supreme Court or Court of Appeal shall perform any other office (whether paid or not) or accept any place of profit or emolument, except as authorised by the Constitution or by written law or with the written consent of the President

(3) No person who had held office as a permanent Judge of the Supreme Court or of the Court of Appeal may appear, plead, act or practice in any court, tribunal or institution as an Attorney-at-Law at any time after retirement or resignation without the written consent of the President or accept any place of profit in the public service

153. Regional High Court Judges

(1) Every Judge of a Regional High Court shall be appointed by the President of the Republic by warrant under his hand after ascertaining the views of the Chief Justice, and shall be removable, and be subject to disciplinary control, by the President on the recommendation of the National Judicial Service Commission

(2) Every person appointed as a Judge of a Regional High Court shall not enter upon the duties of his office until he takes and subscribes, or makes and subscribes, the oath or affirmation set out in Schedule

(3) The Judge of a Regional High Court shall be entitled to hold office until he reaches the age of sixty-five years

Provided however that any such Judge may opt to retire on completion the period of service which entitles him for the grant of a pension under the Minute on Pensions, or resign from his office by writing under his hand addressed to the President, prior to reaching such age

Provided that—

(a) in the case of a Bill described in its long title as being for the amendment of any provision of the Constitution, or for the repeal and replacement of the Constitution, the only question which the Supreme Court may determine is whether such Bill requires approval by the People at a Referendum by virtue of the provisions of Article 95,

(b) where the Cabinet of Ministers certifies that a Bill, which is described in its long title as being for the amendment of any provision of the Constitution, or for the repeal and replacement of the Constitution is intended to be passed with the special majority required by Article 94 and submitted to the People by Referendum, the Supreme Court shall have and exercise no jurisdiction in respect of such Bill.

(c) where the Cabinet of Ministers certifies that a Bill which is not described in its long title as being for the amendment of any provision of the Constitution, or for the repeal and replacement of the Constitution, is intended to be passed with the special majority required by Article 96, the only question which the Supreme Court may determine is whether such Bill requires approval by the People at a Referendum by virtue of the provisions of Article 95 or whether such Bill is required to comply with paragraphs (1) and (2) of Article 94, or

(d) where the Cabinet of Ministers certifies that any provision of any Bill which is not described in its long title as being for the amendment of any provision of the Constitution or for the repeal and replacement of the Constitution is intended to be passed with the special majority required by Article 96 the only question which the Supreme Court may determine is whether any other provisions of such Bill requires to be passed with the special majority required by Article 96 or whether any provision of such Bill requires the approval by the People at a Referendum by virtue of the provisions of Article 95 or whether such Bill is required to comply with the provisions of paragraph (1) and (2) of Article 94

162. Ordinary exercise of Jurisdiction of Supreme Court with respect to Bills

(1) The jurisdiction of the Supreme Court to ordinarily determine any such question as aforesaid may be invoked by the President by a written reference addressed to the Chief Justice, or by any citizen by a petition in writing addressed to the Supreme Court. Such reference shall be made, or such petition shall be filed, within one week of the Bill being placed on the Order Paper of Parliament, and a copy thereof shall at the same time be delivered to the Speaker. In this paragraph 'citizen' includes a body whether incorporated or unincorporated or, if not less than three-fourths of the members of such body are citizens.

(2) Where the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court has been so invoked no proceedings shall be had in Parliament in relation to such Bill until the determination of the Supreme Court has been made, or the expiration of a period of three weeks from the date of such reference or petition, whichever ever occurs first.

(3) The Supreme Court shall make and communicate its determination to the President and to the Speaker within three weeks of the making of the reference or the filing of the petition as the case may be.

163. Special exercise of Jurisdiction of Supreme Court with respect to Bills

(1) In the case of a Bill which is, in the view of the Cabinet of Ministers, in the national interest, and bears an endorsement to that effect by the hands of the Secretary to the Cabinet of Ministers—

(a) the provisions of Article 89 (1) and Article 162, shall subject to the provisions of paragraph (2) of this Article, have no application,

(b) the President shall by a written reference addressed to the Chief Justice, require the special determination of the Supreme Court as to whether the Bill or any provision thereof is inconsistent with the Constitution. A copy of such reference shall at the same time be delivered to the Speaker,

(c) the Supreme Court shall make its determination within twenty-four hours (or such longer period not exceeding three days as the President may specify) of the assembling of the Court, and shall communicate its determination only to the President and the Speaker

(2) The provisions of paragraph (2) of Article 162 shall, mutatis mutandis, apply to such Bill

164. Determination of Supreme Court in respect of Bills

(1) The determination of the Supreme Court shall be accompanied by the reasons therefor, and shall state whether the Bill or any provisions thereof is inconsistent with the Constitution and if so, which provision or provisions of the Constitution

(2) Where the Supreme Court determines that the Bill or any provision thereof is inconsistent with the Constitution, it shall also state—

(a) whether such Bill is required to comply with the provisions of paragraphs (1) and (2) of Article 94, or

(b) whether such Bill or any provision thereof may only be passed by the special majority required under the provisions of paragraph (2) of Article 96, or

(c) whether such Bill or any provision thereof requires to be passed by the special majority required under the provisions of paragraph (2) of Article 96 and approved by the People at a referendum by virtue of the provisions of Article 95, and may specify the nature of the amendments which would make the Bill or such provision cease to be inconsistent

(3) In the case of a Bill endorsed as provided in Article 163, if the Supreme Court entertains a doubt whether the Bill or any provision thereof is inconsistent with the Constitution, it shall be deemed to have been determined that the Bill or such provision of the Bill is inconsistent with the Constitution and the Supreme Court shall comply with the provisions of paragraphs (1) and (2) of this Article

(4) Where any Bill or any provision of any Bill has been determined to be inconsistent with the Constitution, such Bill or such provision shall not be passed except in the manner stated in the determination of the Supreme Court

Provided that it shall be lawful for such Bill to be passed after such amendment as would make the Bill cease to be inconsistent with the Constitution

165. Power of review of Acts passed after commencement of the Constitution

(1) The Supreme Court shall, on its jurisdiction being invoked under paragraph (2) and subject to the provisions of this Article, have sole and exclusive jurisdiction to determine whether any Act of Parliament passed after the commencement of this Constitution or any provision thereof is inconsistent with any provision of Chapter III of this Constitution and where it so determines, to declare that Act or provision void to the extent of that inconsistency, without prejudice to anything previously done thereunder

(2) The jurisdiction of the Supreme Court to determine any such question as aforesaid, may be invoked by any citizen by a petition in writing addressed to the Supreme Court filed within two years of the enactment of the Bill by Parliament. In this paragraph "citizen" includes a body whether incorporated or unincorporated, if not less than three-fourths of the members of such body are citizens

(3) Save as otherwise provided in Article 161, 162, 163 and this Article, no court or tribunal created and established for the administration of justice or other institution, person or body of persons shall in relation to any Bill, have power or jurisdiction to inquire into or pronounce upon, the constitutionality of such Bill or its due compliance with the legislative process on any ground whatsoever

166. Jurisdiction of the Supreme Court in respect of statutes of Regional Councils

(1) The Supreme Court shall have sole and exclusive jurisdiction to determine any question as to whether in statute passed by a Regional Council or any provision thereof is inconsistent with the Constitution

(2) The jurisdiction of the Supreme Court to ordinarily determine any such question as aforesaid shall be invoked by a Regional Attorney-General by a petition in writing addressed to the Supreme Court, in every case where such Regional Attorney-General has communicated an opinion to the Governor, the Chief Minister and the Board of Ministers of the Region, prior to the passing of that statute, that the draft statute or any provision thereof is inconsistent with the Constitution, and the statute has been passed despite such opinion

(3) Where the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court has been so invoked in respect of a statute, such Statute shall be inoperative until the Supreme Court has made a determination thereon as to its consistency with the Constitution

(4) The Supreme Court shall make and communicate its determination to the President and to the Speaker of the Regional Council making such statute

(5) Whenever any question as to whether a statute passed by a Regional Council or any provision thereof is inconsistent with the Constitution arises in the course of any proceedings in any court or tribunal or other institution empowered by law to administer justice or to exercise judicial or quasi-judicial functions such question shall forthwith be referred to the Supreme Court for determination. The Supreme Court may direct that further proceedings be stayed pending the determination of such question

(6) Where the Supreme Court determines that a Statute is inconsistent with any provision of the Constitution it may declare such statute or provision thereof void to the extent of such inconsistency

167. Constitutional Jurisdiction in respect of the interpretation of the Constitution

(1) The Supreme Court shall have sole and exclusive jurisdiction to hear and determine any question relating to the interpretation of the Constitution, and accordingly, whenever any such question arises in the course of any proceedings in any Court or tribunal or other institution empowered by law to administer justice or to exercise judicial or quasi judicial functions, such question shall forthwith be referred to the Supreme Court for determination. The Supreme Court may direct that further proceedings be stayed pending the determination of such question

(2) The Supreme Court may, when determining such matter, also make any such consequential order as the circumstances of the case may require

168. Jurisdiction regarding Fundamental and Language Rights

(1) The Supreme Court shall have sole and exclusive jurisdiction to hear and determine any question relating to the infringement or imminent infringement by State action including executive or administrative action, of any fundamental right or language right declared and recognised by Chapter III or Chapter IV or by judicial action by courts exercising original criminal jurisdiction, of a fundamental right declared and recognised under Article 10

(2) Where any person alleges that any such fundamental right or language right relating to such person has been infringed or is about to be infringed by State action including executive or administrative action, or by judicial action he may himself or by an Attorney-at-Law or a person or a body of persons in terms of Article 26, on his behalf, within three months thereof, in accordance with such rules of court as may be in force, apply to the Supreme Court by way of petition in writing addressed to such Court praying for relief or redress in respect of such infringement. Such application may be proceeded with only with leave to proceed first had and obtained from the Supreme Court, which leave may be granted or refused as the case may be by not less than two Judges of such Court

(3) Where in the course of hearing in any court, of an application for orders in the nature of a writ of habeas corpus, Certiorari, prohibition, mandamus or quo warranto, it appears to such court that there is prima facie evidence of an infringement or imminent infringement of the provisions of Chapter III or Chapter IV by a party to such application, such court shall forthwith refer such matter for determination by the Supreme Court

(4) The Supreme Court shall have power to grant such relief or make such directions as it may deem just and equitable in the circumstances in respect of any petition or reference referred to in paragraphs (2) or (3) of this Article or refer the matter back to the court if, in its opinion, there is no infringement of a fundamental right or language right

Provided that in the case of an infringement of a fundamental right by judicial action no order for compensation or costs shall be made against a judicial officer who had acted bona fide and the Supreme Court may order the State to pay any compensation or costs

(5) Where at the hearing of a petition or reference referred to in paragraph (2) or (3) there are any disputed questions of fact, the Supreme Court may refer such questions to the Human Rights Commission or other appropriate body or person for inquiry and report

(6) The Supreme Court shall hear and finally dispose of any petition or reference under this Article as expeditiously as possible and in any event, not later than three months of the filing of the petition or the making of the reference, as the case may be. In computing the period of three months, any period taken for inquiry and report by the Human Rights Commission or any other body or person referred to in paragraph (5) shall be excluded

169. Consultative Jurisdiction

(1) If at any time it appears to the President of the Republic that a question of law or fact has arisen or is likely to arise which is of such nature and of such public importance that it is expedient to obtain the opinion of the Supreme Court, upon it he may refer that question to that Court for consideration and the Court may, after such hearing as it thinks fit, within the period specified in such reference or within such time as may be extended by the President, report to the President its opinion thereon

(2) Every proceeding under paragraph (1) of this Article shall be held in private unless the Court for special reasons otherwise directs

170. Jurisdiction in respect of Validity of Referendum

The Supreme Court shall have the power to hear and determine and make such orders as are provided for by law on any legal proceeding relating to the validity of a referendum

171. Jurisdiction in respect of Parliamentary Privilege

The Supreme Court shall have, according to law, the power to make cognisance of, and punish, any person for the breach of the privileges of Parliament

172. Appellate Jurisdiction

(1) The Supreme Court shall, subject to the Constitution, be the final Court of civil and criminal appellate jurisdiction for and within the Republic of Sri Lanka for the correction of all errors in fact or in law which shall be committed by the Court of Appeal in any case or by a Regional High Court in the exercise of its appellate or revisionary jurisdiction or by or any Court of first instance, tribunal or other institution from which a right of appeal direct to the Supreme Court has been provided by law and the judgements and orders of the Supreme Court shall in all cases be final and conclusive in all such matters

(2) The Supreme Court shall, in the exercise of its jurisdiction, have sole and exclusive cognisance by way of appeal, where any appeal lies in law to the Supreme Court, from any order, judgement, decree, or sentence made by—

(a) the Court of Appeal, or

(b) Regional High Court in the exercise of appellate or revisionary jurisdiction, and it may affirm, reverse or vary any such order, judgement, decree or sentence of the Court of Appeal, or a Regional High Court or of any Court of First Instance, tribunal or institution where a right of appeal direct to the Supreme Court has been provided by law, and may issue such directions to any Court of First Instance, tribunal or institution or order a new trial or further hearing in any proceedings as the justice of the case may require, and may also call for and admit fresh or additional evidence if the interests of justice so demands and may in such event, direct that such evidence be recorded by the Court of Appeal, a Regional High Court or any Court of First Instance

173. Right of Appeal

(1) An appeal shall lie to the Supreme Court from any final order, judgement, decree or sentence of—

(a) the Court of Appeal, or

(b) a Regional High Court in the exercise of appellate or revisionary jurisdiction, in any matter or proceedings, whether civil or criminal, which involves a substantial question of law, if the Court of Appeal, or the Regional High Court, as the case may be, grants leave to appeal to the Supreme Court ex mero motu or at the instance of any aggrieved party to such matter or proceedings,

(2) The Supreme Court may, in its discretion, grant special leave to appeal to the Supreme Court from any final or interlocutory order, judgement, decree, or sentence made by the Court of Appeal, or by a Regional High Court in the exercise of its appellate or revisionary jurisdiction, in any matter or proceedings, whether civil or criminal, where such Court has refused to grant leave to appeal to the Supreme Court, or where in the opinion of the Supreme Court, the case or matter is fit for review by the Supreme Court

Provided that the Supreme Court shall grant leave to appeal in every matter or proceedings in which it is satisfied that the question to be decided is of public or general importance

(3) An appeal shall lie directly to the Supreme Court on any matter and in the manner specifically provided for by any other law passed by Parliament

In this paragraph, "law" includes existing law

174. Review of Judgements and Orders of Supreme Court

The Chief Justice may, on application made within a reasonable time, by an aggrieved party direct that any judgement pronounced, or order made, by the Supreme Court be reviewed by a fuller bench of Judges where the question involved relates to the interpretation of the Constitution and which question had not been considered in such judgement or order

175. Right of the Attorney-General to be heard

The Attorney-General shall be noticed and have the right to be heard in all proceedings in the Supreme Court in the exercise of its jurisdiction under Articles 161, 162, 163, 165, 166, 167, 168, 169, 170 and 171 of the Constitution

176. Supreme Court to give Priority to the Hearing of Certain Matters

The Supreme Court shall give priority to the hearing and determination of any matter in respect of which its jurisdiction under this Chapter is invoked and shall, subject to any stipulation as to time specified by Articles 161 to 172 in this Chapter, dispose of such matter as expeditiously as possible

THE COURT OF APPEAL

177. Jurisdiction of the Court of Appeal

(1) The Court of Appeal shall have and exercise subject to the provisions of the Constitution or of any law, an appellate jurisdiction for the correction of all errors in fact or in law which shall be committed by a Regional High Court in the exercise of its original jurisdiction and by any Court of First Instance, tribunal or other institution and sole and exclusive cognisance, by way of appeal, revision and resitutio in integrum, of all causes, suits, actions, prosecutions, matters and things of which such court, tribunal or other institution may have taken cognisance,

Provided that no judgement, decree or order of any court shall be reversed or varied on account of any error, defect or irregularity, which has not prejudiced the substantial rights of the parties or occasioned a failure of justice

(2) The Court of Appeal shall also have and exercise all such powers and jurisdiction, appellate and original, as Parliament may by law vest or ordain

178. Powers in Appeal

(1) The Court of Appeal may in the exercise of its jurisdiction affirm, reverse, correct or modify any order, judgement, decree or sentence according to law or it may give directions to such court, tribunal or other institution or order a new trial or further hearing upon such terms as the Court of Appeal shall think fit

(2) The Court of Appeal may further receive and admit new evidence additional to or supplementary of, the evidence already taken in such Court touching the matters at issue in any original case, suit, prosecution or action, as the justice of the case may require

179. Powers to issue writs other than writs of *habeas corpus

Subject to the provisions of the Constitution, the Court of Appeal shall have full power and authority to inspect and examine the records of any Court of First Instance or tribunal or other institution, and grant and issue according to law, orders in the nature writs of certiorari, prohibition, mandamus and quo warranto against the Judge of any Court of First Instance or tribunal or other institution or any other person

Provided that Parliament may by law provide that in such category of cases as may be specified in such law, the jurisdiction conferred on the Court of Appeal by this Article shall be exercised by the Supreme Court and not by the Court of Appeal

180. Powers to issue writs of *habeas corpus

The Court of Appeal may grant and issue orders in the nature of writs of habeas corpus to bring up before such Court—

(a) the body of any person to be dealt with according to law, or

(b) the body of any person illegally or improperly detained in public or private custody, and to discharge or remand any person so brought up or otherwise deal with such persons according to law

Provided that it shall be lawful for the Court of Appeal to require the body of such person to be brought up before the most convenient Court of First Instance and to direct the Judge of such Court to inquire into and report upon the acts of the alleged imprisonment or detention and to make such provision for the interim custody of the body produced as to such court shall seem right, and the Court of Appeal shall upon the receipt of such report, make order to discharge or remand the person so alleged to be imprisoned or detained or otherwise deal with such person according to law, and the Court of First Instance shall conform to, and carry into immediate effect, the order so pronounced or made by the Court of Appeal

Provided further, that if provision be made by law for the exercise by any court of jurisdiction in respect of the custody and control of minor children, then the Court of Appeal, if satisfied that any dispute regarding the custody of any such minor child may more properly be dealt with by such court, direct the parties to make application in that court in respect of the custody of such minor child

181. Powers to Bring up and Remove Prisoners

The Court of Appeal may direct—

(i) that a prisoner detained in any prison be brought before a Court-Martial or any Commissioners acting under the authority of any commission from the President of the Republic for trial or to be examined relating to any matters pending before any such Court-Martial or Commissioners respectively, or

(ii) that a prisoner detained in prison be removed from one custody to another for purpose of trial

182. Power to grant Injunctions

The Court of Appeal shall have the power to grant and issue injunctions to prevent any irremediable mischief which might ensue before a party making an application for such injunction could prevent the same by bringing an action in any Court of First Instance

Provided that it shall not be lawful for the Court of Appeal to grant an injunction to prevent a party to any action in any court from appealing to or prosecuting an appeal to the Court of Appeal or to prevent any party to any action in any court from insisting upon any ground of action, defense or appeal, or to prevent any person from suing or prosecuting in any court, except where such person has instituted two separate actions in two different courts for and in respect of the same cause or action, in which case the Court of Appeal shall have the power to intervene by restraining him from prosecuting one or other of such actions as to it may seem fit

183. Election Petitions

The Court of Appeal shall have and exercise jurisdiction to try election petitions in respect of the election to the membership of Parliament or to a Regional Council in terms of any law for the time being applicable in that behalf

184. Inspection of Records

The Court of Appeal may, ex memo motu or on any application made, call for, inspect and examine any record pertaining to the exercise of original jurisdiction by a Regional High Court and any record of any Court of First Instance and in the exercise of its revisionary powers may make any order thereon as the interests of justice may require

CONSTITUTION OF SWEDEN

CHAPTER 1 BASIC PRINCIPLES

1. (1) All public power in Sweden proceeds from the people
- (2) Swedish democracy is founded on freedom of opinion and on universal and equal suffrage. It shall be realized through a representative and parliamentary polity and through local self-government
- (3) Public power shall be exercised under the law
2. (1) Public power shall be exercised with respect for the equal worth of all and for the freedom and dignity of the individual
- (2) The personal, economic and cultural welfare of the individual shall be fundamental aims of public activity. In particular, it shall be incumbent upon the public administration to secure the right to work, housing and education, and to promote social care and social security and a good living environment
- (3) The public administration shall promote the ideals of democracy as guidelines in all sectors of society. The public administration shall guarantee equal rights to men and women and protect the private and family lives of the individual
- (4) Opportunities should be promoted for ethnic, linguistic and religious minorities to preserve and develop a cultural and social life of their own
3. The Instrument of Government, the Act of Succession and the Freedom of the Press Act are the fundamental laws of the Realm

---

Note —The frequency of ordinary elections has been changed from 3 to 4 years by Law No 1469 of 1994 (see Chapter 3 Article 3)

4. (1) The Parliament is the foremost representative of the people.

(2) The Parliament enacts the laws, determines taxes and decides how public funds shall be used. The Parliament shall examine the government and administration of the country.

5. (1) The King or Queen who occupies the throne of Sweden in accordance with the Act of Succession shall be the Head of State.

(2) The provisions of this Instrument of Government which relate to the King shall relate also to the Queen if she is the Head of State.

6. The Government rules the country. It is responsible to the Parliament.

7. (1) There are primary and regional local government communes in Sweden. The decision-making power in the communes is exercised by elected assemblies.

(2) The communes may levy taxes in order to perform their tasks.

8. Courts of law exist for the administration of justice, and central and local government administrative authorities exist for the public administration.

9. Courts, public authorities and others performing functions within the public administration shall observe in their work the equality of all persons before the law and shall maintain objectivity and impartiality.

CHAPTER 2

FUNDAMENTAL RIGHTS AND FREEDOMS

1. (1) All citizens shall be guaranteed the following in their relations with the public administration:

1) freedom of expression: the freedom to communicate information and to express ideas, opinions and emotions, whether orally, in writing, in pictorial representations, or in any other way.

2) freedom of information: the freedom to obtain and receive information and otherwise acquaint oneself with the utterances of others,

3) freedom of assembly: the freedom to organize or attend any meeting for information purposes or for the expression of opinions or for any other similar purpose or for the purpose of presenting artistic work.

4) freedom to demonstrate: the freedom to organize or take part in any demonstration in a public place.

5) freedom of association: the freedom to unite with others for public or private purposes, and

6) freedom of worship: the freedom to practice one's own religion either alone or in company with others.

(2) In the case of the freedom of the press the provisions of the Freedom of the Press Act shall apply. That act also contains provisions concerning the right of access to public documents.

2. All citizens shall be protected in their relations with the public administration against all coercion to divulge an opinion in any political, religious, cultural or other similar connection. They shall furthermore be protected in their relations with the public administration against all coercion to participate in any meeting for the formation of opinion or in any demonstration or other expression of opinion or to belong to any political association, religious congregation or other association for opinions of the nature referred to in the first sentence.

3. (1) No record about a citizen in a public register may be based without his consent solely on his political opinions.

(2) Citizens shall be protected to the extent determined in detail by law against any infringement of their personal integrity resulting from the registration of information about them by means of electronic data processing.

4. There shall be no capital punishment.

5. All citizens shall be protected against corporal punishment. All citizens shall likewise be protected against torture or any medical influence or intervention for the purpose of extorting or suppressing statements.

6. All citizens shall be protected in their relations with the public administration against any physical violation also in cases other than those referred to in Articles 4 and 5. Citizens shall likewise be protected against physical search, house searches or other similar encroachments and against examination of mail or other confidential correspondence and against eavesdropping, telephone-tapping or recording of other confidential communications.

7. (1) No citizen may be deported or refused entry to Sweden.

(2) No citizen who is resident in Sweden or who has been resident in Sweden may be deprived of his citizenship unless he becomes at the same time a national of another state, at his express consent or because he has taken employment in the public service. It may however be prescribed that children under the age of eighteen shall have the same nationality as their parents or of one of their parents. It may furthermore be prescribed that, in pursuance of an agreement with a foreign state, a person who has been a national also of the other state from birth, and who is permanently resident there, shall forfeit his Swedish nationality at or after the age of eighteen.

8. All citizens shall be protected against deprivation of liberty in their relations with the public administration. They shall also in other respects be guaranteed freedom of movement within the Realm and freedom to depart Sweden.

9. (1) Where a public authority other than a court has deprived a citizen of his liberty for committing a criminal offence or because he is suspected of having committed such an offence, he shall be entitled to have the matter tested before a court of law without undue delay. This shall not, however, apply where the issue concerns the transference to Sweden of responsibility for executing a penal sanction involving deprivation of liberty which has been imposed in another state.

(2) If, for reasons other than those referred to in paragraph (1), a citizen has been forcibly taken into custody, he shall likewise be entitled to have the matter tested before a court of law without undue delay. In such a case, examination before a tribunal shall be equated with examination before a court of law, provided that the composition of the tribunal is governed by rules of law and it is laid down that the chairman of the tribunal must be currently, or shall have been previously, a permanent judge.

(3) If an examination under paragraphs (1) and (2) has not been referred to an authority which is competent according to the provisions laid down therein, the examination shall be carried out by a court of general jurisdiction.

10. (1) No penalty or other penal sanction may be imposed in respect of an act which was not subject to any penal sanction at the time it was committed. Neither may a more severe penal sanction be imposed than that which was prescribed when the act was committed. The provisions thus laid down with respect to penal sanctions apply likewise with respect to confiscation or any other special legal effects attaching to criminal offenses.

(2) No State taxes, charges, or fees may be levied except insofar as they were laid down in provisions which were in force when the circumstance arose which occasioned the liability for the tax, charge, or fee. Should the Parliament find that specific reasons so warrant, it may be provided under an Act of law that State taxes, charges, or fees shall be levied even although no such act had entered into force when the aforementioned circumstance occurred, provided that the Government or a Committee of the Parliament had submitted a proposal to this effect to the Parliament at the time concerned. For the purposes of the foregoing provision, any written communication from the Government to the Parliament announcing that a proposal of this nature will be forthcoming shall be equated with a formal proposal. The Parliament may furthermore prescribe that exceptions shall be made from the provisions of the first sentence if it considers that this is warranted by specific reasons connected with war, the danger of war or severe economic crisis.

11. (1) No court may be set up to try an offence already committed or for a particular dispute or otherwise for a particular case.

(2) Proceedings in the courts shall be open to the public.

12. (1) The rights and freedoms referred to in Article 1 (0 1)-(0 5), in Articles 6, 8, and 11 (2) may be restricted by law to the extent provided for in Articles 13-16. After authorization in law, they may be restricted by statutory order in the cases referred to in Chapter 8, Article 7 (1 7), and in Chapter 8, Article 10. Freedom of assembly and the freedom to demonstrate may similarly be restricted also in the cases referred to in Article 11 (1) second sentence.

(2) The restrictions referred to in paragraph (1) may be imposed only to achieve a purpose acceptable in a democratic society. The restriction may never exceed what is necessary, having regard to the purpose which occasioned it, nor may it be carried so far as to constitute a threat to the free formation of opinion as one of the foundations of democracy No restriction may be imposed solely on grounds of political, religious, cultural or other such opinions

(3) Government bills of the nature referred to in paragraph (1), or Government bills for the amendment or repeal of such legislation, shall, if not rejected by the Parliament, be held in suspense for a period of not less than twelve months from the date on which the first report of a Parliament Committee on the Bill was submitted to the Chamber of the Parliament, on a motion by no fewer than ten members The above provision notwithstanding, the Parliament may approve the bill if no fewer less than five sixths of those voting concur

(4) Paragraph (3) shall not apply to any bill prolonging the life of legislation for a period of up to two years Nor shall the said paragraph apply to any bill concerned exclusively with—

1) prohibition of the disclosure of matters of which a person may have acquired knowledge in the public service, or in the performance of official duties, when secrecy is called for having regard to interests under Chapter 2, Article 2 of the Freedom of the Press Act,

2) house searches and similar intrusions, or

3) deprivation of liberty imposed as a penal sanction for a specific act or omission

(5) The Committee on the Constitution decides on behalf of the Parliament whether paragraph (3) is applicable in respect of a specific bill

13. (1) Freedom of expression and freedom of information may be restricted having regard to the security of the Realm, the national supply, public safety and order, the integrity of the individual, the sanctity of private life, or the prevention and prosecution of crime Freedom of expression may also be restricted in economic activities Freedom of expression and freedom of information may otherwise be restricted only where particularly important reasons so warrant

(2) In judging what restrictions may be made by virtue of paragraph (1) particular regard shall be paid to the importance of the widest possible freedom of expression and freedom of information in political, religious, professional, scientific and cultural matters

(3) The issuing of rules and regulations which govern in detail a particular manner of disseminating or receiving information without regard to its content shall not be deemed to restrict freedom of expression or freedom of information

14. (1) Freedom of assembly and the freedom to demonstrate may be restricted for the purpose of preserving public safety and order at the meeting or demonstration, or having regard to the circulation of traffic These freedoms may otherwise be restricted only out of regard for the security of the Realm or for the purpose of combating an epidemic

(2) Freedom of association may be restricted only in respect of organizations whose activities are of a military nature or the like, or which involve the persecution of a population group of a particular race, skin color, or ethnic origin

15. No Act of law or other statutory instrument may entail the discrimination of any citizen because he belongs to a minority on grounds of race, skin color, or ethnic origin

16. No Act of law or other statutory instrument may entail the discrimination of any citizen on grounds of sex, unless the relevant provision forms part of efforts to bring about equality between men and women or relates to compulsory military service or any corresponding compulsory national service.

17. Any trade union or employer or association of employers shall be entitled to take strike or lock-out action or any similar measure unless otherwise provided by law or arising out of an agreement

18. Every citizen whose property is requisitioned by means of an expropriation order or by any other such disposition shall be guaranteed compensation for his loss on the bases laid down in law

19. Authors, artists and photographers shall own the rights to their works in accordance with provisions laid down in law

20 (1) A foreigner within the Realm shall be equated with a Swedish citizen in respect of—

1) protection against all coercion to participate in any meeting for the formation of opinion or in any demonstration or other expression of opinion, or to belong to any religious congregation or other association (Article 2, second sentence),

2) protection of personal integrity in connection with electronic data processing (Article 3 (2)),

3) protection against capital punishment, corporal punishment and torture and against medical intervention aimed at extorting or preventing statements,

4) the right to have any deprivation of liberty on account of a criminal offence or on grounds of suspicion of having committed such an offence tested before a court of law (Article 9 (1) and (3)),

5) protection against retroactive penal sanctions and other retroactive effects of criminal acts and against retroactive taxes, charges or fees (Article 10),

6) protection against the establishment of a court to try a particular case (Article 11 (1)),

7) protection against discrimination on grounds of race skin color ethnic origin or sex (Articles 15 and 16),

8) the right to take strike or lock-out action (Article 17), and

9) the right to compensation in cases of expropriation or other such disposition (Article 18)

(2) Unless otherwise provided by special rules of law, a foreigner within the Realm shall be equated with a Swedish citizen also in respect of

1) freedom of expression, freedom of information, freedom of assembly, freedom to demonstrate, freedom of association, and freedom of worship (Article 1);

2) protection against all coercion to divulge an opinion (Article 2, first sentence),

3) protection against physical violations also in cases other than those referred to in Articles 4 and 5, against physical search, house searches, or other similar intrusions, and against violations of confidential communications (Article 6),

4) protection against deprivation of liberty (Article 8, first sentence),

5) the right to have any deprivation of liberty for reasons other than a criminal offence or suspicion of having committed such an offence tested before a court (Article 9 (2) and (3)),

6) public court proceedings (Article 11 (2)),

7) protection against violations on grounds of opinion (Article 12 (2), third sentence), and

8) the rights of authors, artists, and photographers to their works

(3) With respect to the special provisions referred to in paragraph (2), the provisions of Article 12 (3), (4), first sentence, and (5) shall apply

THE PARLIAMENT

1. (1) The Parliament is appointed by free, secret and direct elections

(2) The Parliament consists of one chamber comprising three hundred and forty-nine members. Alternates shall be appointed for all members

2. (1) Every Swedish citizen residing in Sweden is entitled to vote in Parliament elections. Provisions are laid down in law regarding the voting rights of Swedish citizens who are not resident in Sweden. No one who has not attained the age of 18 years on or before election day is entitled to vote

(2) Any question of whether a right to vote exists under paragraph (1) shall be determined on the basis of a voters' roll drawn up before the election

3. Ordinary elections for the Parliament shall be held every fourth year

4. (1) The Government may order an extra election to be held between ordinary elections. Extra elections shall be held within three months of the issue of such an order

(2) After an election for the Parliament has been held, the Government is debarred from issuing an order for an extra election until three months have elapsed from the first meeting of the newly-elected Parliament. Nor may the Government issue an order for an extra election while ministers retain their posts, after having all been formally discharged, pending the assumption of office by a new Government

(3) Provisions concerning an extra election in a particular case are set forth in Chapter 6, Article 3

5. (1) A newly-elected Parliament assembles on the fifteenth day after election day but no sooner than the fourth day after the result of the election has been declared

(2) Each election is valid for the period running from the day on which the newly-elected Parliament convenes until the Parliament elected next thereafter convenes. This period is the electoral period of the Parliament

6. (1) Sweden is divided into constituencies for the purpose of elections to the Parliament

(2) The Parliament is made up of three hundred and ten permanent constituency seats and thirty-nine adjustment seats

(3) The permanent constituency seats are distributed among the constituencies on the basis of a calculation of the relationship between the number of those entitled to vote in each constituency and the total number of persons entitled to vote in the entire country. This distribution between constituencies is fixed for three years at a time

7. (1) The seats are distributed between parties. Party is understood to mean any association or group of voters which appears in an election under a specific designation

(2) Only a party which receives at least four per cent of the votes cast throughout the whole of the country is entitled to share in the distribution of seats. A party which receives fewer votes however participates in the distribution of the permanent constituency seats in any constituency where it receives at least twelve per cent of the votes cast

8. (1) The permanent constituency seats in each constituency are distributed proportionately between the parties on the basis of the result of the election in that constituency

(2) The adjustment seats are distributed between the parties in such a way that the distribution of all the seats in the Parliament, other than those permanent constituency seats which have been allocated to a party with less than four per cent of the votes cast, is proportionate to the total number of votes cast respectively for the participating parties in the whole of the country. If, in the distribution of the permanent constituency seats, a party obtains more seats than correspond to the proportional representation for that party in the Parliament, then that party and the permanent constituency seats which it has obtained shall be disregarded in the distribution of the adjustment seats. After the adjustment seats have been distributed between the parties, they are allocated to constituencies

(3) The odd number method is used to distribute the seats between parties with the first divisor adjusted to 1.1

9. One member and one or more alternates for that member shall be appointed for each seat a party obtains

10. Only a person who is qualified to vote can be a member of the Parliament or an alternate member of the Parliament

11. (1) Appeals against elections for the Parliament may be lodged with an Election Review Committee appointed by the Parliament. A person who has been elected a member of the Parliament shall exercise his function regardless of any such appeal. If the result of the election is revised, a new member takes his seat as soon as the revised result has been announced. The foregoing applies equally to alternates.

(2) The Election Review Committee comprises a chairman, who must be currently, or have been previously, a permanent judge and who must not be a member of the Parliament, and six other members. The members are elected after each ordinary election, as soon as the result of the election becomes final, and serve until new elections for the Committee have been held. There is no right of appeal against a decision of the Committee.

12. Further provisions regarding matters under Articles 2 to 11 and regarding the appointment of alternates for the members of the Parliament shall be laid down in the Parliament Act or other statute law.

THE BUSINESS OF THE PARLIAMENT

1. The Parliament shall convene in session every year. Sessions shall be held in Stockholm, unless otherwise decided by the Parliament, or by the Speaker, having regard to the safety or liberty of Parliament.

2. The Parliament shall designate a Speaker and a First, Second, and Third Deputy Speaker from among its members for each electoral period.

3. (1) The Government and every member of the Parliament is entitled, in accordance with more detailed provisions in the Parliament Act, to introduce proposals on any matter which comes within the jurisdiction of the Parliament unless otherwise provided in the present Instrument of Government.

(2) The Parliament elects committees from among its members, in accordance with provisions laid down in the Parliament Act, among them a Committee on the Constitution, a Committee on Finance and a Committee on Taxation. Any matter raised by the Government or by a member of the Parliament shall be considered by a committee before being finally decided upon, unless otherwise provided in the present Instrument of Government.

4. When a matter is raised for decision in the Chamber, each member of the Parliament and each member of the Government is entitled to state his opinion in accordance with the more detailed provisions laid down in the Parliament Act. Provisions concerning grounds for disqualification are contained in the Parliament Act.

5. When a vote is taken in the Parliament, the opinion in which more than half of those present and voting concur shall constitute the decision of the Parliament, unless otherwise specifically provided in the present

Instrument of Government or, in the case of matters relating to Parliament procedure, in a main provision of the Parliament Act. Provisions regarding the procedure to be followed in the case of a tied vote are laid down in the Parliament Act.

6. Any member of the Parliament and any alternate for such a member may fulfil his mandate as a member notwithstanding any official duty or other similar obligation which may be incumbent upon him.

7. (1) No member of the Parliament or alternate for such a member may resign his mandate without the Parliament's consent.

(2) When grounds exist, the Election Review Committee shall examine on its own initiative whether a particular member or alternate is competent under the provisions of Chapter 3, Article 10. Any person declared incompetent is relieved of his mandate thereby.

(3) A member or alternate member may be relieved of his mandate in cases other than those referred to in paragraph (2) only if, by reason of a criminal act, he has proved himself manifestly unfit for the position. Any decision to this effect shall be taken by a court of law.

8. (1) No one may bring an action against any person who holds a mandate, or has held a mandate, as a member of the Parliament, deprive him of his liberty, or prevent him from travelling within the country, on account of his actions or statements in the fulfilment of his mandate, unless the Parliament has given its consent by means of a decision in which no fewer than five sixths of those present and voting have concurred.

(2) If, in any other case, a member of the Parliament is suspected of having committed a criminal act, the relevant provisions of law relating to arrest, detention or remand are applicable only if he admits guilt or was caught in the act, or if the minimum penalty for the crime is not less than two years' imprisonment.

9. (1) While a member of the Parliament is acting as Speaker of the Parliament or is a member of the Government, his mandate as a member of the Parliament shall be exercised by an alternate member. The Parliament may prescribe in the Parliament Act that an alternate member shall replace a member of the Parliament while the latter is on leave of absence.

(2) The provisions of this chapter, Article 6 and 8 (1) regarding protection with respect to the exercise of a mandate as a member of the Parliament apply in like manner to the Speaker and his mandate.

(3) The provisions relating to a member of the Parliament shall apply also to an alternate exercising a mandate as member.

10. Additional provisions concerning the business of the Parliament are laid down in the Parliament Act.

CHAPTER 5

THE HEAD OF STATE

1. The Head of State shall be kept informed by the Prime Minister concerning the affairs of the Realm. When so required the Government shall convene in a special Cabinet meeting under the presidency of the Head of State.

2. (1) Only a person who is a Swedish citizen and has attained the age of twenty-five years may serve as Head of State. The Head of State may not at the same time be a member of the Government or hold a mandate as Speaker or as a member of the Parliament.

(2) The Head of State shall consult the Prime Minister before travelling abroad.

3. If by reason of illness, foreign travel, or any other cause the King is prevented from carrying out his duties, then that member of the Royal Family under the valid order of succession who is not prevented therefrom shall take over and perform the duties of the Head of State in the capacity of temporary Regent.

4. (1) Should the Royal Family become extinct, the Parliament shall appoint a Regent to perform the duties of Head of State until further notice. The Parliament shall at the same time appoint a Deputy Regent.

(2) The same applies if the King dies or abdicates and the heir to the throne has not yet attained the age of twenty-five years.

5. If the King has been continuously prevented for a period of six months from carrying out his duties, or has failed to carry them out, the Government shall notify the matter to the Parliament. The Parliament shall decide whether the King shall be deemed to have abdicated.

6. (1) The Parliament may appoint someone, on the Government's recommendation, to serve as Temporary Regent when no one competent under Article 3 or 4 is in a position to serve.

(2) The Speaker, or, if he is prevented from attending, one of the Deputy Speakers, shall serve as Temporary Regent, on the Government's recommendation, when no other competent person is in a position to serve.

7. The King cannot be prosecuted for his act or omissions. A Regent cannot be prosecuted for his act or omissions as Head of State.

THE GOVERNMENT

1. The Government comprises the Prime Minister and other members of the Cabinet. The Prime Minister is appointed in the manner prescribed in Articles 2 to 4. The Prime Minister appoints the other members of the Cabinet.

2. (1) When a Prime Minister is to be appointed, the Speaker shall summon for consultation one or more representatives from each party group.

in the Parliament. The Speaker shall confer with the Deputy Speakers and shall then submit a proposal to the Parliament

(2) The Parliament shall proceed to vote on the proposal, no later than the fourth day thereafter, without preparation in committee. If more than half the members of the Parliament vote against the proposal, it is rejected. In all other circumstances it is approved

3. If the Parliament rejects the Speaker's proposal the procedure laid down in Article 2 shall be resumed. If the Parliament rejects the Speaker's proposal four times in succession, the procedure for appointing a Prime Minister is discontinued and resumed only after an election for the Parliament has been held. Unless ordinary elections must in any case be held within three months, an extra election shall be held within that same period

4. When the Parliament has approved a new Prime Minister, he shall inform the Parliament as soon as possible of the names of the members of his Government. Government changes hands thereafter at a special session of the Cabinet before the Head of State or, if he is prevented from being present before the Speaker. The Speaker shall always be summoned to such a session. The Speaker issues letters of appointment for the Prime Minister on behalf of the Parliament

5. If the Parliament declares that the Prime Minister or any other Minister no longer enjoys its confidence, the Speaker shall discharge the Minister concerned. When the Government is in a position to order an extra election, however, no decision shall be made to discharge the Minister if the Government issues an order for an extra election within one week from the declaration of no confidence

6. A Minister shall be discharged if he so requests: the Prime Minister by the Speaker, and any other member of the Government by the Prime Minister. The Prime Minister may also in other circumstances discharge another member of the Government

7. If the Prime Minister resigns or dies, the Speaker shall discharge the other members of the Government

8. If all the members of the Government have been discharged, they shall retain their posts until a new Government has taken office. If any Minister other than the Prime Minister has been discharged at his own request, he shall retain his post until a successor has taken office, if the Prime Minister so requests

9. (1) Only a person who has been a Swedish citizen for not less than ten years may be a Minister

(2) A Minister may not undertake any public or private employment, nor may he undertake any commission or perform any function which is liable to impair public confidence in him

10. In the absence of the Speaker, a Deputy Speaker shall assume the duties incumbent upon the Speaker under the present chapter

THE BUSINESS OF THE GOVERNMENT

1. A Government Chancery shall exist for the preparation of Government business. This Chancery shall comprise ministries for different fields of activity. The Government distributes business between the ministries. The Prime Minister appoints the heads of the respective ministries from among the Ministers.

2. In the preparation of Government business the necessary information and opinions shall be obtained from the authorities concerned. Associations and private individuals shall be given an opportunity to express their views where necessary.

3. Decisions concerning Government business shall be taken at Cabinet meetings. Government business relating to the implementation of statutory instruments or special Government decisions within the armed forces may however be approved by the head of the ministry responsible for such matters, under the supervision of the Prime Minister and to the extent laid down in law.

4. The Prime Minister shall summon the other Ministers to attend Cabinet meetings and shall preside at such meetings. At least five Ministers shall be present at a Cabinet meeting.

5. At Cabinet meetings the head of a ministry presents business falling within the purview of his ministry. The Prime Minister may, however, order an item or group of items belonging to a particular ministry to be presented by a Minister other than the head of the ministry concerned.

6. Minutes shall be kept of Cabinet meetings. Dissenting opinions are to be recorded in the minutes.

7. Laws and other statutes, Bills for submission to the Parliament, and any other despatches of Cabinet decisions must be signed by the Prime Minister or another Minister on behalf of the Government in order to be valid. The Government may, however, decree that in particular cases an official may sign a Government despatch.

8. The Prime Minister may nominate one of the other Ministers to deputize for him in the event that he is unavoidably prevented from carrying out his duties himself. If a deputy has not been nominated by the Prime Minister, or if the deputy is also prevented from carrying out the duties of Prime Minister, these duties shall be assumed by that Minister among those in office who has been a member of the Government longest. Where two or more Ministers have been members of the Government for the same length of time the oldest shall have precedence.

LAWS AND OTHER REGULATIONS

1. It follows from the provisions of Chapter 2 concerning Fundamental Rights and Freedoms that rules and regulations with a particular content may not be issued or may be issued only by means of an Act of law and that in certain cases draft legislation shall be dealt with in a particular way

2. (1) Provisions relating to the personal status of private subjects or to their mutual personal and economic relations shall be laid down by law

(2) These provisions include inter alia

1) provisions concerning Swedish citizenship,

2) provisions concerning the right to a family name, or concerning marriage and parenthood, wills and inheritance, or family affairs in general, and

3) provisions concerning the right to fixed and movable property, concerning contracts, and concerning companies, associations, communities and foundations

3. (1) Provisions concerning the relations between private subjects and the public administration which relate to obligations incumbent upon private subjects or which otherwise interfere in the personal or economic affairs of private subjects shall be laid down by law

(2) These provisions include inter alia provisions concerning criminal acts and the legal consequences of such acts, provisions concerning taxes payable to the State, and provisions concerning requisitions and other such dispositions

4. Provisions concerning consultative referenda throughout the whole of the country and concerning the procedure for holding referenda on matters concerning the fundamental laws shall be laid down by an Act of law

5. Principles governing changes in the division of the country into local government communes, and governing the organization and working methods of the communes and local taxation shall be laid down by law. Provisions governing the powers and responsibilities of the communes in other respects shall likewise be laid down by law

6. (1) When the Parliament is not in session, the Finance and Taxation Committees may, when authorized by a law relating to taxes other than taxes on income, wealth, inheritance or gifts and at the proposal of the Government determine tax levels or bring into force or abolish taxes referred to in such a law. Such authority may include the right to distinguish between different kinds of activities and different parts of the Realm. The Finance and Taxation Committees shall exercise their decision making right in joint session. Any decision shall be made on behalf of the Parliament by law

(2) Any law approved by the Finance and Taxation Committees under paragraph (1) shall be submitted by the Government to the Parliament within one month of the start of the next Parliament session. The Parliament shall examine the law and make its decision within one month thereafter

7. (1) Notwithstanding the provisions of Articles 3 and 5, the Government may, upon authorization by law, issue regulations by statutory instrument concerning matters other than taxes, provided that such regulations relate to any of the following matters

- 1) the protection of life, health, or personal safety,
- 2) the residence or sojourn in Sweden of foreign nationals,
- 3) the import or export of goods, money or any other assets, manufacture, transport and communications, the granting of credits, business activities, rationing, or the design of buildings, plants, or human settlements,
- 4) game-shooting, fishing, animal protection, or the conservation of nature and the environment,
- 5) the circulation of traffic or public order,
- 6) education and vocational training,
- 7) prohibitions against the disclosure of matters of which a person has acquired knowledge in the public service or while performing compulsory national service

(2) Authority of the nature referred to in paragraph (1) does not confer the right to issue provisions regarding legal effects of criminal acts other than the imposition of fines. The Parliament may also prescribe, in a law which contains an authorization under paragraph (1), legal effects other than the imposition of fines for contraventions of provisions laid down by the Government by virtue of such authority

8. The provisions of Articles 2, 3, or 5 notwithstanding, the Government may, upon authorization by law, issue regulations by statutory order regarding the granting of respites for meeting obligations

9. (1) The provisions of Article 3 notwithstanding, the Government may, upon authorization by law, issue regulations by statutory order concerning customs duties on the importation of goods

(2) Upon authorization by the Parliament, the Government or any local government commune may issue regulations concerning charges or fees which shall otherwise be issued by the Parliament under Article 3

10. In any matter referred to in Article 7 (1) or 9, the Government may, upon authorization by law, prescribe by statutory order that one or more provisions of such a law shall come into force or cease to apply

11. Where under the present chapter the Parliament authorizes the Government to issue regulations in a particular matter, the Parliament may authorize the Government in such a context to delegate the power to issue regulations in the matter to an administrative authority or commune. In such a case the Parliament may also commission an administrative authority under the Parliament to issue such regulations

12. Regulations issued by the Government by virtue of an authorization under the present Instrument of Government shall be submitted to the Parliament for examination and approval if the Parliament so decides

13. (1) In addition to what follows from Articles 7 to 10 the Government may issue by statutory order—

- 1) regulations concerning the enforcement of laws, and
- 2) regulations which under the fundamental laws are not to be issued by the Parliament

(2) The Government may not by virtue of paragraph (1) issue any regulations which concern the Parliament or its agencies. Nor may the Government by virtue of paragraph (1 2) issue regulations which concern local taxation

(3) The Government may delegate to a subordinate authority the task of issuing regulations in the relevant matter by means of a statutory order under paragraph (1)

14. The power conferred on the Government to issue regulations in a particular matter shall not prevent the Parliament from issuing regulations in the same matter by way of law

15. (1) A fundamental law shall be adopted by means of two decisions of identical wording. The second decision may not be taken until elections for the Parliament have been held throughout the country following the first decision, and the newly-elected Parliament has been convened. Not less than nine months shall furthermore elapse between the time when the matter was first submitted to the Chamber of the Parliament and the time of the election, unless the Constitutional Committee of the Parliament grants an exemption from this provision by means of a decision taken not later than the Committee stage, and in which no fewer than five sixths of the members concur

(2) The Parliament may not adopt as a decision in suspense any Bill on a fundamental law which conflicts with any other draft legislation of the same nature which is held in suspense, unless the Parliament at the same time rejects the Bill it first adopted

(3) A referendum shall be held on a decision held in suspense for an amendment of a fundamental law on a motion to this effect by no fewer than one tenth of the members of the Parliament, provided that no fewer than one third of the members vote in favor of the motion. Such a motion must be made within fifteen days from the date on which the Parliament adopted the Bill held in suspense. Such a motion shall not go for consideration by any Committee of the Parliament

(4) The referendum shall be held simultaneously with the election for the Parliament referred to in paragraph (1). All those entitled to vote in the election may declare in the referendum whether or not they accept the Bill on the fundamental law which is pending decision. The Bill shall be deemed to be rejected if the majority of those taking part in the referendum vote against the proposal, and if the number of voters exceeds half the number of those who registered valid votes in the election. In all other cases the Parliament shall take up the Bill for final consideration

16. The Parliament Act shall be adopted as prescribed in Article 15 (1), first and second sentences, and (2) It may also be adopted by means of a single decision, provided that it is approved by no fewer than three fourths of those present and voting and by more than half the members of the Parliament Supplementary provisions of the Parliament Act shall however be adopted in the same way as ordinary laws

17. No law shall be amended or repealed otherwise than by law Articles 15 and 16 apply mutatis mutandis with respect to any amendment or abrogation of a fundamental law

18. (1) A Law Council composed of Justices of the Supreme Court and of Justices of the Supreme Administrative Court shall exist to pronounce on draft legislation The opinion of the Law Council shall be solicited by the Government or, under provisions of the Parliament Act, by a Committee of the Parliament

(2) The opinion of the Law Council shall be solicited before the Parliament takes a decision on a fundamental law concerning the freedom of the press, on any Act of law limiting the right of access to public documents, on any Act of law under Article 3 (2), 12 (1), 17, 19, or 20 (2), or on any Act of law amending or repealing such an Act, on any Act of law on local government taxation, on any Act of law under Articles 2 or 3, and on any Act of law under Chapter 11, if such an Act is important to private subjects or is important from the point of view of public interest The foregoing provision shall not however apply, if obtaining an opinion from the Law Council would be without significance because of the nature of the matter, or would delay the handling of legislation in such a way as to cause serious detriment If the Government submits draft legislation to the Parliament for the making of an Act of law in any matter referred to in the first sentence, and the opinion of the Law Council has not previously been obtained, the Government shall at the same time present its reasons therefor to the Parliament Failure to obtain the opinion of the Law Council on draft legislation shall never prevent the application of the law

(3) The Law Council's scrutiny shall relate to—

1) the way in which the proposal relates to the fundamental laws and to the legal system in general,

2) the way in which the different provisions contained in the proposal relate to each other,

3) the way in which the proposal relates to the requirement for security before the law,

4) whether the proposal is framed in such a manner that the resulting law can be assumed to satisfy the above requirements, and

5) what problems are likely to arise in applying the law

(4) Further provisions concerning the composition and working methods of the Law Council shall be set forth by law

19. Any Act of law which has been adopted shall be promulgated by the Government without delay. An Act containing provisions concerning the Parliament or its agencies which shall not be laid down in a fundamental law or in the Parliament Act may, however, be promulgated by the Parliament. Laws shall be published as soon as possible. This applies equally to statutory instruments, unless otherwise laid down in law.

CHAPTER 9 FINANCIAL POWER

1. Provisions concerning the right to approve taxes and charges or fees due the State are set out in Chapter 8.

2. (1) State funds may not be used in any way other than that determined by the Parliament.

(2) The Parliament approves the use of such funds for different purposes by adopting a budget in accordance with Articles 3 to 5. The Parliament may, however, decide that funds are to be employed in another manner.

3. (1) The Parliament shall adopt a budget for the next following fiscal year or, if special reasons so warrant, for another budgetary period. In this context, the Parliament shall estimate revenue and make appropriations for specified purposes. Decisions taken in this connection shall be incorporated in a national budget.

(2) The Parliament may decide that a particular appropriation within the national budget shall be made for a period other than the budget period.

(3) When adopting a budget under the present article, the Parliament shall take into account the need of funds for the defence of the Realm in time of war, danger of war, or other exceptional circumstances.

4. If the budget cannot be finally adopted in accordance with Article 3 before the start of the budget period, the Parliament, or, if the Parliament is not in session, the Finance Committee, shall decide as necessary on appropriations to cover the period until a budget is adopted for the budget period concerned.

5. The Parliament may revise its estimates of revenue for the current fiscal year, after appropriations already made, and make new appropriations in a supplementary budget.

6. The Government shall submit proposals for a national budget to the Parliament.

7. In conjunction with consideration of the budget or in other contexts, the Parliament may establish guidelines for a particular activity of the state covering a period in excess of that for which appropriations have been made for the activity concerned.

8. The funds and other assets of the State shall be at the disposal of the Government. This provision shall not, however, apply to assets which are intended for the Parliament or its agencies or which have been put under special administration by law.

9. The Parliament shall determine the principles for the administration and disposition of the property of the State to the extent that this is necessary. In this context, the Parliament may prescribe that measures of a particular nature may not be undertaken without the Parliament's consent.

10. The Government may not take up loans or otherwise assume financial obligations on behalf of the State without authority from the Parliament.

11. (1) The Finance Committee confers with the Minister appointed by the Government on negotiable matters affecting terms of employment applicable to state employees or which otherwise come within the scope of the Parliament to examine. The Committee approves agreements on such matters on the Parliament's behalf or, if the matter has been exempted from agreement, proposals for their regulation.

(2) In the case of employees of the Parliament or its agencies the provisions laid down in law apply instead of the provisions of paragraph (1).

(3) The provisions of paragraph (1) do not apply if the Parliament has decided otherwise in a particular case.

12. (1) The Bank of Sweden is the central bank of Sweden and is responsible for currency and credit policy. It shall also promote a sound and efficient payments system.

(2) The Bank of Sweden is an authority under the Parliament.

(3) The Bank of Sweden is administered by eight Trustees. Seven of the Trustees are elected by the Parliament. These Trustees elect a Trustee to act also as Governor of the Bank for a five-year period. The Trustees elected by the Parliament elect a chairman from among their number. This chairman may not exercise any other commission or hold any office within the executive direction of the Bank. Rules concerning the Parliament's election of Trustees, concerning the direction of the Bank of Sweden in other respects, and concerning its operations are laid down in the Parliament Act and elsewhere in law.

(4) A Trustee for whom the Parliament does not grant discharge of responsibility is thereby severed from his appointment. The Trustees elected by the Parliament may remove the chairman from office and the person who is a Trustee and the Governor of the Bank from his appointment.

13. The Bank of Sweden alone shall have the right to issue banknotes and to determine their pattern and design. Further provisions concerning the monetary and payments systems shall be laid down by law.

RELATIONS WITH OTHER STATES

1. Agreements with other states or with international organizations shall be concluded by the Government.

2. (1) The Government may not conclude any international agreement binding upon the Realm without Parliament approval, if the agreement presupposes the amendment or abrogation of a law or the enactment of a new law, or if it otherwise concerns a matter which is for the Parliament to decide

(2) If in a case under paragraph (1) a special procedure has been prescribed for the decision of the Parliament, the same procedure shall be followed in connection with the approval of the agreement

(3) Nor may the Government in cases other than cases under paragraph (1) without the approval of the Parliament conclude any international agreement which is binding upon the Realm, if the agreement is of major importance. The Government may, however, act without obtaining the Parliament's approval of the agreement if the interest of the Realm so requires. In such a case the Government shall confer instead with the Foreign Affairs Advisory Council before concluding the agreement

3. The Government may commission an administrative authority to conclude international agreements in matters in which such agreements do not require any action on the part of the Parliament or of the Foreign Affairs Advisory Council

4. The provisions of Articles 1 to 3 shall apply, mutatis mutandis, to the commitment of the Realm to any international obligation in any form other than an agreement and to any denunciation of an international agreement or obligation

5. (1) Any right of decision-making which is directly based on the present Instrument of Government and which purports at the laying down of prescriptions, the use of State property or the conclusion or denunciation of international treaties or commitments may be entrusted, to a limited extent, to an international organization for peaceful cooperation of which Sweden is a member or is to become a member or to an international court of law. No right of decision-making relating to matters concerning the enactment, amendment, or repeal of a fundamental law, of the Parliament Act or of the Act concerning elections for the Parliament, or which regards a limitation of any of the rights and freedoms referred to in Chapter 2 may be thus delegated. The provisions relating to the enactment of fundamental laws shall apply in respect of any decision concerning such delegation. If a decision in accordance with such provisions cannot be held in suspense, the Parliament may approve a delegation of the right of decision-making by a majority of no fewer than five sixths of those present and voting and no fewer than three fourths of the total membership of the Parliament

(2) Where it has been laid down in law that an international treaty shall have the force of Swedish law, the Parliament may prescribe by a decision taken in the order laid down in paragraph (1) that any future amendment to the treaty, which is binding upon the Realm, shall apply also within the Realm

(3) Any judicial or administrative function not directly based on the present Instrument of Government may be entrusted to another state, to an international organization or to a foreign or international institution or community by means of a decision of the Parliament. The Parliament may likewise authorize the Government or any other public authority to decide on such a delegation of functions in a particular situation Where the function concerned involves the exercise of public authority, the Parliament's decision shall be taken by a majority of no fewer than three fourths of those present and voting. A decision to delegate a function of this nature may also be taken in the manner prescribed for the enactment of a fundamental law.

6. The Government shall keep the Foreign Affairs Advisory Council continuously informed of those matters relating to foreign relations which may be of importance to the Realm, and shall confer with the Council in these matters as often as is necessary. In all foreign policy matters of major importance, the Government shall if possible confer with the Council before making its decision.

7. (1) The Foreign Affairs Advisory Council comprises the Speaker and nine other members to be elected by the Parliament from among its members Further provisions concerning the composition of the Council are set forth in the Parliament Act.

(2) The Foreign Affairs Advisory Council is convened by the Government The Government is obliged to convene the Council if no fewer than four Council members ask for consultations to take place on a particular matter Meetings of the Council are presided over by the Head of State or, in his unavoidable absence, by the Prime Minister.

(3) A member of the Foreign Affairs Advisory Council and any person otherwise connected with the Council shall exercise caution in communicating to others what he has learnt in such a capacity. Whoever presides over a meeting of the Council may decide on an unconditional obligation to maintain silence

8. The head of the ministry responsible for foreign affairs shall be kept informed whenever a matter arises at another State authority which is of significance for relations with another state or international organization

9. (1) The Government may commit the country's defence forces, or any part of them, to battle in order to repel an armed attack upon the Realm Swedish armed forces may otherwise be committed to battle or sent to another country only if—

1) the Parliament has assented thereto.

2) it is permitted under a law which sets out the prerequisites for such action;

3) an obligation to take such action follows from an international agreement or obligation which has been approved by the Parliament

(2) No declaration of war may be made without the consent of the Parliament, except in the event of an armed attack against Sweden

(3) The Government may authorize the defence forces to use force in accordance with international law and custom to prevent a violation of Swedish soil in time of peace or during a war between foreign states

JUDICIAL AND GENERAL ADMINISTRATION

1. (1) The Supreme Court is the highest court of general jurisdiction, and the Supreme Administrative Court is the highest administrative court. The right to have a case tried by the Supreme Court or by the Supreme Administrative Court may be restricted by law. A person may serve as a member of the Supreme Court or the Supreme Administrative Court only if that person has been appointed a permanent justice of that court.

(2) A court other than the Supreme Court or the Supreme Administrative Court must be established by law. Provisions prohibiting the establishment of a court for a particular case are laid down in Chapter 2, Article 2 (1).

(3) There shall be at least one permanent judge in any court under paragraph (2). However, with respect to courts which have been set up to try a definite group or definite groups of cases exceptions from this rule may be made by law.

2. Neither a public authority nor the Parliament may determine how a court shall adjudicate a particular case or how a court shall in other respects apply a rule of law in a particular case.

3. A legal dispute between private subjects may not be settled by an authority other than a court except by virtue of law. Provisions regarding judicial review of deprivation of liberty are laid down in Chapter 2, Article 9.

4. Provisions concerning the functions of the courts relating to the administration of justice, the principal features of the organization of the courts, and legal proceedings shall be laid down by law.

5. (1) A person appointed a permanent judge may be removed from his post only—

1) if through a criminal act or through gross or repeated neglect of his official duties he has shown himself to be manifestly unfit to hold the office, or

2) if he has reached the relevant age of retirement or is otherwise under a legal obligation to retire on pension.

(2) If a permanent judge has been removed from his office through a decision made by an authority other than a court he shall be entitled to call upon a court to review the decision. This provision shall likewise apply to any decision as a result of which a permanent judge has been suspended or ordered to undergo medical examination.

(3) If organizational reasons so require, a person appointed a permanent judge may be transferred to any other judicial office of equal status.

6. (1) The Justice Chancellor, the Chief Public Prosecutor, the central administrative boards, and the provincial governments are subordinate to the Government. Any other administrative authority of the State is subordinate to the Government, unless it is an authority under the Parliament under the terms of the present Instrument of Government or under the terms of some other law.

(2) Administrative functions may be entrusted to a local government commune

(3) Administrative functions may be entrusted to a company, an association, a community, a foundation, or a private individual. If such a function involves the exercise of public authority, it shall be entrusted to such a body or person by law

7. Neither any public authority, nor the Parliament, nor the decision making body of a local government commune may determine how an administrative authority shall make its decision in a particular case concerning the exercise of public authority against a private subject or against a commune, or concerning the application of law

8. No judicial or administrative function may be performed by the Parliament except insofar as this is provided for by a fundamental law or by the Parliament Act.

9. (1) Appointments to a post in a court or in an administrative authority under the Government shall be made by the Government or by an authority designated by the Government

(2) When making appointments to posts within the State administration attention shall be directed only to objective factors such as merit and competence

(3) Only a Swedish citizen may hold or exercise the functions of a judicial office, an office directly subordinate to the Government, a post or commission as head of an authority directly subordinate to the Parliament or to the Government, or as a member of such an authority or its board, a post in the Government Chancery immediately subordinate to a Minister or a post as a Swedish envoy. Also in other cases no one who is not a Swedish citizen may hold an office or carry out a commission, if the holder of such an office or commission is elected by the Parliament. Swedish nationality may otherwise be made a prerequisite of the right to hold or exercise an office or commission under the State or a local authority only if laid down in law or under conditions prescribed by law

10. Fundamental provisions concerning the legal status of civil servants in respects other than those covered in the present Instrument of Government shall be set forth by law

11. Judicial review of a case which is closed, and reinstatement of lapsed time, shall be granted by the Supreme Administrative Court when the case concerns a matter in respect of which the Government, an administrative court or an administrative authority is the highest instance. In all other cases, judicial review or reinstatement of lapsed time is granted by the Supreme Court or, insofar as this is prescribed by law, by another court which is not an administrative court

12. (1) The Government may grant exceptions from any provision of a statutory order, or from a provision issued by virtue of a decision by the Government, unless otherwise provided in an Act of law or in a decision on a budget appropriation

(2) Further details concerning judicial review of a closed case and reinstatement of lapsed time may be laid down in law

13. (1) The Government may by exercising mercy remit or reduce a penal sanction or other legal effect of a criminal act, and may remit or reduce any other similar intervention affecting the person or property of a private subject made by a public authority

(2) Where exceptional reasons so warrant, the Government may order that no further action be taken to investigate or prosecute a criminal act

14. If a court or any other public body considers that a provision conflicts with a provision of a fundamental law or with a provision of any other superior statute, or that the procedure prescribed was set aside in any important respect when the provision was introduced, the provision may not be applied. However, if the provision has been approved by the Parliament or by the Government, it may be set aside only if the fault is manifest

PARLIAMENTARY CONTROL

1. The Committee on the Constitution shall examine Ministers' performance of their duties and the handling of Government business. The Committee is entitled for this purpose to have access to the records of the decisions made in Cabinet matters and to all documents pertaining to such matters. Any other Parliament Committee and any member of the Parliament shall be entitled to raise in writing with the Committee on the Constitution any issue concerning a Minister's performance of his duties or concerning the handling of Cabinet business

2. It shall be incumbent upon the Committee on the Constitution to communicate to the Parliament, whenever reasons so warrant but at least once a year, any observations which the Committee may find worthy of attention in connection with its scrutiny. The Parliament may make representations to the Government as a result

3. A person who is currently or has been previously a Minister may be held accountable for a criminal act committed in the performance of his official duties only if he has grossly neglected his duties thereby. Such impeachment is a matter for decision by the Committee on the Constitution and the case shall be tried by the Supreme Court

4. (1) The Parliament may declare that a particular Minister does not enjoy the confidence of Parliament. Such a declaration of no confidence requires the concurrence therein of more than half the members of the Parliament

(2) A motion for a declaration of no confidence shall be taken up for consideration only if it is introduced by no fewer than one tenth of the members of the Parliament. It shall not be taken up for consideration during the period between the date on which an ordinary election has been held or an extra election has been declared and the Parliament elected in such an election has convened A motion which concerns a Minister holding office under the terms of Chapter 6, Article 8 after having been discharged may not be taken up for consideration in any circumstances

(3) A motion calling for a declaration of no confidence shall not be prepared in committee

5. Under provisions laid down in the Parliament Act, any member of the Parliament may submit an interpellation or put down a question for a Minister in any matter concerning the Minister's performance of his duties

6. (1) The Parliament shall elect one or more Ombudsmen to supervise under instructions laid down by the Parliament the application in public service of laws and other statutes An Ombudsman may initiate legal proceedings in the cases indicated in these instructions

(2) An Ombudsman may be present at the deliberations of a court or an administrative authority and shall have access to the minutes and other documents of any such court or authority Any court or administrative authority and any State or local government official shall provide an Ombudsman with such information and reports as he may request A similar obligation shall also be incumbent on any other person coming under the supervision of the Ombudsman A public prosecutor shall assist an Ombudsman on request

(3) Further provisions concerning the Ombudsmen are set forth in the Parliament Act

7. (1) The Parliament shall elect auditors from among its members to examine the activities of the State The Parliament may decide that the auditors' scrutiny shall extend also to other activities The Parliament draws up standing orders for the auditors

(2) Under provisions set forth in law, the auditors may demand such documents, data, and reports as are necessary for their scrutiny

(3) Further provisions concerning the auditors are set out in the Parliament Act

8. (1) Proceedings under penal law on account of a criminal act committed by a member of the Supreme Court or the Supreme Administrative Court in the exercise of his official functions shall be brought before the Supreme Court by a Parliamentary Ombudsman or by the Justice Chancellor

(2) The Supreme Court shall likewise examine and determine whether, in accordance with the provisions laid down in this connection, a member of the Supreme Court or the Supreme Administrative Court shall be removed from office or suspended from duty, or shall be obliged to undergo a medical examination Proceedings to this effect shall be initiated by a Parliamentary Ombudsman or by the Justice Chancellor

WAR AND DANGER OF WAR

1. If the country is at war or exposed to the danger of war, and the Parliament is not in session, the Government or the Speaker shall convene the Parliament. Whoever issues the notice convening the Parliament may decide that the Parliament shall meet at a place other than Stockholm. If the Parliament is in session, the Parliament, or the Speaker, may determine where it shall meet.

2. (1) If the country is at war or exposed to the danger of war, a War Delegation appointed from among the members of the Parliament shall replace the Parliament if circumstances so warrant.

(2) If the country is at war, the order appointing the War Delegation to replace the Parliament is issued by the members of the Foreign Affairs Advisory Council according to detailed provisions set forth in the Parliament Act. If possible, the Prime Minister is to be consulted before the order is issued. If war conditions prevent the Council from convening, the order is to be issued by the Government. If the country is exposed to the danger of war, the order shall be issued by the members of the Foreign Affairs Advisory Council and the Prime Minister jointly. Such an order shall be effected only if the Prime Minister and six members of the Council are in agreement thereon.

(3) The War Delegation and the Government may decide, either jointly or severally, that the Parliament shall resume its functions.

(4) Rules regarding the composition of the War Delegation are set forth in the Parliament Act.

3. (1) While the War Delegation is acting in the Parliament's place, it shall exercise the powers otherwise vested in the Parliament. It shall not, however, take decisions under Article 12 (1), (2) or (4).

(2) The War Delegation determines its own working methods.

4. If the country is at war, and if as a result the Government cannot carry out its duties, the Parliament may decide on the formation of a Government and may determine the Government's working methods.

5. (1) If the country is at war, and if in consequence thereof neither the Parliament nor the War Delegation can carry out its duties, the Government shall assume these duties to the extent it considers necessary to protect the Realm and bring hostilities to an end.

(2) The Government may not by virtue of paragraph (1) enact, amend or repeal any fundamental law, the Parliament Act, or any act concerning elections for the Parliament.

6. (1) If the country is at war or is exposed to the danger of war, or if such exceptional conditions prevail as result from war or danger of war to which the country has been exposed, the Government may, with authority in law, issue regulations by statutory order in a particular matter which shall otherwise be set forth by law in accordance with fundamental law. If necessary in any other case having regard to defence preparations, the Government may, with authority in law, decide by statutory order that any provisions set forth by law which relate to requisition or other such disposition shall be brought into force or cease to apply

(2) In any law granting authority of the kind referred to in paragraph (1), the conditions under which the authority may be used shall be scrupulously defined. Such authority does not empower the Government to enact, amend, or repeal a fundamental law, the Parliament Act, or any act concerning elections for the Parliament.

7. In the event that the country is at war or is exposed to the imminent danger of war the provisions of Chapter 2, Article 12 (3) shall not apply. The same applies in any other circumstances in which the War Delegation is acting in the Parliament's place.

8. If the country is at war or is exposed to the imminent danger of war, the Government may decide, upon authorization by the Parliament, that a function which devolves on the Government by virtue of a fundamental law shall be performed by some other authority. Such authority may not include any power under Article 5 or 6, unless it relates solely to a decision to the effect that a law in a particular matter shall begin to apply.

9. The Government may agree a cease-fire without seeking the approval of the Parliament and without consulting the Foreign Affairs Advisory Council, if deferment of the agreement would endanger the country.

10. (1) Neither the Parliament nor the Government may make decisions in occupied territory. Nor may any power vested in a person in his capacity as a member of the Parliament or as a member of the Government be exercised in such territory.

(2) It shall be incumbent on any public body in occupied territory to act in the manner which best serves the defence effort and resistance activities, the protection of the civilian population and Swedish interests at large. In no circumstances may any public body make any decision or take any action which imposes on any citizen of the Realm the duty to render assistance to the occupying power in contravention of international law.

(3) Elections for the Parliament or for decision-making local government assemblies may not be held in occupied territory.

11. If the country is at war, the Head of State should accompany the Government. Should he find himself in occupied territory or separated from the Government, he shall be deemed to be prevented from carrying out his duties as Head of State.

12. (1) If the country is at war, elections for the Parliament may be held only at the Parliament's decision. If the Realm is exposed to the danger of war when ordinary elections are due to be held, the Parliament may decide to defer the elections. Such a decision shall be reconsidered within one year and at intervals thereafter not exceeding one year. Decisions under the present paragraph shall be effective only if no fewer than three fourths of the total membership of the Parliament concur therein.

(2) If any part of the country is under foreign occupation when elections are to be held, the Parliament shall approve whatever modification of the provisions of Chapter 3 is called for. No exceptions may however be made from the provisions of Chapter 3, Article 1 (1), 2, 6 (1), or 7 to 11 by reference to the country or Realm in the provisions of Chapter 3. Article 6 (1), 7 (2) or 8 (2) shall apply instead to that part of the country for which elections are to be held. No fewer than one-tenth of all the seats shall be adjustment seats.

(3) Ordinary elections not held at the time prescribed in consequence of the provisions of paragraph (1) shall be held as soon as possible after the war ends or the danger of war subsides. It shall be incumbent upon the Government and the Speaker, either jointly or severally, to ensure that the necessary measures are taken.

(4) If, in consequence of the provisions of the present Article, an ordinary election has been held at a time other than that at which it should otherwise have been held, the Parliament shall set the date of the next following ordinary election for that month during the third or fourth year following the first-named election in which an ordinary election was due to be held in accordance with the Parliament Act.

13. If the country is at war or exposed to the danger of war, or if such exceptional conditions prevail as result from war or the danger of war, the decision-making powers of the local government assemblies shall be exercised in the manner prescribed by law.

CONSTITUTION OF SWISS CONFEDERATION (SWITZERLAND)

{Adopted on 29 May 1874}

PREAMBLE

In the Name of Almighty God, the Swiss Confederation, with the intent of strengthening the alliance of the Confederates and of maintaining and furthering the unity, strength and honour of the Swiss nation, has adopted the following Federal Constitution

1. Cantons

Together, the peoples of the 23 sovereign Cantons of Switzerland united by the present alliance, to wit

Zurich, Berne, Lucerne, Uri, Schwyz, Unterwalden (Upper and Lower), Glarus, Zug, Fribourg, Soleure, Basle (City and Rural), Schaffhausen, Appenzell (both Rhodes), St Gall, Grisons, Aargau, Thurgau, Ticino, Vaud, Valais, Neuchatel, Geneva and Jura, form the Swiss Confederation

2. Goals

The aim of the Confederation is to preserve the outward independence of the fatherland, to maintain internal peace and order, to protect the freedom and the rights of the confederates and to promote their common prosperity

3. Cantonal Sovereignty

The Cantons are sovereign insofar as their sovereignty is not limited by the Federal Constitution and, as such, exercise all rights which are not entrusted to the Federal power

4. Equality

(1) All Swiss citizens are equal before the law. In Switzerland there shall be no subjects nor privileges of place, birth, person or family

(2) Men and women have equal rights. The law shall provide for their equal treatment, especially as regards family, education and work. Men and women are entitled to equal pay for equal work

5. Guarantees

The Confederation shall guarantee the Cantons their territory, their sovereignty within the limits set forth in Article 3, their constitutions, the freedom and the rights of the people, the constitutional rights of the citizens as well as the rights and prerogatives conferred upon the authorities by the people

6. Cantonal Constitutions

(1) The Cantons are bound to request the Confederation to guarantee their constitutions

(2) This guarantee shall be afforded provided—

a) these constitutions contain nothing inconsistent with the Federal Constitution,

b) they ensure the exercise of political rights according to republican (representative or democratic) forms

7. Treaties between Cantons

(1) All separate alliances and all treaties of a political nature between Cantons are prohibited

(2) The Cantons may, however, conclude agreements among themselves concerning matters of legislation, justice and administration, provided they bring such agreements to the notice of the Federal authority, which is entitled to prevent the execution of the agreements if they contain anything contrary to the Confederation or to the rights of other Cantons. If this is not the case the contracting Cantons may request the cooperation of the Federal authorities for the execution of such agreements

8. War and Foreign Affairs

The Confederation alone has the right to declare war and to make peace as well as to conclude alliances and treaties, especially customs and commercial treaties, with foreign States

9. Cantonal Treaties

Exceptionally, the Cantons retain the right to conclude treaties with foreign States concerning matters of public economy, neighborly relations and police provided such treaties contain nothing contrary to the Confederation or to the rights of other Cantons

10. Cantonal Foreign Affairs

(1) All official intercourse between the Cantons and foreign Governments or their representatives shall take place through the agency of the Federal Council

(2) The Cantons may, however, correspond directly with subordinate authorities and officials of a foreign State with respect to the matters mentioned in Article 9

11. Military Capitulations

No military capitulations may be concluded

12. Duties of State Officials

(1) Members of the Federal authorities, Federal, civil and military officials and Federal representatives or Commissioners, as well as members of Cantonal Governments or Legislative Assemblies, may not accept pensions, allowances, titles, gifts or decorations from foreign Governments. Any infringement of this prohibition shall entail the loss of mandate or office

(2) Whoever is in possession of such a pension, title or decoration may not be elected or appointed member of a Federal authority, civil or military official of the Confederation, Federal representative or Commissioner or member of a Cantonal Government or Legislative Assembly unless before assuming the mandate or office he expressly renounces the benefit of the pension or title or has returned the decoration

(3) In the Swiss Army, no decorations may be worn and no titles conferred by foreign Governments may be assumed

(4) All officers, non-commissioned officers and soldiers are forbidden to accept such distinctions

13. Standing Army

(1) The Confederation may not maintain a standing army

(2) Without the consent of the Federal authorities, no Canton or Half-Canton may maintain a standing armed force of more than 300 men, not including Police forces

14. Military Disputes between Cantons

In the event of disputes arising among them, the Cantons are bound to refrain from taking any independent action and from arming. They shall submit to the settlement of such disputes as decided in accordance with Federal regulations

15. Military Assistance between Cantons

In the event of a Canton being suddenly threatened from without, its Government shall seek the assistance of other Cantons while simultaneously informing the Federal authority, this being done without prejudice as to the measures that authority may decide. The Cantons called upon are bound to give their assistance. The Confederation shall bear the costs.

16 Federal Military Intervention

(1) In the case of internal troubles or when danger threatens from another Canton, the Government of the threatened Canton must immediately inform the Federal Council in order to enable it to take appropriate measures within the limits of its competence [Article 102 (3), (10) and (11)] or to summon the Federal Assembly. In urgent cases while immediately informing the Federal Council, the Government is entitled to seek help from other Cantons, which are bound to provide it.

(2) Whenever the Cantonal Government is unable to summon help, the competent Federal authority may intervene without being called upon, this authority is bound to do so whenever the security of Switzerland is at stake.

(3) In the event of a Federal intervention, the Federal authorities shall ensure that the provisions of Article 5 are observed.

(4) The costs shall be borne by the Canton requesting or giving cause for a Federal intervention, unless the Federal Assembly should decide otherwise in view of special circumstances.

17. Military Passage

In the cases mentioned in Articles 15 and 16, every Canton is bound to afford free passage to armed forces. These shall immediately be placed under Federal command.

18 Military Service

(1) Every Swiss is under the obligation to perform military service.

(2) Members of the armed forces who in the course of their Federal military service lose their life or suffer permanent injury to their health shall be entitled to relief from the Confederation for themselves or for their families, should they be in need.

(3) All members of the armed forces shall be given their first arms, equipment and clothing free of charge. The soldiers shall keep their personal arms under the conditions Federal legislation shall determine.

(4) The privilege tax on exemption from military service shall be levied by the Cantons for the account of the Confederation according to the provisions of Federal legislation.

19 Federal Army

(1) The Federal army consists of

a) the troops of the Cantons,

b) all Swiss who though not belonging to those troops are nevertheless subject to military service.

(2) The right to dispose of the army as well as of the war materials provided for it by law rests with the Confederation.

(3) In time of danger, the Confederation also has the right to dispose directly and exclusively of all men not incorporated into the Federal army as well as of all other military resources of the Cantons

20. Military Affairs

(1) Legislation on military organization is a Federal concern. The execution of such legislation within the Cantons shall be ensured by the Cantonal authorities within the limits to be laid down by Federal legislation and under the supervision of the Confederation

(2) All military training is a Federal concern, the same applies to armament

(3) The supply and maintenance of clothing and equipment remains a Cantonal concern, however, the expenses resulting therefrom shall be reimbursed to the Cantons by the Confederation according to regulations to be laid down by Federal legislation

21. Composition of Military Units

(1) Insofar as there are no objections to this for military reasons, the military units shall be made up of men coming from the same Canton

(2) The composition of such units, the responsibility for maintaining their effective strength and the appointment and promotion of their officers are Cantonal concerns subject to such general regulations as the Confederation shall lay down

22. Military Ground

(1) The Confederation has the right to take over, against fair compensation, the use or the ownership of military training grounds and buildings destined to military purposes which already exist in the Cantons

(2) The regulations governing such compensation shall be laid down by Federal legislation

22bis. Civil Defence

(1) Legislation on civil defence of persons and property against the consequences of acts of war is a Federal concern

(2) The Cantons shall be consulted during the drafting of executory legislation. They shall be entrusted with its execution under the high supervision of the Confederation

(3) The contributions of the Confederation towards the cost of civil defence shall be fixed by law

(4) The Confederation is entitled to institute compulsory civil defence service for men by means of a Federal law

(5) Women may engage in voluntary civil defence service, the details of such service shall be regulated by law

(6) Allowances, insurance and compensation for loss of earnings for persons performing civil defence service shall be regulated by law

(7) A law shall regulate the use of civil defence organizations in emergencies

22ter. Property Rights

(1) The right of ownership is guaranteed

(2) To the extent allowed by their constitutional powers the Confederation and the Cantons can, by legislation and for reasons of public interest, make provision for expropriation and restrictions on ownership

(3) In cases of expropriation and restriction of ownership equivalent to expropriation, fair compensation shall be paid

22quater. Zoning Plans

(1) The Confederation shall decree by legislation principles applicable to zoning plans to be drawn up by the Cantons for the purpose of ensuring the judicious use of ground and rational land occupation

(2) It shall encourage and coordinate the efforts of the Cantons, and collaborate with them

(3) In carrying out its functions, it shall take into account the needs of land zoning at national, regional, and local level

23. Public Works

(1) The Confederation is entitled in the interest of Switzerland, or of a considerable part of it, to order public works at its own expense or to encourage such works by granting subsidies

(2) For this purpose, the Confederation may, against full compensation, make use of the right of expropriation. Detailed provisions in this regard shall be laid down by Federal legislation

(3) The Federal Assembly may prohibit public works which would affect the military interests of the Confederation

23bis Bread Grain

(1) The Confederation shall maintain such stocks of bread grain as are necessary to ensure the country's food supply. It may compel millers to store bread grain and to purchase it from the Confederation's stocks in order to facilitate the latter's renewal

(2) The Confederation shall encourage the cultivation of bread grain within the country and promote the selection and acquisition of high-quality home-grown seeds. It shall buy home-grown quality bread grain suitable for milling at a price which makes its cultivation possible. Millers can be compelled to purchase such grain at not more than the Confederation's cost price

(3) The Confederation shall ensure the existence of a national milling industry while at the same time safeguarding the interests of consumers of flour and bread. It shall supervise within the limits of its powers the trade in bread grain, bread-flour and bread as well as the prices of these commodities. The Confederation shall take the necessary measures in order to regulate the import of bread flour. It may reserve to itself the exclusive right to import this commodity. If necessary, the Confederation shall grant facilities to millers in order to reduce their inland transport costs. It shall take measures in order to adjust the price of flour in mountain areas.

(4) The revenue from customs duty levied on bread grain shall serve to cover the Confederation's costs in supplying the country with bread grain

24. Rivers and Forests

(1) The Confederation has the right of high supervision over the control of river embankments and forests

(2) It shall lend its support to works for the control and the embanking of mountain streams as well as the reforestation of their source areas. It shall lay down the regulations required to maintain such works and to preserve existing forests

24bis. Water

(1) To ensure the economical use and the protection of water and the prevention of damage by water, the Confederation, having regard to the total water economy, shall by legislation establish principles in the general interest concerning

a) the conservation and exploitation of water, especially for the supply of drinking water and the enrichment of underground water,

b) the use of water for energy production and for cooling purposes,

c) the regulation of water levels and of the flow of surface and underground water, the diversion of water outside its natural course irrigation and drainage and other intervention in the water cycle

(1) The protection of nature and landscapes is a Cantonal concern

(2) The Confederation shall, in carrying out its obligations, preserve the characteristic aspects of landscapes and localities, of historical sites as well as of natural and cultural monuments, and it shall leave them untouched whenever the general interest is predominant

(3) The Confederation may assist efforts to protect nature and landscapes by granting subsidies and it may acquire or conserve nature reserves, historical sites and monuments of national importance on a contractual basis or by means of expropriation

(4) The Confederation is entitled to legislate on the protection of animal and vegetable life

(5) Moors and marshlands of special beauty and national importance are protected objects. Installations must not be built on them and no alterations to the land of any kind may be carried out. Exceptions are installations which serve to maintain the purpose of protection and the existing agricultural use

Transitional provision. Installations, buildings and alterations to the land which conflict with the purpose of conservation areas and which are undertaken after 1st June, 1983, particularly in the Rothenthurm marshlands on the territory of Cantons Schwyz and Zug must be demolished and reversed at the builder's expense. The original State must be restored

24septies. Environmental Protection

(1) The Confederation shall legislate for the protection of man and his natural environment against harmful or annoying acts. In particular it shall counter air pollution and noise

(2) The carrying out of Federal provisions shall fall to the Cantons, insofar as the law does not limit this to the Confederation

24octies. Energy Policy

(1) The Confederation and the Cantons shall strive within the framework of their competence for a sufficient, varied and reliable, economical, and environment-compatible energy supply and for an economical and rational use of energy

- (2) The Confederation shall issue principles for
  - a) the use of domestic and renewable energies,
  - b) the economical and rational use of energy

(3) The Confederation

- a) shall issue regulations concerning the use of energy by installations, vehicles, and appliances,
- b) shall promote the development of energy techniques, particularly in the sphere of energy saving and renewable energies

(4) The Confederation shall have regard in its energy policy to the efforts of the Cantons and their communities and of the economic sector. Account is to be taken of the differing circumstances of the individual regions of the country and of economic acceptability. Measures concerning the use of energy buildings shall be taken by the Cantons.

25. Hunting and Fishing

The Confederation is entitled to legislate on hunting and fishing, particularly in order to preserve alpine game and to protect birds which are useful for agriculture and forestry.

25bis. Animal Protection

(1) The Confederation shall be empowered to legislate for the protection of animals.

(2) Federal legislation shall apply in particular to

- a) the keeping and care of animals,
- b) the use of and trade in animals,
- c) the transportation of animals,
- d) experiments involving live animals,
- e) slaughter at abattoirs and other methods of killing animals,
- f) the import of animals and products of animal origin.

(3) The carrying out of Federal regulations shall be incumbent upon the Cantons where the law does not reserve this for the Confederation.

26. Railways

Legislation on the construction and operation of railways is a Federal concern.

26bis. Pipelines

Legislation on pipelines for the transport of liquid or gaseous fuels is a Federal concern.

27. Educational System

(1) The Confederation is entitled to set up, in addition to the existing polytechnic, a Federal university and other establishments for higher education or to subsidize such institutions.

(2) The Cantons shall provide for adequate primary education which shall be placed wholly under State control. Such education shall be compulsory and, in public schools, free of charge.

(3) It shall be possible for the adherents of all religious beliefs to attend public schools without being affected in any way in their freedom of belief or conscience

(3bis) For the period of compulsory schooling the school year shall begin between mid August and mid September

(4) The Confederation shall take appropriate measures against Cantons which fail to meet these requirements

27bis {...}

27ter. Cultural Activities

(1) The Confederation is entitled to legislate by means of laws or generally binding Federal decrees

a) in order to promote Swiss film production and cultural activities in the field of cinematography,

b) in order to regulate the import and distribution of films as well as the opening and transformation of establishments for the projection of films,

if necessary, the Confederation may in so doing depart from the freedom of trade and industry, should this be justified by general cultural or State interest

(2) The Cantons shall be consulted prior to the enactment of executory legislation. The same shall apply to interested cultural and economic associations

(3) Should the Federal legislation make the opening and transformation of establishments for the projection of films dependent on the granting of a license, the Cantons shall be competent for the granting of such licenses according to the procedure they shall determine

(4) In all other respects, legislation in the field of cinematography and its execution shall remain within the competence of the Cantons.

27quater. Scholarships

(1) The Confederation may grant subsidies to the Cantons for their expenses relating to scholarships and other forms of financial aid for education

(2) The Confederation itself may, in order to complement Cantonal regulations, take steps or assist measures in order to further education by means of scholarships or other forms of financial help

(3) The autonomy of the Cantons in the field of education shall always be upheld

(4) Executory legislation shall take the form of Federal laws or generally binding Federal decrees. The Cantons shall be consulted beforehand

27quinquies. Physical Education

(1) The Confederation shall have the right to issue directives relating to gymnastics and sporting activities for young people. It shall have the power to compel by statute the teaching of gymnastics and sport in schools. It will be for the Cantons to apply Federal directives in schools.

(2) The Confederation shall encourage gymnastics and sporting activities for adults.

(3) The Confederation shall undertake the provision of a school of gymnastics and sport.

(4) The Cantons and interested organizations shall be consulted when implementing legislation is drafted.

27sexies. Scientific Research

(1) The Confederation shall encourage scientific research. Its provision of finance may be conditional on coordination being guaranteed.

(2) It can create research establishments or take over existing establishments either entirely or in part.

28. Customs

All matters relating to customs are a Federal concern. The Confederation has the right to levy import and export duties.

29. Customs Principles

(1) The following principles shall govern the levying of customs duties.

1) Import duties

a) the materials required for domestic industry and agriculture shall be subject to the lowest possible duties,

b) the same shall apply to the necessities of life,

c) luxuries shall be subject to the highest duties. Unless there are compelling reasons to the contrary, these principles shall also be applied when concluding commercial treaties with foreign States,

2) Export duty rates shall be as moderate as possible,

3) The customs legislation shall contain suitable provisions to facilitate frontier and market trade.

(2) Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions, the Confederation may, in extraordinary circumstances, resort temporarily to exceptional measures.

30. Customs Receipts

(1) The receipts from the customs duties shall accrue to the Federal treasury.

(2) { }

(3) { }

31. Freedom of Trade and Industry

(1) Freedom of trade and industry is guaranteed throughout the territory of the Confederation, subject to such limitations as are contained in the Federal Constitution and the legislation enacted under its authority.

(2) Cantonal regulations concerning the exercise of trade and industry and the taxes on such activities remain unaffected. However, such regulations shall not depart from the principle of freedom of trade and industry except where the Federal Constitution provides otherwise. Cantonal monopolies are likewise excepted.

31bis General Welfare, Economic Security

(1) Within the limits of its constitutional powers, the Confederation shall take measures to promote the general welfare and the economic security of its citizens.

(2) While promoting the general interest of the Swiss economy, the Confederation may enact regulations on the exercise of trade and industry and take measures in favour of specific economic sectors or professions. In so doing, it must respect the principle of freedom of trade and industry, subject to the provisions of paragraph (3).

(3) Where this is justified by general interest, the Confederation is entitled to enact regulations departing, if necessary, from the principle of freedom of trade and industry in order to

a) preserve important economic sectors or professions whose existence is threatened and to improve the skills of persons exercising an independent activity in those sectors or professions,

b) maintain a sound peasant population, ensure agricultural productivity and consolidate rural landownership,

c) protect regions whose economy is threatened,

d) prevent economically or socially harmful effects of cartels and similar groupings,

e) take precautionary measures for the economic protection of the country and also measures to ensure that the country is supplied with vital goods and services in the event of severe shortages which the economy itself cannot remedy.

(4) Regulations under headings a) and b) shall be enacted only if the economic sectors or professions to be protected have taken such measures to help themselves as can reasonably be expected of them.

(5) Federal legislation enacted under paragraph (3)(a) and (b), shall promote the development of organizations based on mutual assistance.

31ter. Restaurants

(1) The Cantons may legislate to make the running of establishments serving food or drink depend on professional and personal qualifications and also to subordinate the number of establishments to the existence of a need whenever the very existence of this trade is threatened by excessive competition. In so doing, due account shall be taken of the importance of the various types of establishments for the public welfare.

(2) Furthermore, the Confederation may, within the limits of its own legislative powers, authorize the Cantons to enact regulations on matters which do not call for Federal legislation and concerning which the Cantons themselves have no legislative powers.

31quater. Banking

- (1) The Confederation is entitled to legislate on banking
- (2) Such legislation shall take into consideration the specific task and position of the Cantonal banks

31quinquies. Economic Policy

(1) The Confederation shall take measures to ensure balanced economic development and, in particular, to prevent and combat unemployment and price inflation. It shall collaborate with the Cantons and private enterprise

(2) In the case of measures in the monetary and banking spheres, public finances and foreign trade, the Confederation can, if necessary, depart from the principle of freedom of trade and industry. It can oblige firms to form tax-privileged employment creation reserves. After their release the firms shall freely decide how to use them within the purpose laid down by law.

(3) When drawing up their estimates the Confederation, the Cantons and the Communes shall take into consideration the requirements of the economic situation. The Confederation can temporarily levy surcharges or grant rebates on Federal taxes to stabilize the economy. The money withdrawn from circulation is to be frozen for as long as the economic situation requires. Direct taxes shall then be refunded individually, indirect ones shall be used for the granting of rebates or for work creation.

(4) The Confederation shall take into consideration the varying economic development of the individual regions of the country.

(5) The Confederation shall conduct the necessary economic policy surveys.

31sexies. Consumer Protection

(1) The Confederation, while safeguarding the general interests of the Swiss economy as a whole and freedom of trade and industry, shall take measures to protect the consumer.

(2) In the area of Federal legislation on unfair competition consumer organizations have the same rights as professional and industrial associations.

(3) For disputes arising from contracts between end users and suppliers the Cantons shall, in cases up to a value prescribed by the Federal Council, provide for an arbitration procedure or a simple and quick litigation procedure.

(4) To prevent abuses in price fixing the Confederation shall issue regulations for monitoring the prices and price recommendations for goods and services of enterprises and organizations governed by public and private law, especially of cartels and cartel-like bodies, with a dominant position in the market. Insofar as the purpose requires it, such prices can be reduced.

32. Procedures for Economic Regulations

(1) Provisions mentioned in Articles 31bis, 31ter (2), 31quater, and 31quinquies may only be enacted through Federal laws or Federal decrees on which a popular vote can be requested. In the case of emergencies occurring during periods of economic disturbances, Article 89bis shall remain applicable

(2) The Cantons shall be consulted prior to the enactment of executory legislation. As a rule, the execution of the Federal regulations shall be entrusted to them.

(3) Interested economic organizations shall be consulted prior to the enactment of executory legislation and may be called upon to cooperate in the application of executory regulations.

32bis. Alcohol

(1) The Confederation is entitled to legislate on the manufacture, import, refining, sale and taxation of distilled spirits.

(2) This legislation shall aim at reducing the consumption and consequently the import and manufacture of spirits. It shall encourage the growing of table-fruit and the use of indigenous raw materials suitable for distillation as food or fodder. The Confederation shall reduce the number of stills by way of agreed purchases.

(3) Concessions for industrial manufacture of distilled spirits shall be granted to cooperative and other private enterprises. The concessions thus granted shall facilitate the use of waste products from the cultivation of fruit-trees, grapes and sugarbeets and of the surplus production of fruits and potatoes to the extent that such raw materials cannot be suitably employed otherwise.

(4) Non-commercial manufacture of distilled spirits from fruit, fruit-waste, cider, wine, grape-skins, lees of wine, gentian roots, and similar materials shall remain authorized in existing domestic or circulating stills provided those materials are exclusively indigenous and either the product of the distiller's own harvest or grown wild. Such spirits shall be tax-free to the extent that they are necessary for the manufacturer's household or agricultural activities. Domestic stills continuing to operate after a period of 15 years as from the adoption of this article shall, in order to be able to continue their production, have to apply for a license which shall be granted to them free of charge, subject to the conditions to be specified by law.

(5) Specialties produced from distilled stone-fruit, wine, grape-skins, lees of wine, gentian roots and similar products shall be subject to taxation. The producer shall, however, be enabled to obtain a fair remuneration for the indigenous raw materials he uses.

(6) With the exception of tax-free quantities for home consumption and specialties, the distilled spirits produced in the country are to be delivered to the Confederation, which shall take them over against a fair price.

(7) No taxes shall be levied on products which are exported, in transit or denatured.

(8) The yield of taxes on sales in public establishments and on retail trade within the limits of their territory shall remain the due of the Cantons. Licenses for inter-Cantonal and international retail trade shall be granted by the Confederation; the corresponding revenue shall be distributed amongst the Cantons in proportion to their normal resident population

(9) The Cantons shall receive 10 per cent of the Confederation's net revenue from taxes on spirits, which they must spend on combating the causes and effects of alcoholism and the abuse of addictive and narcotic drugs and of medicaments. The funds shall be distributed among the Cantons in proportion to their resident populations. The Confederation must spend its share on old age, survivors' and disability insurance.

32ter. Absinthe Prohibition

(1) The manufacture, import, transport, sale and holding for sale of the liquor called absinthe are prohibited throughout the Confederation. This prohibition extends to all spirits which, whatever their designation, are an imitation of absinthe. It does not apply to transit of absinthe nor to its use for pharmaceutical purposes.

(2) The prohibition shall enter into force two years after its adoption. Federal legislation shall lay down the provisions rendered necessary by the prohibition.

(3) The Confederation is entitled to decree the same prohibition, by means of legislation, with respect to all other beverages containing absinthe which might constitute a public danger.

32quater. Innkeeping

(1) The Cantons are entitled to enact legislation in order to subject the practice of the innkeeping profession and the retail trade in spirits to the restrictions required by public welfare. Trade in quantities less than two liters is deemed to be retail trade in the case of non-distilled spirits.

(2) The Cantons may, within the limits of Article 31 (2), and by appropriate legislation, subject the trade in non-distilled spirits in quantities ranging from 2 to 10 liters to the granting of a license and the payment of a modest fee as well as to supervision by the authorities.

(3) The sale of non-distilled spirits may not be subjected by the Cantons to the payment of special taxes apart from licensing fees.

(4) Corporate persons may not be treated less favourably by Cantons than individuals. Producers of wine and cider may sell their own production in quantities of two liters and more, without authorization and without paying any fee.

(5) The Confederation is entitled to legislate on the trade in non-distilled spirits in quantities of two liters and more. Such provisions may not infringe the principle of freedom of trade and industry.

(6) Hawking and other forms of itinerant sale of spirits are prohibited.

33. Liberal Professions

(1) The Cantons may require proofs of capacity from persons who intend to exercise a liberal profession.

(2) Federal legislation shall provide the possibility for such persons to obtain certificates of capacity valid throughout the Confederation.

34. Child Labor, Worker Protection, Insurance Firms

(1) The Confederation is entitled to enact uniform regulations on the employment of children in factories and on the working hours of adult persons. It is likewise entitled to enact regulations in order to protect the worker against the operation of unhealthy and dangerous industries.

(2) The business operations of emigration agencies and of private insurance firms are subject to the supervision and legislation of the Confederation.

d) adequate compensation for loss of wages and earnings due to military service,

e) employment agencies,

f) { }

g) vocational training in the fields of industry, crafts, commerce, agriculture, and domestic service.

(2) The generally binding effect under heading c) may only be decreed in the field of labour relations and provided such regulations take due account of legitimate minority interests and regional diversities and do not affect equality before the law and freedom of association.

(4) The provisions of Article 32 shall be applicable by analogy.

34quater. Retirement and Disability Insurance

(1) The Confederation shall adopt the measures necessary to promote an adequate old age, survivors', and disability insurance scheme. This scheme shall be provided for by a Federal insurance, professional insurance and insurance undertaken by the individual.

(2) The Confederation shall institute, by means of legislation, compulsory insurance for old age, survivors' and the disabled covering the entire population. This insurance shall provide for benefits in cash and in kind. Payments shall take appropriate account of basic needs. Maximum payments shall not exceed double the minimum payments. Payments shall be adjusted at least to the cost of living.

The insurance schemes shall be implemented with the co-operation of the Cantons; professional associations and other private or public organizations may be called upon to cooperate. The insurance shall be financed

a) by contributions by those insured, in the case of wage or salary-earners, half the contributions shall be the responsibility of the employer,

b) by a contribution from the Confederation, which shall not exceed one half of the cost, and which shall be covered in the first instance by the net revenue from the tax and customs duty on tobacco, as well as by tax on spirits under the provisions of Article 32bis (9),

c) if provided for in the implementing regulations, by a contribution from the Cantons, which shall reduce accordingly the share provided by the Confederation.

(3) In order to allow elderly people, survivors, and disabled persons to maintain their previous standard of living in an appropriate manner, the Confederation shall — taking into account the provisions of the Federal insurance scheme — institute the following measures with regard to professional insurance by means of legislation

a) it shall oblige employers to insure their personnel with an insurance institution for business enterprises, administrations, or associations, or with some similar institution and to assume responsibility for at least half of the contributions,

b) it shall fix the minimum requirements which these insurance institutions must satisfy, it shall be entitled, in order to resolve certain special problems, to make provisions for measures applying to the whole country,

c) it shall take steps to ensure that every employer is able to insure personnel with an insurance institution, it shall have power to set up a Federal fund,

d) it shall take steps to ensure that all self-employed persons have the option of insuring themselves with an institution undertaking professional insurance under conditions equivalent to those offered to salary or wage-earners. Insurance can be made obligatory for certain categories of self-employed persons generally or for covering specific risks

(4) The Confederation shall take steps to ensure that the professional insurance as well as the Federal insurance schemes are able, in the long term, to develop in accordance with their aims

(5) The Cantons can be obliged to grant tax exemptions to institutions engaged in Federal insurance or professional insurance, as well as tax relief to those insured, and to their employers with regard to contributions and rights to benefits

(6) The Confederation, in collaboration with the Cantons, shall encourage individuals to provide for their future, notably through fiscal measures and policies which establish rights of ownership

(7) The Confederation shall encourage the rehabilitation of disabled persons and support efforts made to assist elderly persons survivors and the disabled It shall be entitled to use the financial resources of the Federal insurance scheme for this purpose

34quinquies. Family Protection

(1) The Confederation shall, in the exercise of the power conferred upon it and within the limits set by the Constitution have due regard for the needs of the family.

(2) The Confederation is entitled to legislate in the field of family compensation funds It may declare adherence thereto compulsory for all or for specific categories of citizens It shall take account of the existing funds, assist the efforts of the Cantons and professional associations to set up new funds and it is entitled to establish a central compensation fund It may make its financial contributions dependent on adequate participation of the Cantons

(3) { }

(4) The Confederation shall institute maternity insurance by means of legislation It may declare adhesion thereto compulsory for all or for specific categories of citizens and it may require persons to contribute financially who are not eligible for insurance benefits It may make its financial contribution dependent on an adequate participation of the Cantons

(5) The laws enacted pursuant to this Article shall be implemented with the cooperation of the Cantons, private and public associations may be called upon to cooperate

109. Federal Court Organization

The Federal Court shall organize its chancery and appoint its staff

110. Federal Court Civil Jurisdiction

(1) The Federal Court shall adjudicate civil law disputes

1) between the Confederation and the Cantons,

2) between the Confederation and corporations or private persons if the subject of the dispute is of a degree of importance to be determined by Federal legislation and if those corporations or private persons are plaintiffs,

3) between the Cantons,

4) between Cantons and corporations or private persons if the subject of the dispute is of a degree of importance to be determined by the Federal legislation and if one of the parties so requests

(2) The Federal Court shall also adjudicate disputes concerning Statelessness and disputes between Communes of different Cantons concerning questions of citizenship

111. Federal Court Choice of Jurisdiction

The Federal Court is also bound to adjudicate other cases if both parties agree to refer them to it and if the subject of the dispute is of a degree of importance to be determined by Federal legislation

112. Federal Court Criminal Jurisdiction, Jury

The Federal Court shall pass judgment, with the assistance of a jury to give a verdict on the facts, in criminal cases concerning

1) High treason against the Confederation, revolt and violence against the Federal authorities,

2) crimes and offences against the law of nations,

3) political crimes and offences which are the cause or the consequence of disorders which give rise to an armed Federal intervention

4) Charges against officials appointed by a Federal authority, if the latter refers them to the Federal Court

113. Federal Court Public Law Jurisdiction

(1) The Federal Court shall further adjudicate

1) Conflicts of competence between Federal authorities on the one hand and authorities of the Cantons on the other,

2) disputes between Cantons in the field of public law,

3) complaints concerning the violation of the constitutional rights of citizens as well as individual complaints concerning the violation of concordats and international treaties

(2) The administrative disputes which shall be specified by Federal legislation are excepted

(3) In all aforementioned instances, the Federal Court shall apply the laws and generally binding decree adopted by the Federal Assembly, as well as the international treaties approved by this Assembly

114. Federal Court Conferred Jurisdiction

Federal legislation may also confer jurisdiction upon the Federal Court on matters other than those specified in Articles 110, 112 and 113, it may, in particular, with regard to the enactment of the Federal laws provided for in Article 64, determine the competence necessary to ensure their uniform application

Part IVbis—Federal administrative and disciplinary jurisdiction

114bis. Federal Administrative Court

(1) The Federal Administrative Court shall adjudicate administrative disputes falling within the scope of the Confederation and referred to it by Federal legislation

(2) The Administrative Court shall also adjudicate disciplinary cases of the Federal administration referred to it by Federal legislation insofar as such cases shall not be referred to a special jurisdiction

(3) The Court shall apply the Federal legislation and the treaties approved by the Federal Assembly

(4) The Cantons are entitled, subject to the approval of the Federal Assembly, to refer to the Federal Administrative Court for adjudication administrative disputes falling within the scope of their competence

(5) The organization of Federal administrative and disciplinary jurisdiction and its procedure shall be determined by law

Part V—Miscellaneous Provisions

115. Seat of Federal Authorities

Everything concerning the seat of the Federal authorities shall be a matter of Federal legislation

116. Languages

(1) German, French, Italian and Romansh are the national languages of Switzerland

(2) German, French and Italian are declared to be the official languages of the Confederation

117. Official Liability

The officials of the Confederation are responsible for their official activities. A Federal law shall specify the scope of this responsibility

REVISION OF THE FEDERAL CONSTITUTION

118. Constitutional Revision

At any time, the Federal Constitution may be revised wholly or in part

119. Constitutional Total Revision

The total revision shall be carried out in accordance with the forms laid down for Federal legislation

120. Constitutional Total Revision Procedures

(1) If one section of the Federal Assembly decides on a total revision of the Federal Constitution and the other does not consent or if 100,000 Swiss citizens entitled to vote demand the total revision of the Federal Constitution, the question whether such a revision should take place or not must be submitted in both cases to the vote of the Swiss people

(2) If in either of these cases the majority of the Swiss citizens casting a vote give an affirmative answer, both Councils shall be elected anew in order to undertake the revision

121. Constitutional Partial Revision Procedures

(1) Partial revision may be carried out either by means of a popular initiative or in accordance with the forms laid down or Federal legislation

(2) The popular initiative consists of a request, presented by a hundred thousand Swiss citizens entitled to vote, aiming at the introduction, setting aside or modification of specified Articles of the Federal Constitution.

(3) If by means of a popular initiative several different provisions are to be modified or introduced into the Federal Constitution, each one must be the subject of a separate initiative request.

(4) An initiative request may consist of a general proposal or take the form of a complete draft

(5) If such a request consists of a general proposal and if it meets with the approval of the Federal Chambers, the latter shall prepare a partial revision along the lines of the proposal and submit their draft to the people and the Cantons for adoption or rejection. If the Federal Chambers do not approve of the request, the question of partial revision shall be submitted to the decision of the people; if the majority of the Swiss citizens casting a vote decide in the affirmative, the Federal Assembly shall undertake the revision in conformity with the decision of the people.

(6) If the request is in the form of a complete draft and if it meets with the approval of the Federal Assembly, the draft shall be submitted to the people and the Cantons for adoption or rejection. If the Federal Assembly disagrees, it may prepare its own draft or recommend the rejection of the proposed draft and submit its own draft or recommendation of rejection together with the draft proposed by the initiative to the decision of the people and the Cantons.

121bis. Constitutional Alternative Revision Procedures

(1) If the Federal Assembly draws up a counter-draft, three questions shall be submitted to the voters on the same ballot paper. Every voter can State unreservedly.

1) whether he prefers the popular initiative to the law in force,

2) whether he prefers the counter-draft to the law in force,

3) which of the two texts should enter into force if the people and the Cantons prefer both texts to the law in force

(2) The absolute majority shall be determined for each question separately. Unanswered questions shall not count.

(3) If both the popular initiative and the counter-draft are accepted, the result of the third question shall decide the issue. The text which obtains more of the people's and Cantons' votes on this question shall come into force. If, on the other hand, one text obtains more of the people's votes and the other more of the Cantons' votes, then neither of the texts shall come into force

122. Popular Initiative Procedures

A Federal law shall determine the procedure to be followed in the case of popular initiative requests and votes on the revision of the Federal Constitution

123. Constitutional Revision Approval

(1) The revised Federal Constitution or the revised part of it as the case may be, shall enter into force if it has been approved by the majority of the Swiss citizens casting a vote and the majority of the Cantons

(2) In order to determine the majority of the Cantons the vote of each Half-Canton is counted as half a vote

(3) The result of the popular vote in each canton is considered to be the vote of that Canton

CHAPTER IV*TRANSITIONAL PROVISIONS*1. Military Finances Transition

(1) The revenue from the posts and from customs duties shall be distributed according to the existing system until the Confederation shall in fact take over the military expenses borne up to now by the Cantons

(2) Furthermore, Federal legislation shall ensure that losses which might result for the finances of certain

Cantons from the combined effect of the changes introduced by Articles 20, 30, 36 (2), and 42 e) will affect them gradually and become fully effective only after a transitional period of several years

(3) Cantons which, at the time of the coming into force of Article 20 have not fulfilled the military obligations placed upon them by the former Federal Constitution and the Federal laws, are bound to carry them out at their own expense

2. Derogation of Law

The provisions of existing Federal laws, concordats, Cantonal Constitutions, and laws which are inconsistent with the present Federal Constitution shall cease to be in force with the adoption of the latter or, as the case may be, the enactment of the Federal laws it provides for

3. Federal Court Transition

The new provisions concerning the organization and jurisdiction of the Federal Court shall only enter into force after the enactment of the pertinent Federal laws

4. Schooling Transition

(1) A time-limit of five years shall be granted to the Cantons for the introduction of free public primary education (Article 27)

(2) They shall be given a time-limit of five years to introduce the beginning of the school year in accordance with Article 27 (3bis)). The Federal Council shall take measures in accordance with Article 27 (4) by means of an Ordinance. It shall notify the Federal Assembly of this.

5. Liberal Profession Transition

Persons carrying on a learned profession, who prior to the enactment of the Federal legislation provided for in Article 33 have obtained a certificate of competence from a Canton or from an authority representing several Cantons pursuant to a concordat, shall be entitled to carry on their profession throughout the Confederation.

6. Privilege Tax Transition

For the years 1959 and 1960, the Cantons' share of the receipts from the privilege tax on exemption from military service, including their fee for collecting it, is fixed at 31 per cent, as from 1st January, 1961, this share shall be replaced by a collecting fee of 20 per cent of the gross receipts. All contrary provisions of the Federal legislation shall cease to be in force.

7. Freight Document Transition

(1) The stamp duty on freight documents shall no longer be levied after 1st January, 1959. All contrary provisions of the Federal legislation shall cease to be in force.

(2) Freight documents for the transport of luggage, animals and goods by the Federal railways and by transport enterprises which have been granted a concession by the Confederation shall not be subjected by the Cantons to stamp or registration duty.

3. Additional Taxes Transition

(1) Subject to Federal Acts within the meaning of Article 41ter, the provisions applicable on 31st December 1981 to turnover tax, direct Federal Tax (formerly defence tax), and beer tax shall remain in force with the following amendments.

(2) With effect from 1st October 1982 the following provisions shall apply to the turnover tax:

a) the tax rate shall amount to 6.2 per cent of returns in the case of retail deliveries and 9.3 per cent in the case of wholesale deliveries,

b) painters and sculptors shall be exempt from taxation in respect of the works of art which they themselves have created.

(3) For the tax years after 31st December 1982 direct Federal Tax shall be regulated as follows:

a) allowances deducted from the income of individuals shall amount to

- 4000 francs for married persons,
- 2000 francs for each child,
- 2000 francs for each needy person,

— 3000 francs for widowed, divorced or single taxpayers who run a household containing children or needy persons,

— for insurance premiums and interest from savings capital together.

2500 francs for widowed, divorced or single persons

3000 francs for married persons,

— 4000 francs from the income from gainful activity of the spouse, when both husband and wife pursue a gainful activity

b) the amount of tax due from individuals shall be reduced as follows

— 30 per cent on the first 100 francs of the annual tax,

— 20 per cent on the next 300 francs of the annual tax,

— 10 per cent on the next 500 francs of the annual tax

c) the reduction granted up to the end of 1982 to married persons on the amount of tax shall be cancelled,

d) a Vice Chairman shall be appointed to the Federal Commission for Remission of direct Federal Tax. The competent Cantonal authority shall rule on applications for remission of direct Federal Tax up to a tax amount of 1000 francs

(4) The Federal Council shall adapt its decrees on turnover tax and defence tax to the amendments in paragraphs (2) and (3). In the case of turnover tax it shall also regulate the effects of passing on the tax for the transitional period. The term "defence tax" shall be replaced by "direct Federal Tax" in all laws and regulations

9. Tax Amnesty Transition

(1) During the years 1969 to 1973, the Confederation can institute a special tax amnesty for Federal, Cantonal and Communal taxes

(2) Federal legislation shall determine the date of this amnesty and specify its conditions and effects

10. Cantonal Equalization Transition

(1) Until the introduction of new rules for financial equalization among the Cantons, the present 6 per cent commission of the Cantons shall be replaced as from 1st January 1972 by a Cantonal share of 12 per cent of the net withholding tax yield. Federal legislation shall determine the share of each Canton

(2) In years when the withholding tax exceeds 30 per cent the Cantons' share shall amount to 10 per cent

11. Retirement and Disabled Insurance

(1) Insofar as the provisions for Federal insurance do not cover basic requirements, as defined in Article 31 supra, (2) the Confederation shall grant the Cantons subsidies for the financing of supplementary allowances. For this purpose it may use fiscal resources intended for the financing of the Federal Insurance Scheme. The maximum contribution of the public authorities stipulated in Article 34quater (2)(b) and (c), shall be calculated so as to take into account these Federal subsidies and the corresponding contributions of the Cantons.

(2) Those insured who belong to the relevant generation at the time of the introduction of the system for obligatory professional insurance, in accordance with Article 34quater (3), shall be able to benefit from the minimum legally prescribed protection after a period whose duration, calculated from the time the law comes into effect, shall vary between 10 and 20 years, according to the amount of their income. The law shall specify those persons belonging to the relevant generation at the time of the introduction, and shall determine the minimum allowance granted during the transitional period, it shall take into account, by special provisions, the situation of those insured for whom an employer had made insurance arrangements prior to the law's coming into effect. The contributions necessary for covering the allowances must reach their normal level after a period of no more than five years.

14 {...}

15 {...}

16. Supplementary Tax Transition

Subject to amendment by legislation, the supplementary tax on motor fuels shall amount to 30 centimes per liter

17. Annual Road Charge Transition

(1) The Confederation shall levy on domestic and foreign motor vehicles and trailers with a total weight of over 3.5 tons each an annual charge for the use of all roads open to general traffic

(2) This charge shall amount to

- a) for lorries and articulated motor vehicles
  - over 3.5 and up to 11 tons 500 francs
  - over 11 and up to 16 tons 1500 francs
  - over 16 and up to 19 tons 2000 francs
  - over 19 tons 3000 francs
- b) for trailers
  - over 3.5 and up to 8 tons 500 francs
  - over 8 and up to 10 tons 1000 francs
  - over 10 tons 1500 francs
- c) for coaches 500 francs

(3) In the case of vehicles which are not on the road in Switzerland for the whole year, the Federal Council shall fix graduated rates commensurate with the length of time involved, it shall take into consideration the cost of collecting the charge

(4) The Federal Council shall regulate the implementation by Ordinance. It can determine the rates, within the meaning of paragraph (2), for special categories of vehicle, exempt specific vehicles from the charge and issue special regulations, particularly for journeys in the frontier area. Such regulations shall not result in vehicles registered abroad being treated more favorably than Swiss vehicles. The Federal Council can provide for fines for contraventions. The Cantons shall collect the charge for vehicles registered in Switzerland.

(5) This charge shall be levied for a period of 10 years. Before the expiry of this time limit the charge can be wholly or partially abolished by legislation.

18 National Highway Charge Transition

(1) The Confederation shall levy on domestic and foreign motor vehicles and trailers up to a total weight of 3.5 tons each an annual charge of 30 francs for the use of the first and second class national highways.

(2) The Federal Council shall regulate the implementation by ordinance. It can exempt specific vehicles from the charge and issue special regulations, particularly for journeys in the frontier area. Such regulations shall not result in vehicles registered abroad being treated more favorably than Swiss vehicles. The Federal Council can provide for fines for contraventions. The Cantons shall collect the charge for vehicles registered in Switzerland and monitor the keeping of the regulations by all vehicles.

(3) This charge shall be levied for a period of 10 years. Before the expiry of this time limit the charge can be wholly or partially abolished by legislation.

19. Nuclear Energy Moratorium Transition

For a period of 10 years after the adoption of this transitional provision by the people and the Cantons no planning, building, start-up, or operating permits shall be issued under Federal law for new installations for the production of nuclear energy (nuclear power stations or nuclear reactors for heating purposes). Installations of the kind for which building permission under Federal law was not granted up to 30th September 1986 count as new.

CONSTITUTION OF UNITED KINGDOM

CHAPTER 1 HUMAN RIGHTS

PART 1 LEGAL FRAMEWORK

1. Overview

There is no written constitution or comprehensive Bill of Rights, Britain's constitution is to be found partly in conventions and customs and partly in statute. The Act known as the Bill of Rights 1689 deals with the exercise of the royal prerogative and succession to the Crown.

The British legal system provides some remedies to deal with human rights abuses. For instance, the remedy of 'habeas corpus' secures the individual's right to freedom from any unlawful or arbitrary detention.

Parliament, however, has power to enact any law and change any previous law. There is no fundamental distinction between 'public law' and 'private law'. Any person can take proceedings against the Government or a local government authority to protect his or her legal rights and to obtain a remedy for any injury suffered.

Information Source: This document is not a written Constitution, but rather a compilation of information material originally provided by the British Embassy together with some amendments.

Britain has not generally codified its law and courts adopt a relatively strict and literal approach to the interpretation of statutes. The ratification of a treaty or international convention does not make it automatically part of the domestic law. Where necessary, the Government amends domestic law to bring it in line with the convention. Because of Britain's membership of the European Community, Community law is part of British law and takes precedence in the event of conflict between the two.

INTERNATIONAL HUMAN RIGHTS

2 International Arrangements

Since the Universal Declaration of Human Rights is not a legally binding document, the UN General Assembly adopted, in 1966, the 'International Covenant on Economic, Social and Political Rights' and the 'International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights'. Britain ratified both covenants in 1976. Britain is bound by the Council of Europe's 1953 'European Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms'. The Convention allows individual petitions against governments to the European Commission on Human Rights, if all possible domestic remedies have been exhausted. Since 1966 Britain has accepted the right of individual petition under the Convention and the compulsory jurisdiction of the European Court of Human Rights. The outcome of some cases has led to changes in British law to improve human rights, for example the abolition of corporal punishment in State schools and improved rights for prisoners. Britain is not a party to the Convention's Fourth Protocol (Freedom of Movement) because of inconsistency with some aspects of the United Kingdom immigration control system nor the Sixth Protocol (abolition of the death penalty).

GENERAL PROVISIONS

3 Human Dignity

All human beings are born free and equal in dignity and rights, endowed with reason and conscience, and should act towards one another in a spirit of brotherhood.

1 Equality

Everyone is equally entitled to all rights and freedoms without distinction of any kind, such as race, colour, sex, language, religion, political or other opinion, national or social origin, property, birth, or other status.

(1) Sex Discrimination. It is unlawful to treat one person less favourably than another on grounds of sex when offering employment. This also applies to education courses and the provision to the public of housing, goods, facilities and services such as insurance. Advertisements indicating an intention to discriminate in this way are also illegal.

(2) Equal Pay Women employed by the same employer can claim the same pay as men for work of equal value. This right also applies to work which is the same or broadly similar or work which is judged equal by a job evaluation scheme. The same rights apply to men.

(3) European Community Legislation States are obliged to eliminate discrimination in State Social Security Schemes providing protection against sickness, unemployment, invalidity, old age, accidents at work or occupational diseases.

(4) Racial Equality It is unlawful to treat one person less favourably than another on grounds of race, colour, nationality or ethnic or national origins. This applies to employment (including training), education, and the provision to the public of housing, goods, facilities and services, and premises. Discriminatory advertisements are also unlawful.

PART 4 INTEGRITY

5. Personal Integrity

Everyone has the right to life, Liberty, and the security of person.

(1) Taking of Life The mandatory penalty for murder is imprisonment for life. Anyone sent to prison for murder is liable to be detained for the rest of his or her life but may be released on license.

(2) Control of Firearms There is strict licensing and control over the sale of firearms and their possession. Private ownership of highly dangerous weapons is banned.

(3) Victims of violent crime, including foreign nationals, may apply for compensation under the Criminal Injuries Compensation Scheme. In 1990 the Government published its Victims' Charter setting out for the first time the rights and expectations of victims of violent and other crime. There are more than 350 Victim Support Schemes with over 6,000 trained volunteers which help well over 500,000 people a year.

(4) In Northern Ireland the security forces have special powers to search, question and arrest suspected terrorists. Throughout Britain the maximum period for which the police can hold a suspected terrorist is 48 hours. This period can be extended for up to five days with the consent of the appropriate Secretary of State. The Government has powers to ban terrorist organizations in Northern Ireland and in the rest of Britain.

(5) Incitement to racial hatred is a criminal offence. It is against the law to use threatening, abusive, or insulting words or to display, publish or distribute such material. It is also an offence to possess racially inflammatory material, the police having powers of search, seizure and forfeiture.

6 Abolishment of Slavery

No one may be held in slavery or servitude, slavery and the slave trade are prohibited

7. Punishment

No one shall be subjected to torture or to cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment

(1) If a police officer fails to comply with this provision, he or she can be disciplined and the courts may reject any evidence so obtained

(2) Custody Under the Criminal Justice Act 1991, the offence must be so serious that it merits custody. Longer custodial sentences — within the statutory maxima — will be given to persistent violent and sexual offenders in order to protect the public from serious harm

(3) Most prisoners are eligible for remission of one-third of their sentence. Release is unconditional and does not involve any official supervision in the community. It may be forfeited for serious misconduct in prison

(4) Parole. Prisoners serving more than 12 months can be released conditionally on parole when they have served one-third of the sentence, or six months, whichever expires the later. Three-quarters of prisoners serving sentences of less than two years receive parole. The parole license remains in force until the date on which the prisoner would otherwise have been released from prison

(5) Life Sentence Prisoners. People serving life sentences for the murder of police and prison officers, terrorist murders, murder by firearms in the course of crime or the sexual or sadistic murder of children are normally detained for at least 20 years. Life sentence prisoners are released on life license and are subject to recall should their behavior suggest that they might again be a danger to the public

8. Marriage and Family

(1) Men and women of full age, without any limitation due to race, nationality or religion, have the right to marry and to found a family. They are entitled to equal rights as to marriage, during marriage and at its dissolution

(2) Marriage shall be entered into only with the free and full consent of the intending spouses

(3) The family is the natural and fundamental group unit of society and is entitled to protection by society and the State

(4) All marriages are registered by the State. It is unlawful to force anyone to marry against his or her will or to bring about a marriage by fraudulent means

(5) Members of the family are in an advantageous position in matters of succession. If death occurs without a valid will, the spouse and children of the deceased have priority. Children have equal rights of inheritance from parents whether the parents are married or unmarried

9. Property

(1) Everyone has the right to own property alone as well as in association with others.

(2) No one shall be arbitrarily deprived of his property

(3) Compensation is paid for any losses suffered through compulsory purchase or the deterioration of property as a result of activities by public authorities

PART 5*LEGAL PROTECTION*10. Dignity before courts

Everyone has the right to recognition everywhere as a person before the law

11. Equality before the law

All are equal before the law and are entitled without any discrimination to equal protection of the law.

12. Redress and Remedies

Everyone has the right to an effective remedy by the competent national tribunals for acts violating the fundamental rights granted him by the constitution or by law

(1) Redress and Remedies Everyone has the right of access to the courts and to the legal remedies available there

(2) Legal aid schemes help people with limited resources to meet the cost of work done by a lawyer. Solicitors give legal advice and assistance to suspects at police stations

(3) All State authorities are subject to judicial control. Government departments and public authorities can be sued for compensation for wrongful acts or breach of contract in the same way as individuals

Everyone is entitled in full equality to a fair and public hearing by an independent and impartial tribunal in the determination of his rights and obligations and of any criminal charge against him

(1) Civil and criminal cases are heard by an independent judiciary

(2) In criminal cases the prosecution must prove guilt beyond reasonable doubt Following a series of miscarriages of justice which took place in the mid 1970s, the Government has set up a Royal Commission to examine the effectiveness of the criminal justice system

(3) In jury trials the Judge decides questions of law, sums up the evidence for the jury, and discharges the accused or passes sentence A jury is independent of the judiciary Any attempt to interfere with the jury once it is sworn in is a criminal offence

(4) Publicity Court proceedings are normally held in public and reporters from the media are admitted. In rape cases, the identity of the complainant cannot be reported.

14. Presumption of Innocence

(1) Everyone charged with a penal offence has the right to be presumed innocent until proved guilty according to law in a public trial at which he has had all the guarantees necessary for his defence.

(2) No one shall be held guilty of any penal offence on account of any act or omission which did not constitute a penal offence, under national or international law, at the time when it was committed. Nor shall a heavier penalty be imposed than the one that was applicable at the time the penal offence was committed.

PART 6 LIBERTIES

15 Personal Liberty

No one shall be subjected to arbitrary arrest, detention, or exile. Everyone has a legal right to personal liberty. No one can be arrested with the exception of those suspected of committing a crime, those failing to comply with certain civil court orders, or individuals in contempt of a superior court or of Parliament. An arrest to enforce a court order in civil proceedings can only be made under a warrant issued by a court or by a power of arrest granted by the court in cases of domestic violence.

(1) Arrests in Criminal Proceedings: The police have power to arrest a suspect without a warrant if he or she is reasonably suspected of involvement in an arrestable offence, that is, one where the maximum penalty is five years imprisonment or more. They must normally obtain a warrant before arresting someone for other offences, an immediate arrest without a warrant may, however, take place if the police believe it is not possible or appropriate to issue a summons to appear in court, for instance where a suspect refuses to give a name and address.

(2) An arrested person has the right to

- consult a solicitor,
  - ask the police to notify a relative or other named person likely to take an interest in his or her welfare, and
  - consult the code of practice regarding treatment in police custody.
- The police may delay the exercise of the first two of these rights for up to 36 hours.

(3) Consultation: Solicitors are available on a 24-hour basis to offer free legal advice for people being questioned at police stations. The police must caution a suspect before any questions are put for the purpose of obtaining evidence. The caution informs the suspect that he or she is entitled to refuse to answer questions — the so-called right of silence.

(4) The suspect may not normally be detained for more than 24 hours without charge. In the case of a suspect arrested in connection with a serious arrestable offence, however, he or she may be detained for up to 36 hours without charge on the authority of a senior police officer, if the police wish to detain the suspect for longer than 36 hours, they must obtain authority from a court, which may not grant authority for a period beyond 96 hours from first detention. Reviews must be made of a person's detention at regular intervals to check whether the criteria for detention are still satisfied. If they are not, the person must be released immediately.

(5) Tape recording of interviews with suspected offenders at police stations are universal practice.

(6) Habeas Corpus. Anyone who thinks that his or her detention is illegal may apply to the High Court for a writ of habeas corpus against the person detaining him or her. If no lawful cause can be shown, the prisoner must be released immediately. A habeas corpus case has priority over other cases in the order of court business.

(7) Bail: Most accused people are released on bail pending trial. They are not remanded in custody except where strictly necessary.

16. Right to Privacy

No one shall be subjected to arbitrary interference with his privacy, family, home or correspondence, nor to attacks upon his honour and reputation. Every one has the right to the protection of the law against such interference or attacks.

(1) The common law allows people to speak and act in their own homes as they please and to carry on their daily business, provided that they do not infringe the rights of others or commit an offence.

(2) Parents are free to bring up their children as they so wish, provided that they do not infringe laws against cruelty and exposure to moral and physical danger. Parents also have to observe the law regarding compulsory education of their children.

(3) It is a criminal offence for a man to commit a homosexual act with a person under the age of 18. The age was changed from 21 to 18 with a vote of 336 to 129. A 1999 Bill to further reduce that age to 16 has failed.

(4) Privacy and the Press. Action is being taken by the Government to deal with media intrusion into the privacy of individuals. The law against libel gives protection against attacks on a person's honour and reputation.

(5) Some other forms of intrusion are criminal offenses, for example, the use of unlicensed radio transmitters for bugging, the harassment of tenants to make them quit, or the sending of unsolicited obscene material through the post. Other attempts to obtain private information may involve offenses of criminal trespass.

(6) Interception of Communications. Legislation authorizes governmental interception of postal and telephone services but only on certain limited grounds. Any interception outside these procedures is a criminal offence.

(7) Computers Under the Data Protection Act 1984 which gives effect to a Council of Europe Convention, data users are required to register a description of the personal data they hold, the purposes for which they use it, the sources from which they obtain it and the categories of person to whom they may disclose it. They must also provide an address to which data subjects may write for access to the data. Individuals have the legal right to know about the data held on them and the right to ask a court to have factually wrong or misleading data corrected or deleted. In addition they have the right to claim compensation for damages if the data are lost, inaccurate, or disclosed without authority.

17. Freedom of Movement

(1) Everyone has the right to freedom of movement and residence within the borders of each State.

(2) Everyone has the right to leave any country, including his own, and to return to his country.

18. Freedom of Religion

Everyone has the right to freedom of thought, conscience and religion; this right includes freedom to change his religion or belief, and freedom, either alone or in community with others and in public or private, to manifest his religion or belief in teaching, practice, worship and observance.

(1) Worship and religious teaching take place without any interference from the State. There is complete freedom of thought, conscience or form of worship and no restriction on the right of any citizen to change his or her religion. Atheists and agnostics are also free to propagate their views.

(2) A person may, however, be held guilty of blasphemous libel if he or she publishes scurrilous and offensive references to Christianity that go beyond the limits of proper controversy. This does not apply to debate and discussion about the truth of Christian doctrines.

(3) Churches and religious societies of all kinds own property, run schools and propagate their beliefs in speech and writing. Inquiries are not made about religion in population censuses or other official returns.

(4) There is no religious bar to the holding of public office except in the case of the Sovereign who must by law be a Protestant. The Church of England and the Church of Scotland are the established 'official' churches for State ceremonies of a religious nature. Their members, however, do not obtain any advantages from being members of an established church rather than of any other church.

(5) Religious education has to be provided in all schools financed from public funds and is part of the national curriculum. Parents have the right to ask for their children to be withdrawn from such classes. Some publicly maintained schools are provided by religious denominations and receive varying amounts of public finance, according to type.

(6) Television and radio programs are broadcast on religious topics, these include religious services as well as programs in which adherents of the main religions and non-believers discuss their views. Advertising aiming to promote religious ends is not permitted on television or radio.

19. Freedom of Expression

Everyone has the right to freedom of opinion and expression, this right includes freedom to hold opinions without interference and to seek, receive, and impart information and ideas through any media and regardless of frontiers.

(1) Restrictions include the official secrets, civil defamation, criminal libel, obscenity, sedition, incitement to racial hatred, and contempt of court

(2) There are legal remedies against defamation. Fair comment on matters of public interest may be a defence. Proof that the alleged defamatory matter is true is also a defence. In the same way, frank discussion of sexual problems is not considered to be an infringement of the law on obscenity

(3) There is no State control or censorship of the press. Foreign language papers are freely imported

(4) British broadcasting is based on the tradition that it is a public service accountable to the people through Parliament. Television and radio services are provided by the British Broadcasting Corporation (BBC). Other operators are licensed individually by the Independent Television Commission (ITC) and the Radio Authority. The responsibilities of these public bodies are set out in legislation. The Government itself is not responsible for program content or broadcasters' day-to-day conduct of business

(5) The independence of the broadcasters requires them to maintain certain standards regarding programs and program content. Under the relevant legislation and the codes of practice applied by the broadcasting authorities, programs must display, as far as possible, a proper balance and wide range of subject matter, and impartiality in matters of controversy. There are also rules relating to violence and standards of taste and decency in television programs, particularly during hours when large numbers of children are likely to be watching. Broadcasters must also comply with the general law relating to obscenity and incitement to racial hatred

(6) According to 1991 European agreements on cross-border broadcasting, programs may not be indecent, contain pornography, give undue emphasis to violence, or be likely to incite racial hatred. Nor should programs unsuitable for children be broadcast when they can be expected to be watching

(7) Theater. There is no censorship of plays. It is, however, a criminal offence to present or direct an obscene performance of a play in public or private. Such a performance is defined as one which, taken as a whole, tends to 'deprave and corrupt persons who are likely to attend it'. There is a defence against an obscenity charge on the grounds that the performance is for the public good in the interest of drama, opera or literature

(8) Films and Video Government has no power to censor films. Cinemas are licensed by local government authorities, which have a legal duty to prohibit the admission of children under 16 to unsuitable films, and may prevent the showing of any film, although this particular power is hardly ever exercised. In assessing the suitability of films, authorities rely on the British Board for Film Classification, an independent non-statutory body to which films offered to the public must be submitted.

PART 7 POLITICAL RIGHTS

20. General Political Rights

(1) Everyone has the right to take part in the Government of his country, directly or through freely chosen representatives.

(2) Everyone has the right of equal access to public service in his country.

(3) The will of the people shall be the basis of the authority of Government, this will shall be expressed in periodic and genuine elections which shall be by universal and equal suffrage and shall be held by secret vote or by equivalent free voting procedures.

(4) Britain is a parliamentary democracy, the Government being responsible to the people through the elected House of Commons, which has the power to force a Government to resign on a vote of no-confidence. The other House in the British Parliament is the non-elected House of Lords, which is normally a chamber of discussion and revision of proposals and not a rival to the Commons. Its powers to delay legislation are limited by law.

(5) Candidature for parliamentary elections is open to anyone aged 21 and over who is eligible to vote.

(6) The secret ballot is used in all British elections. The electoral system is the simple majority system. The candidate with the largest number of votes is elected.

(7) Officials working in central and local Government have a long tradition of political neutrality. A change of Minister therefore does not involve a change of departmental staff, whose functions remain the same whichever political party is in office. Public offices are open to men and women without distinction on grounds of sex, religion, race or colour. Staff are recruited to the civil service and its executive agencies through fair and open competition solely on the basis of merit.

21. Political Asylum

(1) Everyone has the right to seek and to enjoy in other countries asylum from persecution.

(2) This right may not be invoked in the case of prosecutions genuinely arising from non-political crimes or from acts contrary to the purposes and principles of the United Nations.

(3) Britain is a signatory of the 1951 United Nations Convention Relating to the Status of Refugees and its 1967 Protocol and continues to meet its obligations to refugees under these instruments. The Convention defines a refugee as a person who has a well-founded fear of being persecuted for reasons of race, religion, nationality, membership of a particular social group or political opinion.

(4) Britain and the other European Community members have signed the Dublin Convention, which defines when a member State is responsible for dealing with an asylum application. Applicants may no longer lodge successive claims in different countries.

(5) Under recent legislation people are not extradited to face trial or imprisonment if they face persecution on grounds of race, religion, nationality or political opinion. British extradition law prevents extradition for political offenses.

22. Nationality

(1) Everyone has the right to a nationality.

(2) No one shall be arbitrarily deprived of his nationality nor denied the right to change his nationality.

(3) British citizenship is acquired automatically at birth by a child born in Britain if the father (in cases of legitimate birth) or mother is a British citizen or is settled in Britain.

(4) British Dependent Territories citizens, British Nationals (Overseas), British overseas citizens, British subjects under the Citizenship Act and British protected persons are entitled to be registered as British citizens after five years' residence in Britain. British Dependent Territories citizens from Gibraltar have an absolute right to be registered as British citizens without needing to reside in Britain.

(5) Commonwealth citizens, citizens of the Irish Republic and foreign nationals can acquire British citizenship by naturalization.

(6) British citizenship can be renounced by a person if he or she possesses, or is about to acquire, the nationality or citizenship of another country.

(7) Under the Hong Kong Act 1985 citizens are entitled to acquire a new form of nationality, that of British National (Overseas), together with a passport showing that an entry clearance is not required to visit Britain. In April 1990 legislation was passed to give British citizenship to 50,000 key people in Hong Kong and their dependents without their having to leave the territory to qualify. Its purpose is to persuade these people—selected under a points system—to remain in Hong Kong so that the territory can remain stable and prosperous up to the change to Chinese sovereignty in 1997 and beyond.

23. Assemblies and Associations

(1) Everyone has the right to freedom of peaceful assembly and association.

(2) No one may be compelled to belong to an association.

PART 8

SOCIAL RIGHTS

24. General Social Rights

Everyone, as a member of society, has the right to social security and is entitled to the realization, through national effort and international co-operation and in accordance with the organization and resources of each State, of the economic, social and cultural rights indispensable for his dignity and the free development of his personality

25. Work

(1) Everyone has the right to work, to free choice of employment, to just and favourable conditions of work and to protection against unemployment

(2) Everyone, without any discrimination, has the right to equal pay for equal work

(3) Everyone who works has the right to just and favourable remuneration ensuring for himself and his family an existence worthy of human dignity, and supplemented, if necessary, by other means of social protection

(4) Everyone has the right to form and to join trade unions for the protection of his interests

(5) The Employment Service, an executive agency of the Department of Employment, helps unemployed people to find work through its job placement and other services and pays benefits and allowances to those entitled to them

(6) A fundamental reform of the vocational qualifications system is being undertaken by the National Council for Vocational Qualifications. It aims to develop a system of nationally recognized vocational qualifications based on standards of workplace competence set by employers. Equal esteem for academic and vocational qualifications is being promoted with clearer and more accessible paths between them

(7) In most industries the pay and conditions of workers are settled by national and/or plant bargaining between employers and trade unions

(8) Laws impose duties on employers and others to ensure the health safety and welfare of their employees in factories, offices, mines, building sites and all other work activities

(9) People may join trade unions, which have members in virtually every occupation and some 10 million members in all. Dismissals for union membership or non-membership are automatically unfair. It is also unlawful for an employer to refuse to employ an individual on the grounds of that individual's membership or non-membership of a trade union

26. Working hours

Everyone has the right to rest and leisure including reasonable limitation of working hours and periodic holidays with pay. The basic working week in Great Britain is about 37 5 to 40 hours for manual work and 35 to 38 for non-manual work A five-day week is usually worked Overtime is paid at higher rates

27. Home

(1) Everyone has the right to a standard of living adequate for the health and well-being of himself and of his family, including food, clothing, housing and medical care and necessary social services, and the right to security in the event of unemployment, sickness, disability, widowhood, old age or other lack of livelihood in circumstances beyond his control

(2) Motherhood and childhood are entitled to special care and assistance All children, whether born in or out of wedlock, shall enjoy the same social protection

(3) The National Health Service (NHS) provides comprehensive health care to all residents Treatment is based on medical priority regardless of patients' income and is financed mainly out of general taxation Patients pay charges for prescriptions although in practice some 75 per cent are supplied free, since charges do not apply to people on low incomes, children, expectant mothers, pensioners and other groups

(4) Patients are free to seek private medical treatment and doctors, dentists, opticians and pharmacists are able to practice privately NHS hospital doctors, too, can practice privately, subject to certain rules There is limited provision for them to treat their private patients in NHS hospitals NHS patients are sometimes treated at public expense in private hospitals Some 7 5 million people are covered by private medical insurance

(5) A local authority may apply to the court for a child care order This can only be made by the court if it is satisfied that the child is suffering, or is likely to suffer, significant harm

(6) Children who break the criminal law are brought before youth courts

(7) The social security system aims to provide financial help to people who are elderly, sick, disabled, unemployed, widowed or bringing up children The system includes contributory national insurance benefits covering sickness, invalidity, unemployment, widowhood, and retirement There is also statutory sick pay and maternity pay paid for their employees by employers Another part of the system consists of non-contributory benefits such as child benefit paid for every child in a family and a range of benefits for severely disabled people and those looking after them

(8) Preventive services are designed to safeguard the health of pregnant women and mothers with young children Pregnant working women have the right to visit clinics during working hours Nearly all women have their babies in hospital, returning home shortly after to be attended by a midwife or health visitor and, where necessary, the family doctor Child health centers check the physical and mental health of pre-school children There are voluntary programs of immunization against diphtheria, measles, rubella (women of child-bearing age and girls only), poliomyelitis tetanus tuberculosis and whooping cough. There is a combined vaccination against measles, mumps and rubella for children in the second year of life.

(9) Statutory maternity pay is available for up to 18 weeks when a woman is away from work because of her pregnancy. The pay is 90 per cent of earnings for six weeks followed by a flat rate payment for a further 12 weeks. To qualify, a woman must have worked for the same employer for at least two years, where a woman has been employed for between six months and two years, she is entitled to payments for the full 18 weeks at the flat rate only. If a woman does not qualify for maternity pay, she may receive a maternity allowance if she has worked for an employer or as a self-employed person and paid a specified number of national insurance contributions. The allowance is paid for 18 weeks.

(10) Britain is a party to the Council of Europe's convention on the legal status of children born to unmarried parents. This provides for common rules under which the legal status of such children is the same as for those born to a married couple. Legislation has been passed to remove former legal disadvantages suffered by children of unmarried parents.

(11) Under the Abortion Act 1967, as amended in 1990, a pregnancy may only be terminated if two registered doctors consider that this step is justified in terms of one or more of the grounds specified in the Act. The Act does not apply in Northern Ireland.

(12) The birth of the world's first 'test tube baby' took place in Britain in 1978, using the technique of in-vitro fertilization. The social, ethical, and legal implications were examined by a committee of enquiry under Baroness Warnock, which concluded that certain specialized forms of infertility treatment, including artificial insemination by donor and in-vitro fertilization, were ethically acceptable. The committee also considered that research on human embryos could take place under certain conditions.

(13) About two-thirds of the housing stock in Britain is owner-occupied. With a few exceptions, secure public sector tenants have the right to buy their house or flat at a discount if they have been public sector tenants for at least two years. Under legislation passed in 1988 a Housing Action Trust can be proposed for an area of public sector housing in England and Wales. If the majority of tenants vote in support of a proposal to set up a Trust in their area, the Trust, which is a public body, takes over the ownership of the housing in order to undertake major physical, social and economic regeneration. Once the work is completed, the tenants decide on the future of their homes: such as a transfer to a housing association, formation of a tenants co-operative or a return to the local government authority. Additional low-cost housing is provided by non-profit-making housing associations.

(14) Local government authorities have a statutory duty to ensure that accommodation is provided for people who are or are about to become unintentionally homeless.

(15) It is a criminal offence for a landlord to harass tenants. If tenants are driven out by harassment or illegally evicted, they must be compensated. If a landlord harasses or evicts a tenant in order to re-let at market rent, the courts may award damages to the tenant based on the profit made by the landlord. As a general principle, tenants and most other residential occupiers cannot be evicted without a court order.

28. Education, Science, and the Arts

(1) Everyone has the right to education. Education shall be free, at least in the elementary and fundamental stages. Elementary education shall be compulsory. Technical and professional education shall be made generally available and higher education shall be equally accessible to all on the basis of merit.

(2) Education shall be directed to the full development of the human personality and to the strengthening of respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms. It shall promote understanding, tolerance and friendship among all nations, racial or religious groups, and shall further the activities of the United Nations for the maintenance of peace.

(3) Parents have a prior right to choose the kind of education that shall be given to their children.

(4) The State education system is free, but a small proportion of children attend private fee-paying schools. Local education authorities have to meet the parents' wishes unless the school is full or, if selective, the child does not meet required academic standards. Secondary schools—those catering for 11 to 16 year olds—in England and Wales are required to admit pupils up to the limit of their available physical capacity if there is sufficient demand on behalf of eligible children by parents.

(5) Children whose learning difficulties are severe or complex, wherever possible, are educated in ordinary schools.

29. Culture

(1) Everyone has the right freely to participate in the cultural life of the community, to enjoy the arts, and to share in scientific advancement and its benefits.

(2) Everyone has the right to the protection of the moral and material interests resulting from any scientific, literary, or artistic production of which he is the author.

(3) The Government and local government authorities give financial support to the arts. The preservation of the artistic heritage is encouraged by tax relief and other measures including certain controls on the export of works of art. The Arts Council allocates funds to the major opera, dance, and drama companies, symphony orchestras, small touring theaters, experimental groups, and creative artists.

(4) Original literary, dramatic, musical, or artistic works, films, and sound recordings are automatically protected. The copyright owner has rights against unauthorized reproduction, public performance, and broadcasting of his or her work. In most cases the author is the first owner of the copyright, its term being the life of the author and a period of 50 years after his or her death (50 years from the date of release for films and sound recordings). Under legislation passed in 1988 authors have the right to be identified on their works and to object to any unjustified modifications of them. The law also protects performers against the trading in unauthorized recordings of live performance, the term of protection being 50 years from the year in which the performance is given. A copyright work first published in Britain has automatic copyright in all other countries which are members of the Berne Copyright Convention and the Universal Copyright Convention. The law secures the rights of the originators of inventions, new industrial designs, and trade marks. Protection is also available under the European Patent Convention and the Patent Co-operation Treaty; benefits may be claimed in other countries under the International Convention for the Protection of Industrial Property.

(5) The Government has taken steps to protect the ownership of ideas by means of patents, registered designs, trade marks, and copyright. Measures include the extension of copyright protection to computer software owners, the extension of trade marks to cover services, and powers to enable customs authorities to prevent the entry of counterfeit goods. Legislation passed in 1988 made provision for a new form of protection for designs and made litigation regarding patents simpler and cheaper.

PART 9 RESTRICTIONS

30. Restrictions

(1) Everyone has duties to the community in which alone the free and full development of his personality is possible.

(2) In the exercise of his rights and freedoms, everyone shall be subject only to such limitations as are determined by law solely for the purpose of securing due recognition and respect for the rights and freedoms of others and of meeting the just requirements of morality, public order, and the general welfare in a democratic society.

(3) These rights and freedoms may in no case be exercised contrary to the purposes and principles of the United Nations.

CHAPTER 2 STATE ORGANIZATION

PART 1 OVERVIEW

31. Basic Structure

(1) The British constitution is made up of statute law, common law, and conventions. Conventions are rules and practices which are not legally enforceable but which are regarded as indispensable to the working of Government, many are derived from the historical events through which the British system of Government has evolved

(2) The Queen is head of State and an important symbol of national unity. She is

- head of the executive,
- an integral part of the legislature,
- head of the judiciary,
- Commander-in-Chief of all the Armed Forces of the Crown, and
- the 'Supreme Governor' of the established Church of England

The Queen acts on the advice of her Ministers. Britain is governed by Her Majesty's Government in the name of the Queen. In international affairs the Queen, as head of State, has the power to declare war and make peace, to recognize foreign States and Governments, to conclude treaties and to annex or cede territory.

(3) Three elements make up Parliament—the Queen, the House of Lords and the elected House of Commons. The agreement of all three is normally required for legislation. As there are no legal restraints imposed by a written constitution, Parliament can make or change any law. It can even prolong its own life beyond the normal period without consulting the electorate. In practice, however, Parliament does not assert its supremacy in this way.

(4) The validity of an Act of Parliament, once passed, cannot be disputed in the law courts. The House of Commons is directly responsible to the electorate, and in this century the House of Lords has recognized the supremacy of the elected chamber. The system of party government helps to ensure that Parliament legislates with its responsibility to the electorate in mind.

(5) A Parliament has a maximum duration of five years, but in practice general elections are usually held before the end of this term. The maximum life has been prolonged by legislation in rare circumstances such as the two world wars.

PART 2

PARLIAMENT

32. House of Commons

(1) Officers The officers of the House of Commons are the Speaker, three Deputy Speakers and other permanent officers and staff (Clerks, Serjeants, Library, Official Report, Finance and Administration, and Refreshment).

(2) Electorate British citizens, together with citizens of other Commonwealth countries and citizens of the Irish Republic resident in Britain, may vote provided they are aged 18 or over, included in the annual register of electors for the constituency, and not subject to any disqualification.

(3) Elections For electoral purposes Britain is divided into 651 constituencies, each of which returns one member to the House of Commons. Each elector may cast one vote, normally in person at a polling station. Voting is not compulsory. 76.9 per cent of a total electorate of 43.3 million people voted in the general election in April 1992. The simple majority system of voting is used. Candidates are elected if they have more votes than any of the other candidates, although not necessarily an absolute majority over all other candidates.

(4) Candidates British citizens and citizens of other Commonwealth countries, together with citizens of the Irish Republic, may stand for election as MPs provided they are aged 21 or over and are not disqualified. A candidate must also deposit 500 pounds, which is returned if he or she receives 5 per cent or more of the votes cast. The maximum sum a candidate may spend on a general election campaign is 4,330 pounds plus 3.7 pence for each elector in a borough constituency or 1.9 pence for each elector in a county constituency. All election expenses, apart from the candidate's personal expenses, are subject to the statutory limit.

33. Parties

(1) Parties are not registered or formally recognized in law, but in practice most candidates in elections, and almost all winning candidates, belong to one of the main parties. In 1992 General Elections, the Conservative Party reached 42%, Labour Party 35%, and the Liberal Democrats 18% of votes.

(2) Since 1945 either the Conservative Party, whose origins go back to the eighteenth century, or the Labour Party, which emerged in the last decade of the nineteenth century, has held power. A new party—the Liberal Democrats—was formed in 1988 when the Liberal Party, which could trace its origins to the eighteenth century, merged with the Social Democratic Party, which was formed in 1981.

(3) Leaders of the Government and Opposition sit on the front benches on either side of the Commons chamber with their supporters—the backbenchers—sitting behind them. Inside Parliament, party control is exercised by the Chief Whips and their assistants, who are chosen within the party.

(4) Annual assistance from public funds helps opposition parties carry out their parliamentary work at Westminster. It is limited to parties which had at least two members elected at the previous general election or one member elected and a minimum of 150,000 votes cast. The amount is 2,550 pounds for every seat won, plus 5.10 pounds for every 200 votes.

34. Procedure

(1) Each subject starts off as a proposal or motion by a member. At the end of each debate the question may be decided without voting or by a simple majority vote. The Speaker has discretion on whether to allow a motion to end discussion so that a matter may be put to the vote and has powers to put a stop to irrelevance and repetition in debate and to save time in other ways.

(2) In a tied vote the Speaker gives a casting vote, without expressing an opinion on the merits of the question

(3) Members with a financial interest in a debate in the House must declare it when speaking. To act as a disqualification from voting the interest must be direct, immediate and personal

(4) Proceedings of both Houses are normally public and visitors can watch the proceedings from the galleries of both chambers. The minutes and speeches are published daily. The records of the Lords from 1497 and of the Commons from 1547, together with the parliamentary and political papers of a number of former members of both Houses, are available to the public through the House of Lords Record Office. The proceedings of both Houses of Parliament may be broadcast on television and radio, either live or, more usually, in recorded or edited form

35. Legislation

(1) Bills Draft laws take the form of parliamentary Bills. Most are public Bills involving measures relating to public policy. Private Bills deal with matters of individual, corporate or local interest. Proposals for legislative changes are sometimes set out in government 'White Papers'. Consultation papers, sometimes called 'Green Papers', set out Government proposals which are still taking shape and seek comments from the public.

(2) A draft law is given a first reading in the House of Commons without debate, this is followed by a thorough debate on general principles at second reading. It is then given detailed consideration, clause by clause, by a Commons Committee before report stage in the whole House, and a third and final reading.

(3) Bills must normally be passed by both Houses. They must then receive the Royal Assent before becoming Acts. In practice this is a formality.

36. Committees

(1) Standing Committees debate and consider amendments to public Bills at the committee stage and, in certain cases, discuss them at the second reading stage. Ordinary Standing Committees do not have names but are referred to simply as Standing Committee A, B, C, and so on, a new set of members are appointed to them to consider each Bill. Each committee has between 16 and 50 members, with a party balance reflecting as far as possible that in the House as a whole.

(2) Select Committees are appointed, normally for the duration of a Parliament, to examine subjects by taking written and oral evidence. After private discussion they report their conclusions and recommendations. Committees include those on European Legislation, Science and Technology, Public Accounts, Members' Interests, and the Parliamentary Commissioner for Administration.

(3) Party Committees In addition to the official committees of the two Houses there are several unofficial party organizations or committees. The Conservative and Unionist Members' Committee (the 1922 Committee) consists of the backbench membership of the party in the House of Commons. When the Conservative Party is in office, Ministers attend its meetings by invitation and not by right. When the party is in opposition, the whole membership of the party may attend meetings. The leader appoints a Consultative Committee, which acts as the party's 'shadow cabinet'.

37. House of Lords

There are opportunities for criticism and examination of Government policy in the House of Lords at daily question time and during debates on general motions. Other opportunities include 'unstarred' questions, which can be debated at the end of the day's business, and debates on proposed legislation.

38. Finances

The Finance Act is the most important of the annual statutes, and authorizes the raising of revenue. The legislation is based on the Chancellor of the Exchequer's Budget Statement, normally made in March or April each year. It includes a review of the public finances of the previous year and proposals for the estimated expenditure of the coming year. Scrutiny of public expenditure is carried out by House of Commons Select Committees.

39. European Community Affairs

To keep the two Houses informed of European Community developments, and to enable them to scrutinise and debate Community policies and proposals, there is a Select Committee in each House and two Standing Committees debate specific European legislative proposals in the House of Commons. Ministers also make regular statements about Community business.

40. Members of Parliament

(1) Members of Parliament represent all their constituents, including those who voted for other parties.

(2) The privileges of the members of the Commons include freedom of speech, freedom from arrest in civil actions, exemption from serving on juries, or being compelled to attend court as witnesses, and the right of access to the Crown, which is a collective privilege of the House.

41. Parliamentary Ombudsman

The Parliamentary Commissioner for Administration investigates, independently, complaints of maladministration when asked to do so by MPs on behalf of members of the public. The Commissioner must report annually to Parliament. He or she also publishes details of selected investigations at quarterly intervals and may submit other reports where necessary.

PART 3 GOVERNMENT

42. Composition

(1) The Prime Minister is appointed by the Queen, and all other Ministers are appointed by the Queen on the recommendation of the Prime Minister. Most Ministers are members of the Commons, although the Government is also fully represented by Ministers in the Lords. The Lord Chancellor is always a member of the House of Lords.

(2) The composition of Governments can vary both in the number of Ministers and in the titles of some offices.

(3) The Prime Minister is, by tradition, First Lord of the Treasury and Minister for the Civil Service. The Prime Minister's office is located at 10 Downing Street in central London.

(4) Ministers in charge of Government departments are usually in the Cabinet; they are known as 'Secretary of State' or 'Minister', or may have a special title, as in the case of the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

(5) To keep the workload of the Cabinet within manageable limits, a great deal of work is carried on through the committee system. The membership of all Ministerial Cabinet Committees is published.

(6) The doctrine of collective responsibility means that the Cabinet acts unanimously even when Cabinet Ministers do not all agree on a subject.

43. Lobby

As press adviser to the Prime Minister, the Prime Minister's Press Secretary and other staff in the Prime Minister's Press Office have direct contact with the parliamentary press through regular meetings with the Lobby correspondents. The Lobby correspondents are a group of political correspondents who have the special privilege of access to the Lobby of the House of Commons where they can talk privately to Government Ministers and other members of the House. The Prime Minister's Press Office is the accepted channel through which information about parliamentary business is passed to the media.

44. Privy Council

The main function of the Privy Council is to advise the Queen to approve Orders in Council—those made under prerogative powers and those made under statutory powers. Cabinet Ministers must be Privy Counsellors and are sworn in on first assuming office.

PART 4 LOCAL GOVERNMENT

45. Local Authority Councils

(1) Local authority councils consist of elected unpaid councillors, elected on a similar basis to parliamentary elections. They serve for four years.

(2) In the metropolitan counties, district councils are responsible for all services apart from the police, the fire service and public transport and in some areas, waste regulation and disposal. In Greater London the boroughs and the City Corporation have similar functions but London's metropolitan police force is directly responsible to the Home Secretary.

(3) Local authorities in Great Britain raise revenue through a council tax. Each household receives a single bill based on the market value of property and the number of adults living in it. Couples on low incomes will be entitled to rebates of up to 100 per cent on their council tax bills.

PART 5 JUDICIARY

46. Legal System in General

(1) Although Britain is a unitary State, England and Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland all have their own legal systems, with considerable differences in law, organization and practice. However, a large amount of modern legislation applies throughout Britain. The law is divided into criminal law and civil law, the latter regulates the conduct of people in ordinary relations with one another. The distinction between the two is reflected in the procedures used, the courts in which cases may be heard and the sanctions which may be applied.

(2) The legal system of England and Wales comprises both an historic body of conventions known as common law and equity, and parliamentary and European Community legislation. Common law, which is based on custom and interpreted in court cases by Judges, has never been precisely defined or codified. It forms the basis of the law except when superseded by legislation. Equity law consists of a body of historic rules and principles which are applied by the courts. The English legal system is therefore distinct from many of those of Western Europe, which have codes derived from Roman law.

(3) European Community law, which applies throughout Britain, is confined mainly to economic and social matters, in certain circumstances it takes precedence over domestic law. It is normally applied by the domestic courts, but the most authoritative rulings are given by the Community's Court of Justice.

47. Judiciary in General

(1) The judiciary is independent of the executive: its judgments are not subject to ministerial direction or control. The Prime Minister recommends the highest judicial appointments to the Crown.

(2) The Lord Chancellor is head of the judiciary, except in Scotland. His responsibilities include court procedure and the administration of courts.

48. Criminal Courts

(1) Summary or less serious offenses, which make up the vast majority of criminal cases, are tried in England and Wales by unpaid lay Magistrates—

Justices of the Peace (JPs), although in areas with a heavy workload there are a number of full time, stipendiary Magistrates. More serious offenses are tried by the Crown Court, presided over by a Judge sitting with a jury. The Crown Court sits at about 90 centers and is presided over by High Court judges, full time 'Circuit Judges' and part time recorders.

(2) Appeals from the Magistrates' courts go before the Crown Court or the High Court. Appeals from the Crown Court are made to the Court of Appeal (Criminal Division). The House of Lords is the final appeal court in all cases.

49. Civil Courts

(1) Magistrates' courts have limited civil jurisdiction. The 286 county courts have a wider jurisdiction, cases are normally tried by Judges sitting alone. The 80 or so Judges in the High Court cover civil cases and some criminal cases, and also deal with the appeals. The High Court sits at the Royal Courts of Justice in London or at 26 district registries. Appeals from the High Court are heard in the Court of Appeal (Civil Division), and may go on to the House of Lords, the final court of appeal.

50. Tribunals

(1) Tribunals are a specialized group of judicial bodies, akin to courts of law. They are normally set up under statutory powers which also govern their constitution, functions and procedure. Tribunals often consist of lay people, but they are generally chaired by someone who is legally qualified. They tend to be less expensive, and less formal, than courts of law.

(2) Independently of the executive, tribunals decide the rights and obligations of private citizens towards one another or towards a Government department or other public authority. Important examples are industrial tribunals, rent tribunals and social security appeal tribunals.

(3) In many cases there is a right of appeal to a higher tribunal and, on points of law, to the courts. Tribunals do not normally employ staff or spend money themselves, but their expenses are paid by the Government departments concerned. An independent Council on Tribunals exercises general supervision over many tribunals.

51. European Courts

(1) The Court of Justice consists of 13 Judges. It interprets and adjudicates on the meaning of the treaties and on measures taken by the Council of Ministers and the Commission. It also hears complaints and appeals brought by or against Community institutions, member states or individuals and gives preliminary rulings on cases referred by courts in member states. It represents the final authority on all aspects of Community law.

(2) The Single European Act of 1986 provided for a Court of First Instance to relieve the Court of Justice of a substantial part of its workload. The new court began working in 1989.

CONSTITUTION OF UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

{Adopted on 17 Sep 1787}

{Effective since 4 March 1789}

PREAMBLE

We, the People of the United States, in Order to form a more perfect Union, establish Justice, insure domestic Tranquility, provide for the common defence, promote the general Welfare, and secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America

ARTICLE I LEGISLATURE

1 Legislative Power Vested

All legislative Powers herein granted shall be vested in a Congress of the United States, which shall consist of a Senate and House of Representatives

2. House of Representatives

(1) The House of Representatives shall be composed of Members chosen every second Year by the People of the several States and the Electors in each State shall have the Qualifications requisite for Electors of the most numerous Branch of the State Legislature

(2) No Person shall be a Representative who shall not have attained to the Age of twenty five Years and been seven Years a Citizen of the United States and who shall not when elected be an Inhabitant of that State in which he shall be chosen

(3) Representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several States which may be included within this Union, according to their respective numbers, which shall be determined by adding to the whole number of free persons, including those bound to service for a term of years, and excluding Indians not taxed, three fifths of all other persons. The actual Enumeration shall be made within three Years after the first meeting of the Congress of the United States, and within every subsequent term of ten years, in such manner as they shall by law direct. The number of Representatives shall not exceed one for every thirty thousand, but each State shall have at least one Representative, and until such enumeration shall be made, the State of New Hampshire shall be entitled to choose three, Massachusetts eight, Rhode Island and Providence Plantations one, Connecticut five, New York six, New Jersey four, Pennsylvania eight, Delaware one, Maryland six, Virginia ten, North Carolina five, South Carolina five, and Georgia three.

(4) When vacancies happen in the Representation from any State, the Executive Authority thereof shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies.

(5) The House of Representatives shall choose their Speaker and other officers, and shall have the sole power of impeachment.

3. Senate

(1) The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two Senators from each State, chosen by the Legislature thereof, for six years, and each Senator shall have one vote.

(2) Immediately after they shall be assembled in consequence of the first election, they shall be divided as equally as may be into three classes. The seats of the Senators of the first class shall be vacated at the expiration of the second year, of the second class at the expiration of the fourth year, and of the third class at the expiration of the sixth year, so that one third may be chosen every second year, and if vacancies happen by resignation, or otherwise, during the recess of the Legislature of any State, the Executive thereof may make temporary appointments until the next meeting of the Legislature, which shall then fill such vacancies.

(3) No person shall be a Senator who shall not have attained to the age of thirty years, and been nine years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an Inhabitant of that State for which he shall be chosen.

(4) The Vice President of the United States shall be President of the Senate, but shall have no vote, unless they be equally divided.

(5) The Senate shall choose their other officers, and also a President pro tempore, in the absence of the Vice President, or when he shall exercise the office of President of the United States.

(6) The Senate shall have the sole power to try all impeachments. When sitting for that purpose, they shall be on oath or affirmation. When the President of the United States is tried, the Chief Justice shall preside.

And no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members present.

(7) Judgment in cases of impeachment shall not extend further than to removal from office and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honour, trust, or profit under the United States; but the party convicted shall nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment, and punishment, according to Law.

4. Elections of Senators and Representatives

(1) The times, places and manner of holding elections for Senators and Representatives shall be prescribed in each State by the Legislature thereof, but the Congress may at any time by law make or alter such regulations, except as to the places of choosing Senators

(2) The Congress shall assemble at least once in every year, and such meeting shall be on the first Monday in December, unless they shall by Law appoint a different day

5. Rules of House and Senate

(1) Each House shall be the judge of the elections, returns, and qualifications of its own members, and a majority of each shall constitute a quorum to do business, but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and may be authorized to compel the attendance of absent members, in such manner, and under such penalties as each House may provide

(2) Each House may determine the rules of its proceedings, punish its members for disorderly behavior, and with the concurrence of two-thirds expel a member.

(3) Each House shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and from time to time publish the same, excepting such parts as may in their judgment require secrecy, and the yeas and nays of the members of either House on any question shall, at the desire of one-fifth of those present, be entered on the journal

(4) Neither House, during the session of Congress, shall without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other place than that in which the two Houses shall be sitting

6. Compensation and Privileges

(1) The Senators and Representatives shall receive a compensation for their services, to be ascertained by law, and paid out of the Treasury of the United States. They shall in all cases, except treason, felony and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance, at the session of their respective Houses, and in going to and returning from the same, and for any speech or debate in either House; they shall not be questioned in any other place

(2) No Senator or Representative shall, during the time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the United States, who shall have been created in the United States who shall have been created in the United States who shall have been created in the United States been increased during such time, and no person holding any office under the United States, shall be a member of either House during his continuance in office

7. Bills

(1) All Bills for raising revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives, but the Senate may propose or concur with amendments as on other Bills

(2) Every Bill which shall have passed the House of Representatives and the Senate, shall, before it become a law, be presented to the President of the United States, If he approve he shall sign it, but if not he shall return it, with his objections to the House in which it shall have originated, who shall enter the objections at large on their Journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If after such reconsideration two-thirds of that House shall agree to pass the Bill, it shall be sent together with the objections, to the other House, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered, and if approved by two-thirds of that House, it shall become a law. But in all such cases the votes of both Houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for and against the Bill shall be entered on the journal of each House respectively. If any Bill shall not be returned by the President within ten days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law, in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the Congress by their adjournment prevent its return in which case it shall not be a law.

(3) Every order, resolution, or vote, to which the concurrence of the Senate and House of Representatives may be necessary (except on a question of adjournment) shall be presented to the President of the United States, and before the same shall take effect, shall be approved by him, or being disapproved by him, shall be repassed by two-thirds of the Senate and House of Representatives, according to the rules and limitations prescribed in the case of a Bill.

8. Legislative Power

(1) The Congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes, duties, imposts and excises, to pay the debts and provide for the common defence and general welfare of the United States, but all duties, imposts and excises shall be uniform throughout the United States,
